"Dad, I'm so sorry that you worried about me."

"Let's not mention it for a while, Tamar. I'm so thankful to have you back safely."

"Did you pay ransom?"

Randolph smiled. "You won't be put off, I can see. I'd have given everything I owned or ever hope to own to keep one hair of your dear head unharmed if it was not that costly. In fact, the abductor was very lenient. I put a hundred thousand in bills of large denominations in a metal strong box and placed it in the hollow of the shaft at the saddle horses' grave. Talahaneka I, you know."

"Was it removed?" Tamar asked, her eyes wide. Some one who had known the state of the Shadwell had suggested that place! Who in the world would know that there was a hollow in the base of the tall white shaft? And, why, of all places, would any one risk coming to Shadwell for the ransom?

"Yes, the money was removed some time during the night or early morning. I went down to the cemetery after I left this morning and after daylight. It was gone. Tamar, some one knew that shaft was hollow."

"It couldn't have been Louie, Dad. Why, he was a stranger here, I know. He simply couldn't have known such a small detail as that."

Knox Randolph shook his head. "I hardly think, though, that he would trust any one else with the money. I drove into Atlanta yesterday to get it ready."

Tamar was silent. Louie could not have taken the money from Talahaneka I's shaft because at that time Louie was asleep in the cabin at the foot of the mountain where she was held captive. He had an accomplice. Now there were three mixed up in it. Therese, Louie and some one who knew Shadwell.

Taylor was waiting for them at Shadwell. Dick's plane had arrived sooner, and Rainy and he had already talked with the investigator.

Tamar looked hungrily about the terraces and the open vista that stretched down toward the Chestatee. It was afternoon and the shadow of the great trees were already darkening the rolling land.

The familiar sound of waddling geese, clacking guineas and the sight of waiting pets threw Tamar into a nervous tension once more. She wanted to get up to her room and close her door and lie on her big four-poster bed.

She wanted to see the movement of the sheer white curtains blowing in and out of the screened windows, watch the hands of her clock creep slowly about its funny old face—the clock that had watched the first Tamar Randolph to come to Shadwell for so many years.

She wanted to walk softly in that room that had belonged to Marie Randolph, and which would indelibly carry that dear possessive till its walls crumbled.

Something gripped her as she took the turn at the first landing of the stairs. Her legs grew weak and her body grew limp. She and Christopher had once stood by the shaft of the Talahaneka I and looked down at the sunken hollow.

Are Real Nuisance

So Called Wild Animals Bother Men At African Airports

Spain may have its Ferdinand the Bull, but Africa has its Ferdinand the Lion. A lion knows. He met him.

Major Thomas Dawson is thankful to be alive to tell this story. It seems that he'd just landed his plane at Sudaq, Africa, when a big lion dashed up and slugged him with his paw. A British officer called.

"Hit him back. He wants to play," Major Dawson bit him. But the lion came back like a playful dog, grabbed his arm in his mouth, apparently in a friendly gesture. Then he let go and scampered away.

As a matter of fact, Major Dawson reports that so-called wild animals of all kinds are a nuisance around African airports.

They're a bother, he says, not because of their ferocity, but because of their tameness.

At one airport, a full-grown giraffe wandered all over the place. In many places deer are as tame as goats. And at one landing field they had to chase away a herd of elephants before they could land.

Dawson asked a British officer what would happen if the elephants decided not to shoo The officer replied

"We never have any trouble unless there are young with them. Then you can't get in the air until they decide to leave."

Trumpeter For Royalty

Canadian Who Played For Visit Majestics Dies in Toronto

Mr. Hall was a member of the Queen's Own Rifles band for 25 years, and was with the battalion when it went overseas in 1914. He played for the King and Queen on their visit to Canada in 1939, and was featured as a soloist. In 1927 he played a solo for the Duke of Windsor then the Prince of Wales.

All-Bran Pecan Muffins Substitute For Dessert

So good are these tender-textured, nut-filled bran muffins that they take the place of sugar-consuming desserts, when served piping hot with fresh sweet butter and preserves. Try them some night when you're having a light supper and need something hearty to serve as a "filler-upper." Here's the recipe:

All-Bran Pecan Muffins

2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup All-Bran
¼ cup pecan meats
1 cup sifted flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk

Cream shortening and sugar, add eggs and beat until creamy. Stir in All-Bran and add milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add, with the nut meats, to first mixture, and stir until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full; bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 minutes.

Yield: Eight muffins 3 inches in diameter or 12 muffins 2½ inches in diameter

Tagging The Beast

The Terrors Of Hitler's Bloody Torture Of The Most Horrible Kind

There is no crime against humanity too base to be committed by the Beast of Berchtesgaden. His twisted soul seems to delight in tortures of the most horrible kind. Nothing like it has ever been known in modern times. Not even the massacres of innocent Armenians by the Terrible Turk approaches the terrors of Hitler's bloody pogroms. He has turned Europe into a shambles. He glories in his saturnalia of wholesale slaughter.

This is the demon in human form who aspires to rule the world. What he has done in Europe is a sample of what would happen in America, if he ever succeeded in conquering this hemisphere. His diabolical hatred would be vented upon countless thousands of innocent men and women.

The most depraved imagination cannot picture the tortures and torments we would have to suffer if Hitler wins this war. San Francisco Argonaut

BRIGHT FOOTSTOOL COVER YOU CAN WEAVE YOURSELF

Fun to Make on Simple Loom

Ah luxury! A gaily woven, sturdy footstool cover to give the man of the house a feeling of delicious comfort!

You weave it easily from strips of bright cloth in harmonizing colors—perhaps a flowered fabric for the centre and a darker one for the borders. Full stitch directions.

Four wooden slats nailed together, with strips of burlap tacked to the two longer sides form the simple loom.

Weave in and through the burlap strips you thread a weaving base strip of heavy cotton cloth. Then weave the cloth itself: the long way, back and forth against your left wrap ping one end of the strip around the base of the other over it.

Keep the weaving even all the time, but not packed either. You bring the strip "in" under the second wrap and the "out" over the next, and so on, bringing it over and warp and under that.

You'll find exact details of making this luxurious footstool cover in our 32 page booklet. Also tells how to weave charming weaving bag matching bracelet and belt, scarf, knitting bag coasters, other novelties

FARM LABOR SHORTAGE

The farm labor shortage, which promises to become an acute problem, is the subject of much speculation at the moment among the agriculture officials. Hon. D. B. MacMillan and his deputy, C. S. Longman, are at present in Ottawa conferring with the federal officials and it is believed that the labor problem will be included in their topics for discussion. In Ottawa this week, Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced that $100,000 had been set aside to assist provinces in organizing and transporting labor. That this will be required here is evident, since a survey conducted by the Extension branch discloses the acreage-as of the shortage.

"A Toast To Victory" At the Vermilion Fair

The gains of Vermilion's thirty-seventh annual exhibition will swing open on Thursday morning, July 30, and in the three days which follow there is every reason to believe that Fair patrons will enjoy the program that has been mapped out by the Directors of the Agricultural Society.

Young People's Classes

The young people of the district are being given an opportunity to compete for substantial prizes in 4-H stock, grains and grasses and vegetables, as well as in cooking and sewing classes and handicraft. An entirely new competition for any Western Canada Fair is the Egg Competition, staged as an educational feature. In this competition each entry consists of one and a half dozen eggs and those will be officially graded and paid for at the current price for eggs on the 31st. Both, plus a premium of two cents each for each 'A' large egg and one cent each for every 'A' medium egg. All district people, young or old, are invited to take advantage of this. Entries must be in before noon, as stated above, bear in mind that Britain needs eggs and she needs a certain quantity and will be featured at Vermilion Fair.

Pupils of 72 Schools Invited

Around 2,000 pupils from 72 rural schools have been invited to show at the Fair this year and Mr. William H Mead, a former Vermilionite, who is principal of Vermilion school of agriculture and the University of Alberta will be on hand to judge the school exhibits and give interesting outlines of the various exhibits.

Great Attractions

The attractions secured for 1942 are excellent indeed and all should welcome the opportunity of attending the Fair for they are entertained while there. Mr. George Hamilton, of Wilmington who has presented some of the most outstanding attractions at the Fair in the past, will be here with a troupe of highly skilled artists and plenty of merriment will be the order of the day in front of the stands.

"A Toast to Victory"

The evening performance will be climaxed by the majestic pageant-pageant, "A Toast to Victory"; reports from fairs previously held this season enthusiastically endorse the splendid program made by the representatives of the Western Canada circuit at Winnipeg in January last.

Harness and Running Races

A program of harness and running races will also be presented as an added attraction and the track has been brought into the best shape ever; Mr. W. D. Williams, veteran horseman will be the starter and promises that all races will get away on the dot with the laggards taking their own chances.

The Wallace Bros. Midway under the direction of Pinnie Sullivan of Ottawa will again present the attraction on the main grounds and the kiddies will have an opportunity of enjoying rides and shows equal to any midway on the continent; the Mann players will be out in force and there will be merchandise games for those who like to take the odd chance. Manager of the public are advised not to engage in the so-called "build-up" games those fakirs with the Mann Midway contract but individual operators may try to carry them on and consequently the warning note is given.

Educational Displays

The Dominion Government is sending to Vermilion an agricultural display featuring the foods essential to the war effort and there is no doubt that this exhibit will create widespread interest; the North West Line Elevators Association will also present their educational display with motion pictures.

Dancing

Dancing will be available to those who like to trip the light fantastic, music being furnished by Lee Lewis orchestra of Winnipeg; the dances will be held in the Elks hall and if the reputation built up by this band is an indication of their skill there is promise of some very interesting evenings.

C.W.A.C. & Air Cadets to Attend

An invitation has been extended to the Myrnam and Vermilion Air Cadets and Lloydminster Red Cross to attend Vermilion Fair as guests of the Directors, while arrangements are in hand to entertain members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps now stationed in Vermilion, the young ladies of the Corps present a very smart appearance and there is little doubt but that district girls will wish to enroll in the unit when they see the splendid uniform which they have given up their own personal comfo to in order to serve Canada at this time

Advance Tickets

Advance tickets are again being sold at five for $1; these tickets are good for admission as well as gate-fee on other fair in the west does this condition apply and those who desire to attend a fair will find it economical to take in the circuit, showing where one dollar does the work of two. The attractions are exactly the same at Vermilion as at all other Western fairs, with the exception that Vermilion is presenting harness and running races as additional entertainments.

Visit Vermilion's friendly Fair — July 30, 31 and Aug. 1.

Secure your advance tickets early; positively not on sale after 11 p.m. Wednesday July 29th.

Wednesday July 15th was cemetery day and a goodly number of citizens attended. It was surely gratifying to see the great amount of work accomplished. Thanks are due to all those who helped and thanks also to the donors of the very good lunch provided at 6 o'clock. That was excellent coffee and those sandwiches certainly hit the right spot. We hope that it may prove an annual day.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

EDMONTON.—Presentation of the farm debt relief proposals was made by a delegation representing the three prairie governments and supporting organizations in Ottawa recently. After presentation of the brief, framed on lines endorsed by the Regina conference, the delegates returned home ward.

o o o

Indications are that an election contest will be staged in Edmonton to fill the vacant legislative seat caused by the death of D. M. Duggan, Independent member and former Conservative leader. C.C.F supporters have already announced a candidate, and the Independents have stated they will do likewise. A meeting of the Government supporters has also been on record as favoring an entry, in the event of their being no acclamation to an Independent

o o o

Of interest to farmer debtors throughout the West is the announcement by the Alberta Attorney-General's department that Manitoba and Saskatchewan will join Alberta in carrying the Debt Adjustment Act judgment appeal to the Privy Council in London. Alberta's Debt Adjustment Act was, after years of operation declared ultra vires. Just prior to the farm debt conference in Saskatoon the Saskatchewan Debt Adjustment Act was declared ultra vires. Manitoba, having a similar statute, fears a similar judgment, and is joining in the joint appeal to the highest tribunal in the Commonwealth.

EDMONTON — Re-opening of discussions relative to western private farm debts was accomplished at Regina Friday when representatives of the three prairie governments met to discuss proposals for presentation to the federal authority for debtor rehabilitation. The Regina meet follows the notable conference at Saskatoon June 29 and 30, at which all governments and farmers organizations were represented. When delegates to the Regina meet have reached an agreement as to the best proposal to make they will proceed to Ottawa.

BREWING INDUSTRY OF ALBERTA

Submit Report On Production Of War Weapons

Ottawa.—A House of Commons subcommittee headed by Lionel Chevrier (Lib., Stormont) reported that the gun production branch of the munitions and supply department has done a "magnificent job" in manufacture and production of weapons, but recommended changes in gun inspection systems and in relations with contractors. Report of the sub-committee, which functions under the war expenditures committee, was tabled in the house.

In brief, these are the recommendations it made:

1. Duplication and overlapping which it found in the inspection of guns should be eliminated;

2. The Canadian inspection should be put on "the same basis" as that prevailing in England under the existing urge of wartime necessity," instead of "based predicated on the peacetime British system, now changed;

3. A complete system of spot inspection and final inspection of the completed article should be set up—and the sub-committee said that if this recommendation were accepted several thousands inspectors could be employed elsewhere in the production of guns, and that the present shortage of gauges could be taken from the inspection branch and used profitably in other branches;

4. Studies now undertaken in the small arms branch to bring about reduction in the number of inspections, duplication and elimination of non-essentials, should be extended to heavier guns;

5. Main contractors should be required to sub-contract items where possible, and the facilities of the industry and sub-contractors should be designed to speed war materials manufacture by obtaining the maximum use of existing facilities, should be used for such purpose;

6. No machine tools should be provided for any new factories except where it is known an unused capacity of machine tools of the required type exists and can be economically and efficiently utilized;

7. An educational program of the industry and sub-contracting branch should be organized to educate the public the necessity of having work placed where it can be produced efficiently rather than because it serves the purpose of relieving economic distress.

Old machine tools were restored evasia.

8. Extend to individuals in any particular year or circumstance the protection of provisions of the legislation available to any debtor.

9. Stay proceedings arising on debts or securities after an adjustment had been made

7. Make remedies available with respect to any farm debts regardless of the time at which they were incurred

The brief said the Saskatoon conference was agreed that "private debt is still one of the most serious problems in the western economy, and that in the interest of the western farmer, legislative action is necessary."

SEEKING PATENT

Twin Cities Newspaper Service Originated Idea Of Wooden Tires

Minneapolis. — Wooden tires developed by the Twin Cities Newspaper Service now are being used to deliver Minneapolis newspapers.

Originator of the idea, the Newspaper Service has applied for patents on the new style wooden tire which, they said, makes the truck steer easier although they are noiseless than rubber.

Trucks equipped with the tires can be driven no faster than 15 miles an hour, the company said, but by using the wooden tires multiple deliveries to news stands are possible instead of the one delivery a day permitted under defence transportation rules.

The tires are composed of 36 wooden blocks bolted together and held in place by an iron band.

SUPPLY ASSURED

Plenty Of Munitions Being Made By Britain And America

London.—Sir Andrew Duncan, minister of supply, assured the House of Commons of a "growing sufficiency" of munitions in a speech which climaxed the second and final day of debate on war production.

"We at least have reached the stage when the total volume of our output is not under any serious point of doubt, and with the combined resources of America and ourselves we are assured of a growing sufficiency," he said.

Of guns, he added: "I do not think there ever has been any question that we have kept ahead. Today the army have more six-pounder anti-tank guns than they had two-pounders a year ago."

The recently-improved Valentines and Matilda tanks, he continued, "have given excellent service in Russia and Libya and now that we have established quantity in tanks and in experience, we can establish quality."

Conservative Sir Patrick Hannon, replying in debate to what he called "slight criticism" of employers and war workers, said "the output per human unit in this country in war production is the highest in the world."

Debt Legislation Urged For Relief Of The Farmer

Ottawa.—A permanent code of debt legislation, directed at relief of farmers in western Canada, was urged on the government by a prairie province delegation headed by the provincial premiers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

A brief, read to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and a group of cabinet ministers by Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, said new legislation was required to replace provincial enactments declared ultra vires in decisions which placed the authority for such legislation on the Dominion government.

Premier William Patterson of Saskatchewan and Premier William Aberhart of Alberta, with a number of their cabinet ministers, were also members of the delegation.

Besides asking that new legislation be passed at a conference in Saskatoon June 29 and 30 attended by representatives of the three governments and of 12 prairie farm organizations.

The conference recommended establishment of a tribunal or tribunals to

1. Write down the principal of farm debts, secured and unsecured.

3. Alter the terms of payment of farm debts, secured and unsecured.

Additional Amount May Be Obtained For Harvest Workers

Ottawa.—Farmers' wives and other persons feeding harvest workers such as threshing gangs or fruit pickers may obtain sugar for these groups just as they would for home preservings, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announces.

All they have to do, the board said, is fill out purchase vouchers and Women's Voluntary Services, and through the British War Relief Society to the Personal Service League.

The abrupt halt of what Churchill called "the brotherly flow of materials" to individuals and unauthorized groups represents another notch in the tightening of the British belt.

It will not necessarily mean hardship however since the principal effect will be on shipments of luxuries and non-essential supplies which formerly supplemented the food and clothing rations of many of the British people

GIFTS FOR BRITAIN

Supplies From U.S. To Britain To Be Diminished

London.—In a letter to President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill asked that the flow of individual gifts and supplies from the United States to Britain be diminished to save shipping space for war materials.

To this end the foreign office announced that hereafter cargo space would be allocated only to direct consignments through the American Red Cross to the British Red Cross and Women's Voluntary Services, and through the British War Relief Society to the Personal Service League.

The abrupt halt of what Churchill called "the brotherly flow of materials" to individuals and unauthorized groups represents another notch in the tightening of the British belt.

It will not necessarily mean hardship however since the principal effect will be on shipments of luxuries and non-essential supplies which formerly supplemented the food and clothing rations of many of the British people

FOOD IS NEEDED

Agricultural Area In Caucasus World Be Valuable To Nazis

Washington.—The German advance into the Don river area north of the Caucasus mountains threatens an important agricultural region upon which Russia has been depending for grain, meat and other food supplies for her southern armies.

Loss of this area would increase Russian demands for American food supplies at a time when there is an acute shortage of ships to move war materials.

The value of the north Caucasus as a food-producing area was emphasized in a U.S. agriculture department report.

The need for additional food supplies as well as oil is believed by agriculture department officials to be one of the factors prompting Hitler to press for a quick seizure of the north Caucasus. These officials have obtained reports from Europe indicating that Germany faces a critical food shortage this winter.

TO SAIL AGAIN

Crew Of Torpedoed Ship Getting Berths On Another Merchant Vessel

Montreal. — Twenty-five survivors staying here after the sinking of their ship in the Gulf of St. Lawrence are getting berths on another merchant ship, it was announced here.

The 33-year-old captain of the merchantman, one of the three torpedoed, said he would remain here for a month or two.

He said that survivors rowed for an hour around the scene of the attack in a lifeboat in search of three missing sailors. They gave them up for lost and then rowed ashore.

The captain said that on previous Atlantic crossings he had never witnessed a sinking, a remarkable fact per a plane attack on a ship.

PLAYING SAFE

London.—The British Broadcasting Corporation reported that "news has been received in London that 63,000 German men, women and children were evacuated from Cologne one of the 1,000-bomber targets of the R.A.F., have arrived in Paris "Victoria and apartment houses," the broadcast said, "have been requisitioned to accommodate them."

Many Vessels Are Added To The British Fleet

London.—How British and Dominion shipyards have increased British defensive production tenfold and have added to the British fleet more than 500 warships of all classes since the war began was revealed by C. S. Ferraby, BBC naval commentator. This means that new British warships have rolled into the water on an average of one every other day since the war started.

Ferraby said that of these ships, more than 100 were ordered or under construction when war broke out. The others are new, and many have included radical changes in design and building which have resulted from lessons learned in the early stages of the war.

"In one class of warships alone, destroyers, of which we're told we can't ever have enough, British and Dominion shipyards have already delivered no less than 160 in the last 20 months. That's a ten-fold increase over pre-war time figures, and a fact which the men of these British and Dominion shipyards can well be proud of.

"But that is only part of the story," he continued. "On top of this tenfold increase in destroyer production we have more than doubled the output of 180 corvettes—a type of ship on which construction was just starting when the Corvettes have been delivered at a rate of nearly seven a month, a large share of the credit for which is due the Canadians.

"This is a part of British's allies of war effort about which little is said," Mr. Ferraby said. "Hitherto information concerning ship building has been kept secret to all but a handful of people.

Pointing out that in 1917 and 1918 British shipyards turned out 3,000 tons of new merchant shipping, in addition to warships, Ferraby said Britain's current merchant ship production is not to be compared favorably with this, and that the first lord of the admiralty indicated in a recent speech that it was even better.

"Another aspect of shipyard work that we don't talk about at all is the repairs to damaged ships. There's been a lot of this and they've been made in record time."

He said that the 500 warships which have been added to the British fleet, unfortunately, not been net gains. Since start of the war the British navy has lost 17 cruisers, 79 destroyers, 35 submarines, five capital ships and four aircraft.

Study Means To Boost Canada's Butter Output

Ottawa. — A Dominion provincial conference on butter production received for consideration the recommendations of a committee appointed at the opening session to study means of increasing Canada's butter output

The committee recommended that periodical reviews should be made of the relationship between the price of butterfat and the general supply position of butter to determine whether the present six-cent-a-pound subsidy is adequate. If adjustments were necessary, an additional subsidy should be applied.

The committee also suggested that there is unnecessary duplication of cream-trucking services, with a waste of labor, gasoline and rubber, and increased overhead costs to the dairy industry

Other recommendations were that Canadian milk should be urged to avoid waste of butter as a patriotic duty; Dominion-provincial boards should assure adequate distribution of feeding rations to dairy farmers and emphasize the importance of pasture fertilization and management

The Dominion government should investigate the "acute" shortage of steam cans and take steps to meet the problem

The agricultural supplies board should undertake an advertising campaign in the farm press to explain the need for increased butter production

The recommendations were submitted to the meeting by R. J. Scott of Belgrave Ont., chairman of the butter committee. Dairy Farmers of Canada, and Dr. F. H. Auld, Saskatchewan deputy minister of agriculture, chairman of the eastern and western sections of the committee.

YOUR SCRAP METAL URGENTLY NEEDED!

This New Method makes Scrap Metal Collection easy for you.

More scrap steel and iron is urgently needed for more ships, tanks, planes, guns and munitions. You are asked to do your part by turning in every available ounce of scrap metal from your farm.

In order to facilitate the systematic collection of scrap iron and steel in the three Prairie Provinces, the Wartime Salvage Limited, a Government Company, has completed arrangements with the following Western Canadian Elevators for collection and purchase of scrap iron and steel:

Alberta Wheat Pool. Saskatchewan Pool Elevators.
Manitoba Pool Elevators Ltd. United Grain Growers Limited.
Ran.R. Steel Line Elevator Equipment.

These Companies handle and purchase the material on behalf of the Government without profit to themselves. Any monies received over and above the actual cost of handling, will be donated to War Charities.

As Agent of one of the above named Elevator Companies has been appointed in your district as an official buyer on behalf of the Wartime Salvage Limited. The prices to be paid by these Agents has been fixed by the Department of Munitions & Supply at $7.50 per net ton at the elevator, for all forms of scrap iron and steel excluding: (a) Steel the of any kind; (b) Automobile bodies and fenders; (c) Stovepipe; and (d) Wooden attachments.

Your contribution to the war effort and to war charities is simplified by this arrangement and it will be more effective inasmuch as you now can take your scrap metal to the Elevator designated in your district and obtain a receipt for it from the Agent.

Should you desire to donate your scrap to the war effort, then such receipt voucher can be endorsed by you, payable to the Voluntary Salvage Committee in your community. The Voluntary Salvage Committee will use such money for war charitable purposes.

Your contribution of scrap iron and steel is urgently needed NOW. Dig out every available ounce of scrap on your farm and take it to the Elevator Agent nearest you without delay. Canadian war industry needs it badly.

Issued under authority of

Department of Munitions and Supply Department of National War Services Wartime Salvage Limited

Scrap iron may now be sold for $7 per ton. Gather up all you have an deliver it to any elevator in Vermilion. They will weigh it up right there and payment will be made by Norman Greig. All metal over ½ of an inch thick is wanted. No car bodies and fenders, this sheet tin such as chimney pipe, or bed springs are taken. 14tf

Fine Imposed on Hoarder

When 222 cans of soup, and 254 cans of fruits and vegetables were found in his basement, Abraham C. De Fehr of Winnipeg, paid $150 and costs, to Harding, in charge laid by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

De Fehr, who immigrated to Canada in 1925, pleaded necessities of diet But it was found that his recent purchases of canned goods exceeded all such claims within reason, so he paid the fine.

ROAD PROJECTS CUT DUE TO WAR NEEDS

Major road projects, particularly in the south and southeastern parts of the province, will be curtailed on account of machinery being loaned to the dominion government for defence work, according to officials of the Alberta public works department.

Already it has been necessary to revise the road program and distribute available equipment that was left for provincial work. Two big graders have been taken over by the dominion.

Surfacing operations in the south may be affected, just as these were hit in the first place when the federal oil controller refused to give a permit for oil to be used for paving purposes. Oil is a precious commodity that is required to help win the war.

In the north, the curtailment will not be so severely felt, as much of the work was grading and gravelling, which still can be carried out, though the completion of some projects will be delayed on account of redistribution of equipment.

Officials of the Alberta Motor Association plan to discuss the road situation at early meetings particularly in view of the possible effects on motoring during the holiday season. Many car owners are planning short trips during the summer season and will be vitally interested in road conditions.

RAIN

It is a wonderful thing to see the prairie provinces green from the footlills to Winnipeg. Of course, we shall have troubles, but they will be easier to bear than those which result from widespread drought.

If we get fair rains this month and if frost does no extensive damage, a large wheat crop is assured. Harvest labour and storage space will be problems we shall have to meet somehow.

We rarely offer advice to farmers, but will risk doing so now. Drought will some again just as surely as the sun will rise tomorrow morning. What a year this is to set aside extra feed reserves—wild hay, tame hay and feed grains. True, there will be a fairly little primary space available for feed grains, but what about stubble? Surely every farmer pre-during livestock should have a good deal of shed oats and barley stacks this fall.

Working in almost a lost art, but it should be restored. Only though will any experience can a uniform row of attractive, symmetrical stacks be built. However, to preserve the choice, the most important consideration is keeping the stack high in the middle while building. If after settling, the shoulders become horizontal or slightly down at the head ends, rain will work in and the grain may be ruined. So, while building, the middle must be kept high and then, after settling, all shoulders will slope slightly down towards the butts and the grain should remain in good shape for years.

Money to be paid as earned and the road approved as shown on contract.

Proposed amendment to the M.D.'s Act as prepared by the Solicitor for the Association, Mr. J.E. Brownlee, was endorsed. This proposed amendment will be submitted to the Vermilion Conference on July 30th, and from there to the Executive of the Association for action at the Alberta Municipal convention in November.

Application of John Young for an Old Age pension was approved.

Thirty-eight dollars was passed to the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Considerable Pound business was considered and fees and refunds were ordered paid.

Payments for work done were passed and bills amounting to $754.56 were passed for payment.

Council adjourned.

The following is a copy of a letter sent to the Western Producer and which states the position of farm families in regard to sugar very well:

Farm Women Ask More Equitable Sugar Rations

Dear Editor,

Western Producer:

This is a copy of a letter sent to Ismail Gordon of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board by the Aurora Farm Women's Sewing Club.

As members of the Aurora Sewing Club, comprised of farm women, live 12 miles north of the town of Leduc, Leduc (C.N.R.) and nine miles west of the hamlet of Leedale, served by trucks and teams, we are writing to you to please use a little more foresight in your rationing of foods as regards farm people and town dwellers, having particularly in mind sugar rationing. A half pound per person is not adequate on a farm more than two miles from town, as compared with a half pound to town people. For instance:

1. We have no access to bakeries for an occasional sweet, nor ice cream, nor fresh fruits, which can be used with jelly powders or cottage cheese, and need very little sugar.

2. We have to make all our bread, which cannot be made digestible in quality without sugar.

3. Once and sometimes twice a year we have four to eight men for a meal and lunch, to save the year's wood.

4. Through threshing we have eight to ten men, from two to six or eight days, according to the size of our farms

5. Men working in to 12 hours a day in the field, with two to three hours rebores before and after through cold frosts morntime, require plenty of food and energy giving food

We farm women don't require thanks for our work in aid of the war effort, but we would feel repaid and thanked if our position as outlined above was given a little more consideration, by an extra ration of sugar for the hours to take care of threshers, bread, etc

Alberta Farmers Union Convention In Vermilion

Over 100 In Attendance — Geo. Nestman Chosen Director to Central Board

The Convention of the Alberta Farmers Union was held in the Memorial hall on Wednesday July 15 with over fifty delegates in regular attendance at all sessions and with a peak attendance well over the 100 mark. Mr. Fred Collins was chairman for the sessions which commenced at 11 a.m. and continued until evening, and Dick Salk of Ranfurly was secretary.

James Jackson of Irma, director of the Alberta Farmers Union and who was also a delegate to Ottawa with the farm delegation, opened the convention and later took the floor to explain the new divisional set up. Vermilion is in District No. 7 which embodies three of the former districts of which three directors were present, Mr. Collins, Mr. Jackson and Mr. O. Sharon

Chesther McGowan, president of the Union, who is being kept very busy with conventions, managed to find time to attend and gave an address. He was also a member of the farm delegation to Ottawa. He briefly summarized this trip and the attitude the government took toward the farmers. He also spoke of the Edmonton convention held last January wherein an attempt was made to get the Alberta Farmers Union and the United Farmers of Alberta to amalgamate. He emphasized the need of a farmers Union by saying, "The Union of the Farmers is the road to reach the goal of parity prices."

All the directors present spoke and Mr. Sharon gave some good points on how to increase the size of the local organization. Mr. Jackson gave a brief talk on the importance of farmers and the value of production in being a vital war factor. He called for parity prices or cost of production.

In his opinion the only way to achieve this was through collective security. Mr. Collins in his brief address, spoke of the importance of a Farmers Union.

Those nominated as directors to the Central Board from district No 7 were Fred Collins, Hazeldine; H. Sharon, Stuboo, P.O.; James Jackson Irma; George J. Nestman, Vermilion

Mr. Nestman then became District President by acclamation, D. Sharon district vice-president and Dick Salk of Ranfurly, district secretary. Sub directors are Joe Topliko, Elk Point; Thomas Delsheim, Onion Lake; Jas. Jackson, Irma.

The guest speaker was Charles Gould of Edmonton, of the Co-operative Activity Branch, Dept. of Trade and Industry, Province of Alberta who spoke on "Co-operation" paying attention to Co-ops and Credit Unions. He proved an eminent speaker and dealt with a topic which fitted in well with the convention.

Geo. J. Nestman had the floor in the afternoon and during the course of his remarks emphasized the importance of the district paper, the Vermilion Standard to everyone in general and to farmers in particular. He pointed out the column write-up given gratis of the Edmonton Wheat conference held last fall which he attended as a delegate from the Chatsworth Local, and semin ridiculed on the front page item of a bull column which the Standard had albert free in advertising the convention the previous week. He appealed to all by telling them not to forget Pool. Some town paper which every one of them should be a subscriber to. He had found it a great asset also in advertising the meetings of the Union, and its activities.

Mr. Andrew Wood of Isle Lake, who is a director of the United Farmers of Alberta, gave a few words of greetings to the convention. Mr. Stewart, Fieldman for the Wheat Pool, spoke briefly on the Pool's attitude towards the farm movement.

The resolutions committee brought fifteen resolutions before the convention These were all carried with the exception of one that was tabled.

Bee Shipping Cages Should Be Preserved

W. G. le Maistre, the Provincial Apiarist, has recently been advised that the Beattie-Bee-Feeder cages are more scarce and a possible shortage of packages for shipping bees next year.

Beekeepers are therefore urged to preserve the queen cages, bee cages and packages in which they receive their bees. Next year it may be very difficult to obtain the materials on which these articles are made. If properly cared for, the shipping packages will be in good condition to return to the bee breeder in California for use again should the offer be made.

This is a precautionary measure We cannot afford to run the risk of being without bees this year, bees playing such an important role in the food supplies both at home and overseas.

Conquerors Of Egypt

Land Of The Pharaohs Has Been Invaded Many Times

There have been many conquerors of Egypt. The Ethiopians swarmed over the land of the Pharaohs in 720 B.C. The Assyrians overran it in 670 B.C. and the Persians 145 years later. They were followed in 332 B.C. by Alexander the Great, who founded Alexandria. And in 30 B.C., after the suicide of Cleopatra, the Romans established their rule.

Nearly seven centuries later, the Arabs conquered Egypt and dominated it until the Turks marched in in 1517. Then Napoleon, in 1801 sought to wrest it from the Turks by attacking Alexandria but was thwarted by Lord Nelson's fleet. The British themselves went in by the same front door in 1882. New Fireproof Glass

Flasks Like Cork And Can Be Sawed With Ordinary Tools

Pittsburgh Corning Corp. reports it has started production of a new type opaque glass, composed of myriad tiny cells that floats like cork and can be sawed or drilled with ordinary tools.

The product known as foamglass, weighs only ten pounds for each cubic foot one-fifteenth the weight of ordinary glass. It is odorless, fireproof and vermin proof and possesses insulating qualities the company said.

Its cellular structure gives the glass its buoyancy and insulating properties. It will not absorb water and it will resist most acids indefinitely.

The company, jointly owned by Pittsburg Plate Glass Co. and Corning Glass Works, has had the product under development since 1938 and recently started manufacturing in a new plant in western Pennsylvania

It is produced by firing ordinary glass which has been mixed with a small quantity of pure carbon. At proper temperature the glass softens and the carbon turns into a gas which then acts upon the molten glass in much the same manner as baking powder in making bread. Through exercise of controls, a rigid vitreous slab, in which cells are uniformly small and entirely sealed one from another, is obtained.

Indians Launch Suit Against U.S. Government Over Alaska Territory

Claiming title to virtually all of south-eastern Alaska, an Indian "nation" has launched a suit to recover $35,000,000 from the government for lands and fishing rights appropriated by white men.

The claimants are the Tlingits, who contend that the Czar of Russia recognized their title to Alaska's most populous region, which includes the cities of Juneau, Ketchikan, Skagway, Petersburg and Wrangell. The United States recognized the title, the Tlingits contend, in the Treaty of Cession in 1867.

The region contains rich mining developments, myriad fishing sites and canneries which form the territory's major industry.

Difficult To Prove

But Allied Naval Authorities Believe Spain Refuels Axis U-Boats

Allied naval authorities are now convinced that Spain is aiding the Axis submarine campaign in the Atlantic, they claim that fuel for Axis marines is being brought from Germany and Italy to Spanish ports and there transferred to Spanish ships bound for American ports. There, so far at sea, these ships rendezvous with Axis submarines and refuel them. When questioned, as has happened several times, the Spanish skippers claim they were high-jacked. Though the ruse is transparent it's admittedly difficult to prove a violation of neutrality.—Newsweek.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 26

NOAH: GOD'S COVENANT WITH MANKIND

Golden text: I will remember my covenant. Genesis 9:15.
Lesson: Genesis 8-9.
Devotional reading: II. Peter 3:8-13.

Explanations and Comments

Noah Receives God's Promise and Admonition, Genesis 9:1-7. A new start for humanity was to be made. The desolated earth was to be replenished with people and animals, and over the latter man was to have dominion. He might use animals for food as well as for other services, but he must hold human life sacred. must not shed human blood.

God's Covenant with Mankind, Genesis 9:8-11. The idea of a covenant between God and his people runs through the Old Testament. Even man living in the most primitive conditions understood a covenant as a mutual agreement of some sort. In Genesis 6:18 we are told that God promised a covenant; now we are told that God established his covenant not only with Noah and his posterity but with every living creature of the ark. This covenant God promised never again to destroy all flesh (which here includes animals) by a flood. Moffatt's translation of verse 9 reads, "I now ratify my covenant with you and your descendants," and of verse 11, "I ratify my compact with you, that never again shall all living creatures be swept away by the waters of the deluge, that never again shall there be a deluge to destroy the earth."

Not only in these primitive stories which we are studying but in many parts of the Old Testament God is spoken of as if dwelling apart from the earth and appearing now and then in mercy or in wrath, but in the New Testament we learn that God is imminent in the world, ever present, ever powerful.

The Token of the Covenant, Genesis 9:12-17. The token of the covenant, the reminder and guarantee of the promise was the bow in the cloud. The rainbow was a token just as the one white rose which the Earl of Lincoln gave each year to the king was a token that the former held all his greatest estates from the Crown "Whether the bow was originally regarded among the Hebrews as the war-bow laid aside, and so as the sign of averted wrath and effected reconciliation, or as the bond which joins haven and earth, God and man, somewhat as the heavenly ladder of Genesis 28:2, is not readily to be determined In any case, in the text it is the symbol of God's covenant of friendship with the earth, established by him, the sign of his grace and favor, and the pledge of peace.

LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

Sulphur Ointment

A warning against too much sunbathing is given by Dr. Norman Wrong, in an article in Health Magazine, organ of the Health League of Canada. Dr. Wrong, demonstrator in dermatology, University of Toronto, discusses facts and fallacies about the skin.

The chief function of the skin is to protect and cover, but "Equally important however, are its functions of heat regulation, of elimination of sweat and of acquainting us with our surroundings through its sensory nerves," he declares.

"The skin is admirably suited to resist harmful physical agents such as heat, cold, drying, wetting abrasives and minor violence." Dr. Wrong points out. "If this were not so, humans could not live in the tropics, the arctic, on the desert and in the water. Fats and oils can be applied to the skin and will lubricate and soften, but are not absorbed. The skin can not be nourished or "fed" by rubbing in a cream any more than a piece of leather can be "fed" by oiling it. Vitamins added to skin creams are practically useless in their effect."

Our skin resists chemicals extremely well, according to Dr. Wrong with the exception of such rare chemicals as mustard gas. It also resists remarkably well the invasion of most bacteria encountered. Pimples and boils are purely local skin infections, he declares

It is dangerous to have too much sun, although "our skin offers fair protection against the ultra-violet rays of the sun. Tanning is an effort on the part of our skin to protect us further and, of course, the negro has the most protection of all against the sun's rays. Sun bathing, in moderation, is very healthful and undoubtedly increases our resistance to infection, and is a sure prevention of rickets. However, the vogue for sunbathing is undoubtedly as harmful as moderate sun-bathing is healthful. Severe sunburn can make a person as ill as a bad burn, and sunstroke is not uncommon here"

"In Australia," Dr. Wrong states "where sun bathing is almost a religion, the amount of skin cancer is greater than anywhere else in the world." He concludes "that people must use discretion and moderation in their sun-bathing

Sabotage Afoot

(This item was crowded out last week.)

There's sabotage afoot—at least so Jim Kirk says. Some ten days ago Jim's company supplied him with a fine new 8-ton truck of a bright red color, the better to carry on his work. On Saturday night or rather early Sunday morning some reveller ran into the truck in the wee small hours when all respectable folks should have been fast asleep leaving the shiny new machine with diverse bumps and scratches which is very irritating when something is brand new. Jim's lamentations were backed up by Charlie Rose who has something of a model farm on the north side of the river. That same Saturday night or the road and in order to get back into town cut the wire around Hank's property where a fine garden, modern pigsty etc. abound — they cut the wire and didn't even let Hughie know about it. The Standard can add its share to the tale of woe as one morning recently the large window in the front door, which has done service for 26 years, was found shattered and no one yet has been located who knows a thing about it.

COOLING OF MILK

It is common knowledge that the souring of milk is caused by bacteria which grows very rapidly if the milk remains warm. Consequently, it is necessary to cool the milk to 50 degrees Fahrenheit and it must not be held for any length of time before being pasteurized or consumed. Cooling of milk is best accomplished by immersing the cans of milk in cold water in an insulated tank. Where water is not cold enough to bring the milk to proper temperature, either natural ice or electric refrigeration should be used, and the water stirred —Special Wartime Revise Pamphlet No. 53 on "Cooling of Milk on the Farm", which may be obtained free from the Publicity and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

BASELESS FEAR REGARDING SALVAGE

OTTAWA.—A lot of needed salvage material is not reaching the market, Hon. J. T. Thorson, Minister of National War Services, said today, because of a baseless fear that it drifts into the hands of junk dealers and peddlers, who store and hold it to make large profits.

Mr. Thorson's statement said:

"This is contrary to the facts. In the first place these people are in this business and have been in it in Canada for years. It is a highly organized business, and the men engaged in it have specialized knowledge which is essential to any successful salvage campaign. If any attempt were made to eliminate them from their place in the economic structure, it would be necessary for the Government to go into this business, which would involve the setting up of a dominion-wide organization, involving the employment of thousands of people who would have to be trained before they could adequately do 'this job. Any such move would create a bad condition.

"Fairmont Limited is a Crown Company, controlled by the Department of Munitions and Supply. This Company is the ultimate purchaser of all scrap rubber, and fixes the price for which it pays for scrap rubber, and likewise fixes the price which the dealer pays, and definitely controls the profit made by the dealer.

"The Wartime Salvage Limited Company under the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, is the ultimate purchaser of paper salvage, and all metals, ferrous and non-ferrous and exercises the same control over prices and profits.

"These Companies distribute the salvage materials purchased by them to the best possible advantage in the prosecution of the war. Money can not be made in articles controlled by these Companies through hoarding, and speculation do not indulge in hoarding for profit, but indicate that directions have not gone forward to dealers to whom to send materials, or where the same shall be shipped

"The Steel Controller and Metals Controller require reports on the quantity of metals purchased by all dealers and the quantity on hand at the end of each month.

"Voluntary salvage corps are required to report to the Director of Salvage at the end of each calendar month the quantity of materials collected and sold the dealer also the prices obtained from the dealers These are carefully checked.

"In this way the public of Canada may be assured that no profiteering is permitted in connection with salvage operations."

Vermilion Exhibition Plans Are Complete

The directors of the Vermilion Agricultural society met on Saturday to put the finishing touches on what is expected to be the outstanding exhibition over a period of almost forty years continuous operation.

Carrying on at the request of the Director of Public Relations, the Vermilion Fair is catering especially to the types of livestock required for Britain in war time and is featuring Boys and Girls classes, for which a special prize list has been issued

At a recent meeting of the Directors they voted that 25 per cent of the net 1942 proceeds should go to the Red Cross for the relief or human suffering

The Siege Of Sevastopol

THROUGH THE PAGES of history are scattered the names of men who have lived and battles which were fought many years ago and which are as famous as events of the present day. Waterloo Trafalgar, Lord Nelson, Earl Haig are a few of the well-known names in Britain's history everywhere. Also there was no doubt that when it is decided that history there would be found another six names will take place alongside of these immortalized in past centuries. Dunkirk, Crete, Captain Fogarty Fegan, Field Marshal Von Mannerstein, Sevastopol is all at love on the pages of history as events in the great struggle for freedom. The siege of Sevastopol, which lasted just over a year, is one of the greatest struggles ever recorded in modern warfare. Because it forms the gateway to the rich resources of Russia and one of the prizes Hitler most urgently desires, and because it also served as a base for the Russian Black Sea fleet no effort was spared by the Nazis to bring the fortress under their rule.

An Epic Struggle

It is said that at one time in history have so many or such powerful weapons been assembled as were used against Sevastopol. General Von Manstein sent 250,000 men against the city and fresh troops were available to replace those that fell, without ceasing and the onslaught lasted for two hundred and forty-five days of continuous action. The distance which the Nazis advanced in that time was only forty miles and it is likely that never before were so many lives lost in the covering of such a distance. In spite of the fact that the German field marshal knew that they were outnumbered the invasion of the Crimea was carried out with a complete disregard for life and material that the post war historians will have to explain. Even after the defenses had been stormed by gunfire and bombarded by high explosives the fight each step of the German advance. Inch by inch the Russians gave ground, fighting every step of the way for Hitler's prize holds of the Caucasus and gives him valuable air bases from which to launch attack in that direction. It also deprives the Russians of an important base for their fleet in the Black Sea.

Valiant Defense

However the valiant defense of the port has given the United Nations time to prepare for the defense of the Caucasus a defense which should not have been effectively organized had the Germans not been detained so long at Sevastopol. The valiant part which Russia is playing in the war is well recognized by all the United Nations. Although specific details are not made public, it is known that large quantities of essential weapons and supplies are constantly being sent to Russia from Britain and the United States and that all possible aid is being given to enable them. At the same time the free nations acclaim the courage and determination of the defenders of Sevastopol, whose names will go down in the history of Russia and of the world.

Interesting Figures On Personnel Of The Royal Air Force

Personnel and equipment of the Royal Air Force at home and abroad, are preponderantly British, the British Press Service said in a statement disclosing the composition of the R.A.F. in the United Kingdom and on overseas service.

While the statement did not give figures for each dominion, Canada is believed to have the largest representation of the Empire's airmen in the R.A.F. More than 1,000 Canadians participated in the recent raids on Bremen and the accompanying sweeps of the Channel coast.

Ninety-seven per cent. of the men in R.A.F. air crews on duty in the United Kingdom are Britons, the press said.

Exactly six per cent come from the dominions and seven per cent from Allied nations. Of male ground personnel 94 per cent are Britons, six per cent from the Dominions and one per cent from Allied nations. Of the R.A.F. personnel in the overseas air 87 per cent of British manufacture and 13 per cent from the United States. Ninety-seven per cent of overseas aircraft are supplied by the dominions and two per cent from the United States, the service said. Ninety-nine per cent. of the men in ground personnel are Britons while only one per cent are from the dominions. Aircraft in operation overseas are 75 per cent. of British manufacture with 25 per cent. from the United States.

Sugar Rationing

Hints For Cutting Down The Amount Normally Consumed

Sugar rationing won't hurt anyone. According to nutritionists sugar does nothing more than supply quick energy and create an appetite for more sugar.

Here are "painless" ways to cut down on sugar

Gradually reduce amounts in tea, coffee and on cereals

Make icings thinner or eliminate entirely

Serve fruits in season in their natural state instead of cakes, pies and puddings

Reduce amount of fruit and sugar to guards the end of the cooking period when it takes less to sweeten. A little sugar goes a long way. Flavour Avoid using soda as this destroys vitamins

Substitute honey, corn syrup maple products or molasses when available. Remember if you have to buy these substitutes that they cost more than sugar Save this money to serve more of the protective foods fruits, vegetables, milk, eggs cheese, meat, butter and bread made from Canada Approved flour When the family becomes accustomed to the natural food flavour they will in all likelihood prefer it

Dried fruits are used in cooking or reduce the amount of sugar called for in the recipe may be cut down.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

This was due to be a column about Army Week. That's what it will be but the lead will be a little different, thanks to the news that just came over the radio, "Vancouver Island has been shelled by a submarine!"

It brought back to my mind the last time I changed a column after it was nearly finished—that was when two freighters were sunk in the St. Lawrence.

At that time I was solemnly informed on several occasions and by several persons that "there haven't been any sinkings in the St. Lawrence that's just government propaganda to frighten people into voting for it." And I wasn't the only one to whom that story was told. Just the other day—a friend related this to me date.

A group sitting around in an hotel in Montreal the day after the St. Lawrence sinkings was gradually shouted into silence by a vociferous proponent of the theory that the story had been invented by government propagandists.

The telephone rang and was answered by the occupant of the office. All the group could hear was: "Did he? Is he all right now? How far did he have to swim? How long was he in the water?" Well, he certainly has nerve—wanting to go back for more!"

He hung up, turned to the group and said the call was from his wife who had just heard from her husband who was a seaman on one of the torpedoed vessels and had just arrived by Montreal.

The vociferous one, converted, rubbed the phone and passed on the story of the truth of the sinkings to several friends.

As the meeting broke up and the converted sceptic left, the man who had answered the telephone said:

That phone call was a long distance operator telling me she couldn't complete a call. My wife has no first cousin at sea—in fact all her cousins are girls. I carried on that fake conversation after she cut off just to prove my theory that a rumour-monger would rather believe a lie than a fact!"

There's a moral in its somewhere!

But this was to be about Army Week. So it is. We wouldn't need to hold Army Weeks if people would believe that "it can happen here." We wouldn't have to put on campaigns to get men to enlist in the Reserve Army if there was less complacency. We wouldn't have to ration commodities like gasoline if we civilians were prepared to volunteer mentally to fight for our country in our every day lives.

Look at the automobiles that clutter the roads on Sundays. Look at the "teas" and "strawberry festivals" that are advertised in the press and the pulpit.

Don't these people know that we are fighting for existence?

Are we going to have "teas" and selfish men and women who must continue doing what they used to until rood blocks, built to hamper an invader hamper their progress to the golden pasties and golf links?

It might seem a very black outlook if it were not for the fact that just before Army Week started we had "Sugar Ration Week" and Canada showed that not every one is of the "must-have-sugar-in-our-tea-at-any-cost" stripe

Volunteers of all ages rallied to cut down their own supply of sugar. Men of A.R.P., C.P.C. and Reserve Army units thronged the street collecting cards; club women and housewives went back to school and sat at cramped desks to transcribe names from application forms to ration cards; business girls became office managers to speed the work along and Boy Scouts gave up their holidays to act as messengers.

I was in Ottawa during ration week. And I started off on the wrong foot by going to bed angry.

The reason:

Two well set up looking men who arrived by the Sunday night train from Montreal went up to the elevator with me. The heaviest items of baggage carried by the hall-boys were golf-bags filled with clubs. Figuratively chewing my nails I tried to stop wondering whether they were in the capital to help win the war or to knock valuable rubber around a golf course.

I still don't know. But this column is about Army Week or, since John and Jane Citizen both put their backs into the Sugar Ration job, shall we say both Army Weeks?

We have set up—and now that we see how it works—have welcomed the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. We set it up to help us conserve goods of all kinds and foods to help win the war. That is to say we are denying ourselves to help the Army, the Navy and the Air Force.

Well then, what is the good of holding Army Week once a year if we chisel from the Army the other 51 weeks?

"Chisel?" Yes, I know it sounds nasty! But that's what it is. "A white tie to get a little more sugar is a very little thing."

Sure!

And stealing one cartridge from a soldier's pouch is a small thing—except when that cartridge spells the difference between life and death to a man in the same uniform as your son.

Television Advances

A New Post-War Industry Predicted For Britain

Three-dimensional television color on sets costing only $40 each, and transmission which can be seen in any part of the country instead of merely in localized areas, is the dream of John Baird, British television inventor.

When peace comes, Baird said, that dream will quickly become reality.

In a bombed and blasted London house, Baird is conducting experiments which he believes will give Britain a large new post-war industry. He has just finished making an all-wave television and radio receiver which he claims can be marketed after the war for about $40.

Hitler has been helping the British scientists with the experiments. That's the name of the old switchboard—a dummy covered in a brilliant scarlet and blue uniform which stars in all the test transmissions.

On the new set, "Hitler's" grinning wooden face appears in excellent color and in three dimensions. The reproduction is amazingly clear and the color equals that of technicolor films

People In Occupied Countries Told What They Must Do

Proclamations issued by the Japanese commanders in New Guinea and New Britain have ordered the Japanese flag to be flown from every house. In addition, residents must bow whenever they meet Japanese soldiers and must learn to speak Japanese.

All trade has been forbidden except under special license. There also are bans on "listening to the radio, intercepting messages, writing to each other or going out at night."

Another order forbids "the propagation of religion or meetings with European ministers," but the people have been told if they obey the emperor of Japan they will be "established in their life."

Wheat Pools Reduce "Street" Spread

The Western Wheat Pools decided at an interprovincial conference, held in Calgary on July 16th and 17th, to reduce by 1 3/8c a bushel the spread in the handling of "street" wheat delivered to the Wheat Board through Pool elevators for the ensuing crop year. This means that "street" wheat grown in Board wheat land and handled by the Pools will be classified and farmers who deliver on that basis will receive the carlot price and benefit by 1 3/8c a bushel as compared with last year's charges. The Wheat Board has been advised accordingly.

This decision was reached because of special conditions which are certain to prevail in the marketing of the 1942 wheat crop. The present arrangement with the Wheat Board provides that a producer must deliver 750 bushels in order to qualify for carlot price. However, it is probable that the first quota will be five bushels to the acre and many farmers will not have a sufficient allotment to deliver 750 bushels, even although they may have substantial quantities of wheat in farm storage.

The Wheat Pools have taken the leadership in this matter just as they have in virtually every proposal to aid western agriculture in the past.

HELPFUL EXHIBIT FROM DOMINION DEPARTMENT OF AGRICUL. AT FAIR

July 30, 31 and August 1

A very attractive and useful exhibit of an educational nature is again being shown at the Vermilion Fair this year by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The exhibit is designed to show the various important ways in which agriculture enters into the War Picture, what is required by Britain in the way of Canadian agricultural products, and how these may be most advantageously produced.

Six hundred million pounds of bacon — the present contract with Britain. This can be supplied only if the breeding stock and litters receive the proper care and management. This includes warmth and the sow and intelligent attention at farrowing time. Warmth should be supplied to winter litters and sanitary conditions provided. Feeding, finishing and marketing at the right weights must all receive attention.

Forty-five million dozen Grade "A" eggs are wanted for drying for Britain. Eggs should be collected often in new clean and whites packed well, kept cool, and delivered often to the local registered egg-grading station. Dirty or cracked should be well fed and watered. Laying houses should be kept clean, and male birds removed from the flock immediately after the breeding season is over. Every Canadian is asked to assist in these important matters.

WEDDING BELLS

TAYLOR—EYBEN

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Saviour's Anglican church, Vermilion, at 3 o'clock, on Saturday, July 18th when Agnes Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eyben, of Auburndale, was united in marriage to ACI John Edward Taylor, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Taylor, of Vermilion. The Ven. Archdeacon Leversedge officiated. The church was tastefully decorated with baskets of flowers for the occasion.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a floor length gown of white satin with embroidered bodice, long sleeves and full skirt. Her finger tip veil of white lace net was held in place by a halo of orange blossoms which were worn by her mother 44 years ago. She carried a Colonial bouquet of Tea Roses.

Miss Ernestine Taylor, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. She was daintily dressed in a floor length gown of pink sheer and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The bride's mother wore a blue georgette dress with a corsage of pink carnations and the groom's mother was dressed in blue crepe with a corsage of red carnations.

Mr. George Eyben, brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. R. Murray and Mr. H. Armstrong were ushers. Mr. Henry Eyben, youngest brother of the bride, played Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

During the signing of the register "O Promise Me" was very beautifully rendered by Miss Joan Calvert, who accompanied on the organ by Miss Grace Bury.

After the wedding ceremony a very dainty and delightful wedding breakfast was served in the Masonic hall. Thirty-four guests were seated at the long tables which were tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and centred with a three-tier wedding cake, banked with white and pink flowers.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Archdeacon Leversedge and suitably responded to by the groom.

Immediately after the reception the happy couple left for the coast where the groom has been posted. They were accompanied by Miss Dorothy Taylor, sister of the groom. For travelling the bride chose a navy blue suit with light blue accessories.

FORMER VERMILION COUPLE MARRIED AT PENTICTON, B.C.

Eensland — Young

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday, July 4, when Barbara, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Y. Young, of Barron Valley, was united in marriage with Roy Hankean Eensland, eldest son of Mrs. Maria Eensland and the late Hankean Eensland, of Vermilion, Alberta.

The ceremony was performed at the St. Saviour's Anglican Church Penticton, by the Rev. W. R. Baames.

Mr. Young gave the bride in marriage while Mrs. Harry Olson acted as matron of honor. Mr. Olson acted as best man.

The bride looked smart in a short blue satin back crepe dress on princess lines, and with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of white and pink roses and ferns.

The matron of honor wore a coral crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The wedding supper was held at the groom's home on Van Horne street, where a few friends gathered.

The table was centred with a tiered cake and the room was tastefully decorated with flowers and white, pink and blue streamers. Several friends gave lovely flowers for the occasion.

The newlyweds will make their home in Penticton.

Wartime Prices Board announced a subsidy of six cents a pound on butterfat effective July 8 to stimulate production and avert a threatened shortage of butter next winter.

May Coats Have Sugar Rations?

The question was a highlight in the Vancouver sugar ration office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. One owner, among several who phoned, asked to have her goat's name printed on the application. No name was allowed Nanny or Billy however, although use of nicknames having just been taken off their diet, they had been enjoying Demara sugar.

"The goats would probably eat the ration card anyway," commented one official, while the local tire rationing officer sighed with relief, "I thought goats lived on rubber, this is a break for me."

AIR CADETS TO GET NEW UNIFORMS

In Time for Saturday Night Parade

The Standard has been informed by the secretary of the Air Cadet committee of Vermilion Flight No. 97, that the order has now been placed for uniforms complete to equip 30 of our boys who are in the above Flight. It is expected that the uniforms will be here in time for the boys to participate in the closing exercises of the Fair on Saturday of this week.

Receipt of the initial payment of $75 has already been acknowledged with the promise that the uniforms will be rushed through from supplies at Calgary. All being well the boys should have their new outfits in time for the parade on Saturday night in which they will participate with a large group of the Ryerson Cadets. Be on hand at the Fair to give them the boost they so richly deserve.

Board Secures H. S. Teacher

Miss M. E. Knapp, B.A., has accepted the position of teacher in the Vermilion high school, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Lois K. Murray. Miss Knapp is a recent graduate of the University of Alberta. She is well known in Vermilion having taught for two years on the public school staff before completing her university work.

ALLAN K. WIEBE GRANTED COMMISSION

Sgt. Allan K. Wiebe, who last week spent a leg or two at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wiebe, later being a member of the first class of Air Observers to graduate from the No. 1 Central Navigation school at Rivers, Manitoba, has now been granted the commission of Pilot Officer.

Allan left Vermilion for New Brunswick where he will attend a special three months course in Advanced Navigation. At one of ten new schools to be opened from 240 to take the course.

LOCAL ELKS LODGE ENLARGING DANCE FLOOR

Owing to the popularity of Saturday night dances the Elks have decided to enlarge their dance floor by constructing same to the west wall. This will give between 700 and 800 additional square feet of floor space. The orchestra stand will be moved across to the east side of the hall. Work will commence on Monday and be in charge of Chester Lipsey.

STAGETTES TO SPONSOR "MISS CANADA" AT FAIR

Following the example of the Edmonton Stagette club, "Miss Canada" will make her first appearance in Vermilion at the Fair under the sponsor ship of the local Stagette club, with Miss Marjorie Stewart as convenor.

Dressed in costumes of red, white and blue, Miss Canada will present each patriotic buyer with a book, and the number of war savings stamps purchased inside. Then from time to time as this young lady is at other functions the books may be readily added to.

This is not a tag day -you will not be asked to buy — but each person may walk up to Miss Canada and purchase 1, 2 or as many stamps as they feel able to. Stamps are only 25c each.

Support the girls and they will support your local War Savings committee. Watch for the Red, White and Blue Miss Canadas.

Reception Held For Newly Married Couple

On the evening of July 20th a reception was held at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hart in honor of their daughter Delle Jeanette whose marriage to Sgt. Frank P. Dawson, R.C.A.F., took place in Edmonton on July 18th. During the evening some ninety friends and neighbors called to wish the young people much happiness. Mrs. T. R. Cairns of Edmonton, Mrs. E. Taylor and Mrs. Cliff McCormack presided over the tea table which was held with a lace cloth, and centred with a three-tier wedding cake. The rooms were tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and baskets of spring flowers.

THROWN FROM WAGON FARMER BADLY HURT

Vic Patterson was seriously injured on Sunday evening when he was thrown under a wagon gear on which he was driving a broncho into his head. The accident occurred on the farm of W. H. Little, north of town. Patterson was driving a broncho which evidently objected to run. The wagon wheel struck a stone throwing the injured man from the gear on which he was standing. He was rushed to the hospital where he is putting up a game fight for recovery.

The recent announcement the members of the C.W.A.C. will be detailed for duty overseas has been well received by the members of that branch of the service.

Members of the staff, numbering approximately 150, including officers and other ranks, now stationed at the C.W.A.C. training centre for western Canada at Vermilion, Alberta, are anxious to go overseas.

Drawn from the four western provinces, they represent a cross section of opinion of the C.W.A.C. members of the west, and when questioned the other day there was not one, but when asked as to what she had in mind when joining the C.W.A.C. immediately replied, that it was to assist in winning the war in any part of the world that her services might be required.

By August 3rd four hundred girls from the four western provinces will be in training in the first class at this basic training centre for the C.W.A.C.

A few days ago, Lt. Renee Hawels, commandant of the training centre, moved into what was once a Provincial Agricultural College, along with a staff of six officers and 120 other ranks. The complete staff will be comprised of 18 officers and 120 other ranks, with the commandant holding the rank of major, who will have four captains and 14 lieutenants on her staff, as well as warrant officers, sergeants, corporals, lance corporals and privates.

The new training centre has excellent accommodation and should be a popular place for the members of the C.W.A.C. Every month a class of 400 girls will pass through this centre after completing their basic training and will be posted to duties in each of the four western Canada military districts.

The large college building provides accommodation for the headquarters staff, administrative officers for the other ranks, instructional staff and dormitories and quarters for the trainees.

The grounds, which include a large parade ground, beautiful gardens, lawns, trees and shrubs, with sidewalks and driveways, covers an area of some 15 acres. There are other buildings which will be used as officers' hospital quarters, Q.M. stores, sergeants' mess and quarters and supply depot.

The dining room in the college itself will accommodate 225 at one time — it will be necessary to have two sittings at meal times. There is adequate kitchen accommodation, built on the most modern and a large refrigeration system. The kitchens are equipped with dish washing machines, and potato peeling machines. In addition there is a bake shop and store rooms where the rations are measured out.

The quarters for the girls include four smaller rooms, 12x11 in each of which is placed two double tier beds. There are six large dormitories, the largest capable of accommodating 70. On each wing floor there are the necessary toilet arrangements.

The spacious building comprises two wings, of four floors each, and in the central part there is a main entrance hall with a library in one side containing 1000 reference books, and a large class room on the other, and a large gymnasium at the rear of the building. The gymnasium will accommodate approximately 200, and on the third floor there is a large auditorium with accommodation for 700.

The commandant of the school Lt. Hawels, is very keen about her new work, and she remarked especially with regard to the cooperation she is receiving from all ranks of the staff who all appear eager to do a good job.

Lt. Hawels organized the Canadian Women's Training Corps at Vancouver in 1939, soon after the outbreak of the war, with five members, and when she left that position to take over command of the centre at Vermilion, there were eleven detachments with a membership of approximately 1000 throughout the province of British Columbia. Previous to the war she was a private secretary and lived for some time in England and abroad. She was born in Lovina, and just before the outbreak of the war she travelled around the world and visited the West Indies south Africa, South America, Egypt, Italy France and Holland. She joined the C.W.A.C. on September 17th, 1941, at Vancouver as a volunteer. She was later promoted to the rank of sergeant and later commissioned in October, 1941 as a 2nd Lieutenant and in December was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant. She has been platoon commander in Vancouver and Victoria and last March was sent to the C.W.A.C. training centre in eastern Canada at Ste Anne de Bellevue, Quebec, where she took an administrative course. She arrived in Vermilion to take charge of the school on July 8th.

When asked if she thought there was a place for women in the present war, Lt. Hawels replied, some-but emphatically: "Most certainly, this is the most important thing that ever happened to Canadian women. They are demonstrating, without any question, that they are able to work in many lines just as well as the men, and in some cases better. The C.W.A.C. is still in its infancy, it really hasn't shown its teeth yet, but it bound to develop into a real factor in the war."

Lt. Hawels explained that there is still a great deal of basic training to be done before the C.W.A.C. can do the job intended. However, as time goes on and the school turns out its quota of ten a month, the women of the C.W.A.C. will be able to take over jobs, and so release men for more active duty.

When asked if she found the girls hard to handle, Lt Hawels said that on the contrary they were co-operative and both keen and eager. She explained that general discipline had to be maintained, but stated that a bad girl in the C.W.A.C. is an exception, but sometimes they, were naughty and when spelling it. That is there basic training comes in, correcting that fault, and teaching the girl, self control and unselfishness.

"When girls are living in dormitories and in close proximity with one another, each one must pull her own weight in the matter of environment," she explained. "Carelessness of one girl instantly affects the whole community, and it is only natural that the other girls are going to see that they all do their part."

With regard to discipline Lt. Hawels explained that the rules of the C.W.A.C. are the same as in the army but she felt certain that they did not have to use those rules as much as in the Army.

While at the moment there is a staff of 150 at the training centre including Capt. E. Mollfet who is acting as assistant to Lt. Hawels, all the work in the centre will shortly be turned over to the C.W.A.C.

A staff from the instructional centre at M.M.R. No. 1 has been preparing the girl instructors for their work when the first class arrives on August 3rd.

An indication of the job some are doing in the C.W.A.C. was given by S.M.I. F.W. Parker, P.F.C.I., who has been instructor in the army for 21 years, when he said this about the staff at Vermilion which are being instructed under his supervision:

"The girls are almost a lot faster are more obedient and pay better attention than the ordinary soldier one reason, I think, is that they have all volunteered and are in the war to do their best."

At the training centre departments similar to those organized in an army training centre are being established and C.W.A.C. women will be in charge. A small hospital wing has already been set up, and plans are under way to build a 25-bed hospital on the grounds. The training centre will have its own postal department and drivers, orderly room staff and administrative and pay staff.

The routine is similar to [illegible] army training centre with reveille at six a.m., breakfast at 7 a.m., training until 11.45 a.m. lunch at 12 and fall in again at 1 p.m. to 4.30, with dinner at [illegible] parade at 8 o'clock. [illegible] granted the same [illegible] 11 days leave [illegible] months and [illegible] thereafter.

SALVAGE CORPS RECEIVES BIG CHEQUE FOR RUBBER

The Vermilion Salvage Corps received pay cent for the carload of waste rubber which they shipped sometime ago to the government buying agency in Toronto. The amount received was $295.22. This will be divided in different organizations doing war work in the town and district and also to the Red Cross branches at Islay and Clandonald who co-operated splendidly and sent several truck loads of old tires etc., to the salvage depot here.

The refund was made possible by the donation of old rubber by residents from the entire district. This was brought right in to the salvage depot. The depot, by the way, is still open for receiving any kind of salvage.

LIVESTOCK SHIPPING CO-OPERATIVE ORGANIZED FOR VERMILION AREA

STANDARD INSTALLS NATURAL GAS BURNER ON INCENTIVE

During the past week the Standard management has changed the metal gauging equipment on the typesetting machine from gravity feed gasoline to natural gas supplied by the Franco Public service.

From experience during the short time the new burner has been in use it appears to be a great time and labor saver, and a decided improvement over the old method.

Board of Trade Extends Welcome to C. W. A. C.

It is with a feeling of real happiness and pride that the Board of Trade welcomes members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps. We are happy to have the trim and smartly moving young ladies among us, and we take pride in the fact that our town was selected from all those in the West, to be the site of the training centre for the Canadian Women's Army

The Board was tireless in its efforts to have the training centre located here, and is now prepared to be equally diligent in making the Army girls at home in Vermilion.

On behalf of the members of the Board of Trade, we extend to the C.W.A.C., a cordial and sincere welcome.

GERALD F. STEPHENS, President.
ASHLEY H. COOPER, Vice-President.

GREETINGS
TOWN OF VERMILION

On behalf of the citizens of Vermilion I extend greetings to the Officers and members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps now in "barracks" at the former Vermilion School of Agriculture buildings. It is a new experience to see smartly uniformed young women in our streets, reminding many of us when a Company of the 151st camped here for a time back towards the beginning of World War I. I feel that when we get better acquainted with these young women we shall regard them as our own; I know also that the people will take them to their heart and cheer them on the way to the end that when they leave, as leave they must from time to time, they shall carry with them pleasant memories and an enduring recollection of the period they spent in Vermilion.

Elsewhere in your issue will, I understand, appear a review of the aim and purpose of the Canadian Women's Army Corps and in that connection may I say that no greater sacrifice could be made by these young women than that they are prepared to honor their King and Country in whatever avenue of service duty calls them. We sincerely welcome you and enjoin you, while here, not to make strangers of us but to "Walk Right In."

J. W. G. MORRISON, Mayor.

The Battle Of The Atlantic

THROUGH THE PRESS and radio news bulletins we are able to follow closely the events on the various battle fronts. In the Near East, in China and in Russia great battles are being waged from day to day, and we can follow their course and judge the progress made by our own armies and those of our Allies. At times it may seem to us that the struggle at some point on the far-flung battle front is almost crucial, and that no effort should be spared to maintain control in certain areas. It is true that the loss of some posts of the Empire have been serious, and that the total defeat of any of our Allies would mean disaster for them and even more difficult conditions for us.

* * * * *

A Crucial Struggle There is, however, one battle, considered to be the most critical of all, and of it we hear little, and are unable to follow its progress to any great extent. It is the Battle of the Atlantic. To avoid giving aid to the enemy very little information is made available but the struggle there has gone on unceasingly since the hour war was declared, and if we are not victorious in this, our gains or defeats in other parts of the world will count for little. From this continent to England are flowing the food military equipment and men, which will keep England free from German aggression, and eventually help to drive the enemy back across Europe and restore peace and freedom in the world. Although we do not know a great deal about this great naval struggle, we do know that the Royal Navy and the Canadian Navy, joined now by the navy of the United States, still have control of the Atlantic. We know that soldiers and airmen and food and equipment of all kinds are getting across, in spite of the fact that the Atlantic ocean is infested with enemy submarines. In recent weeks we have learned that they are lurking as far to the West as the Gulf of St. Lawrence the Atlantic coast of the United States and the Gulf of Mexico. In spite of the number of submarines and their wide range, it is apparent that our ships are getting through, and that we are able to some measure to replace those which are sunk.

* * * * *

Lurking Danger While we honour our forces in Egypt, the heroic courage of the Russians, and the sturdy and undaunting resolve of the Chinese, we must never forget the men who day and night are facing danger and hardship on the Atlantic in order to keep the scales balanced in our favor. Officers and men of the navy merchant seamen, and the men of the aerial coastal patrol are all playing heroic parts, and on them the fate of many people and nations depends. To curb the submarine menace at its source, great air raids on German submarine bases, and the factories where submarines are built have been carried out unceasingly, and doubtless with good results. It was said that the recent large raid on Danzig was a sign to the Germans that the R.A.F. will follow their submarine factories as far as they may try to move them from British bases. Canada is playing an important part in the Battle of the Atlantic. Our navy, with numbers of fast corvettes, is sharing in the patrol of the sea, and merchant seamen are going back and forth with vital materials. In our shipyards, there is unprecedented activity, as our forces are joined with those of the United States and Britain in producing a continuous flow of ships to replace those which are lost

Equals Burma Road

Freight Carrying Volume Of China's Airliners Is Tremendous

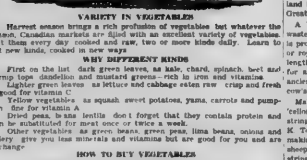
The capacity of the air lines now linking China with the outside world compares favorably with that of the Burma Road, Communications Minister Chang Chung-fu reported to the government at Chungking.

Still further expansion is expected to increase considerably the freight-carrying volume of the air services, he added.

The ministry reported success also in providing substitute land routes for the Japanese-severed Burma Road and said many types of freight were being hauled into Free China from unloading centres. Expansion of these, too, was reported, partly by private enterprise.

Chang said the government was gratified with results of a campaign to convert gasoline-powered vehicles into charcoal burners as a fuel conservation measure.

There is more vitamin C in the peel than in the juice of an orange.



Reach Newfoundland

Canadian Airwomen Arrive To Take Over Ground Work

The first draft of 24 Canadian airwomen, members of the women's division of the Royal Canadian Air Force have arrived in Newfoundland and will be stationed at group headquarters. They are under the command of assistant section officer Peggy Dunbar previously posted at Moncton, N.B., and Cpl. Isobel Smallwood of Vancouver.

Miss Dunbar is a daughter of Lieut.-Col. Dunbar, who is stationed in Newfoundland with the Canadian troops.

The women will replace men in groundwork, clerical, mess and general duties. Another draft is expected shortly to release more men for flying duties.

REDUCING CAR WEIGHT

Opinions reveal that, through greater care in design and greater economy in the use of material, car weights can be reduced up to 1,000 pounds without curtailing sizes.

VARIETY IN VEGETABLES

Harvest season brings a rich profusion of vegetables but whatever the season, Canadian markets are filled with an excellent variety of vegetables. Eat them every day cooked and raw, two or more kinds daily. Learn to eat new kinds, cooked in new ways.

WHY DIFFERENT KINDS

First on the list dark green leaves, as kale, chard, spinach, beet and turnip tops dandelion and mustard greens—rich in iron and vitamins.

Lighter green leaves as lettuce and cabbage eaten raw crisp and fresh—good for vitamin C.

Dried peas, beans lentils don't forget that they contain protein and can be substituted for meat once or twice a week.

Other vegetables as green beans, green peas, lima beans, onions and celery give you less minerals and vitamins but are good for you and are a change.

HOW TO BUY VEGETABLES

Buy vegetables in season—they are cheaper and fresher. Choose bright, firm, well formed vegetables.

Buy beets with fresh green tops then having two vegetables for the price of one.

Buy by the pound rather than by the bunch, as carrots and turnips will is less expensive.

Vegetables with little waste, as string beans and spinach, are cheaper than green peas or lima beans even though they may cost a few cents more a pound.

HOW TO COOK THEM

Wash thoroughly, particularly leafy varieties, but do not soak in water for this removes some of the vitamin and mineral content.

Cook in the smallest possible amount of boiling salted water. Leafy vegetables usually have enough water clinging to them from the washing, for others about one-half inch in the bottom of the kettle is enough.

Vegetables are better undercooked than overcooked. Most people overcook. When you get used to undercooked ones you'll prefer them.

Whenever possible, cook vegetables in their skins; skins protects the mineral and vitamins.

Never add soda to vegetables, it destroys vitamins.

Save the water in which vegetables are cooked as an appetizer mixed with tomato juice, in soup or gravies. It contains much of the vegetable's mineral and vitamins, particularly the B family and C.

A postal request to the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario, will bring you a free vitamin chart and a booklet "Canadian Vegetables for Every Day."

Back To Old Methods

Ancient Handcrafts Are Again Being Used In British Isles

Critical of Britain as he is, Mahatma Gandhi, whose idea of Indian self-preservation is to abolish machinery and go back to hand labor, would find much to please him in the British Isles today. Almost every bit of industrial machinery engaged in war work or other necessary production, some of the latest machine tools for which England used to be famous, are being revived, such as hand weaving wooden bowl turning, pottery, basket making, thatching, smithy work and stone walling.

Hand weaving and weaving are busy men helping to provide clothes for rural Britons. This craft, practiced in nearly every cottage home before the industrial revolution of the 19th century, by 1938 was carried on chiefly by those who did it for love of the work. Now antique dealers are finding a ready, and for old spinning wheels which have long lain idle in their repositories. Girls in senior schools are being taught these crafts, and are busy turning out tweeds for scarves, chair covers and curtains, shirts and so forth. Much of the wool used is gathered from the fields and hedge-rows the tufts left there by sheep. The combings of long-coated dogs are also used in this way.

In Herefordshire comforts for the Navy are being made on a 150-year-old loom. Capt. Frank C. Appleton carves on his craft in a converted barn where he produces a large variety of handwoven cloth. Comforts for sailors are not his only product. A shirt wrap of heavy tweed which can hastily be donned for use in air raid shelters is one of Captain Appleton's topical designs.

Shortage of aluminum and other metals, and restriction of imports of china and glass, has brought the wooden bowl back into service in Britain. People are now using wooden bowls in the kitchen in which to mix cakes and puddings, and in which to wash and launder clothes. Bowl making was practiced in England in the days of King Alfred the Great.

A Yorkshire rope spinner, using waste from Lancashire cotton mills, is producing about two miles of cord or rope every day, pieces ranging in length from nine inches to 80 yards for all kinds of purposes. He uses ancient implements, one being a cow's horn to open the strands.

Makers of strings for violins and cellos are unable to obtain Italian strings, but a Somerset man, James K. Toms, devised a new process for making strings from the gut of sheep. Toms has been making strings for 50 years and is well-known to professional players, and so excellent are his new products that Kreisler and other famous violinists buy regular supplies from him. The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Hitler must hang! And that forthright statement may be taken as a compound sentence for the whole gang of Nazi leaders.

After the fighting finished in 1918 there was a lot of talk about bringing the Kaiser to trial and demanding for punishment of the leaders of the German people—but, as time went on the fervour died down, Christian tenets were moulded by the way people who later on were the apostles of disarmament, and—nothing was done to shame the German people that it is an evil thing to let loose the forces of evil on mankind.

Nothing was done? Nothing! Oh, yes, a few colonies were put under mandate—the German mind would expect that; reparations were claimed—and partially forgiven; and, almost immediately, loans were made to Germany to assist in the rehabilitation of trade!

What did the Army think about all that? I can speak for only one Sergeant in that army. But I am sure that what I felt was echoed—and intensified—by the mothers of dead sons, the widows, the orphans.

What good did the Christian attitude do? Was it really a Christian attitude?

Let's answer the second question first. I don't think it was. I think it was a false attitude, based upon that Christ said "turn the other cheek," we forgot that the same Christ drove the money-changers out of the Temple!

Perhaps you are wondering where this Individual Citizen's Army comes into this. Don't worry, it comes in all right! The Individual Citizen's Army—that means all of us, don't forget—is concerned and very deeply concerned, with everything that goes on in the world today.

There is not a thing that happens that does not concern each one of us. The death of an U.S. Army aviator somewhere over the United Sea is just as important to the whole scheme of things as the loss of a Canadian tank in Libya.

Death has harshly touched us, yet. By the time the "Great War" was as old as this one thousands of Canadians had been killed in battle. There was hardly a home in the Dominion that had not been shadowed by the dark angel's wing.

And by the same token there was hardly a home in the whole of Canada that was not straining every sinew to help beat the enemy.

Then death, sudden violent death had become so common-place that "Casualty Lists" in the daily papers occupied more space than the "Sports Pages" do today—and were as eagerly scanned.

Today as much space is given to the drowning of two office cadets in an Army Week Display as would have chronicled the deaths in action of 300 men in the 1914-18 war.

What a shame! What a shame that we should need an "Army Week" to focus our thoughts on our soldiers. It is symptomatic of something half-hearted and lackadaisical that all over the Dominion it should be necessary to stage demonstrations to remind us that there is a war going on.

But "Army Week" or "Navy Week" or "Air Force Week" should be every week. We must generate the proper state of mind about this war. It is our war. Not the war of the soldier, the sailor or the airman. And it will fail to those of us who could only help in a very limited way to back up the fighting forces when their job is done and see to it that a grim retribution falls upon the guilty.

There is nothing soft about our men in uniform.

Let us see to it that there is nothing soft about us when the day of reckoning comes. Every lamp post in the Unter Den Linden should be a gallows, there must be a gallows erected by carrion ball—in every hamlet, every village, every town, every city in occupied territory that has known the weight of the Nazi scourge, the stench of Italy, the malarial infection of Japan!

There is a job for us privates in the Individual Citizen's Army—a job we will do whole-heartedly as we can—and we shall look upon our comrades on crutches or following "Seeing-Eye" dogs as we place flowers under memorial windows in our church yards.

Right now there is another job to do, the job of conserving everything that is needed for the business of waging successful war. It is a simple job. So simple we may not think it worth while. It involves such things as cutting out pig-riding, carrying parcels from the store, turning last winter's coat, giving up smoking, drinking less tea and coffee, doing without alcoholic beverages, having shoes repaired even when the uppers are shabby.

It involves reporting infractions of the price ceiling orders no matter how abhorrent "snitching" is. None of us would hesitate to tackle or report a spy or a saboteur. Neither should we hesitate to report a commercial saboteur—for breaches of the price ceiling are acts of sabotage against the law-abiding. The storekeeper, wholesaler, manufacturer, landlord or other businessman doesn't just break a law—he harms you. If he gets away with it because you keep silent the spectre of post-war inflation looms closer, if the ceilings are maintained post-war inflation will be averted and we'll have time to see that the war has not been fought in vain.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

FORGIVENESS

Persecution is the weakness of tyrants engendered by their fear, and love will cast it out. Continue steadfast in love and good works.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Though men should rend your heart, let them not embitter or harden it. We win by tenderness; we conquer by forgiveness.—P. W. Robertson.

A wise man will make haste to forgive, because he knows the full value of time and will not suffer it to pass away in unnecessary pain.—Rambler.

A merely fallen enemy may rise again; but the reconciled one is truly vanquished.—Schiller.

He who has not forgiven an enemy has not yet tasted one of the most sublime enjoyments of life.—Lavater.

Forgiveness ought to be like a cancelled note torn in two, and burned up, so that it can never be shown against one.—H. W. Beecher.

Lady Hart Dyke of Lullingstone Castle, England, enrolled by two land girls, runs a silk farm which supplies material for parachutes. Normal silk output of 4,000 pounds is being sacrificed this year to produce 30,000,000 silkworm eggs to stock new farms.

Not The Only One

Belgians Think They Have Right To Acclaim Their Painter

Two Belgians met on a busy thoroughfare in their occupied homeland. One greeted his friend:

"Heil Rubens."

The other solemnly returned the salute:

"Heil Rubens."

A Nazi officer, close by, heard them, asked suspiciously: "What is this 'Heil Rubens?' What does it mean?"

"Oh," one of the men answered in feigned innocence, "we Belgians have a famous painter, too."—This Week.

NEW PROCESS HELPFUL

Helium, the non-inflammable gas used to keep dirigibles aloft, will boost the production of warplanes through the perfection of a new process which permits the use of the element in blow torches for welding. The new method makes possible the welding of inflammable metals like magnesium.

FATTY FISH SUPPLIES

It is hoped to obtain some relief of the present shortage by the cultivation of nettles for papermaking material. A Scottish firm has announced its readiness to buy 1,000 tons of nettles at £10 a ton. Such material would appear to be especially suitable for the production of books of a severely critical nature.

The Pacific end of the Panama Canal is 27 miles farther east than is the Atlantic end.

Many Patriots In Europe Are Being Executed

London.—The Germans and Italians being cruel, bombed and sabotaged constantly and increasingly by patriots, were reported to have executed or condemned to death 148 more persons in the Balkans and Crete.

The German Trans-Ocean agency, in a despatch broadcast by Radio Berlin, said 11 persons had been condemned to death by court martial at Bitolj, Yugoslavia, for "Communist activity." Eighteen others were sentenced to long prison terms.

The BBC said that 75 Slovenian peasants had been shot in reprisal for the killing of two Fascists, and seven villages burned. BBC also reported that 62 persons were executed at Heraklion, Crete, on June 14, among them a former mayor of the town.

General Mikhailovitch's guerilla armies, fighting the Italians and Germans in woods and mountains and killing them by hundreds, were reported to have gained further successes.

BBC said that near the town of Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, his forces attacked a convoy of patriots the Italians were taking to a concentration camp at Venasco. They stopped the train, routed the Italians and liberated 200 peasants, most of them students the Italians had seized within the last few weeks.

The Columbia Broadcasting System heard Radio Moscow report: "Within the past 12 days, battalions of the Yugoslav guerilla army have liberated seven towns from the German invaders, and the advance continues."

In another effort to curb patriotic resistance, compulsory youth service has been ordered for all Czech Aryans —male and female, between 10 and 18, a Trans-Ocean despatch said. All included in the order must register by the end of next February, presumably to have Nazi propaganda forced upon them by "Quisling" Czechs.

BBC said the Italian press just has been authorized to publish details about the battles of the Italians with Yugoslav patriots. BBC added the Italian press broadly suggested that the Italians could not send any more reinforcements to help the Germans in Russia because their hands already were full.

The guerillas not only were assaulting the Italians on land, but also on rivers, according to reports. Radio Budapest broadcast that patrol boats protecting vital oil traffic on the Danube and Sava rivers had been shelled from the banks "several times."

Polish circles in London received reports that the leading Ukrainian "Quisling," Lieut. Cyrpy Pawlitsch, had been killed by Polish patriots for collaborating with the Gestapo.

Wartime Demands Might Result In Rationing Of Rail Travel

Kentville, N.S.—Wartime demands on transportation facilities may make a system of travel rationing necessary W. M. Neil, of Montreal, C.P.R. vice-president, said in an interview here.

The present duty of the transportation system is to do everything in its power to further the war effort he said, "but at the same time we are not forgetting our obligations to the public and we are doing everything we can to meet the demands of public and private business."

NO GOLD STANDARD

Says Britain Will Not Return To Gold Standard After The War

London.—Viscount Simon lord chancellor told the house of lords that he has heard "no whisper of any intention" on the part of Great Britain to return to the gold standard after the war.

In answer to a question, he said: "Our return to the gold standard after the last war was not a very happy one."

Attempts to transfer huge sums from one country to another as a result of war, he said, inflict harm equally on payer and payee.

ENEMY ALIENS

New York.—P. E. Foxworth assistant director of the F.B.I., announced that F.B.I. agents in co-operation with New York and Dempstead, N.Y., police have rounded up 43 enemy aliens, including 40 members of the Federation of Italian World War Veterans. 2674

Plan To Make Rubber From Grain In Canada

Ottawa.—Production of synthetic rubber in Canada under present plans will require about 2,000,000 bushels of wheat annually, it is indicated from information given in recent parliamentary questions.

One return said butanol produced in existing distilleries from grain will be used for manufacture of about 6,000 tons of buna-S type rubber annually.

The National Research Council, in another return, estimated that 23,000 tons of rubber could be produced from approximately 8,000,000 bushels of wheat.

On this basis the anticipated production of 6,000 tons of rubber will require 1,920,000 bushels.

Comparison of the costs of manufacturing synthetic rubber from petroleum products and wheat is not possible because of certain secret processes using both methods, said a House of Commons reply tabled recently.

As synthetic rubber has not been produced in North America in commercial volume no comparison of costs is yet possible, the reply said.

"It is proposed to use both processes in the government program for the production of synthetic rubber in Canada," it added. "Butanol produced from wheat, will be shipped to the Southern Ontario plant where synthetic rubber will be produced and there converted into butadiene, the principal ingredient of buna-S rubber. The butadiene at this plant will be synthesized with styrene into buna-S rubber."

Munitions Minister Howe believes that in a synthetic rubber process which is not confined to either a petroleum or a grain alcohol base but uses both, Canada very definitely "has something" that will be of vital value not only in the present war emergency but in peacetime as well.

"I do not believe we will ever go back to crude rubber in Canada again," the munitions minister told British United Press.

At about the same time he made this prophecy, Howe received a report that the Polymer corporation the wholly-owned government enterprise which is to have charge of the government's synthetic rubber program, had broken ground for its new $40,000,000 plant and expected to fulfill its schedule of actual production of 40,000 tons of synthetic rubber 8,000 tons of it by the grain alcohol process during 1942.

AID FOR CHINA

United States Plans For Delivery Of Supplies

Washington.—The Pacific war council worked out plans for delivering supplies to the hard-pressed armies of China, and its members left the White House obviously feeling that much had been accomplished.

"Now we know what the Chinese need and how and when and where we can get the stuff in," Walter Nash, the minister from New Zealand, reported to newspapermen. The council, he said had "worked out procedure to be followed to assure that China puts up the best fight that can be put up."

MILITARY TRAINING

$5,000 Men To Be Called In Canada In August

Ottawa.—War Services Minister Thorson said in the House of Commons that it had been necessary to send out about 20,000 call-up notices to obtain about 2,400 or 2,500 men for compulsory military training in the Toronto administrative district under the July call.

Defence Minister Ralston said 15,000 men were being called in Canada in July and 25,000 in August, and members had raised the question of why more older men were being called in some sections of the country than in others.

Mr. Thorson said this condition was caused by the manpower pool being smaller in some districts than in others. The exemptions for men engaged in agriculture had a larger effect in some areas.

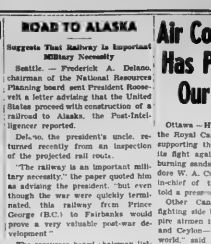
Mr. Thorson said the regulation for men came to National War Services from the national defence department and indicated the various training centres or depots to which men were to report. If there were not enough men in one administrative division to fill the requisition for the training centres or depots in that district, then a call was made on a neighboring division.

U.S. DECORATION

Washington.—President Roosevelt has signed a bill creating a new decoration, the Legion of Merit, for those in the armed services who show "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services."

REPORTED SUCCESS

Washington.—Successful test flights of the AT-13, the large training plane built entirely of plastic-bonded plywood by the Fairchild company at Hagerstown, Md., were reported by the United States war department.



Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of all American forces in the European theatre of war, announced in London that Maj.-Gen. M. W. Clark will head the ground forces in England.

SHIPMENTS BANNED

Cuba Not Provisioning Ships Or Sending Food To Spain

Havana.—Shipment of foodstuffs of all kinds to Spain and provisioning of Spanish merchant ships in Cuban ports with meats was prohibited by Carlos Hevia, price and supply control administrator. He declared that such shipments "serve only to reduce the hardships of our enemies, for Spain maintains intimate relations with the Germans and Italians."

MAY RELEASE ESKIMOS

Toronto.—Attorney-General Gordon Conant has just returned from a trip to northern Ontario and that four of the five Eskimos tried last summer as a result of the killing of nine Eskimos on Belcher island will be released shortly on order from the Dominion government. The fifth man is dead.

ROAD TO ALASKA

Suggests That Railway Is Important Military Necessity

Seattle.—Frederick A. Delano, chairman of the National Resources Planning board sent President Roosevelt a letter advising that the United States proceed with construction of a railroad to Alaska, the Post-Intelligencer reported.

Delano, the president's uncle, returned recently from an inspection of the projected rail route.

"The railway is an important military necessity," the paper quoted him as advising the president, "but even though the war were quickly terminated, this railway from Prince George (B.C.) to Fairbanks would prove a very valuable post-war development."

The resources board chairman listed five rail gateways from the states to the northern line, the Post-Intelligencer said. In this order:

1. The Winnipeg gateway from St. Paul and Duluth.

2. The Saskatchewan gateway from Minot, N.D. on the Great Northern and from Jamestown on the Northern Pacific.

3. The Lethbridge and Edmonton gateway through Great Falls Mont., and Billings.

4. The Spokane gateway via the Spokane International Railway into Canada;

5. The Seattle gateway via Vancouver, B.C.

Air Commodore Has Praise For Our Air Force

Ottawa.—Hundreds of members of the Royal Canadian Air Force are supporting the British 8th Army in its fight against the Axis on the burning sands of Egypt, Air Commodore W. A. Curtis, deputy air officer-in-chief of the R.C.A.F. overseas, told a press conference here.

Other Canadian squadrons are fighting side by side with other Empire airmen in the skies over Malta and Ceylon—"in fact, all over the world," said Air Commodore Curtis, who will return to Britain shortly after a brief visit for conferences with high-ranking officials at R.C.A.F. headquarters here.

He revealed that some Canadians had been fighting in Russia and had returned to Britain on leave but declined to go into details. And Canadian airmen members of the R.C.A.F. and the R.A.F. could be found in hundreds of R.A.F. squadrons.

Air Commodore Curtis had a word of praise of the R.C.A.F.'s French-Canadian squadron. He said the men were doing fine work.

Air Commodore Curtis discussed the 1,000-plane bombings of German cities and expressed belief that raids of that size would be one of the most decisive factors in the victory. He expects them to increase in frequency during the longer nights of fall and winter.

"If the Germans beat the Russians and we shouldn't think of that they will come back and try to bomb the daylights out of Britain," said Air Commodore Curtis. "They don't like our heavy bombing. We know the Germans by example can't take it like the British can."

Air Commodore Curtis said the Canadian airmen are in "grand spirits" and their fighter and bomber strength is "excellent."

He ended the interview with a warning that the Canadian people are going to run the risk of having the Nazis dictate to them unless they are prepared for sacrifice.

Grain Storage Problem Acute At Many Points

Winnipeg.—Grain terminals at many points in the west are nearing capacity as harvest approaches and with visible stocks of grain totalling thousands of bushels of all grains, Canada is faced with the most acute storage problem in history it was indicated in figures released by the Board of Grain Commissioners.

Stocks of all grains at the lakehead are expected at 138,000,000 bushels with the forward capacity of elevators and annexes at 111,500,000 bushels, the board reports.

A Fort William report said there are 7,000,000 of grain are standing in lakehead yards and that more cars continue to enter the yards with less than 500 cars arriving each day.

Grain in storage in principal elevators in Canada was reported officially to be 373,109,000 bushels not including stocks in transit in the Dominion and some 15,000,000 bushels stored in the United States. Canada has a total storage capacity of 491,191,319 bushels.

Grain sources said it is expected about one-fourth bushels will remain in Canadian elevators as a carryover by the end of July leaving room for perhaps less than 200,000,000 bushels storage space to handle new crop grain.

It is made of this crop, which has been damaged by grain rusts at more than 100,000,000 bushels, would be available for delivery is not known. Producers are limited to 2,500,000 bushels of wheat for deliveries and it is expected much of these will be oats a coarse grains will be used on the farms as feed.

Recent indications are that much of the crop may have to be stored on farms. A recent statement made in Ottawa by Trade Minister MacKinnon placed this figure at about 200,000,000 bushels.

ATHABASKA TAR SANDS

Ottawa.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King described as "a matter of government policy which will be announced in due course" the question of appointing a committee to investigate progress in the manufacture of synthetic rubber and development of the Athabaska tar sands.

GANTON-WATSON RED CROSS

A meeting of the Ganton Watson Red Cross Auxiliary took place at the home of Mrs. Watson of Hinsville on July 22nd. No work was given out on this time being fully occupied now with quilting, berry-picking and canning, but a large quilt was completed during the afternoon. The events and dance held at the Ganton school on the 15th was very successful and realized the sum of $42.25. The members wish to offer their thanks to all who helped in any way whatever to bring about this result, also to the Tolland sports club for their kind donation of $25. The total has been made into $80 by the Auxiliary, which is to be handed in to the Vermilion Branch. Several members intend to make the trip to Mrs. Cantwell Gibson's on Aug. 7th to attend the meeting of the R. W. B. club rooms and weather permitting.

The place and the date of the next meeting has not been set definitely, but if it can be arranged it will be held at the home of Mrs. R. Gibson being on Aug. 12th and will be another quilting event.

UNION BAZAAR IS AGAIN HUGE SUCCESS

The annual mammoth bazaar, picnic, rummage sale and dance was held at Union school on July 22nd.

At the opening of the bazaar, Mr. Donald Taylor, acting as chairman, led in the singing of O Canada. After a very appropriate and apt speech he introduced His Worship Mayor Morrison, who, in his usual genial manner, gave a very interesting address and then declared the bazaar officially open.

The work displayed at the bazaar reflected very great credit on the committee Mrs. P. H. Cartwright and the ladies of the district who so willingly helped her.

Displayed also during the afternoon were many articles which are to be donated to the "Handles for Britain" campaign.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent in sports, bingo and novelty games. Supper was served on the grounds at six o'clock. The young people spent the early evening in playing softball.

A very successful dance concluded the memorable occasion. During the dance a beautiful luncheon cloth was raffled, the winning ticket No. 124. Being held by Mr. I. Winters of Vermilion.

Proceeds from the entire day's activities were highly commendable — the sum being $52 which is to be given to the Queen's Canadian Fund.

The able and great praise are due Mrs. Cartwright, her committee and all who so willingly and energetically assisted in making the effort a highly successful one.

SERVICE POSTPONEMENT EXPLAINED

By Department of National War Services

When a recruit receives his notice to take a medical examination to ascertain whether he is medically fit for military training, he must go before a doctor within 3 days for his examination as the notice informs him. It would be wise for him to ask the doctor whether he has been placed in Category "A" for on one is being called for service at present who is not placed in Category "A". If he is placed in Category "A" and desires a postponement of his training he must apply in writing to the Registrar of the War Services Board at Edmonton within 8 days of the date, not the receipt, of the notice, stating the reason for his application. If he is employed by another, the employer should support the application. If there is such a delay in the notice reaching him that he cannot take the examination and make his application within the specified time he can and must send in his application not later than the day he takes his medical examination. He need not and should not apply in person at the Registrar's office. His failure to make his application as and within the time specified will probably result in his failure to secure a postponement, however deserving he may be of such postponement, for the Board is forbidden to grant a postponement within fourteen days of the date at which he is subsequently notified to report at the military training centre. The provisions apply to everyone including those who are entitled to postponements for they are so entitled only if they apply as stated.

The delay in the notice reaching the recruit is in nearly all cases due to his failure to comply with the Regulations requiring him to notify the Registrar of any change of address, the result being that the notice may travel from Post Office to Post Office before it reaches him. Under the Regulations not merely must he notify the Dominion statistician, which most of them do by going to the Post Office and signing a postal card which is furnished them, but he must also notify the registrar of the Division and his failure to do so may result in his being deprived of the right to receive a postponement and in addition will render him liable to a penalty under the Regulations.

In all cases in which a farmer applies for a postponement he should not only send in his written application but he should fill in all the answers to the questionnaire sent to him and have the facts certified by some one in authority who has personal knowledge of them, and forward it with his written application. The observance of these regulations will avoid disappointment for they have the force of law and the Board must see that they are carried out. The Board is required to send a specified number of recruits to the training centre and on the specified days and after the list is made up and the notices sent out it is too late to make changes, and it is useless to make applications then for the Board is forbidden to grant them.

When a postponement has been granted and a further postponement is desired, it is essential that application be made within the time specified in the notice granting the postponement, whether a former or

ISLAND HILL

On our last visit to town we had occasion to interview the owner of the once famous cat, and on our way there we called at a building used for military purposes. At our first peep through one of the open doors we noticed the room had a very tidy and clean appearance, which redounds to the credit of those in charge. A soldier was resting on one of the beds and as we spoke he sprang up at least three feet and bolted — we shouted "Never mind but it is only one of your own officers". While this was going on another soldier came through a door opposite and he bolted so loud and long he saved the day. The idea of a soldier bolting and an old college shouting he was an officer was enough to make anyone laugh.

A lady whom we met the same day said a call-up notice had arrived on her son's who was actually doing his bit for the past nine months, what annoyed her was the fact that her boy received a call up notice while several lads of military age who reside all around her can escape these notices, or if they receive them can escape from doing their bit.

ISLAY

Miss Willa Smith, R.N., supervisor of the Vulcan hospital, spent the week end visiting Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher.

Edmund McFadyen is building a garage for Alex Hall on his home and he is his own carpenter too. The addition is comprised of a full basement containing a 3-barrel cement cistern, kitchen and bathroom on the first floor and two bedrooms upstairs.

Bill Reid of Ford's store staff is in army uniform. Though Bill was through the last war he is in it again. In the Ordnance Corps we believe.

Gordon Purser is leaving to join the army in August.

Keep Aug. 14th in mind. We expect to see in pictures "Jack Miner's Bird Sanctuary" in the church. This is a very interesting picture as any one who has read about Jack Miner will know.

Gladys is working at Mackell's, taking Marjorie's place while she is away.

Mrs. Harry Portsmith was at Edmonton visitor last week, returning on the bus. She met Mr. Proctor who is home now on sick leave. We hope he will soon be better again, city life does not seem to agree with him as this is the third time since he started working at the munition plant at Calgary that he has come home in re-cuperate. Mrs. Russell Smith has been a patient in the hospital, but is home at present, feeling better but still weak. Her sister, Mrs. Martin, and her two children, are staying with her to help. Verna Potter is in Edmonton for a visit, trying at the same time to make up her mind whether to take a business course there shortly. She her friend Marion Nelson, who is there with her in the city, is in Grade XII. Joy King is another local girl who will be leaving us shortly and we will be greatly missed by her friends when she goes to Edmonton to take a secretarial course at McTavish.

Allan Potter had hoped to be able to spend his holidays at home here. Allan works at Kingston, Ont., where he has quite a responsible position at the aluminium factory. He was two days in the hospital, but his yearly leave could not be prolonged as he could not be spared at the factory any longer.

A farewell dance was given at the school Friday night for Alec Ross who has been home for a two weeks leave. A nice crowd turned up and Mr. and Mrs. Logan and Jimmy furnished the music. Jack Schanschieff helped out with his banjo. A pen and pencil set was given to Alec from the Woodvale Glee Club. Alec having been a good working member since it started in 1938. He hopes he will be sent to Winnipeg to follow a trade school course but is not sure of it yet. Edna and the baby will follow as soon as he is settled down somewhere. Everyone there and the rest of us who were unable to come that evening are wishing them the very best of luck.

Mr D Andrew, our district agriculturist, is giving lectures at different farmhouses in the country. On August 7 he will give a talk at the farm of Mr. F. Van Wageningen at 7 o'clock. There is also an opportunity to ask questions on any farm problems one may have. Everybody welcome.

WOODVALE

Rain still keeps coming regularly sometimes very heavy in one place and beating the hay farm almost dry, but each in turn gets his fall share. Crops look splendid, so do the weeds; like country bus not landed as great at this time of the summer in over ten years. And in everyone busy! With piles more work to come. It is hoped the boys get rained up now will get postponements until fall anyway, as this is not a crop that can be handled by greenhorns, even if they are willing. In some places you've seen the grain six feet high already and why not the boys and men, who are experienced in hard labor will stick scooping and threshing fields like that?

Tim Turner had his tonsils removed in the Vermilion hospital while he was unable to work with his arm still in a sling.

Mary Jane Sweeney and Nell Gannon are both working in town at Geo. Caplan's, Mary Jane on the cash and on the passenger train to Vermilion which gives him a chance to see a little more of Nell. Nell goes in for the bouncy shawness and slippery roads have made any regular home visits impossible.

Elizabeth Smart of Grande Prairie and Mary Parr of Lloydminster were spending part of their holidays at the Van Wageningen home. The former, with Roy Dibben, John King and Florence went to the V.R.A. re-union in Edmonton.

Several more people have been travelling lately. Mr. and Mrs. Luther Thompson and Chester Rankin went to a Lacombe convention, while Mrs. Porter and Marjorie Young went to see on Beresford. Beresford Young has been away for about three weeks visiting his sister Georgette at Alliance and making trips to Carstairs and Calgary. When he returns home next week, Gladys Young will go and stay with Georgette until fall. At present

FIRST HARRY-HARRIS TANKS FOR U. S. ARMY

About Three Months Ahead of Schedule

"One of the best achievements industry can point to in the United States," said General Donald Armstrong, deputy chief of the Chicago Ordnance District, in referring to the attainment of tank production approximately three months ahead of schedule by the United States organization of the Massey-Harris Company.

In this manner, within the brief space of five months, the management and workers of the United States Division of this well-known Canadian Company have fulfilled the promise made to General Armstrong in February of this year when the contract was received, by Mr. J. S. Duncan, president and general manager of the company, "that the soonest we have made so far in armament production was due to the spirit in which the men at Massey-Harris had tackled the various projects and that same spirit would be back of the task undertaking, and because of it he could assure him success."

At a mass meeting outside the tank plant last Friday, workmen and executives of Massey-Harris cheered the announcement by General Armstrong that tanks which had not been expected before mid-September were already undergoing operating tests and that the present rate of production would make possible the delivery of tanks to the fighting forces three months earlier than originally anticipated.

General Armstrong told the workmen that they were making these tanks to be used by their sons, their friends, their neighbors in the fighting forces "Keep the fighting men in mind as you build these tanks," he said, "and keep in mind soldiers and fathers like Mrs. Petersen and your fellow Massey-Harris workman, Chris Petersen, who have three sons in the fighting forces and who pray that their boys will have the arms and equipment that will give them the edge for victory."

Mr. W. E. Bradley, vice-president of Massey-Harris Company, expressed his thanks of the company to the workmen for making the celebration possible. "It has been a big job," he said, "but it is still a big job but if you all continue to perform in the future as you have up to this point the ultimate completion of this contract will be even farther ahead of schedule than we are today."

Makes Surface Firmer

Rock Salt Has Proved Great Success in Sand Making

The practice of using rock salt in the sub-surface of roads, which originated in Nova Scotia as a means of protecting roads against extreme winter conditions, has spreading to this country with remarkable results reported. First employed to keep frost from heaving the road surface, salt has been found to do more than serve as an anti-freeze. Through a simple action it dries stabilizes the soil used in the sub-grade so that the road bed is firmer, giving longer life to the wearing surface.—Belleville Ontario

Record Of Service

Jolleys Of Saskatchewan In A Class By Themselves

Among all the sets of twins, triplets, and three and four-of-a-family that Canada has sent overseas to the Motherland in this war, the Jack Jolleys of Saskatchewan stand in a class by themselves.

They are the only father and son who have both won their wings in this Second Great War.

The father, Flight Lieut. Jack Jolley after eight months of operational flying in Iceland has transferred to the R.C.A.F Chaplaincy Service Overseas and has been posted to a Canadian station in the Midlands And the son Sgt-Pilot Jack Percy Jolley, got his wings at Saskatoon last December and is now completing his operational training in Britain.

Just to complete the remarkable family record of service, the wife and mother is engaged in Red Cross work in Regina, Canada, just as she did in England in the last war

Veteran of 1914-18 mission-field worker among the Saskatchewan Indians, Anglican clergyman-pacifist-time Militia Chaplain and widely known "radio ham," Flight Lieut Jolley has had a career probably unequalled among men of the cloth, and climaxed by Active Service in this war at an age when most men consider themselves too old for enlistment in even a less strenuous branch of the Armed Forces

Born in London, England, in 1885, he was educated there and at St. Chad's Theological College, Regina. Ordained in 1908 Meantime however, he had already served his country From 1911 until 1913 while only in his 'teens, he was in the Royal Navy as a Boy Signaller That was where he first got the "signalling bug" that has led him through such an interesting and varied career. His mother claimed him out of the Navy in 1914, but the next year, when war broke out he enlisted on August 10th in the Royal Engineers, and served in France as a sapper until the Armistice.

While in hospital at Reading he met his future wife at her Red Cross duties. After their marriage they went to Canada, where Flight Lieut Jolley continued his education for the ministry of the Church of England

He spent four years among the Indians at Day Stars, Sask., and ministered as a student at Bethune in 1922 and Climax in 1926, the year which he was ordained to Holy Orders He remained at Climax until 1930, and then in succession was given parishes in Blenfait, Oxbow, Key Indian Reserve (near Pelly) and Lumsden all in Saskatchewan province

During these years and these travels he had become one of Western Canada's best known "radiohams Starting with a crystal set in 1921, he worked up to a powerful private station (known as VE4AC) and received correspondence from other hams in Canada the U.S and Europe He was able to light his house with surplus power from his portable generating equipment

In January, 1941, when the R.C.A.F issued an appeal for skilled radio technicians the versatile prairie parson volunteered, and was accepted with the rank of Flying Officer He went by air to Iceland three months later, and wearing the half-wing of an "RO" he soon piled up 150 operational flying hours on such widely varied types as the Canadian, Hudsons Bunderlands, Wellingtons and Whitleys

Following the celebrated rupture, by Berling aircraft, of an enemy submarine off Iceland Jolley was assigned to technical inspection work aboard the undersea craft for a week

But the church was still in his mind For six years in the West he had been peacetime Chaplain of the South Saskatchewan Border Regiment (Reteau) And when during leave in England last October he bumped into Sq Ldr Lightbourne of the R.C.A.F Chaplaincy Service, Jolley didn't require much persuading to agree to transfer which came into effect last December Two days before Christmas the Flying Radio

Until recently a radio observer on operational duty in Iceland, Flight Lieut. Jack Jolley, a veteran missionary of the Prairies has transferred to the R.C.A.F Chaplaincy Service overseas But he still wears his wing His son, Sgt. Pilot Jack Percy Jolley won his wings at Saskatoon last December and is now completing operational training in Britain.

Ham again arrived in England from Iceland—this time to assume higher rank, and the clerical collar of his first and favourite calling.

He's already shared one London leave with Jack, Junior, and is waiting impatiently for the next.

Mahatma Gandhi

His Line Of Reasoning Is Out Of Tune

Mohandas K. Gandhi whom many Americans, who know little about him and less about India, have regarded as one of the world's great spiritual leaders, appears to be becoming a bit more mortal and muddled with each public appearance or utterance.

The Mahatma, it appears, is quite willing to have British and American troops quartered in India. He is quite willing to have them fight on Indian soil for the defence of India against Japan. India should not be compelled to pay any part of the cost of supporting these troops, the Mahatma contends; nor should India be forced to submit to any exercise of authority on their part. Nor should Indians be forced to offer anything more than passive resistance to the Japs.

But it is quite all right for American and British men and boys to give their lives in defence of those selfsame principles for which the Indian people refuse to fight in defence of themselves.

There may be a high spiritual quality in Mahatma's line of patient-medicine talk that is not apparent to the Occidental mind. Quite likely Occidentals know a faker when they see or hear one regardless of whether it's applied with an "e" or an "i".—Chicago Daily News.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

ABRAM: A PIONEER IN FAITH

Golden text: Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward. Genesis 15:1

Lesson: Genesis 11:31-13. 9; Hebrews 11:8-12.

Devotional reading: Psalm 23:1-6

Explanations and Comments.

The Call and the Promise. Genesis 12:1-3. We think of Ebenezer as the ancestral home of the Jews, but they came there originally from a far country. The very word "Hebrew" shows this in its derivation from "ther", a beyond. It seems natural to suppose that the call to leave Ur-ur home came to both Abraham and his father Terah at Ur (Acts 7:2-4, Gen. 11:31) but only the latter's to Abraham at Haran. Terah and Abraham settled there for a time, and there Terah died

To Abraham the so called Abram until the seventeenth chapter, and Abraham thereafter) at Haran came an unmistakable summons. God said to him—that is, Abraham recognized God's prompting in some inward way—to come on a some outward event

"Get thee out of thy country and from thy kindred and from thy father's house." These are cumulative expressions which show the greatness of the sacrifices Abraham had to make. He must count the cost, for he has much to lose; he had to leave behind all that was familiar and dear

Abraham was to go to the land that God would show him. The goal is definitely stated in verse 2. The promised reward. God will make of him a great nation, is a thought which runs through the whole book of Genesis. The Lord is Israel's father of a multitude. Genesis 17:5 is based according to Professor Kyle, on a similarity of sound to the Hebrew word "multitude" and "multitude. In him all the families of the earth should be blessed Through the call of Abraham, the choosing of Israel, the later history of the nation, the birth of Christ through it all God was working to the one end the blessing of all peoples, the redemption of the world From his race have arisen and was accepted with the rank of Flying Officer He went by air to Iceland three months later, and wearing the half-wing of an "RO" he soon piled up 150 operational flying hours on such widely varied types as the Canadian, Hudsons Bunderlands, Wellingtons and Whitleys

Health

LEAGUE of CANADA

presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

WORRIERS NEED SALT

The Health League of Canada directs attention to an article in the current C-I-L Oval which states that in order to protect the health of war workers and to aid them in combating the ill effects of summer heat, the practice is now wide-spread of equipping munitions plants with salt tablets in handy dispensers near every drinking fountain. The importance of salt in the fight against summer heat and possible prostration cannot be over-estimated, the article states, and most of the ill effects of exertion in hot weather are caused by the profuse loss of salt from the body through sweating. Even the condition commonly referred to as "water poisoning" is caused not so much by the over-consumption of water, as is generally thought, but rather by the serious depletion of chlorides in the body.

While office workers can make up their depletion of chlorides with the salt normally consumed at meal time, workers in factories need extra amounts of this necessary mineral at frequent intervals during working hours.

Those little tablets are really washed down with a mouthful of water and their function need of drinking fountains serves as a reminder that a thirsty man needs salt as well as water. They are approximately 3,000 of these dispensers in use throughout Canadian factories and it is urged that an additional 1,000 will be installed this year for the relief of workers in our new war industries. Each dispenser holds 1,500 tablets and the tablets which will be consumed in the next few months in the fight against summer heat can be measured in tons

Editor Note:- If unable to obtain salt tablets, usually about 15 grains each, at a reasonable price, may about 30c a hundred, you can get the same result by putting salt in your tumbler of water. For those perspiring freely this is a necessary aid in restoring body balance during summer

CHAPTER XXIII

Tamar opened her eyes and found Dr. Durand hurriedly bending over her Reality returned with a rush, for this was no usual incident in her life. Dr. Pinecrest was called in to take care of her measles, mumps, and whooping cough; but those days were so far away they might never have existed at all

She heard his pleasant voice saying: "She will be all right, just needs some of Phoebe's good chicken broth and about ten hours' sleep." He leaned over her again. "It was like you, Tam, to faint when you got home on your own bed to faint. I don't see how you held up so long. Lie quietly. I'll send you something. We'll let you sleep in a minute."

Afterward they told her that she drank the broth hungrily and dropped off to sleep for 12 hours without uttering. She couldn't remember it, try as she would.

The next morning, Tamar opened her eyes to a room bright with sunshine that had crept in between the slats of the blinds. The old cherry chest, that held the miniatures of her father and mother, the quaint clock upon the wall; the pretty paper with its pink dogwood blossoms smiling profusely; the swinging white curtains; the hand-loomed throw rugs—all of these dear possessions brought a lump to her throat that ached painfully.

Shadwell—such alone in its rocky untilled acres—every block as he is, wooded lot; every rolling inch of its browning terraces, she would love forever. She swung her feet to the floor wide the gate, and sweep out of the meadow upon the back of Tahlahewka II. If Ranny could join her on one of their saddle horses, they could race until time to eat breakfast.

Just for one long moment it was fun to feel this nostalgic happiness engulf her, then she sank back, wearily upon her bed.

Tamar was to have ridden down the bridle paths in the woods along the Cherokee with Christopher that one day this week. She had sent him a note just before she went to the Pelzers on the errand of mercy for the mother.

The memory of her walk and conversation with Christopher when he was staying at Shadwell after his injury at the mine had stabbed her light. Christopher Rankin had revealed the hollow in the shaft at Tahlahewka I's grave How many others knew about it? Ranny and she had used it for a mail box one summer when they were 8 and 9 respectively She could yet remember the penciled notes they had written to one another and secreted inside of it. Ranny had sent her some purple pansies one day; some on a blue bow, with their green stems soaked in water from the Cove later She could see them yet. She had taken them to her room and put them in a little white glass flower-basket on the night table And remembered Phoebe's chuckle as she made the bed. "Mist Ranny done send you dose flowahs, Kitten? He's goin' to turn out to be romantic lak his pa. I membahs when he's courtin' his ma. . . ."

It was ridiculous to think that Christopher had had anything to do with her kidnapping. She took up the telephone from her desk and gave the number for Pinecrest She must talk with Selby.

Selby's maid said that she was sleeping late and took Tamar's number for her to call back. An overwhelming desire to talk with Christopher came to Tamar and she brushed his number to the operator.

Now that it was done and she heard his deep voice ringing over the wire, she was glad. "Christopher? This is Tamar."

"Tamar! I've been out of my mind. I want to see you. May I come right out?" Impetuously was in his voice, trembling eagerness that sounded sincere.

Tamar was taken back. She had not expected this from Christopher not after she had talked with Selby that night she and her brother had come for dinner. Because she knew that Selby considered herself engaged to him. She had not allowed herself the luxury of analyzing the undercurrent of all that she felt for Christopher and Christopher. Now that had seemed so real and alive that she could not believe that it was a mere flirtation that he had indulged himself in. And Selby and Ranny!

These things flowed swiftly through Tamar's mind as she sat there gripping the receiver. The slow beating of her heart warned her that she would let nothing interfere with her decision.

Suddenly she wanted no one else about when she met him. There had been a night that she would have gone for him as moonlight lay about them on the terrace and they had left the benches to wander down the old path beside the river. Christopher had leaned a little heavily upon her arm and laughingly placed his shoot her waist. She had trembled under his touch and kept herself in hand by sheer will power. She must not let him know how much she cared She had only seen him three times before he came there after his accident

"Could you meet me this afternoon, Christopher, at the fork in the bridle paths?" I'll borrow a horse and ride over there this afternoon. But I can come this morning. Now Right away. Are you too tired?

"No," she headated. "Not too tired, Christopher, but I can't get a horse. Unless I call Ranny and have him send one over It would take a little while. About an hour and a half."

"I'll meet you at 11, then."

Tamar replaced the receiver with trembling hands. Her mirrored face frightened her. I must not care, she told herself. She brushed her hair and remembered that she must call Ranny before he left for the office He answered the telephone himself.

"Tam! It's grand to hear your voice. I wanted to call and my good morning to you before I left the house, and now you've done it for me. Tamar, you angel, I've been dumb for three days, and now I'll start to live all over again."

It was difficult to sound merry over the telephone his voice sounded so convincingly like love-making "Ranny!" she managed. "You know you've always said it'd be good riddance!"

The wire was silent, but without the intensity of his coming words. "I've changed my mind!"

How could she ask him for the use of Tahlahewka II. to go riding after that? She would seem unfaithful even to herself to borrow his horse. She tried a bright gaily or two and they ended the conversation upon a pleasant note, but without the question asked

"I'll drive my car," she decided.

A tap on her door brought her out of deep thought "Yes?"

"Chile, de reposhtahs done got pomission fom de doctah to talk wif you dis mo'nin'. Shall ah run 'em off?"

Tamar glanced at her watch. "No, Phoebe. Ill find out what Dad wants to tell them, and that's all they'll get I'll see them at 9:30. Come in, please, and bring me that coffee! I can smell the tray right through the door."

"Tamar, Honey. I hea'd you callin' Mist Ranny. Ah don' think you' ought to sti' out of dis bed today."

Then Phoebe also heard her calling Mr. Bendel: "Phoebe you miserable eavesdropper. You've lots more to do than to listen to me talk over the telephone, haven't you? No sugar, but lots of cream. I've got to gain four pounds."

Nice of Tamar not to press the point about her listening, Phoebe was thinking as she murmured: "Cou'se chile, yo' needs mo' en' fo' pounds. Ah'll be takin' up pleats in all yo' waistbands."

Tamar heard her father's step outside. "Here's Dad. I want to see how you look this morning." She smiled happily as the door opened.

"Why, you've bright as I feel."

Tamar thought she had never seen him looking so weary and so harassed as he did this morning. She spoke with an effort to cheer up for him. Knox would not feel safe for her as long as the abductor was free. She had slept little more than a night than he had the three preceding ones. He was happy over the engagement, but he knew that as well as with him, but he felt that the man who had torn her from him should be punished without mercy.

Knox tried to talk pleasantly. "Is your coffee good? I had mine over an hour ago. I wakened early, you know, and couldn't wait. Hope that you'll excuse me?"

"Of course!" Tamar leaned over and kissed him.

He sat on the edge of her bed while she finished her tray and said, thoughtfully: "I should you like to go with me on a little trip for a few days? We could go down to the beach and stay at the Dolphin Inn. You could swim and rest and read."

Tamar picked up a crusty piece of toast. "But I don't need to sleep and rest and read! I've been sleeping a lot at Shadwell." A thought struck her and she asked contritely, "of course, Dad, you can't leave now."

The telephone broke into her sentence. Knox answered and said: "Yes, Phoebe, I'll tell her. She's having a hearty breakfast. Just a moment."

Tamar was so lively, propped up on the pillows with bright eyes and hair lay in shining ringlets and waves about her shoulders, the pink satin of her gown with its lacy yoke made her white shoulders and throat beautiful than a lovely old portrait. I could not be more borne it to have lost her, her rather was saying to himself as he stared at the expression that swept over her face The color left her cheeks, but her eyes were full of joy. "How nice, Selby? Yes, of course I will, darling"

Tamar's fingers were numb on the receiver, and it slid out of them with a jangle

"What is it Tamar?"

"Oh, nothing Nothing Dad Only Selby has an important secret to tell me. She's sending Dick for me tonight"

Irishman's Idea For Having His Garden Dug Really Worked

An Irish soldier, on duty in Egypt, received a letter from his wife stating that there wasn't an able-bodied man left in his native town, and she would have to spade the garden herself.

Pat immediately sat down and wrote a letter in reply. And he began his letter with: "Bridget, please don't dig the garden; that's where the guns are."

The letter was duly censored, and in a short time a lorry-load of uniformed men arrived at Pat's home and proceeded to dig up the garden from end to end.

In desperation, Bridget again wrote to her husband in Egypt, saying that she didn't know what to do, as the soldiers had dug up the entire garden twice

Pat's reply was short and very much to the point.

"Go ahead," he wrote. "and plant the spuds!"

Colored Cloth Used As Camouflage In Britain

Britain's airfields gun-sites, lorry parks and other vital war centres are being camouflaged by a man who in peacetime supervised the cutting and making-up of thousands of dainty frocks and blouses

He no longer sits in the office of a Le cashire factory which during the ,sat 30 years has sent frocks out to stores in most parts of the world Today the dress expert climbs to vantage points in the countryside of England and Wales to make notes of the minutest color details of the landscape around the site to be camouflaged.

Returning to his factory, where yards of colored hessian cover cutting tables once gay with silks and cottons, he matches up the hessian with the color card he has brought back with him The hessian is then cut into special patterns and threaded through rope netting made by a manufacturer with a name known to fishermen the world over

The threading is done by hand, and here the skill of the women dressmakers which comes from years of experience, is as valuable as their director's knowledge of color schemes And the result of their work together is that vital points in Britain's defences appear to Nazi airmen as part of the landscape beneath them.

SHADE AND WATER

The shade requirement of 100 hens is at least 50 quarts of water every day and possibly in very warm weather even more than this Shade is necessary too and needs to be provided in the yards or on the range to keep the birds comfortable

The Richsha Mind

Chinese Can Do Good Job With Polished Up Phrases

The Chinese have a way of saying a great deal in a few words. Maj. Gen. Chu Shih Ming, Chinese military attache in Washington, lived up to this reputation at a press conference

Asserting that with 500 bombers and fighters, his fellow countrymen could start an effective offensive against the Japanese right now, Gen. Chu added

"You Americans have the streamlined idea that everything must be perfect before you start, whereas we have the richsha mind and can patch and mend those planes and get them into the air somehow."

Thus far the richsha mind has done a far better job in Asia than the streamlined mind. Also, China has given Washington something to ponder —Cleveland Plain Dealer

Simple Exercises Give Start

Typing by "hunt and peck" methods is a handicap in business. The type fast and accurately you need to learn the touch system

You can start learning at home! A chart shows you where to put your fingers, exercises get you used to the keyboard

The aim in touch typing is for each finger to have a "home key" from which it reaches for other keys. "Home keys" for left hand are a, s, d, f; for right—semi-colon, L, K, J.

In your first exercise you strike each finger separately but lightly with the finger assigned "jjjjjjjjj," then on as shown in our sketch. Without shifting your fingers out of place, you can type simple sentences like "all lads ..."

Now each finger learns to reach for another key, as in your second exercise line The "j" finger, for instance, goes far to the right to just above the "j" key, returning always to its "home key."

Our 32-page booklet, with keyboard chart, explains how to operate the typewriter, has exercises to teach keyboard speed, English typewriting usage. Shows correct forms for a social official and business letters, statistics It'll be useful as a foundation for a business college course.

WEDDING BELLS

McCRAE—McLEAN

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLean of Paradise Valley, on Wednesday, July 15th, at 5 p.m., when their daughter, Evelyn Marie, was united in marriage with Lloyd McCrae, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. McCrae of Vermilion.

The bride looked very attractive in a frock of powdered blue crepe, with harmonizing hat, and wore a corsage of flowers. The bridesmaid, Miss Elsie McCrae, sister of the groom, also wore a frock of blue crepe. The groom was attended by Arthur McLean, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony the guests partook of a delightful wedding dinner. Miss Doris and Miss Eva McCrae assisted Mrs. McLean in serving. The table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake.

Later in the afternoon the couple left for Edmonton where they spent a few days, after which they took up residence on the groom's farm north of Vermilion.

WILDMERE WINKS

Our wet weather seems to have let up for a spell. Everyone is taking advantage of it and trying to get their summerfallow done over. In the wet weather the weeds got so far advanced it is a problem now of what to work in with to get the most good. Not many have their haying done yet either so everything has come in a grand crop.

Congrats to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson (nee Irene Wilson) of Triangle, for a long happily married life.

We are very pleased to hear Mr. Geo. Wilson had to go back to the hospital on Sunday afternoon again. His nephew Theo. Wilson took him in. We were indeed sorry to hear that Mr. Wm. Telford is in the hospital. We know he will be remarkably kind those men of speedy recovery back to health a home again.

Valley Headed, Triangle, who has been a great sheep man for several years has sold all his sheep to Chas. Robinson of Vermilion. It must sound kind of odd not to hear that Bus has at the Rendell home now.

Adam smith jr. has been busy haul his wheat this last week getting it out before the year closes. The new crop year starts Aug. 1.

A large crowd came out to church on Sunday, Mr. Pick gave a very interesting sermon. He also announced that Vacation Church would start at Auburndale on Monday, Aug. 3rd so if any one is intending to go they are surely welcome.

Mrs. Rendell is busy out through our part of the country inquiring the deaths at several wells.

Wild Rose is not very plentiful in our corner this year. Guess old Jack Frost took his toll at the blossoms in June. Still we have very plentiful in the bush pretty good when other fruit you have to buy is so expensive this year around the world.

Miss John Long visited last week at the George Hibben home in Banwood, and Mrs. and Mrs. Abe Friesell were day visitors at the Padden and Bert Friesell homes, as were the Walling-tons at the same places.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Friesell and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jensen, and George, visited to go to McLauchlin this Friday to attend the wedding of Maureen Clarke, sister of Mrs Friesell and George. Here's hoping the weather stays in folks. Harrison is well known in Battleview and Wildmere where we spent several years. Congratulations the best of everything to Marion to her and her husband for years of happiness to come.

Noticed around Lindsay Fashion and sons burning the brush on the road where he cut it a short time ago. Bob Martin very kindly driving Jimmie home on Monday evening when he had to walk several miles, in a recent letter from Mrs. Earl Graham who is at present staying with her mother at Ponoka, she said she was feeling a little better, she has had a long hard struggle since early spring with nerves. What do you think of our little pests the mosquitoes" — It's been many years they were as bad as they are now, the writer can remember in the old days how big and terrible they were. In reading that take we made last week no doubt boys said it was Jim Kinnear not George who was staying at Nisku. A few folks have been ill the past week with flu. A nice round turned out in Mr. L. L. Rebus's sale on Wednesday last, cattle sold real well. We nearly forgot to mention our fine pie race show we had at the school last week sponsored by the Wheat Pool, it was greatly enjoyed by everyone and there was a large crowd out more of these should be held in districts far from town—Thanks and come again is our message to those who put it on.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLDS CONSTITUENCY CONFERENCE

The Constituency conference of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday July 23 in the Memorial hall with forty delegates and visitors in attendance. Heavy rain in the morning, no doubt prevented many from the country from coming.

Mrs. E. E. Morton of Vegreville, provincial vice-president was present and gave a most instructive and inspiring talk on matters of interest to the W.I., especially the war work and the work for the memorial fund. She said a hundred thousand dirty bags will be asked for this year and read portions of letters from women who had received those gifts, which showed how much they were appreciated.

The meeting was called to order by the constituency convenor, Mrs. I. Bennett of the Creighton branch and the singing of O Canada and the recital of the citizenship's creed, the out-of-town visitors and delegates were welcomed by Mrs. Culford, acting for Mrs. C. C. Smith who was unable to be present on account of illness. Mrs. Mowbray of Five Points branch responded, after which the meeting settled down to routine business.

Most encouraging reports were read by the delegates from the different branches and reports of standing committees were given as follows: Legislation—Mrs. Culford, Vermilion; Agriculture and Canadian Industries — Mrs. Johnson, Creighton; Child Welfare and Public Health—Mrs. Cundal, Five Points; Canadian Citizenship—Mrs. Pidcock, Kitscoty; Education—Better Schools—Mrs. Anderson, Ramsay. In her remarks, the constituency convenor expressed her regret that she had not been able to visit the different branches during the year but the shortage of gasoline and tires and the inclement weather had all been contributing factors. She also expressed to the meeting the regret of Mrs. Dingwall, provincial director, who was unable to be present.

There was a nice display of knitted articles and leather lined jackets for the merchant marines and some handicraft. Miss G. Bury, Vermilion, very kindly lent the display of the work and in her remarks gave some very good notices as to how the work could be improved, especially the knitting.

A pleasing interlude during the afternoon was the singing of Miss Frances Ainslie who entertained the gathering by singing two songs. The ladies present gave Miss Ainslie a very hearty vote of thanks.

Mrs. H. Hazlitt of Creighton was the secretary for the meeting. Mrs. Culford, Vermilion, took the register and Miss Ainslie and Mrs. Pidcock kindly played the accompaniments for the community singing.

Those in attendance were: Mrs. E. E. Morton, Vegreville; Mrs. I. Bennett, Miss V. Croft, Mrs. C. E. Johnson, Mrs. W. Johnson, Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. H. Hamilton, all of Creighton branch; Mrs. J. Horrocks, Mrs. J. Sloan, Mrs. W. Wherry, Mrs. T. Henderson, Mrs. Ramsay, Mrs. Ramsay Miss E. Barnes, Mrs. G. Majeau, Mrs. E. Sellers, Mrs. W. McCauley, Mrs. Cundal, Mrs. C. Culford, Mrs. R. Chilton, all of Vermilion; Mrs. Mowbray, Five Points; Mrs. Pidcock, Miss Ainslie, all of Kitscoty; Mrs. Cundal, Mrs. A. Cameron, Mrs. J. Cameron, Mrs. C.C. Smith, Mrs. Helte, Mrs. Lefevre, Mrs. Lindell, Mrs. L.L. Rebus, Mrs. H. Rebus, Mrs. E. B. Bailey, Mrs. Kearne, Mrs. Dunsmore and Mrs. Dohne, all of Vermilion. We have been informed by reporter Miss Mrs. C. C. Smith was well enough to attend the conference in the afternoon.

At the close of the conference, the ladies were delightfully entertained by the W.A. of the Canadian Legion. At this luncheon Mrs. Pidcock invited the 1943 conference at Kitscoty was accepted.

VOL. XXXIV. NO. 16. VERMILION, ALBERTA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 6, 1942. $1.50 A YEAR

37th ANNUAL FAIR IS NOW HISTORY

NEW ATTENDANCE RECORDS SET UP

The town's biggest annual event and North-Eastern Alberta's pre-harvest holiday, the three-day exhibition of the Vermilion Agricultural society, was held last Thursday, Friday and Saturday and is now a matter of history. The 37th annual fair however set up a record in attendance that will take some beating. On three occasions the grandstand was completely sold out while the midway seemed to be crowded practically all the time during afternoon and night A big feature in swelling up the attendance figures was the half holiday on Thursday, as a result this proved a regular all-time day as well as "big side" day, and the largest opening day crowd in the 37 years was recorded

ATTRACTIONS

The grandstand attractions, with practically a complete change of program for afternoon and evening elicited considerable favorable comment from the thousands who saw it. It would be hard to select any particular act or contributed to very pleasing and interesting shows.

Precision drills, which certainly live up to their name, were presented by the R.C.A.F. under the direction of Sgt. Major Perkes, came in for a lot of praise and were certainly given rapt attention.

As a grand finale on Saturday evening the Myrnam Air Cadet Pipe Band put in the pleasing patriotic pageant, "A Toast to Victory".

THE MIDWAY

The midway which hasn't changed much in size and shape, proved about the same as usual. The rides were well patronized both by kiddies and adults, while the various games of chance didn't seem to be doing any bad office business but seemed to get along alright. Peculiarly enough there wasn't one complaint made to the management about alleged syp rackets this year.

DISPLAYS

Commercial displays consisted of one by J. Waring's Furniture store People always like to look at the latest in furniture styles and they certainly have a chance to do so at this display.

The Vermilion Co-op store had an oil display while the Dominion government's display was the usual one of fertilizer show. The North West Implement display comes in for a complete description with illustrations on page 3.

LIVESTOCK EXHIBIT

Livestock exhibits since the discontinuance of the Dominion government's grant come from practically district area that is, the day of the travelling fair is no more. In spite of this the number of exhibits at Vermilion showed by judges to greatly exceed those of all other "fit" fairs held previous to it this year.

Even though the full list of Fair prize winners will appear in next week's Standard a few of the leading exhibitors and big prize winners might well be mentioned and include, in the horse classes, Manson Bros. of Kitscoty, W. D. Williams and Sons, John Bryden of Mannville, Manson Bros., Chas. Parlow, Jos. Hurl, J. H. Sanborn, Dr. W. H. Scott, Grant Roberts, J. H. Winters, A. M. Wilson, McKinley Wilson and Jim Cherry.

In the cattle classes the following names were prominent: W. L. Robinson, Homer Campbell, Mike Hrbuk, W. D. Williams and Sons, W. E. Cornish, Manson Barr. In sheep and swine among the winners were W.B. Cowley, J. H. Winters, Graham Canton, R. Hollyoake.

Finally the mammoth task of organizing and carrying out all the various departments that combine to make the Vermilion fair as successful as we are looked or just taken for granted. The work is there just the same though and the secretary-manager and board of directors of the Vermilion Agricultural society deserve a lot of praise for the time, trouble and expense they take in staging a big three-day event that really does much to keep Vermilion on the map.

FAIR "BRIEFS"

The horse race program run off on Friday and Saturday was very well handled and the starting under W.B. Williams and Jim Robson was carried out quickly and efficiently. Winners of the races were as follows:

Friday, 2.30 trot or pace, 1 mile — all three heats won by Babe Apsarky, owned by P. T. Culley of Stettler. There were four starters.

On Saturday Nine street, also owned by P. T. Culley ran first in each of the three heats.

The running race between Bit O' Fashion, owned by McKinley Wilson of Dewberry and Major W. S. Campbell, Campworthy brought the grandstand patrons to their feet. Campworthy won the race on Friday by three-quarters of a length with the pacing horse second on Saturday when Bit O' Fashion romped home 2½ lengths a winner.

So attractive to fair patrons was the race programs that Fair officials are already lining entries for stake races for the 1943 exhibition.

Right here tribute should be paid to Jim Robson for his very efficient broncho-busting from the judge's stand. The C.B.C. boys have nothing on Jim.

The Vermilion Agricultural society wishes to thank the merchants and business men of the town for their co-operation in closing stores, etc., on Thursday afternoon. This went a long way towards the success of the fair and helped considerably in the handling of unusually large crowds on Friday and Saturday.

Miss Irene Jory sold the highest number of advance sale tickets, disposing of more than 1000 each. Billie O'Connor of Mannville was the second highest seller.

For those who like to know the advance sale of tickets as considerably in excess of previous years. The original order of 2500 tickets was completely sold for the first time and an additional 800 order had to be placed with the Standard printers.

John Maxwell of Mannhan, P. O. was the lucky ticket holder and the $50 prize no doubt added greatly to his enjoyment of the Fair.

Mrs. Melvin Hill also won her board as 95 prize when she guessed closest to the weight of W. L. Robinson's prize Shorthorn bull. Mrs. Hill's estimate was 2037 while the correct weight was 2045.

Just imagine—the Fair has come and gone and the Board had not one complaint about the midway.

Vermilion Fair has always made a feature of its livestock parade and that on Saturday afternoon last week had firmly established Vermilion's lead in this type of event in Western Canada. The stock parade was led by the beautiful Clydesdales of the veteran exhibitor John Bryden of Mannville and formed a long line to pass the stands where the horses were greeted with great enthusiasm. People seem to like to see prize livestock. Parade championship for horses went to Manson Bros. of Kitscoty, with reserve being won by Chas Parlow, of Vermilion. Parade championship for cattle was awarded Lyle Robson on well known local Shorthorn breeder with reserve going to Homer Campbell, Hereford breeder from Derwent.

To the delight of fair patrons new jumping classes for horses were presented in front of the grandstand by Ft. Williams, A. M. West, J. H. Sanborn and J. B. Robson. Each jumping class in the show.

The featured children's classes certainly provided keen competition and there is little doubt but that this work will be continued and enlarged upon in the future.

TWO NEW WELLS ARE SPUDDED IN

Two new wells were spudded in during the past week. Those were the International Holdingsworth No. 1 Led 2 of Sec 5-51-5 Wth and the Atlas-Vermilion No 1 on Led 1 of Sec. 32-50-5 Wth.

The international Holdingsworth well is being drilled by Chas Withers who has brought a new Failing rotary drilling rig and a fleet of new trucks and big caterpillar tractor to town. Superintendent is very busy in treatment in drilling equipment

Lloyd Clinch is in charge of the Atlas-Vermilion No. 1 and this is being drilled with a cable tool rig. Both the new locations it will be noted are north of the railroad track.

PRODUCTION ON STEADY INCREASE AT REFINERY

Additional Capacity in Process of Installation

Production at the Vermilion Consolidated Conditioning plant jumped over 1000 barrels in July over the June output and officials have in the process of installation equipment to take care of still more oil as new wells are drilled and added to the list of producers. Another receiving tank is being constructed at the refinery with a capacity of 7000 barrels. The excavation has already been completed and everything is in readiness to run the cement.

Steel tanks for the storage of plant output are already on the grounds.

In June the conditioning plant had an output of 6417 barrels and in July this jumped over 1000 barrels to 7296. The 16th rate is now looked during last month bringing the total number of cars of conditioned fuel oil shipped to 161.

At the present time there are 12 wells on production and these are producing a total of 425 barrels per day).

COMMUNITY MOURNS PASSING OF DR. JOHN J. KNOLL

The town and district of Vermilion in this week mourning the passing of one of its foremost citizens in the person of Dr. John J. Knoll. His death took place at 7 o'clock in the evening, last Friday July 31st in a Montreal hospital. He had gone east accompanied by Mrs. Knoll, some two months ago for a rest and medical attention.

Dr. Knoll had practiced here since 1914 and had proved in every sense a good citizen, a true friend and his success as a physician and surgeon can best be told by those thousands of former patients who are mourning their loss in his passing.

The deceased was born at Dunkeld in Ontario on July 15th 1880 and at this just passed his 62nd birthday. For a time he taught school here in the East and in Alberta and by this means put himself through Medical University for the M. D. degree. He graduated in 1913 and from then to 1914 he practiced in Vermilion as assistant to Dr. F. Day Smith. In 1916 he commenced a practice of his own in Provost, remaining there in 1924 when he succeeded Dr. Day Smith. He has since that time made Provost very hard and with eminent success at his profession, still finding time in spite of pressure of duties, to take a keen interest in municipal, church and recreational activities. At the time of his passing he was chairman of the school board and had been a member of this body for ten years; he was a Christian in practice as well as in theory, being devoted to his church; he believed in recreation and for years there was no more ardent curler than the Doctor.

In familiar after the ills and troubles of others, he did not spare himself and year years saw the continuous and ever-taking work of his busy practice to begin to tell. At that time he assisted the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, as well as medical specialists in Montreal. After a rest from his work of years, he returned to active practice carrying on until two months ago when he again went east

Widely known, esteemed and respected as friend, citizen and doctor, his death is the cause of community wide mourning, and to his sorrowing widow and family of four daughters and five sons is extended sincere and heartfelt sympathy.

The funeral is being held at the Holy Name church at 10 o'clock this Thursday morning August 6th, interment will follow in the Edmonton cemetery.

IDEAL WEATHER CONDITIONS

Ideal weather conditions have prevailed for the week with a bright sun holding sway and the thermometer up around the 90-mark in the shade. Farmers claim plenty of moisture in the soil and that what is needed is ripening weather and that's really what we have been getting.

Never in the history of the country have the grain fields looked better Intensified with the stretches of magnificent wheat, are plenty of big oat fields and wonderful barley stands. This area will probably produce barley this fall than ever before.

The 44th annual number of the Financial News, published in Vancouver and containing four sections with a total of 84 pages, pays considerable attention to the development in the Vermilion oil field. The issue is a very interesting one from cover to cover.

Nazis Face Difficulties

DURING THE THREE YEARS of the war the Nazis have had many victories and have acquired many thousands of square miles of territory Up until the present time in most cases it has appeared that Hitler has had the advantages of greater numbers of men and machines, and frequently time has also been his ally. It has often been pointed out that as his conquests increased so did his responsibilities, and if one may judge by the stories which from time to time reach the outside world from Occupied Europe, it appears that the enforcing of the New Order must take the most of the time and attention of the conquering Fuehrer. The activities of the "underground army" in Europe have been combatted by wholesale murder of the conquered peoples, yet they do not decrease and will no doubt continue until the armies of the United Nations join them in force in a drive towards the heart of Germany.

* * *

The Spectre Of Famine

Other forces, at which Hitler cannot strike as easily as he can at defenceless people, are also working against him. From time to time there have been stories of food shortages in Europe. Recently Joseph W Grigg, writing from London for the United Press, reported that the German radio has admitted that eight million acres of crops were destroyed by the extreme cold last winter, which was said to be the most severe in one hundred and fifty years. The coming harvest is expected to be very small, for bad weather and insects have retarded growth, and there is said to be a shortage of six hundred thousand farm workers. Potatoes and other vegetables Mr Grigg reports, are more scarce than they have been since 1916, and vegetables are being rationed at the rate of one pound a person each week. Farmers in Germany have been ordered to give their entire crops to the government, keeping nothing for themselves. For violation of this law, the Gestapo has decreed punishm ranging from fines of one hundred thousand marks to death

Hatred Is Sowing

There is also reported to be a grave shortage of fats and butter and also of fodder for cattle. The report continues that although conditions exist in France, where farmers are selling such products as they have on the "Black Markets" rather than through government regulations. Although Hitler has sent many German workers to the Ukraine in an attempt to gather supplies, it is thought unlikely that he will receive a great deal from there where the crop is said to be poor With increased food restrictions, it is unlikely that the already poorly-fed people of Europe will feel more kindly toward those who have brought all this misery upon them. And while they may yet win a few more battles with men and machines, there is inevitably growing a tide of revulsion in Europe. which linked with the growing strength power of the United Nations, will one day mean the end of Hitler's New Order and of all those who sided in its prosecution. It is known that starvation of the population in Germany had a great deal to do with her final collapse in 1918 and there is no doubt that this force is beginning to work again, and that it will be one of the weapons which will again bring about the defeat of the enemy

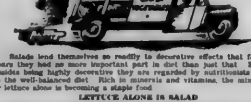
Britain's Spitfires Goes To Britain

Woman Played Vital Part In Development Of Famous Fighters

"In 1931," writes William Hunter in the current issue of the aviation magazine Flying, "Lady Lucy Houston unwittingly preserved for Britain the priceless Spitfire lineage She put up nearly a half million dollars to finance the 1931 British Schneider Trophy team, the Air Council having lost interest in further competition. The result was a plane that won the famed trophy outright for England."

Before that, Lady Houston had financed the flight over Mount Everest An English aviation correspondent with whom the writer talked recently, pictured Lady Houston as a strong-willed, purposeful woman who was determined to do something worth while with her millions. According to this story, she had moved to the tax-free Isle of Jersey in the English Channel because of a tax dispute in England. Still she financed the winning Schneider team and accordingly to hear that the original Vickers Wellington bomber.

"Thanks to Lady Houston, who seems to have had more aviation foresight than either the British or American Government in those days, R. J Mitchell (designer of the Spitfire) was able to continue his experiments and finally to produce one of the greatest fighting ships of the present war."



Salads lend themselves so readily to decorative effects that for many years they held an more important part in diet than just that. But now, besides being highly decorative they are regarded by nutritionists as vital to the well-balanced diet. Rich in minerals and vitamins, the mixed salad or lettuce alone is becoming a staple food

LETTUCE ALONE IS SALAD

Epicures prefer lettuce salad mixed in a wooden bowl with wooden fork and spoon. Housewives prefer them because they are so easy to prepare. After following directions once or twice, anyone can make an excellent salad, and make it of just a few odds and ends but always beginning with fresh, crisp lettuce either leaf or head.

HERE'S HOW

Into the salad bowl put salt, pepper and paprika in quantities your judgment suggests and your taste confirms. (Use extra salt (iodized) in summer to help prevent ill effects by heat.) Add three tablespoons of vinegar, preferably tarragon, and six or eight tablespoons of salad oil. Mix thoroughly, adding a button of peeled garlic if you want to be seriously regarded as a salad maker, then chopped celery, especially the green leaves, chervey, water cress, grated carrot or raw cauliflower. Grated cheese, well seasoned or definitely aged adds zest. Then the lettuce, a whole head leafed out, fluffed up thoroughly and served in generous portions with crackers or thin well-buttered real whole wheat bread.

RABBITS MUST WEED

Rabbits may enjoy wilted lettuce, humans, especially youngsters don't. There'd be fewer salad-refusers if the vegetables, fruit and lettuce were always appetisingly fresh and crisp.

EVERY DAY IS SALAD DAY

There is a salad for every day in the year and it is important to develop your taste for them because of threatened shortages of canned goods. A postal card to the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario, will bring you a free vitamin chart for ready reference and a booklet "Salads that are Delicious".

Jute Becoming Scarce

Paper Bags May Have To Be Used For Fertilizers

Due to the shortages in the available supplies of jute, as a result of war conditions, it may be necessary next year to use paper bags entirely for fertilizers, G. S. Peart, Fertilizers Administrator, stated recently

During the past three months the fertilizer trade have been unable to obtain as many jute bags for packing their product as in other years and as the war continues fewer jute bags will be likely available. Jute comes almost entirely from Bengal district of India.

Fortunately Canada has generous supplies of pulpwood and therefore should be able to meet the needs of the fertilizer trade with paper bags, said Mr Peart

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This Unit That Is Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Some of the men who come in for more than their percentage of wisecracks in the Canadian, or the British, or the American—and probably in the German and Japanese for that matter—Army are the Intelligence Officers. The reason is obvious—but the facts don't substantiate the kidding.

Those of us on the outside are apt to think of "Secret Service" and to conjure up visions of daring spies who disguise themselves as organ-grinders or vegetable salesmen or glamorous ayrens or something like that. People like E. Phillips Oppenheim are responsible for that idea.

I am not saying that there is not a certain amount of the romantic espionage work done by the Intelligence staffs of all armies but I do know that for every disguised operative who sneaks around in enemy territory there are a hundred careful, meticulous workers who spend long hours in offices at General Staff Headquarters sifting little bits of information that reach them from many sources.

They have a long, tying and arduous job to do, a job that calls for keen analysis, intuition and painstaking—which has been called "genius" —devotion to duty and practical imagination. Nothing is too trivial for them to note nothing so big that it can hide wanted facts from them. As you fighting men in the front section of your Army you find intelligence officers at Division, Brigade and Unit Headquarters. You are cogs in the vastly important job of gathering information that will be of value to the High Command.

How do you imagine, for instance, that our official communiques are able to state that "so many and so many tons of bombs were dropped on the opposing force"?

Don't think that some prisoner broke down and told it. To begin with the individual soldier has no rank of a general would know it. And, it must be remembered, International Law protects a soldier from answering questions other than his name, rank, etc., if he is captured. That is, of course, when you are dealing with an enemy who respects International Law.

But when you have a number of intelligence officers trained in their jobs, questioning a large number of prisoners on different parts of the front and rapidly forwarding their information through the channels provided to a central point where it is all correlated and analyzed it is surprising to the layman how much accurate information of incalculable value to the General Staff can be obtained even from answers that adhere to the instructions given to all soldiers to reveal nothing of their side's dispositions to their captors.

The same thing applies to the interest little remarks people let us make at times to our friends, or to casual strangers we meet on the train or in a street car or at some gathering. We may think we are being very circumspect, we may feel that the information that our next door neighbour's boy is home on his last leave does not convey anything It doesn't in itself, especially if we have been very careful not to say whether he is going east or west but, and this is a big but, if in five or six other towns five or six other people let out similar information something like this may happen.

Let us assume that the five or six soldiers referred to are from three or four different units. The innocent remarks are collected by enemy agents and relayed to a central point. At once it is known that in the next few days a contingent of however many troops those four units represent is going overseas. To that some point some little bits of other information gathered, for instance, in a tavern or coffee shop near a railway point where a yard foreman or one of his helpers innocently remarks to a colleague that he has "to make up a 14-car special tomorrow for the port of Buchandaunch." The central correlator of information has an appreciation of the time and size of the movement.

That's all he needs! The next step is to send word to a raider command that within so many days an enemy convoy may be expected to move from "Buchandaunch." Simple, isn't it?

So let's keep our mouths shut. And let's ask no questions of our soldier, sailor and airman friends.

On the other hand, don't forget that the Intelligence Officer of the Unit or Headquarters near you will be very interested in anything you have to tell him that you think may be of use in his work.

And, while we are on the subject of helping people to do their jobs, have in some intelligence work we can do in the Individual Citizen's Army. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board is fighting an enemy that will be as dangerous after the war as the common foes are today, the enemy called Post-war Inflation.

The Board maintains an intelligence system on somewhat the same lines as the Army. Not a regiment of snoopers but a number of trained businessmen whose job it is to watch for the infiltration of uncontrolled inflation behind our economic lines. They, too, note little bits of unrelated information that filter in from all over the country and from their correlation of these facts are able to determine how to dispose their forces.

If you know of anything that is contributing to higher prices tell the nearest representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. He will hold your name in confidence and you help him to fight your economic battles.

FAITH

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and he shall direct thy paths.—Proverbs 3:5, 6.

While reason is passing herself about the mystery, faith is turning it into her daily bread and feeding on it thankfully in her heart of hearts. —Frederick D. Huntington.

Faith does nothing alone—nothing of itself, but everything under God, by God through God.—Stoughton.

The steps of faith fall on the seeming ground, but find the rock beneath.—Whittier

Boost Wheat Production

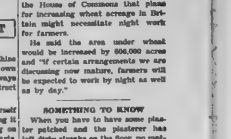
British Farmers May Have To Work At Night

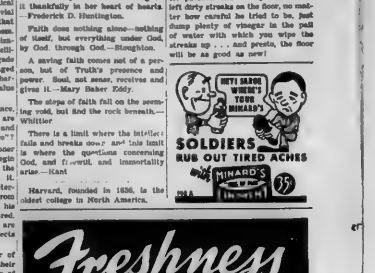
Agriculture Minister Hudson told the House of Commons that plans for increasing wheat acreage in Britain might necessitate night work for farmers.

He said the area under wheat would be increased by 600,000 acres and "if certain arrangements we are discussing now mature, farmers will be expected to work by night as well as by day."

SOMETHING TO KNOW

When you have to have some plaster patched and the plasterer has left dirty streaks on the floor, no matter how careful he tried to be, just dump plenty of vinegar in the pail of water with which you wipe the streaks up . . . and presto, the floor will be as good as new!





Contingent Of Canadian Troops Arrive In Britain

A British Port. — Thousands of Canadian soldiers, eager for a second front, and hundreds of ground crew for R.C.A.F. squadrons have arrived in Britain.

The large contingent had a smooth crossing from Canada which was practically without incident. Escort-ing warships dropped a few depth-charge patterns but it is not known definitely that the convoy was shadowed by submarines.

The army contingent included officers and other ranks of headquarters of an armored division expected to reach Britain before the end of the year.

There were reinforcements for almost every infantry regiment overseas and a large detachment of ordnance soldiers, hundreds of tank regiment reinforcements, a draft for the forestry corps and new troops for the army service corps and engineers, artillery, signals and signal units.

The air force men were mostly ground crew but there were a few pilots. One troopship carried 84 Canadian firefighters for Britain.

It was a twilight arrival and a crowd of several thousand cheered as one landing stage cheered and waved in.

After a quiet passage with the Atlantic like a millpond most of the way, these thousands of new troops entrained for camps and stations all over the British Highland to the English channel.

Although escorting warships dropped a few depth charges, it is not known definitely if submarines shadowed the convoy and the voyage passed practically without incident.

Hal Mills of Moose Jaw, Sask., a Canadian Legion sports officer who wears the blue uniform of the Royal Canadian Air Force, was among the Canadians arriving in Britain on the latest movement of troops overseas.

"The Legion's going to be important to these men after the war," he said, "after the Old Great War we tried for five or six years to get solid organization functioning."

"Now, these men will have a sound, functioning organization behind them when they come home, and they'll need it."

Mills said he has been engaged in boys work since he returned from the First Great War.

Under the section, it is provided that the minister may furnish national war service boards with lists of industrial or servicing activities deemed to be essential to the successful prosecution of the war. An employer engaged in any activity so listed is termed a "war industry."

PROVE EFFECTIVE

How Anti-Aircraft Guns Were Used Recently By British

London.—Britain's newest secret anti-aircraft guns had their first real test a week ago as the Nazi air force, favored by a full moon, sent over the largest number of planes to reach England in several months.

The anti-aircraft defences, extremely active, were presumed to have been manned jointly by naval gunners and girls of the Auxiliary Territorial Service who have been manning such intricate devices as predictors for some time, although there was no official disclosure to that effect.

The new guns appeared to be widely employed but no detailed information has been permitted. Listeners knew something unusual was happening when they heard the novel twang in the midst of the familiar bang and crash of gun and cannon.

The stinging reception they gave the Nazis coupled with the activity of the night fighters, made the enemy spread themselves and prevented them from inflicting any concentrated damage.

Included in the prairie delegation were A. K Godfrey Winnipeg; R. J Deachman, Winnipeg; T. Davies, Charles Wentz, both of Saskatoon; W. A Sinder Moose Jaw; Norris Stotts, Lethbridge; A. E. Cruickshank, Calgary. Ed. Stacey, Edmonton.

Casualties In Hong Kong Said To Be Lower

Ottawa.—Defence department officials discounted unofficial estimates that Japanese Marquess, Portuguese East Africa, that the casualties among Canadian contingent at Hong Kong to date in the colony were from 50 to 60 per cent, of the total of 2,300 men sent from the Dominion.

The Canadian force sent to Hong Kong was 1,985 officers and men. Shortly after Hong Kong fell the Japanese reported they had taken 1,689 Canadian prisoners of war. It was assumed on that basis that the number dead and missing was 296 or less than 15 per cent.

A few of the prisoners subsequently died in custody, but no information has been received which would indicate the original report of 1,689 prisoners . . . wrong.

The department of external affairs released a communication from the International Red Cross saying that "the prisoners of war camps in Hong Kong were not the health of the prisoners, including Canadians captured in the fall of Hong Kong appears to be satisfactory" and that the prisoners show appreciation of "good treatment."

The communication, received from Geneva by E. L. Maag, delegate of the International Red Cross committee, described as "satisfactory" the conditions regarding housing, food clothing, canteens, hospitalization, dental care, recreation library and religious life

Visits were made to the North-point internment camp, containing 210 officers and non-commissioned officers and 1,302 other ranks all Canadians with the exception of 28 Danish mariners; Shamshuipo camp, containing 65 officers 1,151 non-commissioned officers and 2,779 other ranks, and Argyle Street camp, containing 474 officers, 19 non-commissioned officers and 1,302 other ranks.

HELP FOR PRAIRIES

Need Lumber From B.C. To Build Grain Storage

Vancouver.—Assistant Timber Controller D. D. Rosenberry told a group of prairie lumbermen here that British Columbia would make a "desperate effort to help the prairies" in their urgent need for lumber for construction of facilities for storage of one of the largest grain crops in history

Mr. Rosenberry said he did not know the full extent of British Columbia's probable contribution, as the prairies represent only one of several big markets asking for all-out production from B.C.'s lumber mills.

"Our job is to allocate the output and available stocks wherever the need is most urgent," he said.

H Bartholomew, head of the delegation said the prairies will use the lumber that they get from the coast not only for the building of farm granaries, but also for the housing for a greatly increased number of livestock. The big livestock population has in turn made necessary the storage of larger amounts of feed grain

FIND SECRET STORES

Italian Equipment Found In Eritrea Came In Handy

Cairo Secret stores of guns ammunition, equipment and army equipment hidden away by the Italians in their former colony of Eritrea on the Red Sea coast, provided much needed swap metal for the war plants at the United States base there.

The stores were left up by the Italians over a period of years and apparently were intended for use in guerrilla campaigns against the Sudan, Egypt and the Arabian peninsula, reports to Cairo said

BEEF CATTLE

Move To Supply Cattle For Feed Lots In East And West

Ottawa.—J. G. Taggart, foods administrator of the wartime prices and trade board, told members of the beef cattle advisory committee here that efforts would be made to reach an early decision in the matter of assuring sufficient supplies of feeder cattle for the feed lots in the east and west.

Addressing the concluding session of a two-day conference, Mr. Taggart said such efforts would be made by the Wartime Food Corporation, crown company which buys at export prices cattle intended for export and diverts the beef to the domestic market.

A pri.se board statement quoted Mr. Taggart as saying the corporation would attempt to co-ordinate the viewpoints of eastern and western cattle interests with the object of assuring a continuous flow of finished beef throughout the year for Canadian consumers

The viewpoint of the western ranchers who provide the chief supplies of feeder stock, was placed before the conference by Premier John of Aden, Alta., president of the Short Grass Cattlemen's Association and vice-president of the Western Stock Growers Association

A Registration Of Women For War Industry

Ottawa.—A registration of Canadian women, aimed at filling workers for war industry and replacing men for military service, is expected to be held some time during the first next month but its scope is still undetermined

Officials of national selective service are known to be considering such a registration which was forecast recently by Elliott M. Little, selective service director in an address here But it was understood they have not yet decided whether the registration should be confined to women residing in certain localities and certain types of workers and age groups.

During his address, Mr. Little emphasized Canada's tightening manpower situation by saying that the government must find 250,000 persons within the next five months for war industry and service in the armed forces. A registration of womanpower would be part of that job

The government recently made a preliminary check of unemployed men which will be repeated every two weeks to keep constant check on the pool if available manpower

PROVES SUCCESS

Glider-Plane Made in Canada Has Had Flight Tests

Toronto The first Canadian made glider-plane has come through its flight tests successfully, Group Capt. de Havilland Aircraft said. The glider reached an altitude of 9,500 feet in the course of a two-hour flight which included a forced spin, from which it recovered with ease, and various types of dives. It was towed into the air by a Tiger Moth plane and released at 1 280 feet.

Plan To Tighten The Control Of Supply Of Labor

Ottawa. — Tightening of control over Canada's manpower supply is expected to be announced shortly with the enforcement of new orders now being framed.

One of the most important steps understood to have been decided on is the provision of a "cooling off" period between the time of dismissal or resignation of an employee and the time he actually leaves employment

This new approach to the problem of shifting manpower, which Elliott M. Little, director of national selective service has referred to as one of the most serious hindrances in Canadian labor will halt haste in action both on the part of the employee and employer. It is anticipated the compulsory "cooling off" period will be one week

Regulations have to be announced are expected also to eliminate the three days of grace at present provided in reporting job changes to employment offices.

Following the announcement June 17 of regulations which make it necessary for employers to obtain permits from an employment office for all new employees regulations were also expected through the provision of a three-day period of grace an employer could engage a new man without a permit if he reported the employment within three days. Approval then was required in the form of a permit from the selective service officer who is also manager of the employment office

Organization of the employment offices to handle the heavy requirements of the selective service program now has reached a point where the 200 chairmen required are selected and a permit obtained before the new employee can be hired and start work

Absenteeism is another major problem which is being actively studied and on which some action is expected in the near future. Selective service studies have shown manpower waste running as high as from 10 to 25 per cent. in some factories.

This condition is understood to be particularly serious in plants where large numbers of women are employed The number of women in industry is constantly increasing

Improvement of working conditions is considered at least a partial solution for this problem and co-operation of employers is being solicited in an energetic campaign now being carried on by selective service officials

MOBILE KITCHENS

The Queen Accepts Presentation From Women Of Canada

London — Seven mobile kitchens presented by the women of Canada were accepted by the Queen at an informal ceremony at Canadian Red Cross headquarters in Berkeley Square

WILDNERE WINKS

Twenty eight years since our first World War started. Everyone then thought there would never be another one but here we are plunged into one far worse and no end in sight yet We all hope and pray the end will come soon and we the victorious ones

Tom Best visited last Tuesday; at the Smith, Struthers and Wallington homes. His bert leg is improving nicely, but is still a lot larger than the other one.

Not many missed out Fair this year While it was much the same as last year in the midway the grandstand was different and was much enjoyed by all who saw it. It was a day away from the farm tasks also and gave one an opportunity to talk with the many friends you do not very often see

When Mr. and Mrs. Garnett and Anne were in the city not long ago they had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Gilholm and Bobby and Pte Elsie and Pte Mary Gilholm who were also in the city Mrs Gilholm had come in from Cherhill to see the girls who are at present stationed at Red Deer and who had obtained leave to come to the city Mary had been sent training before coming to Red Deer

Albert Howard of the Air Force spent the week-end at his home here in Wildmere returning to the city on Monday morning.

Our school now looks nice and clean after its thorough going over by the capable hands of Mrs. John Wilson and her husband last week. Quite a few comments were heard on Sunday over the gate being moved at the grounds

Mr Pick gave a very lively sermon on Sunday morning. Each Sunday that goes by makes it nearer to the close of our church season again, the summers surely go past far too quickly.

Everyone will be very sorry to hear that Mrs. Eleri Graham, formerly of Wildmere is having to go to a sanatorium for her lungs becoming affected from having pneumonia early in May The writer and husband are going up to the city on Wednesday of this week to bring back her other two children and will take care of them while their mother is ill. It's hard times when a mother is sick and has small children to care for. Pte. Graham is stationed in eastern Canada. Good luck for a speedy a recovery as possible Mrs. Graham.

Sgt Norman Smith, R.C.A.F., Edmonton in company with Miss Mary Sauder and Albert Shaw of the city drove from Edmonton by car to visit Norman's parents Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith over the week end. Norman was promoted to sgt the first of the month.

DR. JOHN J. KNOLL

May 1, on behalf of the people of Vermilion express our sincere regrets at the passing of Dr. J. J. Knoll, one who for so many years lived moved, and had his being among us. The sympathy of the community goes out to his widow and family in this, their hour of bereavement. Dr. Knoll's skill as a physician and surgeon has meant happiness and longevity of life to thousands in all walks of life. Dr. Knoll will be equally well remembered as Chairman of the Vermilion School Board, an office he worthily filled for a number of years during which time he was instrumental in effecting changes in the public school looking to better appointments for both teacher and pupil. The High school also called for much of his singular ability and industry, particularly after the first structure was destroyed by fire and it became necessary to rebuild. This High School building will remain his monument. He threw into the realignment all the energy and enthusiasm he possessed to the end that Vermilion would have a High school second to none in the province. He succeeded. Dr. Knoll manifested keen interest, as well, in the enlargement of the Municipal hospital, his advice and guidance being freely given towards the incorporation of all the modern conveniences and equipment desirable to make this hospital one of the best in the province. He was a person in every move that tended toward the betterment and advancement of the town and district of Vermilion. For years he served as Municipal Health Officer of the town. Dr. Knoll ranked high in his profession; he was kindly and generously disposed — the geniality of his soul radiated among his fellow citizens. And now his work is finished, Vermilion will long feel his loss, his church to which he was intensely devoted will miss him; a void has been created which will be hard to fill.

REQUIESCAT IN PACE.

Mayor.

VANESTI NEWS

The Pairs are over so now everyone will be able to settle down to work again—and there is certainly plenty of work with lots more in prospect when the harvest gets under way. If nothing happens crops look like fair to be a record breaker for the west.

There will be a dance in the Vanesti school on Friday Aug. 7th.

Chris Hamilton has been home on furlough from Paulson, Man. He left Monday on his return trip. Willie Hamilton has joined the air force also and leaves in a short time to commence his training.

Sgt. Joe Davidson was home for a few days leave during the past week.

Miss Mable Spooner left on Tuesday for Brockville Ont. to commence her R.C.A.F. (W.D.) training.

Saturday east a deep gloom over the entire country side. It was known that he was ill but no one knew how seriously. He will be greatly missed as doctor and citizen. His kindly smile and cheery words were a great source of comfort and confidence to his patients. The grim reaper has taken one whose place will be hard to fill in the community. This district and the writer and family extend heartfelt sympathy to the sorrowing wife and family in this hour of sorrow

IMPORTANCE OF AGRICULTURE DISPLAYED AT FAIR

A brightly lighted mechanical operated panorama to emphasize the great importance of agriculture in Canada's war program, featured the main theme of the North-West Line Elevators Association exhibit at the fair this year. Mechanical action was provided in three main scenes of the exhibit by trains, trucks, endless belts, and ships moving out to sea. The scene in which the trains and trucks operated, pictured a rural area with a model farm in the foreground. This scene directed attention to the production of such farm products as bacon, eggs, cheese, milk, butter, wool, flax, etc., which are urgently need from prairie farms in ever increasing quantities. Two endless belts were running in the central section which illustrated an industrial area, into a factory one of the belts carried raw materials from the farm for processing. Out the other end of the plant those same products emerged in processed form. The belt carried them in the direction of the seaboard. The third section was a convoy scene. Here could be seen a convoy of ships moving across the ocean to our allies, and another convoy returning for cargo.

Monday July 27th. May they enjoy a long and happily married life.

Ernie Rose is working for Bill Johnson of Earlie and Jim Spencer is working for Urban Holman.

Right now it appears as if there will be a terrific shortage of harvest help.

Edith Hamilton is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Isley of Triangle for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Isley visited Mrs. R. Allison on Sunday.

The Johnson and Robertson families of Earlie were Sunday visitors at the home of Sgt. and Mrs. David-son while Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hansen were callers at the same home.

OBITUARY

MRS. ESTHER MCCONNELL

Mrs. Eva Esther McConnell a pioneer resident of Stettler and of Nevis district, passed away at Derwent, Alberta, on Wednesday, July 22nd at the age of 66 years. Mrs. McConnell had been living with her son George at Derwent for the past three years and she expired while sitting up in bed writing a letter to her son Fred who is in the airforce. She had been ill with thrombosus.

The late Mrs. McConnell resided at the farm at Nevis in the early days and then came to Stettler when Mr. McConnell was appointed bailiff in 1932. Later on Mr. and Mrs. McConnell returned to the homestead at Nevis and Mrs. McConnell continued to reside there after the death of her husband eight years ago.

The funeral took place on Saturday, July 25 at 2.30 p.m., from St. George's church, Stettler, the services being in charge of the Rev. Mr. Herbert of Lacombe. The pall bearers were W.B. Grey, W. Shackleroth, Henry Harding, J. Rowledge, W. Charlton and I. Birdsell.

The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful and testified to the high esteem in which the deceased was held both at Nevis and Stettler and adjacent districts. She leaves to mourn her loss, three children, May, (Mrs. Brigham of Red Deer) George of Derwent and Fred of the R.C.A.F.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our many friends for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our dear mother, also for the many beautiful floral tributes.

2500 RECRUITS WANTED FOR VETERANS' GUARD

Eligible To 50 Years of Age

Once again Canada is calling more old comrades back to the colors it is revealed with the recent announcement from Colonel H. R. Alley, O.C. Veterans Guard of Canada, that 2500 men, not over the age of fifty years are required immediately.

Major J. H. Gainer, M.C., District Recruiting Officer of Military District No. 12, has announced that commencing on the morning of August 10th 1942, four mobile recruiting units of the Veterans Guard will set out in four different directions and will cover practically every town and village in the province of Alberta, enlisting recruits for the Veterans Guard of Canada.

Lt. H. E. Blair of the 2nd Bn. Edmonton Regiment will cover the Innisfail, Wainwright, Vermilion, Vegreville, Bonnyville, St. Paul, Hinsley and Wetaskiwin lines.

Complete itineraries of the boats and dates that the recruiting officers will be in each town will be published in all weekly newspapers and radio stations will carry announcements of the towns to be visited each day. All those interested are requested to contact their local civilian recruiting officials as to the place to contact the recruiting officers in their various towns and districts.

Special representation is being made to the Department of National Defence at Ottawa to have the age limit of veterans eligible to join the Veterans Guard raised from fifty to fifty-five years. Veterans who are interested in enlisting are also advised that special arrangements for "harvest leave" have been completed and that arrangements for same can be made if so desired.

The Veterans Guard of Canada companies are called upon for service in this war in many parts of the Empire. Three new units of the Veterans Guard have recently arrived overseas in various parts of the Empire, in addition to those already despatched, with men chosen proportionately from all the units of the Guard in Canada. New duties have arisen in Canada necessitating the formation of six new companies and enlistment in the Veterans Guard of Canada is for service anywhere in the world and not for the purpose of "home defence" only, as is generally believed. Veterans of every trade and occupation are required, with duties and training planned in the light of physical abilities of the man of fifty.

WEDDING BELLS

GARTON — CLARKE

The marriage of Muriel Mylene Clarke, formerly of Vermilion, to Mr. Orval Garton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Garton of Rivercourse, Alta., took place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of Friday, July 31, in the home at the home of Mrs. G. Cameron, McLaughlin, under an arch of sweet peas and popsies.

The Rev. Mr. Coffin of Paradise Valley officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her uncle Mr. L. Bowser of Islay, looked charming in a floor-length gown of white satin with leg-o-mutton sleeves, tight bodice and full skirt. She wore a three quarter length veil which was held in place by rose buds and carried a spray of American Beauty roses and fern.

Mrs. Bert Frissell of Auburndale, sister to the bride, was matron of honor, wore yellow silk organza and carried a sheaf of salmon pink gladioli.

The little Misses Almera Venance and Enid Lee, dressed in pale green organdie and carrying pink sweet peas acted as flower girls.

Mervin Garton, brother of the groom was best man. Miss Lila Bowser of Islay played the Wedding March and also during the signing of the register.

Mrs. Schalm of Winnipeg, aunt of the bride, wore a navy floral sheer with navy accessories and a corsage of miniature red carnations

Mrs. Garton, mother of the groom, wore a light blue dress with dark blue accessories. Her corsage was pink roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the McLaughlin hall, where fifty-four guests were present. The bride's table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake with pink and white streamers.

Guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Jensen, George Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Frissell and son Eddie from Auburndale, Mrs. Schalm from Winnipeg, Mr. Bowser, Lila Bowser and Christie Clarke from Islay, Mr Earl Bowser from Edmonton and Mrs. Bert Cameron and family from Lloydminster.

The young couple were recipients of many lovely gifts.

Some 200 people gathered to attend a dance held in the McLaughlin hall at which the young couple were presented with a purse of silver.

THORSTEN—KENNEDY

The Auburndale United church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Monday afternoon last week, when Alma Ruth, second daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. J. C. Kennedy, of Auburndale, became the bride of Mr. Lyall Thompson, son of Mrs. E. and the late Mr. Thompson, of Vancouver, B.C.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. G. Sieber of Vermilion, and the church was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers. A bridal arch of summer flowers was also part of the decorative scheme.

Given in marriage by her father, the young bride was handsomely attired in a floor-length gown of white sheer with quilted bodice. Her veil was caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a bridal bouquet of red and pink roses.

Her bridesmaid was Miss Juliet Gipson, gowned in a floor-length frock of heaven blue with turban to match. She also carried a bouquet of pink and red roses.

Mr. Cecil Kennedy, brother of the bride, supported the groom and Mr. Melvin Arthur acted as usher at the church. Miss Mildred Larson, a cousin of the bride, played the wedding music.

After the ceremony a reception to some 30 guests was held at the Brunswick hotel, Vermilion, the bride's table being centred with a four-tier wedding cake, baskets of flowers gracing each side of the cake.

The happy couple left later in the evening for their new home in Vancouver amid showers of confetti and carrying with them the best wishes for a long and happy married life from a very large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Better Jams Made on Sugar Ration

In the minds of housewives doing preserving and making jam these days is the ever present question will the reduced sugar allowance made on preserving and canning keep fruit as well as the quantities of sugar formerly used? The answer to you according to all tests made by the Consumer Section, Dept. of Agriculture is found that jams and jellies served fruit keep just as well as they did with the old cup for cup measurements. They are also better for your health and have a better color and a truer fruit flavor

ISLAND HILL

We regret to learn that Mr. Wm. Telford and Mrs. John Williamson are in the Vermilion hospital. We wish them both a speedy recovery.

Weed Inspector Madill was in this district during the week. It is enough to make dead Scotchmen turn in their graves to hear how weed inspectors condemn the thistle — the national emblem of Scotland.

Almost everyone around here paid a visit to the Fair.

Gardens are looking their best just now. Here is what the poet says:

"A garden is a lovesome thing God wot
Rose pink
Fringed pool
Fern'd grot —
The verriest school
Of peace; and yet the fool
Contends that God is not —
Not God! In gardens when the eve is cool?
Nay but I have a sign;
It's very sure God walks in mine."

A man said to a merchant after paying a debt—"Well, I'm square now but I'll be round again."

Lots of birds are shooting about a second front these days — why not leave military matters to the military. For a change try shooting for the fighting lads to get the 50 bucks a month that privates get in the U. S. army. You will notice that the folks who are shouting most for a second front will never be in the fighting line

Our Hours Of Leisure

Are Usually Much More Enjoyable After Period Of Work

I think it is almost as important that people should make as good use of periods of leisure as of hours of labor The period of leisure is becoming ever more important now that it is better assured than it was a generation ago One of the first essentials to the enjoyment of leisure is that it should have been preceded by a period of work

I am sure there is not one of the folks rich who really enjoys as much as the man who has worked before he enjoyed his leisure. The man who has had no time to spend his money in the way which he will really enjoy is going to work all the better for having the prospect of leisure before him. The best use of leisure is change of occupation, and doing things you really enjoy That is more lasting pleasure than any form of entertainment Viscount Grey.

Solves Problem

How To Meet The Greatly Increased Income Tax

Jaqueline Sprung, 18-year-old Toronto city hall switchboard operator, has the solution to the problem of how to meet the greatly increased income taxes Her answer is a "Victory budget."

Miss Sprung who says she always tries to live on a strict budget has designed one to absorb the increased "take" out of her pay envelope. Her salary is only about $14.40 a week, but her tax for 1942, according to her figures will be $79.80.

Like hundreds of other working girls, Miss Sprung has already given up silk stockings. She wears none at all, not even painted ones, to work.

"It was a little embarrassing with bare legs at first," she said. "But most of the girls are doing it now," and it saves worry about runs as well as money." She saves leg paint for dances and parties.

Here is her victory budget. Salary about $14.40 per week

	Present Budget	Victory Budget
Board	$5.00	$5.00
Lunches	1.25	1.00
Carfare	.75	.75
Clothes	4.00	3.70
Cosmetics	1.10	.90
Hair	.80	1.54
Entertainment	1.00	.76
War stamps	.75	.75
Total	$14.40	$14.40

The increased tax, Miss Sprung met by "steaming a little from entertainment and cosmetics. Not satisfied with this contribution to the war effort, patriotic Miss Sprung finds another quarter from lunches and tacked it on war savings stamps, an item which has been in her budget ever since they were offered for sale.

Clothes, the largest item in Miss Sprung's budget, outside of board, suffered relatively slight injury.

"I think it is our duty to keep presentable," she said. "We can't go around looking frowsy; that wouldn't help keep chins up."

Dream Of Designer

Russian Builder Of Planes Aims At Greater Speed

When Oliver Lyttelton landed in Britain from America he had the distinction of being one of the first persons to cross the Atlantic in the giant Sikorsky flying-boat Excalibur, whose initial flight was planned as long as five years ago.

American Export Air Lines, Inc., have fought valiantly at Washington for a permit to rival the subsidized Clipper service but Pan-American Airways (who run the Clippers) remained victorious. Now under war urgencies, the battle is apparently over

Among other priority passengers in the Excalibur were Lord Moore, personal private secretary to Mr. Lyttelton, and C. B. Morris, Raw Materials Division of the office of the Minister of Production.

The flight is a reminder of the long air history of the designer, Igor Sikorsky. He began building at Riev early this century; had a hard battle In 1913 he built the first airworthy multi-motored plane, and during the last war constructed 73 four-motored bombers for the Russians.

His peace ambitions incline to comfort rather than speed. Transoceanic planes with 50 Staterooms, dining-lounges rooms promenade decks, smoking lounges and a library are his target - London Daily Sketch.

BATTLE FOR BRITAIN

An insinuation of what Canadian farmers are doing to help Britain win the war is the announcement from Ottawa that not less than 600,000,000 pounds of bacon and pork products will be shipped to Britain ista year. More is now being delivered in a single week than in the whole of 1939.

VANCOUVER ISLAND

Vancouver Island, off the British Columbia and Washington coasts, recent target for Japanese shell-fire, was discovered by 18th Century Spanish explorers, but ceded to England under the treaty of Nootka signed in 1790.

CARRIAGE BUSINESS BOOMING

The carriage business is booming in Toronto, according to Louis Back, who said he already has sent 30 already equalled the First Great War years patriotic Miss Sprung finds another quarter from lunches and tacked it on war savings stamps, an item which has been in her budget ever since they were offered for sale.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 9

ABRAHAM'S HOSPITALITY PRAYER

Golden text: The supplication of a righteous man availeth much. James 5:16.

Lesson: Genesis 18.

Devotional reading: John 17:1-11.

Explanations and Comments

The Setting of Our Lesson, Verses 1-8. Abraham Learns God's Purpose in Blessing the People of Sodom, Genesis 18:1-29. In the first verse of our chapter we are told that Jehovah appeared unto Abraham as he sat at the entrance to his tent one morning in Hebron, and in the second verse three men appear suddenly on the scene. Abraham receives the strangers hospitably, has water brought for their feet and a sumptuous repast prepared for them. Then he secrets them on their way toward Sodom, perhaps to the elevated village of Beni Naim, three miles east of Hebron. Dr. Driver suggests a where the Dead Sea, 18 miles away, can be discerned through gaps in the hills, and the mountains of Moab beyond it are distinctly visible. In the distance before them lies Sodom and Gomorrah, and its the eve of their destruction.

Verse 17. The three men we are to understand is Jehovah. In verses 17-19 of our chapter we have a part of the narrative and are explanatory of what follows Jehovah is spoken of as soliloquizing about taking Abraham into his confidence, and the reason is given for his finally deciding to do so. "It was essential," the One Volume Commentary comments, "that God's servant as founder of a great nation should understand God's dealings with affairs, and that whilst slow to anger and of great kindness, he is a righteous God who will by no means clear the guilty."

Abraham Pleads With God for The People to Sodom, Genesis 18:23-33. Abraham's compassion is aroused at the thought of the righteous perishing with the wicked. While one of the celestial visitors continue on their way to Sodom. Abraham remains standing before Jehovah, and begs him to save Sodom if there are fifty righteous ones in the city. "That be far from thee to do after this manner, to slay the righteous with the wicked," he exclaims. The savors of Peter's presumptuous remark to Jesus, "Be it far from thee, Lord," and Abraham's further question, "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?" sounds like a bold challenge of God. But we may also read is as an affirmative sentence, a challenge to his own faith, to an expression of conquest certainty of God's wisdom and justice, a magnificent declaration of unshakeable faith in God.

The Fate of the Cities of the Plain and of Lot and his Family, Genesis 19:1-29. The two angels, while Abraham was learning about the justice and mercy of God, continued on their way to Sodom and went to Lot's home. Here Sodomites of evil character tried to seize them and ill treat them, but were prevented by sudden blindness. The object of the visit was accomplished - the wickedness of the people was proved. Only four righteous people were found, Lot and his wife and two daughters, and they had a hasty escape though Lot's wife perished on the way.

Russian Women Would Help On Front Line If Needed

Anyone who calls women the weaker sex hasn't been in Russia. Rocking the cradle or wielding a pick —it's all the same to the stalwart daughters of the Soviet Union.

British United Press Correspondent M. S. Handler took a trip down the Volga river and across the Caspian. And behind the front he saw Russian women doing everything men do and never letting the men get ahead of them.

The hand that rocks the Russian cradle also takes time out to run a locomotive or to operate an oil barge, or to serve as ship's officers, deck hands or stevedores. Correspondent Handler says a small Russian women labor for six hours straight lifting and carrying huge packing cases with steel at regular periods. Handler says of Russian women:

"Should the day arrive when they are needed on the front line, Russia would suffer no shortage of women eager and capable of marching into the battle as fighting units."

If you keep your candles in the refrigerator, they'll not melt and will burn much longer when lighted. Also, decorative candles may be kept from melting down in warm weather if given a light coat of varnish.

Health

LEAGUE OF CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

SAFEGUARD HEALTH

Excessive hours of work, according to a recent report of the British Industrial Health Research Board, are, excepting for very short periods, utterly wasteful. A maximum workweek of from 60 to 65 hours for men and between 52 and 60 hours for women is recommended for best results during the war. As regards married women, special shifts are recommended so as to safeguard their health, reduce the labour turnover and loss of working time. The provision of the day nursery and other child welfare services for working mothers is a national program in Britain.

A maximum war production program is recommended editorially by the Toronto Star suggests the installation of facilities such as are available to Canadian workers and is increasing number of American workers. These facilities are restaurants where the employee may secure nourishing meals at nominal prices; medical services to prevent the development of serious illnesses, at a price they can afford to pay; rest periods and recreation services to give their minds and nervous systems rest and refreshment.

Essures No Wastage

Britain Is Now Using Wear System For Reclaiming Rubber

Reclaiming rubber is usually a long and costly process, because it must be re-formed into raw material and then re-manufactured into the article required. But a new system has come into operation in Britain whereby scrap tires are utilized for the direct manufacture of certain articles. The process is simple, and ensures no wastage. The tread and undertread are made into a compound for manufacturing such essential goods as rubber soleed heels, baby carriages, tires, hose, blocks, washers and other items invaluable for mechanical purposes. The body or carcass of the tire is made into other articles, by far the most important being repair patches Old tires turned into washers for vehicles, insulating and mounting pads, the latter preventing wear and friction when the body is mounted on the chassis - Brandon Sun.

TEA ECONOMY

Now that tea is on the list of items to be conserved, we can learn from the experience of the people in England. They found out, many months ago, that this is a good recipe: "Before using tea, spread on sheet of brown paper and place in warm not too hot - oven for ten minutes." As a result, they say, the tea will go twice as far and have a better flavor - Brantford Expositor.

"ALL THAT GLITTERS"

— By —

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Tamar slowed her car as she neared the curve in the road where the bridle path joined it. She dropped the coupe just off the path and sat there waiting.

Funny that I have no fear of being alone, after all that I've been through. For a moment she wondered if it were like being inoculated.

The distant sound of galloping hooves reached her ears and she leaned forward to see Christopher Sande coming toward her. He was in the saddle of a beautiful roan with a white star on his forehead, and she wondered where he had borrowed him.

Tamar was hatchetsided and dressed in a blue sweater and skirt. She waved to him as he pulled the roan down to a walk. His tanned face bore high color upon his cheeks, and his brown eyes were clear and steady. They lit with pleasure at seeing her.

"Hello," she called. "I couldn't get a horse, so we'll have to walk or ride in my car."

Christopher slid out of the saddle, and holding the bridle in one hand, walked up to the car and put out the other hand. "It's good to see you, Tamar. We were all worried terribly. There are no words to tell you."

She dismissed the subject with an attempt at light laughter. "Let's not think about it and ruin this wonderful morning."

"Lock your car and I'll tie my horse and let's walk along the path. Look at the foliage on the trees. Isn't it beautiful with the sun glinting on it?" Christopher threw the reins across the accommodating branch of a nearby tree, and Tamar turned the key in the coupe.

They walked down the path together, he stooping occasionally to pull back trespassing vines across it. Here underneath the ancient trees the sun crept through in lacy leaf design. It was so quiet that an occasional red squirrel looked out inquisitively and then scampered up the tree trunk.

To the side of them flowed the Chestatee, now lazily with the golden sparkle of sun upon it, now flashing in a myriad of colors over a small natural waterfall, or blurbing over brown stones imbedded in old fords.

Tamar looked ahead and saw the span of the bridge that connected the two main highways. It seemed, too artificially man-made here in the perspective. She and Sanny had watched the men working on it the Summer it was built, and they'd been too close to danger for the good of her conscience many times.

Happy had always dared to do the impossible, and she must follow lest he think her dull She brushed the thought from her impatiently Why must the remembrance of his clamboring about on the trestles come at this moment?

"How is your work going now at the Cricket Hill?" she asked to start some form of conversation

Very well. We have gone into that vein of the mother lode, and the sanny is very high. We'll soon replace the gold bricks that were stolen, even if they're never recovered."

This was commonplace talk, safe and not dangerous to continue.

"Has there been any clue to the missing gold?"

"None whatever. I think every one was so busy looking for you that the gold was forgotten." He smiled at her and added: "Of course, they've got men on the case. But I doubt if ever they locate it, or even find out who took it. The Major is bringing suit for his incarceration in the city jail."

Tamar looked at him out of steady blue eyes. "The Major is playing with fire to get up before a court to have questions shot at him." She saw that he was startled, and added: "I can't tell you any more than that!"

She said abruptly after a silent moment: "I hear that you were out of town for a few days."

He nodded. "Yes. flew to Boston and stayed a day and a half. I came back as soon as I found out about you and the holdup of the Ammons truck. The Major ——" he broke off. He had started to say the Major was apologetic when he talked with him but reconsidered.

Then he was here night before last. He was thinking

He walked along swinging her arms rhythmically, keeping up with Christopher's stride. "Do you remember the week you spent here? We promised ourselves to go attend one of the colored church meetings?"

"Oh, yes, I do remember. I remember so many things about that week."

Remember my showing you the burial ground for the Shadrach horses?"

"Of course" the expression of his eyes did not change. "I can see the shaft of the famous horse rising from the hot, at a certain hill close to the mine. From the top of the hill, I get a very fine view of all of Shadrach."

Tamar did not dare go back to discuss the shaft of Tahlahneka I. It would be dangerous to say more about it, unless she intended to tell him where the ransom money had been placed. That information had been kept from the reporters. They had only published that the payment had been made.

Tamar wanted to forget about everything that pertained to her recent experience. She wanted to talk him about Selby and discuss things of a more personal nature, yet, she could not bring them to the surface. Selby's votes had vibrated with happiness over the wires this morning. Tamar knew there was only secret that Selby would have to tell her. And it concerned the man by her side.

Suddenly, Tamar was aghast with the thought that had just occurred to her. The pain that had engulfed her heart the evening that Selby and her brother had eaten dinner with them, had disappeared. She remembered how like a leaden thing her body was as she went back to her room hours after they had gone That had been the first she had thought about more than a mild flirtation related between Selby and Christopher

But that night she had be-n sure that Selby was thinking of marriage. Anyone could have seen that she was in love with Christopher. And Tamar knew that she had been able to hide her own feelings toward him.

But this new feeling—it was like a sweet clean breath of fresh air flooding over her, leaving her refreshed and happy. She was not in love with Christopher Sande!

Christopher looked at her in astonishment. The change that had come over her had miraculously washed a haunted look from her eyes, which now shone in friendly gaze upon him. He felt the uneasiness which he had known over this meeting, leave him as suddenly

"Look, Tamar," he said boyishly. "I want you to be the first to know. I rate you as a very close friend. I ——"

She laid her finger across her lips. "Don't spell it, Chris. I'm going calling tonight and the important part of the evening's program is a secret that is going to be confided to me."

They stood still on the path by the river and he grinned down happily at her. "May I ask just one question?"

"Of course. You want to know where I'm going. Dick Sheridan is coming after me for dinner. Selby owns the secret."

"That's perfect." He caught up her hand and she could not forbear to offer congratulations."

"Selby is the dearest girl in the world," she said softly. "And more congratulations continued the next time I see you. I think now that I'd better go back to Shadrach. I know Dad will be jittery every time I leave the house for a while."

As Tamar drove back to the house she was thinking only the most pleasant of thoughts about the approaching marriage of Selby and Christopher. It is the only time that Selby has ever been in love, she told herself. It will be fun to go to Boston to see Selby in her new home. And Christopher was splendid. He would be a wonderful husband for Selby.

But what for the moonlight and the walk along the river bank when she had wished for Sanny and forgotten? She brushed it determinedly aside—just moonlight or the river, that was all. Selby and Christopher hands turned the car into the drive, and she laughed to see the guineas eluding their alarm so defiantly.

A wonderful morning. A marvelous day. Good to be alive and at Shadrach. Good to see Aristotle pretend sudden interest in the raking of the brown leaves on the northern terrace. Pruning to see how small the tree he had wisely gathered

Good to see Madcap's little colt by the bars waiting for some one to come to pet him now that Madcap herself was no longer there

Over the roof of the house a spiral of whitish wood smoke plumed into the air. That meant that some one had logs going in the fireplace in the reception room. Tamar stood rimmed and glowing, drinking in the crisp air. Then she laughed happily and ran to jump over the little brook so that she and Nanny had always used for a hurdle to show off their athletic prowess.

Tamar paused on the wide steps of the verandah Tuning into the drive was the unmistakable motorcycle that had stayed so close to the road few hours. She had thought it seemed good to have a clear drive once more without reporters and cars cluttering it, as she drove in. Now she gave an impatient shrug of her shoulders She wished it were all over "Dad!" she called softly up the stairs. Perhaps he was in the small study. He'd be glad to see her.

"Yes, coming, Tamar" She heard his step It sounded eager. I've news, he called.

She ran toward the landing but he said, "Let's go back down to the library. I'll be down in a minute. I'll bring us in some lunch, and I'll tell you afterwards I think

She heard him coming into his words. "That's the policeman who has recently obtained half interest in the Devil's Fork. I merely

Her father laid a heavy hand on her arm. I know shhh he wants to talk about Selby and discuss things of a more personal nature, yet, she could not bring them to the surface. Salvage Collections

Proceeds To Be Used For Recreational Facilities For Service Men

Proceeds from salvage collection across the dominion will be used henceforth to provide recreation facilities for Canada's fighting men through citizens' committees, it was announced at a press conference in Ottawa.

The announcement was made jointly by Charles LaPerle, national salvage director, and George Pither, director of voluntary and auxiliary services who outlined salvage progress to date and told of the new plan, which will mean that money from salvage will be used in the community where it is raised.

The committee will co-ordinate all voluntary services in their respective communities, including the provision of dry canteens, entertainment, sports facilities, reading rooms, housing committees and other facilities. The change applies only outside military camps, with the dominion government continuing to provide money for entertainment in those establishments.

Formerly, local salvage committees sent money derived from their collection to recognized charities of their own choice. Mr. Pither said the new plan, now operating successfully in Winnipeg, London, Ont., St. Thomas, Toronto, Kingston, Montreal and Fredericton has already served to stimulate salvage collection in those districts.

"V" For Victory

Flyers circling over a farm situated behind the Barton Stone church, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Round, have no doubt been puzzled by the large "V" for victory in the Round barnyard. Sometimes they see it and sometimes they don't for the "V" is alive and moves off when Mrs. Round has fed her handsome flock of White Leghorns. It took time and patience to teach the chickens this formation, but when they discovered they had to form in line for their supper they became less troublesome

Miniature Radio

Small Pocket Receiver Is The Latest Development

In not so very long—it is hoped—you're going to be able to reach into your pocket and pull out a radio.

Engineers have developed a pocket receiver not much larger than the average pocketbook—its inches high and about two inches thick. The tiny radios was described to more than 300 technical experts attending the Institute of Radio Engineers' convention held at Cleveland

The miniature set has a crystal receiver which fits into the ear something like a hard-of-hearing aid. The receiver is connected to the pocket set by a wire, which also contains the antenna for the unit. It gets takes two smaller batteries and tubes the size of peanuts.

The diminutive sets probably will not be marketed until after the war.

Rolling off the assembly line in a Canadian aircraft plant, these twin-engined Bolingbroke bombers are moving swiftly toward a rendezvous with the enemy. Production of bombers, fighting and training aircraft in Canada has grown to impressive proportions since the early days of the war when the Canadian aircraft industry was in a pioneer stage. Canadian workmen are turning out five types of training planes, supplying the vast British Commonwealth Air Training Plan; two types of service planes which are regarded as first class fighting machines, and the Lé Je trainer for preliminary ground instruction.

FRACTIONS and COUPONS

How to buy tea and coffee when the coupons allow only a fraction of a pound is the problem before the consumer these days. Topping each temporary ration card are the coupons marked A B C D E each single coupon being good for one ounce of tea per person per week or four ounces of coffee per person per week. But it is permissable to use all the coupons at once, to buy five weeks supply. The five coupons would be good for five ounces of tea, or for 20 ounces, which is 1¼ pounds of coffee, to last five weeks. Or it could be used to buy one-half pound of coffee and three ounces of tea. Each ounce of either beverage will make at least 15¼ cups.

A family of four adults would save 20 coupons to see them through the five weeks. It would take 16 coupons to buy a pound of tea, and the four coupons left would buy a pound of coffee as well, or could be used to supplement the tea supply if they are poor tea drinkers.

Countrywomen usually have a larger household to provide for, often in addition to a farm helper or two. The farmer's wife is entitled to use the ration cards of her helpers when purchasing tea or coffee.

Purchase of tea and coffee lifts the ban on shipping. The last tea imported from India took four months to reach Canada.

ANNE TEDLOCK-BROOKS

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The meaning of her father's words washed over Tamar in startling nakedness. Louie's plane had crashed! Was Therese with him, and when had it happened? These things she must know before they went to answer the knocking on the door which had by this time become insistent.

Yes, a woman was with him, and it happened yesterday afternoon. It took some time to reach them, because of the density of the pine forest on the mountain where they crashed," her father told her as they hurried downstairs.

Phoebe had got to the door by this time, and Tamar could hear the curtness in her voice for the benefit of the policeman who was just an ordinary human being. Tamar was almost afraid she was saying in that special voice that she used for delivery boys: "All packages and pedlars in de rear."

"I was sent out to give you special escort, Mr. Randolph," the man said. "Can we go at once? Mr. Taylor is waiting at his office."

Tamar's white face was quivering. Therese had been kind to her, and she felt swift horror that she had died on the mountain. Louie was not the man she loved. Perhaps in spite of the tragic way they died, it might have seemed glorious to her. Louie was impetuous, but after all, he would be plainly visible and a perfect target.

Knox Randolph had heard the car and was at the last room on the porch. "Anything wrong, Ranaome?"

"Some one was out here, watching the house," Ranny said.

"Come back in. Don't do anything rash, Ranaome. I'll call the police."

"He'll be far away by that time. May I get your gun and go out looking?"

No. No, I won't have it. Come back in the house." It was the old tone of Tamar's father, telling Tamar and him they couldn't jump off the tool shed roof, or that they couldn't enter the Cricket Hill tunnel. Automatically Ranny obeyed. Tamar had gone immediately to her room and slipped out of the dinner dress she had worn. Pulling a white chenille robe about her, she now stood on the stairs, her face white and fear in her eyes.

"What is it, Dad?" she whispered.

He picked up the telephone "Police" he said into the mouthpiece.

Ranny caught up her hands. They were cold and trembling. He was the first to recognize Louie's car, Ford, Tam. Some one was in the bushes and ran when I turned the flash on him. Throwing the light on them. He must have thought I'd seen him in the beginning, but I'd only just known he was there if he hadn't moved."

Let's ask Phoebe if Billie has been in. I haven't heard any noises about there in the kitchen. Phoebe's been through with her work long ago."

He held her hand while they walked down the long back passage to the kitchen. It was dark, and Ranny turned on the lights. The table was shone in splendor the bottoms of the bottles glistened proudly from beside the old fireplace. The percolator was set out for morning coffee making, and other breakfast preparations were in evidence. But Phoebe and her offspring were absent. Just be he sure Tamar ran up the back stairs and found her in the little room that belonged to Phoebe.

She was sitting bolt upright in bed. "Dat you, Tamah?"

"Yes. Phoebe, has Billie been here tonight?"

"No'm, Tamah. Why, chile? He done gone wit Mist' Todd to B'mingham dis week. Dey gwine to fetch back a batch of blooded mo'es."

She started to get out of bed, her long white gown voluminous in the moonlight "No, don't bother, Ranny saw someone run and Dad's calling the police."

"Won't dey neve' be no mo' peace heah at Shadwell?" Phoebe groaned. "An' don' go to thinkin' that might be Billie. Dat man am skee'ed ob his own shadde, Tamah." She sank back on her pillow.

Tamar ran back down the stairs and joined her father and Ranny. Her black hair lay in loose waves to her shoulders, her face luminous in the firelight. Ranny, stealing a glance, thought he had never seen her looking more beautiful.

"Whoever it was won't be back, we can be sure. I think I might as well go on home." Ranny said, standing up and walking over to pick up his hat.

"Please wait, Ranny. I don't think you ought to go now."

"Whoever it was, is more afraid of us than we are of him," he ventured. "But I'll wait with you until the police come."

The chief was rather sharp with me," Knox Randolph said. He had would to leave some men out here for a few nights, and I asked him to officiate them. I had hoped that it was all over."

I can't imagine any one coming back so soon after a job of this kind, Papa-el," Tamar explained. The same thought struck them all at once; could this person be the accomplice who had removed the stronghox from the shaft in the horses' burial plot?

Ranny said: "I've got an idea. Let me take your gun. I promise to be careful. I've got to go and no one can help me. It will be easier before the police arrive."

Egg Quality

EGGS Need To Be Carefully Handled On The Farm

Saving egg quality not only means saving dollars, but it is helping to meet the heavy demand for eggs from both Britain and Canada. Every egg that is handled in any way from producer to consumer may contribute to the loss of quality if care is not taken. The first place that eggs need to be carefully handled is on the farm. Cleanliness, frequent collection at least three times a day in the hot months of summer and placing them in a cool place as soon as they are collected is important. Dirty eggs are a big item in the loss paid on Grade A eggs for export to Britain.

Losses from dirty eggs are usually the result of dirty nests and houses and allowing the birds to run out of doors into muddy yards. Such eggs mean a loss to the producer of eight to 10 cents a dozen because they are not fresh enough for export.

High quality eggs follow with judicious feeding of a properly balanced ration. Clean nests, pens and yards will facilitate the production of clean eggs. It is best to hold eggs after they have been collected in a wire basket. When thoroughly cooled they should be packed in a standard case with the small end down and marked frequently.

Plates repair from 33 to 96 pounds of rubber for tires, with an additional 24 to 96 pounds for inner tubes.

WARN CYCLISTS OF DANGEROUS RIDING

Warning to boys riding bicycles with apparent disregard for safety and observance has been issued by the police.

In numbers of instances, motorists have complained of youths riding along the highways four and five abreast at times, and making driving hazardous to motorists as well as dangerous to the cyclists themselves.

The police state that these practices, as well as riding passengers on handle bars, must be checked because they are infractions of municipal by-laws.

Motorists also have reported instances of bicycles on the highways at nights without proper rear lights, which again constitute a hazard.

Now that school holidays are on, hundreds of youths are taking to the highways, but it is the duty of parents or guardians to see that they are impressed with the fact that the laws must be observed.

Gasoline rationing and tire conservation regulations also have caused many other persons to renew their cycling activities.

In the circumstances, the volume of bicycle riding is going to increase, making it essential, says the Alberta Motor Association, that proper riding safeguards and the law governing such traffic shall be observed.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

EDMONTON — Declaring that the individual citizen must assume the responsibility of determining what will happen in the days to come, Hon. E. C. Manning declared Monday of this week that there are two battles to be fought in this war. The first is the battle on the fighting front, and the second is the battle on the home front to insure a better standard of living for Canada's fighting men when they return victorious from the war. Mr. Manning was addressing about one thousand government employees who attended the annual Democracy Day picnic. He spoke in favor of such gatherings as he was addressing, declaring that they eased the strain of war, provided people with the opportunities for meeting one another and creating avenues for the exchange of progressive ideas between people.

BUS MILEAGE CUT

According to W. T. Aiken, secretary of the Alberta Highway Traffic Board, recent orders suspending bus mileage in the province will result in a decrease approximating 37%. The average mileage for the province is 4,- 250,000 miles and this will be reduced by 1,590,197 miles. Initial action in this respective movement was started by the Dominion Fuel Controller who ordered minimum reductions of at least 25%. The Alberta Government has consulted and received co-operation from the bus companies, who have voluntarily reduced their mileage and helped eliminate duplication.

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER

His Majesty the King has requested that September 3rd, anniversary of outbreak of war to be observed as a national day of prayer. It is anticipated that Canada will join with other units of the commonwealth in observing this decree

According to Dr. Robert Newton President of the University of Alberta that institution will again give training in war science to students during the forthcoming scholastic year. Some 50 students took part in this program during last year.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By H. G. L. Strange
Director, Research Department, Searle Grain Co., Ltd.

HEAVY WHEAT CROPS OF THE PAST

This is a year of heavy rainfall. Judging by the records of the past this year should see a heavy crop.

Since the year 1896, 44 years, in twelve years the wheat yield for the three prairie provinces combined has averaged over 25 bushels to the acre, all being years with better than normal rainfall.

In only four of these years, however, has each of the three provinces yielded a 25 bushel or better yield during the same year. These years were 1901, 1905, 1911 and 1915. The highest yield ever recorded for the three prairie provinces combined was in '15, with an average of 25.3 bushels to the acre. Next came 1901 with 25.1 and 1905 again with 25.1 bushels. The highest yield to the acre ever recorded by any one province was by Alberta in 1915 with 31.1 bushels to the acre.

1916 and 1922 would probably have been record years had it not been for the rust which took a heavy toll in Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan. Since 1925 when Thatcher was brought into the country—later bred—bred to the use of other rust-resistant wheats—losses from rust have not been serious.

Since 1925 the three provinces combined have not produced an average yield of 20 bushels to the acre, the lowest being 1928 with 19.1 bushels.

Following factors have tended to decrease supply or increase demand:— Definite reductions in wheat acreage are reported from Argentina and Australia.—Restrictions on the distribution of flour have been relaxed in Eire—Cold dry weather still prevails in Argentina with little seeding done as yet—The food situation in Europe shows no improvement.

Following factors have tended to increase supply or decrease demand:— U. S. spring and winter wheat crop is officially estimated at 904 million bushels—Excellent crop conditions in Western Canada — Reports indicate generally favorable weather over Europe—An increase is expected of grain crops in India

William Miller o Edmonton, who won the grand championship for wheat at the Chicago International Exposition in 1941, was the principal prizes with his wheat exhibition at the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede. Mr. Miller sows his wheat on what amounts to a bucklot garden.

FREE SURGICAL TREATMENT FOR CANCER SUFFERERS

A step of far-reaching importance in provincial health was taken this week with the announcement of Hon. Dr. W.W. Cross, minister of health, that the provincial government is now prepared to provide free surgical treatment for cancer sufferers, upon recommendations of the Alberta Health Clinic. At the last session of the legislature an appropriation of thirty thousand dollars was made for this purpose. Directed by Dr. G. H. Malcolmson who is recognized as one of Canada's outstanding cancer specialists free clinics in Calgary and Edmonton have handled eighteen hundred cases since they were opened in 1941. Up to now free diagnosis, where he is at present on holiday. The C.C.F. party has already nominated Elmer E. Roper and the Independent party has named J. F. Lymburn, K.C. as candidate. The Edmonton Liberal Association has also decided to nominate a candidate but no definite action in this regard has yet been taken by the Social Credit forces.

BY-ELECTION

No date has been set for the forthcoming by-election in Edmonton made necessary by the death of D. M. Duggan. It is anticipated that no action will be taken until the return of Premier Aberhart from the coast, where he is at present on holiday. The C.C.F. party has already nominated Elmer E. Roper and the Independent party has named J. F. Lymburn, K.C. as candidate. The Edmonton Liberal Association has also decided to nominate a candidate but no definite action in this regard has yet been taken by the Social Credit forces.

Alberta now has 58 credit unions with assets totalling $195,495.82. It is shown in the report of the credit union activities branch, Department of this total, $145,242.68 is out on loan among members for provident and productive purposes. Total of loans granted since the movement started in Alberta is now $857,300.81. Membership is now 5,425, and there are about 25 new credit unions in process of formation.

ISLAND HILL

The news of Dr. Knoll's death came as a great shock to most people. To his many patients he was a good friend as well as a great physician. He will be greatly missed in Vermilion and district. We sincerely tender Mrs. Knoll and family our deepest sympathy.

"Donald, my boy", said his good Scotch mother, "be frugal, watch your pennies and the pounds (dollars to you) will take care of themselves". Some day customs this prophetic woman, you will go overseas and teach a great people how to ration themselves. And it came to pass. Sugar and tea are rationed. Gosh we could drink no ounce of tea brew in one day. One thing sure, had they given Donald's job to an Irishman he would give a bigger ration of "a." to the long ago we was resided in the British Isles and the English and Irish won the battles and the Scotch men governed us. For example, Lord Tweedsmuir, Donald Gordon, and even MacKenzie King sound Scotch.

Miss Eva Williamson has returned home owing to the illness of her mother.

Two charming members of the C. W.A.C. stationed at Vermilion and who hail from a farm in Manitoba were asked during the Fair if they wished for anything in particular. Their answer was they would like to have a run on horseback. Now we know Ned has some good horses and well, those good ladies could have their wish fulfilled

He had laid up his car and taken to the bike. On his way home to the suburbs he had to make a call and left his bicycle outside the store — Stirling made the purchase he forgot the bike and boarded a bus. On his arrival home his wife, much to his astonishment, reminded him that he had gone away in the morning on a bicycle. He took the next bus for the city and to his great surprise found the machine where he had left it. As a token of appreciation he went into a church to say a prayer and deposited a contribution in the Poor Box. With his heart full of joy and a feeling of gratitude he left the church and found his bicycle gone!

The C.W.L. will hold one of their enjoyable dances in the Island Hill hall on Wednesday, Aug. 19th. Every body welcome — See advert for full particulars.

Armed Forces Of Canada And U.S. To Combine

Ottawa.—Co-operation between the armed forces of Canada and the United States reached a new high with announcement of the formation of a combined special force for offensive warfare.

The announcement came from Washington and was confirmed here by Defence Minister Ralston, and he gave some further details of Canada's share in the force.

The second-in-command is a Canadian—Lt.-Col. J. O. McQueen of Calgary. Col Ralston said various phases of the training of the combined force will be carried out "in the United States and Canada" as well as at the training headquarters in Helena, Mont.

Parachute attacks, marine landings, mountain fighting and desert warfare will all form parts of the training and operational role assigned to the body which will be known as the 1st special service force."

It will be a continental American edition of the commandos of the British army. In selecting the men to make it up, emphasis will be placed on "youth, hardiness and fitness."

The first Canadian troops assigned to the force have already arrived at Helena. While the Canadian contribution will include both officers and men it is understood the force will form one body without any special Canadian or United States wing or section. The force will wear a special uniform, distinct from either that of the Canadian or the United States army, but its design has not been decided yet.

Col. Robert T. Frederick of the United States army will be in command. Col. McQueen, the second-in-command, has just returned from overseas where he was second-in-command of the Calgary Highlanders.

Announcement of the formation of the force comes soon after the decision to form Canadian parachute battalions was disclosed, but there is no special relation between the two. A number of Canadians are going to Fort Benning, Ga., for training in parachute work with the United States army, but none has arrived there yet.

They will return to Canada to serve as instructors and leaders in the formation of wholly Canadian parachute troop units in the Canadian army and in a paratroop training school which will be established here.

Organization of the new combined force from soldiers of two countries marks a new departure in international co-operation. While the forces of Canada and the United States have been co-operating since early in the present war in the defence of this continent, they have co-operated as separate forces and have not merged their identities in a combined body as now is being made.

Canadian and United States troops serve together in Newfoundland, each has its own establishment. Squadrons of the Royal Canadian Air Force and some army units are serving with United States forces in defence of Alaska but while they serve under American command they are in their own units. Units of the Royal Canadian Navy also operate under United States command in certain waters and under British command in other waters but retain their separate identity.

Efficiency and economy in time and effort are seen as advantages to be gained by pooling the special training and other activities of such a force.

It is highly specialized. In the normal course of things it will be used for special jobs, such as striking at an invader who may establish a foothold on this continent or forbidding the spearhead of an invasion of enemy territory.

BAN TIGHTENED

Order Forbids Manufacture Of Electric Toasters, Irons And Fans

Ottawa.—The department of munitions and supply announced the ban on manufacture of electric toasters, electric irons and electric fans after Aug. 15

The order rescinds a previous one limiting output to 80 per cent of 1940 production.

LABOR EXCHANGE

Canada And United States Will Share Harvest Workers

Calgary.—Arrangements have been completed for the free flow across the international border of harvest workers and machinery, under a reciprocal agreement between Canada and U.S., W. Harry Ross, Calgary unemployment and insurance commission manager, announced.

The agreement was worked out in an effort to ease the shortage of farm labor. Under it, harvesting units from U.S. will be allowed to come into Canada accompanied by the owner or lessee and not more than four helpers. No labor may pass over the border, except as part of such harvesting units, Mr. Ross said.

In the same manner Canadian outfits may cross over into the U.S. Crews of the units will be allowed to stay over the border 20 days from the date of application and a truck or tractor or auto is allowed to go with the unit to its destination, but not move from one job to another.

Women's Army Corps Expected To Be Increased

Ottawa. — Some 30,000 Canadian women will be wearing the King's uniform before another year is out if the present rate of expansion of the women's services continues.

This is the announcement that members of the women's division of the Royal Canadian Air Force will go overseas, possibly on the heels of a similar intimation of overseas service for members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps. Before these two women will be sent wherever Canadian fighting men are stationed in large numbers.

The C.W.A.C. now has a strength of about 4,000 and is working to get 7,000 new recruits a month so it will have 30,000 by the end of the year.

The women's division of the air force has about 5,000 girls on strength and its expansion plans call for a total of 15,000 by the end of 1943.

The recent authorized Women's Royal Naval service has not yet taken on any recruits but active preparations are being made for enlisting and training 5,000 women in the first year and a total of 7,000 eventually.

It has not yet been decided how many airwomen will be sent overseas but it is expected the first movement will be small and will consist largely of clerical workers for employment at the overseas headquarters of the R.C.A.F. The women immediately needed overseas are stenographers, telephone operators, filing clerks and perhaps a few drivers.

While requests have come from the army overseas for women and it is the intention to meet them—no decision has yet been made on an overseas movement. The C.W.A.C.'s have proved in most demands for the services of army wives and camps in Canada.

One of the jobs believed awaiting the C.W.A.C. overseas if and when women can be sent, is the operation of a big army laundry.

The work women do is much the same in all three services office work, driving and servicing cars and vehicles washing, cleaning, cooking, waiting on tables and other jobs in which they can release able-bodied men for fighting duties.

WAR SAVINGS

Certificates Now On Sale At Chartered Banks And Post Offices

Ottawa.—War savings certificates in $5, $10 and $25 denominations are on sale over the counters of all chartered bank branches and post offices. For the first time Canadians will be able to put down their money and receive a registered certificate—without having to mail the money or war savings stamps to Ottawa and wait for receipt of a certificate by mail.

Under the new, over-the-counter plan where sales are made for cash, the chartered banks and post offices will give the purchaser his certificate and send the necessary records to Ottawa.

"The new departure does not conflict in any way with, but is in addition to, the system of bank pledges and the payroll savings' plan," the National War Finance committee said in a statement. "These not only continue but will be intensified as major operations of the National War Finance committee in enlisting the savings of the population to help finance Canada's huge share of war tools."

BRITISH PRODUCTION

The Output Of Guns Has Been Greatly Increased

London.—Britain's 62 government ordnance factories are producing 4½ times as many guns as a year ago and twice as many as they were originally intended to turn out, Sir Andrew Duncan, supply minister, told the House of Commons today.

He said that although 60 per cent. of the 30,000 workers now engaged at the plants are women, the output per worker had increased 40 per cent. in the past year.

Opening a parliamentary debate on criticism of government administration in a committee report, the supply minister said the plants had "improved beyond what was reasonably able to expect."

The payment, based on $1 a ton for the 1941 crop, to be split among the growers, is the third subsequent beet payment made since the initial payment of $4 a ton was made last December and brings the total payment on beets delivered last year up to $7.95 a ton.

Two more payments will be made—one in the fall and the other about late December. Total amount paid per sugar beets grown in this region in 1940 was $7.11 a ton.

SPIES IN RUSSIA

Nazis Try Various Ruses To Obtain Information

Moscow.—Commissar of State Security P. Kubatkin asserted the German besiegers of Leningrad have resorted to a wide assortment of ruses, espionage and "Trojan-horse" tactics in their vain efforts to break defence of Russia's northern metropolis.

Writing in the Leningrad Pravda, Kubatkin related how a wounded man in a Russian uniform, picked up in the field and taken to a hospital, tried to get information on supplies from Red army soldiers. He was tried by a court martial as a spy.

The commissar said the Germans also were using peasant garb to try to get behind the Red army lines as refugees, had dropped parachutists in Red army uniforms and had tried to recruit help from classes liquidated by the Soviet government.

Last October, the commissar said, a group of young persons in Leningrad was found to be carrying on counter-revolutionary activities. They were sent to the outskirts of the city and fired on the Soviet defenders. They were the children of Russians punished by the government for counter-revolutionary activities, he said

Take Measures For Security Of The Nation

Saint John, N.B. — Government measures are being fashioned regarding the organization and regulation of Canada's manpower, Labor Minister Mitchell said here in an address to the Canadian club. He did not amplify his statement.

"When I left Ottawa a short time ago," he said, "instruments were being fashioned, having to do with the organization and regulation of the wartime manpower and womanpower of the country. I feel that the average man and woman in this fair land of ours will go to any length to assist the crown in the desperate condition in which we find ourselves today.

He said the government was aware of the implications of the crisis in the war, and in the next two or three months would set in motion measures of "extraordinary" scope to ensure the safety of the state and "boldly strive to offset the menace to civilization now so threatening."

"We are doing things now in our private and public capacity we had never believed possible," he said, "and I am firmly convinced that, given the right leadership the people of Canada and of all the Allied nations will make every possible sacrifice Freedom is like the air we breathe. It is not missed until it grows scarce."

The labor minister stressed the need for more shipping to supply the forces of the United Nations.

"Nothing can or must stand in the way of this supreme necessity at this critical juncture of the fight," he said. "When the final page of this world is completed, it will be written around the ability of this North American continent to produce the means for transporting the tools of war to the distant sections of the earth where they are most needed. It will be the old, plodding, 10 and 12-knot carriers, along with the faster and more modern types of vessels which will afford the final success in this closing chapter."

Referring to the price control policy and stabilization of wages, he said these government measures established Canadians to live much cheaper than during the First Great War and we re safe-guarding old age pensions, workmen's compensation benefits, mothers' allowances and other fixed aids

Allot Lumber For Storage Of Grain In West

Winnipeg.—The prairies will be able to obtain about 80,000 000 feet of lumber for grain storage purposes by the end of the year, it was announced here by the Wheat Board. The lumber will be used to construct storage elevators, it was announced here H. Steinthorson, president of the Western Retail Lumbermen's Association, said

In Ottawa, Trade Minister MacKinnon said every effort is being made to ensure adequate supplies of lumber and nails are available to the prairie farmers for construction of storage facilities

Recently returned from conference at the west coast, where prairie lumbermen and British Columbian manufacturers discussed the grain storage problem with Timber Controller Rosenberry, Mr. Steinthorson and he expected about 60 000,000 feet of lumber would be made available to the prairies from B.C. coastal manufacturers. The remaining 20,- 000 000 feet would come from northern spruce stocks in the northern areas of the prairies.

The prairie delegation had been given assurance about 15 000,000 feet of lumber monthly would be diverted for prairie farm use from B.C. coastal production, upon which heavy demands are already being made by Canada's war effort Britain and U.S., Mr. Steinthorson said. There was a possibility this figure might reach 20,000,000 feet a month.

He went since the Western Retail Lumbermen's Association survey a month ago when it estimated 200 000 000 feet would be needed for grain storage crop prospects had gone higher he said, and as much as 300,000 000 feet may be required.

The estimate had been based on crop prospects of about 800,000,000 bushels of all grains whereas our recent estimate had placed the total grain crop at 1,300,000,000 bushels, Mr Steinthorson said.

THE WAR NEEDS SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING STUDENTS

Financial Aid Available

We are faced with a serious shortage of technically trained men and women to support Canada's war effort. High school students who have just completed their matriculation with good standing in science and mathematics should consider carefully their duty to their country in this emergency. Even one or two years training at the University may equip them for much better service.

The National Selective Service and the Wartime Bureau of Technical Personnel are planning to guide students in engineering, chemistry, physics, and mathematics whether they are preparing themselves for the armed services or for war industries.

During the summer vacation period suitable employment along the line of their training would be found for them and this would also afford an opportunity to earn money towards the cost of their next year at the University.

Students who cannot afford to enter the first year or the University for lack of finances may if their high school record is satisfactory, secure a grant or loan to help them to do so. The Dominion Department of Labor and the Provincial Department of Education have jointly made available a fund out of which some forty of this year's matriculants in Alberta both men and women) may receive help of this kind. Both grants or loans are available to students entering courses in mathematics, physics chemistry or some other branch of engineering a limited number of first year students in Education Household Economics (zoology, Agriculture, B.Sc. Nursing pre-Medicine, and pre-Dentistry may secure grants from other funds). Normally an outright grant would not exceed $100, but it may if necessary be supplemented by a loan up to $200.

A special committee will consider applications for grants or loans. Students applying must satisfy this committee that they could not finance their first year in university course without help. They should have at least B standing in all high school subjects, an average of at least 65% in Grade XII subjects, with honour standing in mathematics and science. Finally they must sign a declaration that they will make their services available to the national war effort. They may be assigned to specific employment whenever they have acquired sufficient training for the occupation for which they are needed. This might be after the completion of about two years at the University or, in other cases, not until graduation.

Inquiries should be addressed to the Registrar, University of Alberta, Edmonton, who will shortly have available a special form of application.

The Registrar also has available for free distribution, on request a "Bulletin of General Information" which tells much of what the new student needs to know about the University.

Buy War Savings Certificates with Silver Wedding Anniversary Gift

OTTAWA—Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley picked the following letter from Gordon Hammond, Keeler, Alta., out of his voluminous mail bag here today as the one he would remember when the task of financing Canada's war effort appeared temporarily an too much of a burden.

"The wife and I were so pleased to get your letter of appreciation for the money sent. Being a Veteran of the last war and too old, and I was in my right eye 12 years ago, I yet felt I wanted to do something to help. I was so sorry I could not keep a little bond sometime back, but I did not throw one bushel of grain last year on account of bruz dried and—so you can understand what a kick we got towards the end of March when we were given a surprise Silver Wedding Anniversary party and a $30 stove collection was handed to us. So we came to the conclusion this was now the best way to make use of this nice present."

AN OLD CANADIAN CUSTOM . . .

When our pioneer grandparents had a big job to do they called in their neighbours. A barn raising brought help from miles around. Skilled barn framers took charge; sides were chosen and competition between teams lent interest to the work. This old Canadian custom was revived when Canada's National War Finance Committee was formed and went into operation. Under the leadership of the National and Provincial Committees—men experienced in the organization and conduct of financial operations—Local Committees were formed in all communities. Co-operation and competition characterized the work. The biggest "raising" in Canada's history got away to a magnificent start.

WE'VE GOT A BIG JOB TO DO NOW

The War goes on. The National War Finance Committee carries on. Some will serve on the committees organized to promote continued sales of Bonds, War Savings Certificates and Stamps. All of us must continue to buy these securities. We must save every dollar, every cent we can—and lend our money to Canada. We must provide the money required to carry on the war —the money required to win the war.

Our fighters must have more ships and tanks and guns and planes. They must have better ships and tanks and guns and planes than the enemy has. We must all work, and save and lend. The safest investments we can find for our savings are Bonds, War Savings Certificates and Stamps—and they will provide money for us to buy things that we will want when the war is ended.

GOVERNMENT BULLETIN ON HOME CANNING

Successful home canning depends on destroying all bacteria, yeasts, and moulds and sealing the product in air tight containers, so that no contamination can take place to cause spoilage. At the same time the natural colour and flavor should be preserved. How this can be done is explained in the revised household bulletin No. 6, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables".

Full information is given on choosing equipment, washing and sterilization of jars, testing jar rings, selection of product, grading or sorting of product, washing and peeling blanching when required, preparation of syrup, packing jars, processing or sterilizing, sealing, cooling, and storing, together with a time table for cooking and canning the various fruits, and a time table for vegetables. Special recipes are also given for tomato juice and tomato soup. The bulletin may be obtained free by writing to the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

OLD GUNS ON MOVE AGAIN

Guns that barked a century ago, along with weapons captured from the Germans in the last war, found a resting place in various parks in the city of Ottawa. There it was hoped they would lie quiescent forever, but fate rules otherwise. More than two score of these sturdy old guns, some weighing more than a ton, have gone the way of less romantic bits of scrap metal—into the electric furnaces at the foundries. There they will be melted down, be made into vital war equipment, and once more as guns or in some other form will move along the battle fronts.

No feeling or sentiment, nothing but a greater need, could keep these relics from making their journey to the melting pots of the foundries. And there is no greater need than the present one of maintaining the flow of 60,000 tons of scrap metal each month in order to maintain essential war production. This is the job the National Salvage Office with the assistance of your committee, and the thousands of others throughout Canada, is undertaking to do.

WOODVALE

It was with very sincere regret that the news of Dr. Knoll's death was received in the district, and his services and kind interest in his many patients will be greatly missed. Quite a number of people from Woodvale attended the funeral in Vermilion to pay their last respects to their doctor friend.

With the holidays visiting is quite popular. Mrs. Dixon, Marie and Walter of Cherry Grove are visiting Mrs. Dixon' parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Friedland and seeing old friends. Hazel Thompson of Tolland is spending a week with her friend Joan Green; Rita Young is staying for a fortnight with her sister Emily Young at the Gentler farm; Margaret Berry of Marwayne was a visitor at the Van Waeseghem Home Kay went back on Sunday with Margaret for a week's holiday at the Berry farm.

Harvey Rankin has joined the army and is taking a course in Diesel Engineering at Camp Sioux also is taking a military study course in Diesel motors, and is stationed at Calgary. Edna and Ida Rankin are there with him.

Our only tirade 1X pupil, Jean Rankin passed her exams with an A (Congrats Jean!)

Mrs. Proctor of Hinsdale is in the Vermilion hospital where she underwent a serious operation but we are glad to say the last time we heard Mrs. Proctor has come home from town is to do the housekeeping while her mother is away and convalescing.

A telegram to the writer announced the marriage of Herb Schaap to Miss Kitty Compeau at Fort Frances on Aug. 8th. His friends around here might be interested in this little bit of news. Herb looked to be one of those perennial bachelors, but finally he took the great step. He had planned to spend his furlough in the Woodvale district but from now on we might not see him so regularly any more. He is at present a gunner on a Dutch merchant ship sailing between the U.S. and Australia.

Dan Ford took five ladies of the Red Cross sewing to a meeting of the B. W.B. club at the home of Mrs. Guy Ford Gibson in Rosewood. His own car being repaired he had acquired a small truck with a peculiar temper and needing gallons of water every few miles and small quantities of gas fed through a funnel to keep in good purring order. However the drive was enjoyed anyway and the views along the old well road are always grand. The meeting was much enjoyed too and it was nice to meet our neighbors from across the coulee and to renew old acquaintance.

Mr. R. Andrew gave a very interesting talk on Friday evening mostly on bee raising, and grass, touching on other farm problems as well. To bad so few were able to come. It is hoped that Mr. Andrew will be back in the district during an evening program from New York.

DELIVER YOUR WASTE MATERIALS TO THE SALVAGE DEPOT

Bees are really very peaceful little creatures but they are apt to get riled when their owner is around . . . so no living with them. One of the local farmers found out a little to his sorrow by hornets, who tried to do so-peak next door to the bees. They got their really infuriated and evidently a feeling of revenge formed and their nests the bees kept right on the war path apparently they are the kind that never forget a grudge. Many of the farm family without bee-vels, curtain veils etc., outdoors was made impossible, as any movement of the head Mr. Mohommadans, the colony had to be destroyed. But very commendably a warm spell and no rain has kept it contentedly in the old hive and many more we can watch these busy insects working without either veil or precaution and look forward to some honey to supplement our sugar ration. So beware of hornets if you want to live in peace with your bees.

Betty Portsmith left a few weeks ago for Toronto where she will be taking a business course and staying with her brother Bernard.

Lieutenant Sailed Corvette Across Atlantic Equipped With Wooden Guns

Mention the name of a certain Newfoundland skipper of a Canadian naval vessel operating near a St. Lawrence port and the chances are you'll hear how, as a lieutenant in the early days of the war, he sailed a corvette across the Atlantic with a telephone pole lashed on the forward deck to resemble a four-inch gun.

Canada was just embarking on her naval expansion program then, and there was no forward gun available to put a sting in the newly-launched corvette. The ship was to proceed to Britain to mount the gun but enemy submarines and surface ships made the journey anything but a pleasant prospect.

So her lieutenant commandeered the telephone pole trimmed it down to size and mounted it on the gun platform. An improvised gun-shield and wooden "shells" in the racks completed the hoax.

The corvette ran the gauntlet in safety and has since been attached to the Royal Navy, but she passed through the danger zone only to run afoul of one of Britain's mightiest fighting officers on the other side.

The perky corvette glided into a river harbor in Britain and moored at the first convenient buoy. Soon afterwards the carrier came sweeping in with her escort, frantically signalling to the pigmy on the quarter to move because that particular spot belonged to the carrier.

The corvette got out of there fast, and dropped anchor further up the river. When both ships were safely moored the carrier blushed a reprimand to the impertinent corvette: "You have caused me a good deal of trouble today."

"Not half as much trouble as you have caused me."

Naval officers who tell the story usually end it there, with no indications of the upshot of the exchange. But the Newfoundland lieutenant is a commander now.

Survival Of Cracks

This Is Not The First Time That War Has Ravaged The Country

The Cracks are going through hell. Yet they were subjected to the same ordeal 800 years ago.

The total war is no new experience to them.

During the Thirty Years' War of 8,000,000 inhabitants of Bohemia only 800,000 Czechs were left; the Czech intellectuals were exterminated or banished to foreign lands; all the cultural life was crushed; the wealthy Czech classes were destroyed. Only the Czech language became solely a language of serfs. Yet they survived in spite of all this, and during the First World War they became the chief instrument of destruction of the proud monarchy of the Hapsburgs, who enslaved them.

They will survive the new ordeal and jointly with other United Nations will destroy the Third Reich of Hitler, as they destroyed Austria-Hungary.—News of Czecho-Slovakia.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

DIVIDENDS FROM HEALTH

"We look after our machines, then why not offer our human machines like some care?" is the question posed in an article "Dividends from Health" in the summer issue of Health Magazine official organ of Health League of Canada, which is devoted to the subject of health for industrial workers.

Chief cause of absenteeism in wartime industry is neither strike nor accidents but sickness, the article states, noting that the average wage earner loses nine and a half days' work a year, "more than nine days through sickness and non-industrial accidents—a half day through occupational accidents." The estimated yearly wage loss in Canada is over 50 million dollars.

In terms of production the value of the work lost is considerably higher. It is shown that the employers' loss is one and a half times the wage lost, though this same illness. The estimated figure in Canada approximates 75 million dollars annually.

Many factories today, using adequate health measures, are reducing by up to 50 per cent. the average yearly loss of nine and a half days' work and wages per worker.

What, exactly, are adequate health measures in industry? Briefly:

To ascertain, by examination, the physical and mental condition of the prospective employee—and by so doing to place men and women in the type of work best suited to them.

To maintain and improve the health and efficiency of those already employed.

To educate the worker in accident prevention and personal hygiene.

To reduce lost time and absenteeism because of illness or injury.

To improve working conditions.

A report issued by the Division of Industrial Hygiene, Department of Pensions and National Health, Ottawa, points out that in Canada "about 80 per cent. of all establishments and 50 per cent of establishments with more than 50 employees have no formal arrangements for the services of a physician; that the services of a nurse are only available in 668 establishments."

Dr. Victor G. Heiser, medical consultant to the National Associations of Manufacturers in the United States reports that the average 500-employee factory saves over $3,000 annually with a program of health conservation. The Industrial Division of the Health League of Canada offers data to show that health precautions in the factory means improved efficiency and reductions in such categories as accidents, occupational disease, absenteeism and labour turnover.

Explanations and Comments

Isaac Refuses to Quarrel, Genesis 26:12-25. In a hundredfold was the yield which Isaac obtained from his sowing, and so great were his flocks and herds and his household that the Philistines envied him. Their envy led them to fill up the wells which Abraham had dug and Isaac was using, and Abimelech, their king, ordered Isaac to leave. Although Isaac was, as his enemies admitted, stronger than they, he would not strive with them. Without a battle he could not support his cattle, and he moved on and erected his camp in the valley of Gerar.

"It used to be a mark of a gentleman that he would instantly resent an encroachment on his rights, and pick a quarrel at a moment's notice. Today that would be a mark of illbreeding. Where education and Christian culture have done their fullest work, there is most patience and gentleness."

Isaac re-dug the wells made by Abraham which the Philistines had stopped up, and called them by the same names given by his father. In digging for a new well in the valley, a well of "springing water" was found. There is an underground stream of water flowing beneath the rock through the valley past Hebron Gerar and Beersheba. The herdsmen of Gerar contended with Isaac's herdsmen, claiming the water as theirs. Recalling trouble that arose because of the contention of Abraham's herdsmen with those of Lot, Isaac called that well Esek, Contention, and dug another well for that they contended also, and Isaac called it Sitnah, Hatred.

Again Isaac moved on and dug another well This one he called Rehoboth, Room, for there his enemies contended not; and Isaac said "For now Jehovah hath made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land." We may be sure that the word expressed the feeling that was in his soul, because he had conquered by yielding rather than by fighting. It seemed to him a broad and generous land, for it held no enemies for him. A well or two would have been poor comfort to him compared with that sense of satisfaction which he had in winning a great victory by altogether peaceful methods.

"Shall we fight about the wells of the world," someone asks, "or shall we build our lives about the conviction that the Lord has made room for us all?"

Alberta Pacific Reduces Both Street and Carlot Spread

The Alberta Pacific Grain Company has reduced by one and one-half (1½c) cents a bushel the spread in the handling of "street" wheat and has also reduced by one (1c) cent a bushel the spread in the handling of "carlot" wheat delivered to the Wheat Board through Alberta Pacific elevators for the 1942 crop year.

This means not only that the "street" spread in Board wheat handled by Alberta Pacific elevators will be eliminated and that farmers who deliver on that basis will receive the carlot price but also that farmers delivering "street" wheat will benefit by one and one-half (1½c) cents a bushel and farmers delivering "carlot" wheat will benefit by one (1c) cent a bushel as compared with last year's charges. The Wheat Board has been advised accordingly.

The well-known reputation of the A.P. for thirty years is that it has never trailed behind anyone in price and grade given for the farmers' grain.

Do your grain business with an A.P. agent.

RAILWAY SALVAGE TOTALS MORE THAN QUARTER MILLION TONS

MONTREAL.—In the United Nations' campaign for scrap metal and other salvageable materials, the Canadian National Railways has assisted to the extent of more than 253,000 tons in 17 months. Salvage collected from the company's property included 197,325 tons of scrap steel and iron, 627 tons of scrap paper, 94 tons of rubber in addition, the C.N.R. used 953 tons of brass and 3,413 tons of iron and steel in its own foundries, and 6,224 tons of scrap brass and 76,421 tons of scrap wheels were exchanged and returned to mills in exchange for other materials.

Railways In Wartime

A DRAMATIC AND ABSORBING chapter of the history of Canada is the growth and development of the railway systems which link together all parts of the Dominion. Many phases of the growth of Canada are closely associated with the building of her railroads. Across the country, settlers followed the extending railway lines. Now communities sprung up, and vast stretches of Canada's fertile farm lands were put under cultivation. The annual transportation by rail of the crop from Western Canada is a gigantic undertaking and an epic in the story of our economic development. In the transporting of raw materials from our mines and forests, and in the distribution of manufactured goods, the wide-spread networks of the Dominion's railways again have proved an indispensible part of our economic expansion. In recent years there has been a trend toward the use of trucks and buses and where highways are suitable, traffic has taken its place beside the railways in the field of transportation

* * * * *

A Heavy Burden It is evident, however, that with the curtailment of rubber and gasoline supplies a heavier burden will fall on the railways. Canada's railroads, linked as they always have been, with her destiny, are playing an important part in the Dominion's wartime organization. It is said that in the war years the railways have carried an unprecedented quantity of freight in addition to moving large numbers of troops with equipment quickly and efficiently. Mr A. A. Gardiner assistant passenger traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways speaking before an Eastern Canadian service club recently, stated that our railways had been prepared at the beginning of the war for the increased demand in their services and that they had lost no time in going on a wartime footing.

* * * * *

Meeting The Situation Improvements in the physical condition of their properties and equipment since the last war, Mr. Gardiner said had made it possible to achieve from an equal expenditure of labor and material, fifty per cent more transportation than during the years 1914 to 1919. He added that co-operation between the different railway systems had increased their ability to handle the difficult tasks they now undertake. In the United States the railroads are said to have carried in the period from January to May of this year as many troops on active service as they carried during the whole time that the country was in the last war. It is believed that the Canadian railways are doing at least as effective work as that. It is the duty of the Canadian public to remember at all times the great service which the railways are rendering to our war effort, and to co-operate fully in their endeavour to give a maximum of essential service at this time

Adults don't drink enough milk and children can scarcely have too much of it. It is the one food we absolutely cannot afford to do without. It is the foundation of an adequate diet, and is nature's aid to health defense. Dr J. F McCreary, in the current issue of Health Magazine states that one ounced procure an adequate quota of vitamin B1 without the habitual use of milk. Adults should form the habit of drinking milk, the energy food.

A SIMPLE RULE

Professor Henry C Sherman, dean of food chemists, says "At least as much should be spent for milk (including cream and cheese if used) as for meat, poultry and fish."

WHY MILK?

Milk is one of the least expensive foods, if you consider its food values. Milk contains:

Proteins:	of highest quality for growth.
Minerals:	calcium, phosphorus, some iron
Vitamins:	A, B* and B2.
Fat and sugar:	for energy.

Milk has no equal among foods as a source of calcium. If the food we eat does not furnish enough calcium, the bones will be drawn upon for the calcium needed in other parts of the body

Bones and teeth need adequate calcium

Milk is easily digested, too.

A cup of milk warm or cold slowly sipped before going to bed, often helps one to relax and go to sleep more quickly

FOR EVERY AGE

Infants Milk with only orange juice and cod liver oil added to the diet, sustains the baby entirely for the first weeks of life

Young children Need three to four glasses daily.

Big boys and girls Require one quart or more daily They need plenty of calcium because they are growing fast.

Adults Need at least three glasses each day either plain or in cooked dishes or cheese

And even older folks need calcium to keep the bones strong Five glasses daily.

FOR CHILDREN

Physicians prefer milk which is not very rich in cream (or fat) for children Children are better off with whole milk than cream on cereal.

It is better for children to learn to drink milk than to have it served them they enjoy it as it is commonly served

BOTTLED, DRIED, EVAPORATED

Milk is used mostly in these forms

Bottled whole milk, skimmed milk, buttermilk.
Dried dry whole milk, dry skimmed milk
Evaporated, evaporated unsweetened milk

COMPARATIVE VALUE

About the same food values will be found in:

1 quart of fluid whole milk
1 pt. of unsweetened evaporated milk
8 ounces of Canadian cheese
4½ lbs. of dried whole milk
3½ ounces dried skimmed milk plus 1½ ounces of butter

BOTH FOOD AND DRINK

One advantage of milk is that it comes ready to serve. But good cooked dishes such as cereals cooked in milk cream soups, puddings and hot breads often contain milk

Free copies of ready reference vitamin chart which explores the sources of vitamins are available on request to the Western Division Health League of Canada 111 Avenue Road Toronto, Ontario Another booklet which tells of pleasant ways to use milk in cooling summer drinks is also free for the asking A postal card will bring you either or both

Stop-Itch Relief

The quick relief from itching of insect bites, heat rash, prickly heat, measles and other externally caused skin irritations. Use Stop-Itch Liquid or Ointment. Regular 50c. Prescription Concentrated, stubborn itching persistent and quickly stops itching. Use only according to directions. At druggists everywhere or direct from Stop-Itch Laboratories, Dept. 5, Regina, Sask.

VERY DIFFERENT NOW

Uninformed persons drank generous amounts of wine after drinking tea when it was first introduced in London. They drank the wine to dispel any possible ill effect of the new beverage.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

"Reveille will be at 5.30 a.m." that's how the order read when the unit of the twenty army with which I attended Summer Camp prepared to return to its armoury and to disband for a week's rest from evening parade, the citizen-soldiers to their jobs in offices, factories, stores, warehouses, railway yards and the dozen other classes of industry from which they came.

Sounds a little tough to the average man who can sleep in until six or seven, doesn't it? But it was not tough by the time we had finished 14 days of training. We had got in our stride as we had taken the daily 6 a.m. reveille, the long hours of training and the occasional night operations which formed part of the intensive programmes undertaken by units of the reserve army in summer camps throughout the Dominion.

Our units were made up of men between the ages of 17 and 19, and 35 and 50. And when I say men, I mean it as regards both ends of the scale. It is a toss-up whether the youths or the middle-aged men showed more zest. There was certainly very little "soldiering."—to us a term that should be banned from our vocabulary. After a heavy route march there was a fair sized "sick-parade" but it was not the "sick-parade" to which old soldiers are accustomed. The line up consisted of men anxious to have their blisters or callouses fixed up so that they would not have to miss drill periods the next day—not of men determined to wangle a "light duty" permit from the medical officer so they could reduce the morrow's responsibilities.

There were many things about this year's Reserve Army camps that amazed the old soldiers who attended them and easily the most outstanding was the enthusiasm with which the new recruits absorbed instruction The only "awkward squads," after the second or third day, were the voluntary ones that assembled under good natured non-commissioned officers during off duty hours. You would find them in the tent lines practising anything from left and right turns by numbers to the "present arms" from the "order" During the morning and afternoon 15 minute rest periods when the only smokes of parade hours were indulged in discussion groups formed round several officers and N.C.O.'s to pry them questions as to the "why" of this, the "how" of that, and the practical appliion of training to warfare. It was, until you thought about it, incredible!

When you thought about it the answer was soon supplied. The men have joined the reserve army, according to their age classifications, for two reasons. The government in order to have time in their preparation for service when they are old enough to volunteer; the middle aged to fit themselves as fast as possible for home defence duties when they become necessary.

The Reserve Army men of today are not "Saturday night soldiers," they are patriotic citizens debarred by age or other limitations from taking their full part in the job of work we have to do. They are preparing in a grim business and they are giving more than half way to meet their instructors in the use of the death dealing engines made available to them for training.

The men in my platoon, by the time they returned from camp had fired more rounds from Bren guns in two weeks than in the last war I had fired from a rifle by the time I had been in the service months They fired with rifles on short and long ranges They received instruction in the handling and stripping of the Bren gun. They learned about hand grenades and they put in strenuous hours practising the right way to deliver these presents to an enemy They had their first lessons in battle-drill They practised stalking through high open and through cover They learned the basic principles of bayonet fighting—but they didn't learn to "grouse."

This brings us to the second reason referred to above There are two things that soldiers grouse about most One is the endless round of unimaginative drill, the other have you guessed? food. There was no room for either of these complaints. Especially the latter, which caused many an old soldier to gasp. For under the new scale of rations N.C.O.'s and men enjoyed and that word is well chosen —such meals as these:

Breakfast: Orange fruit juice, wheat or oat meal porridge, scrambled eggs on toast, bacon, marmalade, toast and coffee;

Lunch: Soup, cold roast beef, two vegetables, apple pie, tea;

Supper: Beef stew, two vegetables, bread pudding with chocolate sauce, bread, butter, tea.

Sometimes there was cake. One meal was baked Virginia ham. On Friday's fish and macaroni and cheese marked the two big meals—and you didn't eat all up in the "dixie" that had held your shaving water earlier.

A temple near Rumming, the capital of Yunnan Province, China, is made entirely of bronze.

Do these rations look heavier to you than the amount you consume at home? They are! But soldiers—even Reserve Army soldiers attending camp for only two weeks—need heavy rations.

Versatile Aircraft

The Hurricane Has Undergone Many Changes Since War Began

Hawker Hurricanes have now got auxiliary fuel tanks under the wings to let them fly further into Europe.

The Hurricane is the most versatile aircraft of the war. In the Battle of Britain it was a fighter with eight machine guns. Then it was given 12 machine guns or, alternatively four 20 millimeter cannon.

It became a bomber with machine guns and two 250-lb bombs. It has taken off from ship decks. It has been catapulted. And it has been adapted for work under a blazing sun and for fighting over Russia's snows.—British Industries Bulletin.

Fortitude I take to be the quiet possession of a noble mind, and an undisturbed doing his duty whatever evils beset, or dangers lie in the way. —John Locke.

Says Mrs. [illegible] Marie Grande-Baie, Quebec: "We've been users of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN for a long time . . . for a good regular ALL-BRAN, besides being a most delicious cereal, really does keep us regular . . . naturally." Why don't you try ALL-BRAN'S "Better Way" to correct the cause if you're troubled by constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet? But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like cathartics. It takes time, but it regularly and drink plenty of water. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's, in two convenient size packages, or ask for the individual serving package at restaurants. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Mrs. Wilson received a cable last week with birthday greetings from her son LAC Norman Wilson who is stationed in Calcutta, India. In a letter received a short time ago from Durban, Africa while en route to India, Norman says that in his opinion India is the most beautiful city he has ever seen. It was winter there but there were lovely palm trees and everything was green. The streets are very wide, bananas, oranges etc. in abundance and very cheap. The people there were friendly and hospitable.

A rather funny incident occurred last week as a result of some fun Norman is report for his military training. It is now nearly two years since he joined up in the air force and he has been to England and now to India.

Ivan McInnes and Melvin May are busy deepening the well on the Wilson place. A shortage of water is here on stock.

Mrs. Meyers of Turner Valley and daughter Marlene are visiting at the Mayhew home for a few weeks.

It is going to be rather disappointing to the boys overseas when we can't send them the newspapers as they surely do like to get old home town paper. The many little news items contained therein close up the boys and alleviate many a case of home sickness.

COMMANDANT C.W.A.C. VERMILION, PROMOTED TO RANK OF CAPTAIN

Lieut. Renee M. Hawels, commandant of the Canadian Army Women's Corps training centre at Vermilion Alberta, has been promoted in the rank of captain according to an announcement made at army headquarters today.

Capt. Hawels organized the Canadian Women's Training Corps at Vancouver in 1939, soon after the outbreak of war, with five members, and when she left that position to take over command of the centre at Vermilion there were eleven detachments with a membership of approximately 1000 throughout the province of British Columbia.

Previous to the war she was a private secretary and lived for some time in England and abroad. She was born in London, and just before the outbreak of war she travelled around the world, and visited the West Indies, Africa, South America, Egypt, Italy, France and Holland.

She joined the C.W.A.C. on September 17th, 1941, and received her first commission. She was later promoted to the rank of sergeant and was commissioned second lieut. in 1941, and lieutenant and in December was promoted to the rank of lieutenant. She has been platoon commander in Vancouver and Victoria and last March was sent to the C.W.A.C. training centre in eastern Canada at St. Anne de Bellevue, Quebec, where she took an administrative course.

Capt. Hawels arrived in Vermilion to take charge of the school on July 8th, 1942.

TURN ABOUT

A group of very solicitous mine owners adopted the platform of the Canadian National Depot in Vancouver recently. They were there to say good bye to their sisters, wives, sweethearts and relatives — 125 riproaring young women of the C.W.A.C. who were leaving for Vermilion for a four days' journey to Ontario. Their entertainment was reversed with a vengeance. The female soldiers of Sybil showed the train and then hung out the line to do some chatting with their friends on the platform. It was the usual recital of a troop train about to depart, but this time it wasn't the women who were left behind.

Activity in the Oil Field

Mr. Walter P. Thorn and Dr. F. F. Hintze, well known geologist from Fort Worth, made a careful inspection of the entire field operations this week. Their optimism assures the future of substantial drilling program which is already under way.

Mr. Thorn, president of Vermilion Consolidated Oils, was particularly pleased over the fact that 255,383 gallons of oil delivered to the C.N.R. during July, made an all-time record.

Mr. Swanson further said that the Vermilion field has the unique distinction of possessing the service and skill of many of Canada's experienced and successful geologists, oil and field production personnel.

FOUR NEW LEASES IN VERMILION FIELD

Four new leases were filed during the past week for parcels of land in the Vermilion oil field the parcel was in 5-5-5 and the three others were taken in 5-4-6. This shows a decided tendency now to extend the field to the north and west of the present prod ucing area.

It is obvious that oil will not be necessary to enforce the reduction in trucks passing over roads because we will be able to repair and maintain roads and this will be because of restrictions in the use of oils for road purposes it was felt that the truck industry would very itself out of business in twelve months through wear and tear on the high ways

SCRAP METAL MUST BE TURNED IN FOR WAR USE

New Ruling from Ottawa—Hoarding Illegal

OTTAWA Aug. 17.—Hoarding Minister F.B. Kilbourn, faced with demands from war industry for vast quantities of scrap metal, has issued a drastic order making it illegal to hoard iron and steel, whether in the form of machinery or scrap, it was announced Monday by the munitions and supply department.

Without a permit, no person except a scrap dealer or scrap consumer may keep possession after Sept. 15 of any scrap metal weighing more than 500 pounds. For purposes of the order scrap metal includes machinery, structural steel or any other article or commodity containing iron or steel if it is not serving "an immediate vital purpose"

The 500 pounds of scrap can be in one piece or in many small pieces. Officials said items of scrap scattered around farmyards across Canada are covered by the order

"Such bits of scrap are among the things we had in mind when the order was passed," a spokesman said. "It doesn't take many pieces either to amount to 500 pounds."

"The time has come when the shortage of steel calls for drastic measures" Mr. Kilbourn said "Nearly 1,500,000 tons of scrap now are needed for ships, guns, tanks, planes and other war supplies It is essential that we obtain that scrap.

"Although the definition (in the order) is broad enough to take in passenger cars and trucks not now in essential use, it is not our intention to order the disposal of such vehicles," he said "We will, however insist on the application of the order to vehicles which are in automobile graveyards."

Yesterday, steel in partly-completed buildings and machinery now in actual operation in non-war plants are covered by the order, but will not at present be affected.

Programme Advertising Scored

The money that goes into what is supposed to be goodwill programme and generally wasted advertising is enormous, comments J. V. McAree in one of his "half-pint" columns in the Toronto Globe and Mail. He adds:

"We were struck by a recent pamphlet issued by the Toronto Better Business Bureau. It says: 'The free-and-easy days are over. Now more than ever before every dollar must count. Whether it is given to a war charity, a mission or a charity to the home front—or whether it is given for advertising in a programme, your book convention book, or in a labour, veteran's civil service, police, military, or other publication of a similar nature, you can aid in our war effort by refusing to be deceived or defrauded. . . . By getting the facts before you give or before you advertise you will not only save a very considerable sum from being wasted, but you will be making available a substantial sum of money for necessary purposes.'

Old Razor Blades

Are Collected In London By The Thousands

I saw at Holborn Viaduct station today men passengers from the business section dumping old razor blades into a box on the platform, to which attention was drawn by a blackboard. No doubt some of the blades had proved too much for their owners' chins only this morning.

Twenty-five thousand blades have been deposited in this box, 5,000 of them last week. In money they are valued at £5, which goes to the R.A.F Benevolent Fund. Their real worth is their value as high-grade steel.

To the average man old blades are the most difficult of "junk" to dispose of, for they are dangerous to leave about casually If every London station copied Holborn Viaduct, the problem would be profitably solved. —London Evening Standard

Massacre Still Goes On

Gestapo Killing Jewish Men, Women And Children In Warsaw

A dispatch to the New York Post says: A summary, the extent of which is not yet known, is going on in the Warsaw ghetto, where Gestapo agents have been slaughtering aged men and women as well as children because they are unfit for hard labor behind the German lines.

Information received by Polish government circles in London disclosed that the Gestapo ordered all Jews to remain indoors one evening, following which raiding parties combed the Ghetto, selected the able-bodied men for labor service and began the slaughter of the remainder.

The program, it was learned, started after Polish police had been withdrawn and replaced by Lithuanian shzhpzbooters, known as Basilik, and by Latvian and Ukrainian auxiliary police.

The Germans had announced a few days earlier that all Jews would be deported from Warsaw to the eastern provinces and two trains, crammed with Jewish men, left ostensibly for the front.

However, a Polish government spokesman said, the deportations were merely a pretext for mass extermination, since the deportees had been ordered to take with them not only their hand baggage but food which could be taken from them before or after their execution in the woods near Warsaw. The official said no deportation would doubtless be executed, this spokesman said.

The spokesman was convinced that the policy of mass execution applied previously to numerous smaller places in Poland had now been extended to Warsaw, with the aim of systematic annihilation of the entire Jewish population.

Explanations and Comments

Jacob's Winter of Grief. Gen. 27: 10-15. Read Genesis 27:1-28:5. Jacob was on his way to Padan-aram, a journey of 500 miles, when the sun went down. Overtaken by darkness, he was unable to find a suitable place, "he came to a hillside near Bethel where he remained all night. A stone answered for a pillow as he lay down to sleep.

The last things his eyes had gazed upon before falling asleep must have been the smooth stones that were so abundantly strewn about him, and in his dream they naturally shaped themselves into a ladder, or flight of stone steps. (In Hebrew and also in Arabic the word translated "ladder" means a "staircase.") On Jacob's dream-ladder the angels of God were ascending and descending, symbolizing the thought that there is communication between God and man. Before this time Jacob knew that God is; here he learned that He is accessible. While he was at home, then his mind was made confused by the favoritism of Rebekah his mother, there was no room in his thoughts for a revelation from God. Alone in the lonely hillside, with no one to help him, God found him susceptible to divine influence. Prayer once often intervenes the way for revelation.

In Jacob's dream Jehovah appeared beside him and spoke words of encouragement to him. Just as the stony landscape where he was lying was woven into his dream, so were the words of his father Isaac's parting blessing: "God Almighty bless thee . . . and give thee the blessing of Abraham that thou mayest inherit the land of thy sojournings, which God gave unto Abraham." In his dream he heard God promise that he should inherit the land, that his descendants should be "as the dust of the earth" in number, and that in him men in them "all the families of the earth should be blessed." And then God added the assurance of his compassionate and guidance "And behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee whithersoever thou goest."

The Impression Made by the Dream. Genesis 28:16, 17. Jacob thought of God as belonging to the Israelites alone, and not to be found beyond the limits of their land, and on awakening he exclaimed in surprise: "Surely Jehovah is in this place, and I knew it not." And then he was terrified and cried (in Moffatt's translation), "What an awesome place! This is the very dwelling of God, a very opening into heaven!"

CAMPS FOR TOTTERS

"If I were a parent, I would be more careful in selecting a camp for my child than I would be in selecting any other group of which he might be a member," states Dr. Mary L. Northway in an article in the current issue of "Health," organ of the Health League of Canada. Dr. Northway makes some suggestions to guide parents in selecting a camp for their children this summer.

"I would read with care the catalogues of many camps"; she warns, "From these I would pick out the ones, not that promised the most for my boy or girl, but those that told me in some detail what the boy's or girl's daily life at the camp was going to be like; who was going to look after him and what was expected of me as a parent in cooperating with the camp. Then I would go to see the directors of the camp and ask them some very detailed questions."

These questions, Dr. Northway goes in detail. She would ask about health in day by day camp living, about the discipline required, whether the child would receive enjoyment through working and living creatively there, who would be responsible for out-of-camp trips, and finally she would ask whether the camp was a member of the Camping Association.

"Parents have entrusted their children to camp directors and seldom has that trust been betrayed," Dr. Northway states. "It is a challenge now to parents to make all camping as good as the best camping, by being interested in the camping movement, by being sympathetically critical of what the camps are trying to do and by working together with the camp directors for the magnificent task of guiding the development of children."

Finally, Dr. Northway concludes: "For it is the children who, by living cooperatively, courageously and creatively with one another, will be able to reconstruct our broken world."

Indicated By Color

Light Honey Has Less Flavor Than The Dark Variety

Color in honey is an indication of flavor—the lighter the color, the less the flavor

Research has shown that darker honey has more mineral content because it contains more minerals, especially iron, copper, and manganese. Among the lighter-colored honeys are those from orchard blossom, maple, basswood, and clover

The darker honeys with their strong, hearty flavor include those from dandelion golden rod, and buckwheat, ranging from lighter amber to dark reddish brown

"ALL THAT GLITTERS"

—By—

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

Ranny went through the kitchen door into the ancient wine cellar, followed its tunnel and hastened through a trapdoor that old black Cirrus had told them of in one of her stories. It had been made especially so that the family and the servants could escape into an orchard, if a surprise raid were made on them during war days.

Tamar and her father followed him to the opening of the tunnel and waited to see his flashlight beam playing along in the darkness until he came to the heavy outer door.

Ranny opened it carefully, afraid that the creak of its hinges would give away his presence. For a strange moment he thought this might be one of Tamar's and his childhood adventures but instantly the danger. The barberry bushes had grown so closely over the door that he had to push them aside to crawl out.

If any one had been watching the house they had not seen any light from an opening door. Ranny crawled quietly around the hedge into the drive leading past the stables. Keeping well under cover of the trunks of the big trees, he moved quietly. He was counting on finishing his search before the police sirens split the quiet of the evening

The moon shone dimly through the clouds, and there in the horses' burial plot rose the white shaft of the famous racer Whitebirch I.

A shabby figure stooped low above the slight mound. A man was fumbling about in the hollow of the shaft. He gave a satisfied grunt and rose.

Ranny leaped upon him, knocking him flat

"If you move I'll shoot," he said.

Ranny's hands went swiftly over the prostrate man's pockets. He took out a gun He turned the man over, so that his flash could play upon his face

"Fetten!"

"I ain't done nothin', Mr Todd Honest I ain't!

"Get up! What were you doing there at the monument?

"N nothin'." In the glare of the flashlight Fetten's face showed a sickening, greenish cast, and his voice shook.

"I'll shoot you like a dog, Fetten, if you don't speak up." Strange words for Ranny, who had never yet wanted to kill even a mouse He pushed the gun into Fetten's ribs

"Don't!"

"You took the ransom money out of there didn't you?"

"I—no! I don't know nothin' about no money Honest Mr Todd."

Now look here, Fetten. There's somebody in this besides you. If you tell the truth, you won't be punished as much as if you lie. You know that, don't you? The police are up there at the house. If they take you into town and men know you helped in kidnapping Miss Randolph, they'll take you away from the law and have you by the neck—till you're dead!" His voice as tense and deep brought a shiver to Fetten.

"I didn't have 'nothin' to do with Miss Randolph. I don't know nothin' about it," he cried. "All I did was to tell the Major where a good hidin' place for a small box would be that nobody'd ever know. I told him about this place Then night before last I got word to come and get the box and keep it at my place until it was called for"

"Start to the house," Ranny commanded, turning them in the direction. At last he saw into the circle of light from the living-room window, a siren sounded, and in another moment police were spilling out of the car.

"The man should be handcuffed," Ranny called, turning Fetten over to them. "Will one of you come with me?"

Ranny retraced his steps back to the shaft in the burial plot. The patrolman who followed him stood by while Ranny put his hand into the hollow. It was empty. He exclaimed suddenly as he stepped into soft soil. Some one had been digging around the base of the shaft. It was in two parts, a ' together the men heaved at the rectangular base. It moved aside easily.

Ranny held his flashlight as the police man pushed aside the loose top soil. "I know what it is," Ranny said grimly. "The gold ingots!"

When Ranny reached the house he was out of breath The mystery of the gold ingots had been cleared up, he realized. And Fetten had been the link between Louie and the payment of the ransom. Fetten had lied about telling Towns where to have the ransom money place. He had worked hand-in-hand with Louie on that point. He might have told the Major where to have the gold hidden after the plane had gone without it.

The Major must have been frantic to find that his plans about the plane had gone astray

Fetten had been a fool, all along

Fetten broke down in front of Tamar. He said: "Member that day I asked you 'I not go back over the Cricket Hill road! I knowed they's goin' to take the gold. Honest, I didn't know how it'd turn out."

Tamar looked at him pityingly Why had they used any one so ignorant as Fetten? Perhaps they considered that his very simpleness that he would not be able to figure out anything

She heard Ranny at the door and drew to meet him. "Ranny?"

He stood there in the light of the old chandelier grinning at her. "I hated to dig it up without you, Tam. I found the treasure"

"What do you mean?" she asked breathlessly. "Not . . . ?"

"Yep! Real treasure". He whispered into her ear. "The gold ingots Better than any pirate buried on any deserted island."

Tamar touched his hand. There was blood on it where the stinging vines of the overhanging bushes at the tunnel door had torn at them His long fingers were covered with grime

The next morning Tamar slept late When she did awaken she felt that she would never like to stir out of the comfort of home again. She stretched luxuriously on her bed. The incidents of last night returned with a rush. She hurried to find out what this morning's investigation would bring to light. She wanted to-morrow to be a fresh day without anything to blot out its happiness.

The telephone rang and Tamar picked it up reluctantly. Her face brightened when she heard Relby's voice. Relby had learned last night of her trip into Atlanta to identify Louie and Theron. She wanted to bring new thoughts and plans into Tamar's mind, so that the last few days would lose their hurt.

"Tamar, I'm sending Dick for you right now. I have permission from your father. You're going to come and stay a few days with me. I need you so terribly. I want you to help me with some plans," her voice trembled in. He engrossed. "Get Phoebe to pack while you eat breakfast, 'cause Dick's already on his way."

"But Relby! I shouldn't leave just when Dad needs me. Oh I'd love to come all right, but—"

"You're coming, Tamar," she said masterfully. "If they need you for anything they'll know where you are. I'm not going to let you sit at home and brood. You need me and I need you. Put on your bonnet and dash!" She hung up quickly so there could be no further argument.

Tamar was nearly tempted to go to Pinecrest. It would be fun to share Relby's secret and her plans. It would be nice to escape all of the worry of today's investigations, but she felt that it wasn't exactly fair to slip away and leave her father to go through it alone.

Phoebe's shuffling step was heard at the door and her light tap sounded. "Miss Phoebe" Tamar called up on the edge of her bed and stretched her arms high above her head.

"Chile, y' breffust am waitin'. All but yo' toast. Antoinette am bringin' dat. Den I'll pack yo' things whilst I pack yo bags." She marched firmly toward the closet.

"I'm not going, Phoebe. No you might as well get my place with Dad's in the breakfast room."

"Dat man been gone so long ago dat he mebbe tracks back to see if you-all's paints by dis time," Phoebe grinned at her. "He say yo' musn't go nowhere. He say you git to Pinecrest spontan'sly. He done tol' Mist' Dick to drag yo' by de hai' on yo' head if yo' objects."

Tamar laughed "Put one over on me?" She sighed comfortably. "I'll get up and dress, Phoebe Ask Aunt Cindy to put my black costume suit out with my shoes." She pulled off her pajama jacket as Phoebe left. Then she turned on the shower, testing its temperature

"Hallalujah! Ol' times a comin' back!" Phoebe's big eyes closed a moment in thankfulness. "Look lak things goin' be okey-dokey, Tamah, honey." She closed the shower door affectionately and eyed them critically. She slipped it em back into their celluloid envelopes and carefully placed them in the big case "Miss Relby boun' to hab a party up dere"

Phoebe opened the chest and took out a pile of satin lingerie Soft peach colored silks, lovely lace and sheer nainsook. She put a black hand on them caressingly. No matter dah mah baby's sof' cheek," she said softly. "Dat's pretty stuff, honey lamb dat. Now you bettah skin be down dem stai's fo de lesses grass ef you ebah wan' to see yo' ma' ag'in."

Phoebe looked at her over the rim of the old chandelier grinning at her. "I hated to dig it up without you, Tam. I found the treasure"

"What do you mean?" she asked breathlessly. "Not . . . ?"

"Yep! Real treasure". He whispered into her ear. "The gold ingots Better than any pirate buried on any deserted island."

Japs Would Not Allow Washington Columnist To Go To China

Leonard Lyons, in New York Post, says Joe Alsop, the Washington columnist who was captured in Hong Kong, is one of the American sent home, after the Japanese-American exchange of interned civilians Alsop, who is related to the President, had resigned his commission in the U.S. Navy to work for the Chinese government in Chungking. He, of course, expressed great delight at being liberated, but protested against being sent back to America. He wanted the Japs to set him free at the point nearest to his place of capture, the place to which he will return in any event China

How To Join The Magic Circle

Now I've got your attention". One way to get distinction is to deserve it. I say that because you always read about scientists

So of all the pastimes and hobbies I could suggest, I'm going to plump right for the one that I feel I have the right to talk about, that's the pastime of amateur magic

So that from the very start you can be sure that I'm not going to suggest anything that I haven't tried myself. Magic is one of the most fascinating hobbies in the world, and it's one that you can take up at any age. Look at your grandfather there sitting in that armchair. Look at your father there, reading his paper. Look at your brother there, playing with his train set. Look at your sister there, playing with her dolls. Look at your self, sitting there, reading this article.

You see I've got all the bases covered in this way, and you know as well as I do that people think you've got a real interest in them if you're interested in their hobbies.

Now I'm not suggesting that you should take up magic as a hobby because I think that you're interested in it already. I'm suggesting it because I know that you're not interested in it already, and because I want you to be interested in it

CAR STOLEN AND THEN RECOVERED SAME DAY

Sometime during the small hours of Friday morning last week thieves broke into Vermilion Motors garage and stole a 1939 model Mercury car and $15 in cash from the till.

The car belonged to Sgt. Major Robert Nixon at present posted at the C.W.A.C. training centre here and had been serviced the night before for a trip as Mr Nixon had recently been granted a furlough, his first in 18 months. However the theft only delayed his departure one day as the car was recovered ten miles this side of Lloydminster Friday afternoon, it having been driven into a farmer's yard and left there due to a flat tire. Apparently when the thieves went to change the tire they found they had no spare as this had been taken from its compartment to be serviced and was still in the Vermilion garage.

ISLAY

Bill Gilles and Harold McClelland were in the city for several days and returned the first part of last week. Harold has enlisted in the R.C.A.F. as a pilot and will report for duty the later part of October as will be here for the harvest.

Mrs. Jim McLelland went to Edmonton on Monday and will spend several days there.

Miss Brown of Vermilion will be the new teacher for Trimbleville school.

Mrs. Jim Smith and two children of Kinsway and the former's sister Mrs. Jim McMaster were visitors at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Bell on Friday. They attended the lecture and slides held in the church that evening and renewed acquaintances with many old friends who were very pleased to see them.

The lectures and lantern slides held in the church on Friday night were very well attended and much enjoyed. Rev. Rodgers of Lloydminster who has visited Jack Miner at his home gave the lecture in a most interesting manner and the evening was an enjoyable and educational one.

Mrs. White is holidaying in and around Islay. He now makes his home in B.C. but is enjoying seeing his old friends again.

Dr Sweet and Norman Mercier spent a few days holidaying at Long Lake during the past week. The fish were biting fine.

THANKS THE STANDARD A FINE PUBLICATION —

In these days when so much in the way of community service is taken for granted, it is rather refreshing and decidedly heartening to have efforts in any line recognized. This recognition is all the more appreciated when it comes from such a source as Mr. R. J. Wiggins, Edmonton manager of the National Grain Company. In a letter to their local grain buyer Mr. C. C. Smith, Mr. Wiggins writes: "When you have an opportunity, we wish you would tell the Editor of your paper that in our opinion this is one of the finest country newspapers we have seen in many a long day and he is to be congratulated on turning out such a fine publication."

Maximum Charge Trucking Grain

Truckers moving grain for farmers will charge the prices established in the basic period last fall, the Warehouse Prices and Trade Board announces. Such prices will apply as the maximum for this season also, owing to a very limited amount of new equipment available, farmers will have to use whatever trucks they can to transport grain to the elevators. New equipment is only obtainable through special permit from the Motor Vehicles Controller, who must be satisfied that it is to be used only for essential purposes, and that satisfactory used equipment is not otherwise available.

Even an hour's delay in starting the cooling of milk after milking means a definite loss of keeping quality.

BLAND BILL

It is with sincere regret we chronicle the death of Mrs. John Williamson. We extend to her husband and two daughters who have lost a faithful life partner and loving mother our deepest sympathy.

One of the most likable lads, both to farmers and townspeople alike, we mean Jack Wright, has apparently had as good success in the army as he did at our local baseball and hockey fracases. Jack was always a good sport and we wish him every success.

The paper hanger is not the only one who succeeded in getting himself head or his nation. Nearer home a farm boy with ambition deliberately sat down to learn short hand and typing and procured a job taking dictation from the officers who were running the army of his country. A few years later he led a group of fellow sergeants in revolt, took over the army and made himself dictator of his country. The man's name is President Batista of Cuba. As a pair of radio stars say, "It is a wonderful world."

Picture the worries and insecurity of an Editor "I can't think of a headline for the front page of the after noon edition, 'Chief', said young Mr Snipe in worried tones. "There's really no news worth a screamer" "No news. Nonsense. Didn't I see an ambulance going through the streets an hour ago what was that" "A Navy man cut his hand trying to open a bottle of port wine." "There's your story, here's your headline — Man-O-War injured while trying to get into port"

An incident related by a gallant lad serving overseas At a particularly hard clap of thunder a lad walking along a London street involuntarily and visibly started. "It's all right lady", said a passing urchin "It ain't Hitler it's Gawd"

Income Tax is Fair to All

In the fourth year of war, Canada will need almost four billion dollars. This is the equivalent of nearly $370 from every man, woman and child in the country.

Even with the highest income tax in history, 52% only of the money Canada needs will be raised by taxation. The rest will have to be borrowed by means of War Savings Stamps, Certificates and Victory Bonds.

Starting with the first pay period in September representing September earnings only, your employer is required by law to deduct your income tax from your wages or salary, and send it promptly to the Government. Everybody will pay his share as he goes along.

It's going to be tough . . . but not too tough! Here are some good features:

1. You will pay as you earn, so that you will not be faced with a large lump sum payment next year.
2. The National Defence Tax already declared during the first 8 months of this year has been taken into account in the Table of Tax Deductions.
3. Though the income tax rates show a sharp increase over last year, a large portion of this increase is actually savings, to be paid back to you with interest after the war.
4. The money you are paying for life insurance premiums, annuities, principal repayments on your home, or into a pension fund may be deducted (up to a certain maximum) from the savings portion of your income tax. In many cases this may be sufficient to make payment of the savings portion of the tax unnecessary.

Unless you are single, without dependents, and not making payments of the types mentioned in paragraph 4 above, you should file Form TD-1 with your employer. Otherwise, you may not be allowed the credits to which you are entitled. DO NOT DELAY. File Form TD-1 with your employer at once so that you may get the full allowances from the start.

Employers and Post Offices have been requested to display in a prominent place the official Table of Tax Deductions.

Forms TD-1 may be secured from your employer, Post Offices, or local Income Tax offices.

Arrange for Grain Storage Now

There are prospects for an unprecedented bumper crop in Western Canada in 1942. Again this year storage space is public grain elevators is limited and initial delivery quota allotments are small Farmers are advised, therefore, to provide for storage space on the farm now

Owing to the fact that lumber is scarce, the construction of permanent granaries will not be possible in most cases Success in storing the crop, therefore, will depend to a large extent upon the ability of farmers to devise suitable temporary or semi-permanent storage.

The Alberta Department of Agriculture, Circular No.34, "Suggestions for Storing Grain Crops on the Farm" lists a number of methods by which grain might be stored temporarily. A copy of this circular may be obtained on application to Agricultural Extension Service, Department of Agriculture.

Canadians Are Warned

COMMISSIONER S. T. WOOD of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, recently issued a statement, warning Canadians against the spreading of rumors in wartime. We have been constantly reminded of this ever since the outbreak of war, yet it seems that too much cannot be said of the evils which may result from idle talk and lack of consideration by people in these times. Hitler has waged a "war of nerves" as part of his evil strategy and no small share of his success in the past three years has been due to his ability to cause uncertainty and distrust among the people in the lands he sought to conquer. When we listen in, or repeat, a story that belittles in any way our war effort, or our faith in our cause, we should consider how well pleased the Axis powers would be, to see those words of doubt so low among us.

* * * *

A Total War Effort

In a war effort as large as ours mistakes may occasionally be made. With such a huge task to be organized and carried out by a democracy, as the British Empire has had in this war, there are bound to be some such situations in strategy. Yet from the knowledge that mistakes are inevitable in a modern war effort, or from a realization that not fighting starts the machine gun stories travel among those who may misunderstand, and bring serious harm to our people, we have always begun in England and in Canada to say that we are not fighting a perfect war. We are fighting a war in which we have made many mistakes, and will make more. But we are fighting it right and to the armed forces alone, but to every man, woman and child. It is indeed a total war. As are the Canadian people at home prepared and fought the horrors of modern bombing. There have been no effective air attacks on Canada, and no organized propaganda or underground movement. We have had a number of pinpoint bombings, but these have been on a scale so small as to be negligible in proportion to the enormous damage and devastation with which Europe and the whole world is burdened. Let us avoid adding evil rumor and doing our part to keep it minimized.

Value Of Unity

In England the Ministry of Information has recently released a motion picture dealing with this subject. The title of the picture is The Next of Kin Have Been Notified. And it tells in vivid and realistic terms the tragedy and the loss of many lives as a thing quite needless and therefore all the more regrettable. With our Allies we belong to a group known as the "United Nations." The fact of unity of purpose and effort, and the one drive home it means are the vast importance of the world united. The war will be long and hard but there is no doubt that with the great resources of the United Nations in all parts of the world, and the spiritual issues for which we fight the United Nations will in the end triumph. Let no one in Canada doubt that and let no one ever repeat any word that may be used to belittle how tremendously we have served the Canadian people and the admiration should be heeded by all

Let's get down to cases. Forget all about proteins and carbohydrates and starches and vitamins. Being well-nourished is a habit which is by no means confined to the well-to-do. The vitamin chart issued free by the Health League of Canada, Western Division, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto —Have you written for your copy?— says you can secure the essentials by eating one serving each of tomato, potatoes, green-leaf or yellow vegetable, oatmeal porridge or whole wheat cereal, one egg, six ounces of real whole wheat bread, one glass of tomato, orange or grapefruit juice, and three glasses of milk. Simple isn't it? And economical!

Hence a week's adequate meals, at the least possible cost. And the first week is NOT the hardest. It's easy:

DAY	BREAKFAST	LUNCH OR SUPPER	DINNER
Sunday	Tomato Juice Rolled Oats with Wheat Germ Toast, Butter, Marmalade Coffee Cocoa	Peanut Butter Sandwiches Carrot Strips Stewed Orange Gingerbread Cocoa	Rolled Pot Roast Of Beef and Gravy Boiled Potatoes Mashed Turnips Buttercooch Pie Tea, Milk
Monday	Tomato Juice Rolled Oats with Wheat Germ Toast, Butter Jam Coffee, Cocoa	Cream of Corn Soup Real whole wheat bread and Butter Cabbage and Carrot Salad Canned Prune Whip	Cold Pot Roast Pan Fried Potatoes Buttered Beets Gingerbread Brown Sugar Sauce Tea and Milk

Saturday	Tomato Juice Rolled Oats with Wheat Germ Toast, Butter Marmalade Coffee Cocoa	Poached Eggs on Toast Spinach Chocolate Bread Pudding Tea and Milk	Beans with Tomato Sauce Carrot Strips Canned Peaches Toast and Butter Tea, Milk

Note Real whole wheat bread to be served at each meal. For the diet to be adequate adults should drink milk for lunch or supper. Cod liver oil is necessary to supply sufficient vitamins A and D

After you have lived on this diet for a week, write a 500-word essay describing either the economies you have achieved or the benefits you have derived. The Health League of Canada will award a ten dollar ($10.00) prize to the writer of the best essay.

INDUSTRY

What men want is not talent it is purpose, in other words, not the power to achieve, but the will to achieve. Bulwer-Lytton

The darkest hour in the history of any young man is when he sits down to study how to get money without honestly earning it. Horace Greeley

Application is the price to be paid for mental acquisition. To have the harvest we must sow the seed.—Gamaliel Bailey

When a young man vainly boasted of an ancestor, "for I have conversed with many wise men," Epictetus made answer, "And I with many rich men, but I can not chat." The richest blessings are obtained by labor.—Mary Baker Eddy.

A man who gives his children habits of industry provides for them better than by giving them a fortune. —Whately.

Industry hath annexed thereto the sacred smile and the richest rewards. Barrow

ABC BETTER SPELLERS

Whenever we hear a plea for the further simplification of English spelling, says The Argonaut, we cannot help wondering whether the inability of most Americans to spell correctly is not largely due to the complication that American is already obtained. We observe that Englishmen, where the process has not advanced so materially, have far less difficulty in spelling than their American cousins

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Yesterday on the street I met a tall, broad-shouldered man in civilian clothes. His face seemed familiar. He walked with his shoulders back and his head up. He smiled at me and, automatically, since I like smiles, I returned the smile. Then I walked on pausing slightly as to why the stranger had smiled.

Suddenly it struck me. He was no stranger! He was the Company Sergeant-Major! For two weeks we had been working together, saluting each other when the occasion arose and comparing notes as to the condition of this recruit's feet, that one's appalling habit of drinking ice cold tea on parade and telling tales instead of lining up for his meals like a soldier.

But it emphasized two things the difference wrought in a man by the clothes he wears; and the thin veneer that separates soldier from civilian. It is a paper-thin veneer, and there is no thin. Because it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that a substantial number of civilians will be soldiers before the war is over.

It will also be true that the Reserve Army of today is very different from the Militia of the "between-war" years. It is not to be. It must be. It must have the support of every man able to meet the physical requirements.

Look at what a reserve army has done for Britain. Look at what our Reserve Army must do for us.

It will make demands—heavy demands—upon our spare time. It will call for two or three evenings a week for drill, training or special instruction. It will call for ten Sundays. It will call for two weeks in camp every year. The whole totalling fifty-five days of training out of 365.

And that, actually, is considerably less time than the average citizen wastes on dancing, movies, bad games, hockey-matches and golf.

A mighty low insurance premium to pay, isn't it?

Not so long ago a man said to me quite seriously, "You people have no right to put alarming pieces in the paper about street-fighting in Halifax or Quebec or Montreal or Vancouver. That's alarmist stuff it lowers morale."

It made me boil. He has a "C" classification for his car. He squawks about his high income tax on earnings that are much greater than before the war and he has time and energy available for golf.

But he couldn't, or wouldn't see the point when I suggested to him that if every one in Russia had felt the same way about it Nazis would have been in Moscow a year ago?

We've really got in put our backs into this war. Knitting a few socks or sweaters, or sending cigarettes overseas, or buying war savings regularly isn't enough. It has to be an all out effort!

In Hong Kong young Canadians died. In England thousands of young Canadians are champing at the bit while they train for the job they volunteered to do.

If it fails to us to defend the land they plan to come back to are we going to fail because the movies or the golf-links were more important?

Even in the face of daily stories of repeated reverses on many fronts there still exist too many people who look upon the war as something that is going on "away over there". Do they think "it can't happen here"?

For nearly three years we have been at war now, and in all that time they haven't stepped on British soil," says your specialist in rose-colored glasses. He overlooks Hong Kong and Singapore! He doesn't want to take a ruler in his hand and compare the distance between Japan and Malaya with the distance between Norway and Nova Scotia.

Try it yourself sappilingly close, isn't it? That's why the members of the Individual Citizen's Army must play our part whether that part be volunteering for Active Service, enlisting in the Reserve Army or just being good soldiers behind the men behind the guns.

Trained or not, if an invader set his foot upon Canadian soil all of us men, women and children would set out to do what we could—there's no doubt of that.

Even the man who illegally increases rents, the shopkeeper who raises his prices above the ceiling, the super-hoarder, the gambler should —even these would take up arms to defend their homes.

Why, then, one is bound to wonder, must it be necessary for us to set up a Wartime Prices and Trade Board? What is it that makes war so remote that people like that must be brought into the courts every day to answer to charges of impeding the war effort?

The most disheartening thought about it is that these offenders against regulations set up to preserve our economic structure are not only illiterate small traders they include big corporations.

Against them, and they are invaders of Canada don't forget, we need the private soldiers of the Individual Citizen's Army whose duty it is—for their own self-preservation—to send word of infractions of the price regulations to the nearest office of either the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Inflation is infiltration—we must be on our guard!

Ottawa Moves To Cut Down Train Travel

Ottawa.—Munitions Minister Howe has announced elimination of certain reduced fares on Canada's railroads, and warned that unnecessary civilian travel is limited on a voluntary basis "further restrictions may become necessary."

Effective at midnight, Aug. 31, the following are prohibited:

1. Reduced fares of trips between eastern and western Canada;

2 Reduced fares between the prairies and the Pacific coast;

3. Special fares for convention groups.

"After Aug. 31, all such traffic will be carried at ordinary fares," said Mr. Howe, who issued his statement as acting minister of transport.

The new order does not affect in any way train travel at reduced rates by members of the armed forces.

In addition to banning reduced fares on trips between eastern and western Canada and the prairies and the coast, the ban also applies to through trips from eastern Canada to the west coast.

Official spokesmen said there is no intention to disallow reduced fare tickets sold before Aug. 31, with round-trip provisions good for some length of time after that date.

There was no indication in the statement as to what "further restrictions" might be necessary, unless there is voluntary curtailment of unnecessary civilian travel.

Mr. Howe's statement said the elimination of reduced fares was taken to conserve steel, oil, coal, and other vital materials, and to assure adequate transportation facilities for the movement of munitions, other war supplies and the armed forces on duty

"Civilian travel is on the increase," said Mr Howe.

"The traffic now is so heavy that unless voluntary curtailment of conventions and other unnecessary travel proves a sufficient answer, further restrictions may become necessary, so that the war program may not be hindered."

Imposition of the new order was delayed until Aug 31 to avoid inconvenience not only to railways but also to private individuals and convention groups who have planned trips far in advance, spokesmen said.

RAIDERS BUSY

Surface And Undersea Boats Attacking Shipping In South Atlantic

London.—A large-scale offensive by German surface and submarine raiders against the heavy and increasingly important Allied merchant traffic in the south Atlantic has been predicted by informed British naval sources.

Recent reports from neutral and Axis sources indicated it was said, the Atlantic had been "cleared."

These sources cited Rio de Janeiro's receipt of 808 messages reporting an enemy surface raider 1,000 miles off the Brazilian coast and the German high command's claim that 48,231 tons of shipping bound for Egypt had been sunk recently by German submarines off the American and West African coasts.

Not only is the south Atlantic the chief supply route to India and Egypt but under present conditions it is probably the most important means of sending supplies to Russia via Iran

Wheat and beef from South America also traverse the new danger area en route to Britain.

A naval source repeated a number of armed Axis merchant raiders had reached the south Atlantic from ports on the Bay of Biscay since the fall of France

RUMORS DENIED

Administrator Says Canada Has No Excessive Stocks Of Sugar

Ottawa.—R. R. Noble, sugar administrator for the wartime prices and trade board, described as "false and absurd" rumors which he said were being circulated that excessive stocks of sugar are available in Canada and that sugar rationing is therefore not necessary.

"Anyone circulating mischievous rumors of this sort is undermining our war effort," he said in a statement, and giving backbone and to the enemy for fostering distrust and discontent among the people at home

For instance Mr Noble said one "wild story" going the rounds alleges there are 400,000,000 pounds of sugar in southern Alberta warehouses with a new crop expected shortly

The administrator said that in fact Alberta total sugar production in the last five years did not total 400,000,000 pounds and there would be no more than a normal carryover this year Surplus stocks had been shipped to Ontario the first time in history that Alberta sugar has been marketed east of Winnipeg."

New Six-Month Ration Books Available Soon

Ottawa The wartime prices and trade board furnishing Canadian consumers with a detailed description of the six-month ration books which will be distributed Sept. 7, said the only commodities which will be coupon rationed at that time are tea, coffee and sugar

Elaborate coupons included in the ration books, the board said, are included solely as a precaution and no decision whatever has been made to use them for any commodity.

Officially designated Ration Book No. 1 the new books contain five different series of coupons The first, printed in red has the word "sugar" printed on each of 13 coupons each good for two weeks' supply.

The second, printed in green, is designated "Spare A," and will be used to buy tea and coffee, replacing blue-1 coupons now in use

"It should be noted," the board said, "that after Sept 7 each tea-coffee coupon from the new ration book will cover a two-week supply — that is two ounces of tea or eight ounces of coffee putting them on the same basis as the sugar coupons"

Tea-coffee coupons will not be included among books issued to children under 12 years of age

The three remaining series of coupons comprise one page of 13 coupons issued on a two-week basis all-spare and two series of two pages or 26 coupons. These are included for emergency purposes the board said but as extra coupons and temporary ration cards were used [illegible]

TOWN LADY RESCUED

Mrs. Harold Reid was bereaved by the death of her mother Mrs. Wilma Smith, who passed away on Saturday last week, Aug. 15 in Lloydminster. Mrs. Smith was well known in town as she spent the winters with her daughter here. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon with interment taking place in the Lloydminster cemetery. The services were kindly conducted by the Ven. Archdeacon Loversedge.

HEAVY RAINS DAMAGE GREENLAWN DIST. CROPS

Heavy rains which struck the Greenlawn district on Wednesday of last week caused considerable damage to crops. Oats were hit the hardest and harm to them is estimated at from 15 to 20 per cent. The rain came in cloudbursts and the tremendous downpours flattened the heavy grain so badly that a considerable acreage will never be picked up by the binder, should any more rain fall these flattened crops will suffer more by rotting.

Crops on spring plowing and on lighter lands were not so badly affected as the grain came back up in a day or two. Over three inches of rain fell during the day of the storm.

Harvest wages are going to be a real problem to the farmer. The farmer can sell only five bushel pot ates as prices in Vermilion are down from to buy twine, pay threshing bills and pay hired help. Hired help is demanding six to eight dollars per day, if wage ceiling should be put on the harvest help too.

Town Staffs Complete — Three New Teachers

Students and pupils of the Vermilion high and public schools will return to their studies on Tuesday, Sept. 1, and along with them will be some thirty little tots making their first entrance into the halls of learning.

There will be three staff changes, two of these are in the high school, one replacing the former Miss Murray who is now married, and the other Mr. Leonard Marper, who is joining Canada's armed forces. The newcomer on the high school staff are Miss M. Knapp, B.A., who is already well known locally, and the latest appointment Miss Mildred Branum. Miss Branum is a specialist in mathematics and comes to Vermilion highly recommended. She has had eight years' experience. Her home is at Craigmyle, Alta.

The only change on the public school staff is the appointment of Mrs. O'Brien who takes Mr. J. Killen's place. Mr. Killen has joined the R.C.A.F. and leaves at the end of September to enter training.

Staff of the high school will consist of Principal L. M. Dunsard — History and Geography; Miss Knapp — Science; Miss M. Knapp—Languages; Miss M. Branum—Mathematics.

The public school teachers are: Principal J. Part, Mrs. O'Brien, Miss Doris Lipsey, Miss Mae Nugent, Miss Lawrence, Miss Dorothy Oakley, Miss Jean Dey, Miss D. Noonan.

Night-soil Percentage Pass in Public Hotel

According to unofficial word from the department of education, Vermilion high school had the highest percentage of passes in the province. The average for Alberta was 69% while the Vermilion school turned out 81% per cent of their students got over the hurdle.

SIX TEACHERS SHORT IN SCHOOL DIVISION

With only one week left before school opening, the Vermilion school division was still short six teachers, although the condition was claimed to be better here than in many other divisions. It is hoped to have all the vacancies filled by the opening day.

CONSERVE SEPTEMBER 6th AS DAY OF PRAYER

The third anniversary of Canada's entrance into the war will fall on Sept. 8th. Sunday Sept. 6th has been proclaimed as a national day of prayer and will be observed throughout the Canadian Church as a day of earnest intercession for our armed forces, for our whole people and for the cause of the United Nations. The proclamation was made from Ottawa in an extra edition of the Canada Gazette.

WEDNESDAY HALF-HOLIDAYS ARE OVER

The Wednesday half holiday is now over for 1942 but will commence again January 6th, 1943, as the last Wednesday this year is practically all the storekeepers since spring started, as it was wet. However, very little, if any kicking was heard about the rain until this week, when it would do far more good by having stayed away. The wet conditions certainly far more enjoyable than the dry ones we have experienced for too many years prior to 1942.

ELEVATOR MEN SHIP 44-TON CAR OF METAL

Almost Enough for Second Car

The elevator men were busy this week attending to the loading of a 40-ton car of scrap metal, and stated that almost enough is on hand to fill another of the big gondola cars. This metal will soon find its way into the fighting furnaces and be used in the manufacture of guns, planes, ships and munitions with which to preserve our freedom and way of life.

If you have any scrap metal or scrap rubber bring it into the elevators, the garages or the salvage depot at once. The need for these materials is vital.

POTATOES GROW ON VINES LIKE TOMATOES

Anything can happen in Alberta in a wet season and the latest is that potatoes are now growing above the ground just like tomatoes do. The evidence is on view at the Standard office, the potato top has four spuds growing along the stem well above the top of the ground. The plant was pulled up by Fred Firth in his garden in the east end of town.

New Weed Bulletin

A new bulletin entitled "The Weed Problem in Alberta" is now available to those who wish information on weed control and its problems. In the preparation of the bulletin no less than nine authors contributed. This made it possible to present a diversity of material and thought with respect to all problems of weed control.

As indicated in the foreword, "The purpose of this bulletin is particularly to bring before those with administrative responsibilities in connection with weed control, new thoughts and suggestions relative to their problems." However, every farmer who is interested in the full and most efficient utilization of agricultural resources will like to have a copy of the bulletin. It may be obtained on application to the Extension Service, Department of Agriculture.

AEROPLANES CARRY OUT SCHEDULED MANOEUVRES OVER TOWNS, VILLAGES

Many Canadians have expressed an anxiety over the large numbers of R.C.A.F. training aircraft which are to be seen flying over towns and villages from the Maritimes to the Pacific. A theory is held in some quarters that the airmen circle and bank for the express purpose of showing off for the benefit of relatives or feminine admirers. The fact is that each time you see an aeroplane over town or village it is carrying out a detailed manoeuvre. Chances are that a member of the crew may be taking photographs so that when he flies over Germany his photographic skill will permit him to bring back accurate of targets for future attacks on the navigator is carrying out an exercise using a certain road as a pinpoint map is the same. He will be required to pinpoint a given point at Berlin or Essen. The pilot may be engaged in a level altitude exercise. He must be able to [illegible] from 10,000 feet. RECRUITING FOR AIR FORCE HERE, SATURDAY, AUG. 29

Even after almost three years of war, the demand for men and women to serve in the Royal Canadian Air Force is greater than ever it was time since 1939 have no many openings of all types been available. Lack of education is no longer a barrier to enlistment the Air Force is equipped to train applicants in all trades and offers regular pay and allowances during the period of schooling. Applicants for air crew training may be granted leave until after harvest if it is desired.

FALSE RUMOR ABOUT SUGAR

S. E. Noble, super Administrator of the W.P.T.B. branded the rumor that there were excessive stocks of sugar on hand in Canada as "false and absurd", saying, "Anyone circulating mischievous rumors of this sort is undermining our war effort, and giving back door aid to the enemy by lowering distrust and discontent amongst the people at home.

One story alleges that there are 400,000,000 pounds of sugar in warehouses in Canada to supplement Alberta, which Mr. Noble states exceeds Alberta's total production of sugar for the past five years" surplus stocks of sugar have been shipped to Ontario. For the first time in history, Alberta sugar is marketed east of Winnipeg.

Three quarters of the requirements of sugar in Canada are imported. Extra demands will be filled only at the cost of gallant seamen's lives, and ships

Record Of Sales

$130 Under The Rationing Executive Is On The Increase

Although ration cards have yet to penetrate the barrens, officials forecast that they would be long faces in tents and igloos and non-stop boiling of the tea kettle would become a thing of the past.

In the Yukon-Mackenzie district and eastern Arctic—an area of 1,300,000 square miles with about 15,000 residents—Mountie and Eskimo, missionary and Indian, will lose no time in getting from a ration book when they obtain tea, coffee or sugar. But a record will be kept of everything they buy and it was expected rationing would be almost as effective as among the residents of the nine provinces.

United States engineers and workmen putting through the international highway to Alaska also come under the "remote area" ruling and do not need ration cards.

Lesson To Be Learned

Education In Tolerance Necessary If Evils Similar to Nazism Are To Be Avoided

An object lesson was given in Chicago a few evenings ago of the kind of tolerance that must be fostered throughout the world if the world is to be free. At a forum sponsored by the Pastors' Institute of the Chicago Theological Seminary, a Catholic priest, a Jewish rabbi and a Negro Methodist minister shared the platform to discuss "religion's role in combatting intolerance." An other Protestant denomination furnished the meeting place—the University Church of the Disciples of Christ.

This was no gathering of wishy-washy men pretending that they did not have differences of fundamental conviction. "The Rev. Austin C. Schmidt, S.J., Rabbi Samuel M. Blumenfield and the Rev. DeWitt Turpeau, Jr., surrendered not a jot or tittle of their individual religious principles in collhoneting to fight intolerance. But each knew that all men are brothers that justice is no respecter by race or creed.

That truth never needed learning so much as today. In a shrinking world that hosts us and will knit us progressively closer to all regions of the globe, education in tolerance will be necessary for the very survival of human civilization.—Chicago Sun.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JACOB SEEKS GOD'S HELP

Golden text: God is our refuge and strength. A very present help in trouble. Psalm 46:1.

Lesson: Genesis 31—33.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 34:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

Waking at Mahanaim, Genesis 32: 1-8. On his return journey to the land of his fathers, Jacob reaches Esau's territory and named the spot where he turned Mahanaim which means, as the footnote of our Bible tells us, Two Hosts, or Two Companions. "Then", God's host, verse 2, refers to the angelic escort of verse 1 as meeting Jacob. Jacob sent messengers ahead to acquaint Esau of his arrival. They returned with the startling news that Esau was himself on the way to meet Jacob and had four hundred men with h'r. Jacob was panic-stricken, and go'd reason had he to so, for he naturally thought that Esau was coming to avenge the "rong he had suffered at his brother's hands 20 years before. Jacob was face to face with the consequences of his past.

Jacob was always resourceful, and now he divided the people, flocks, herds and camels into two companies on the supposition that one company could escape while Esau was smiting the other. Then he turned to God for aid.

Jacob's Prayer, Genesis 32 9-12 In his prayer Jacob seems to acknowledge that his own resourcefulness and resourcefulness are not sufficient, as he craves God's help in his emergency. He begins by invoking Jehovah as the God of his grandfather Abraham and his father Isaac, who had impelled him to return to his own land, and had pledged himself to take care of him. Then with fine humility he acknowledges God's mercies to him, and "I am not worthy of the least of all the loving-kindness which thou hast showed unto thy servant," for he had left home with only his staff, that is, all alone, and now was returning to it with two large companies. Before he offers his petition, that God would save him from the hand of Esau, toward he is greatly fears, believing he is coming to slay him and his family. He ends his prayer, by pleading the divine promise.

The Meeting of the Brothers, Genesis 32:1-11. Jacob left the place he named Peniel (The Face of God), bearing in his halting gait the lasting mark of the night's struggle. Esau appeared in the distance, Jacob approached with Oriental ceremony and bowed himself seven times to the ground, but Esau impulsively fell on Jacob's neck and kissed him with much urging. Esau accepted Jacob's gifts and the brothers separated, Esau going to Seir and Jacob to Succoth.

From this time onward, though he does not lose his politic self-resourcefulness, Jacob becomes more and more "a prince with God, a just and God-fearing Israelite."

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

HEALTH PLUS

A plan of action for the health of America is advocated by Dr. Martha M. Eliot, associate chief, U.S. Children's Bureau, in the current issue of Survey Graphic. Summing up her observations in England, Dr. Eliot applies the lessons of the British experience to this contingent and declares:

"The urgency of the need today calls for:

—immediate action to stop withdrawal of physicians and nurses from areas already poorly provided or recently drained, and the inauguration of a plan to give national recognition to those who stay at home to serve the workers and mothers and children, the aged, the infirm in our stricken communities.

—a prompt review and plan for supplementation where needed, of the health and welfare personnel and medical facilities for care of maternity patients and children in all cities and towns and rural areas in which war industries or military establishments have brought or are still bringing in large flux of families or to which children might be sent in case evacuation of danger areas become necessary.

—the immediate development of a plan for the establishment of day-care centres for children of mothers who must go to work in connection with the war effort;

—the establishment on an interstate basis of an emergency mobile public health and welfare service personnel—physicians, nurses, nutritionists, child welfare workers child guidance workers, and non-professional aides—to be available to supplement existing services in areas where war emergencies make such assistance necessary, as when an acute disaster basis;

—a nationwide campaign to immunize all children against diphtheria and smallpox and, as needed, against typhoid fever;

—a nationwide school lunch program;

—a nationwide program for training of child care volunteers to assist professional health and welfare workers and broaden the scope of their service in wartime and peacetime;

—the immediate inauguration of an effective school medical service that will provide thorough diagnostic examinations, the necessary medical care, child guidance, and health instruction that will permit children and youth to take full advantage of educational opportunities, and fit them when they leave school to undertake work within their individual capabilities;

—the extension of the provisions for maternity care and for health, medical and welfare services to children . . . until all areas of the country are adequately served."

Nothing short of this will assure the nation that its children and youth of today will have the health and vigor necessary to carry forward in peacetime to come the work that must be done in establishing a true democracy for the citizens of tomorrow," concludes Dr Eliot.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

It will be a beautiful wedding. Tamar Dunlop as she watches the florists arranging the banks of flowers against the fireplace. The tall white tapers in the candelabra, the white satin ribbon streamers marking off the places for the bride and groom and the attendants, the soft glow of the lamps that would presently be lighted—these things Selby must have.

Tamar had promised one last peek at the big drawing room before coming up to help Selby put on the white satin gown that she had already laid out. Tamar's own dress was of soft blue, with full sweeping skirt tight basque and rows of tiny seed pearls about the sweetheart neck and peplum. On her black curls was perched a tiny blue hat, lavishly covered with peach colored flowers and veil that matched the color of the roses in her corsage.

Tamar paused for a moment to step through the swinging doors to the long dining room. All of the new tradition of Sheridan weddings was being carried out.

Old Mammy Topie stood by the table, while suit stiffly elegant, checking over the silver. The big urns and accessories stood on their polished trays; the crystal shone with fire, the snowy linen dropped into voluminous length to the floor about the table.

As she glanced out the hall window Tamar saw a station wagon turn in at the drive. That would be the second session from Atlanta coming in on the 11 o'clock train. She ran for the stairs. Right now there were tears trembling on her lashes because everything was so beautiful, and because Selby would be leaving for Boston, and because well just because.

Tamar hurried up to the room she had shared with Selby which by this time would be one of seldest confusion. Missy would be standing about with her mouth full of pins, aching for an opportunity to pin up something no matter what—or just obey some more command from her beloved mistress. Little Miss Abernathy, the seamstress would be critically eyeing the hem-trench of her old wrinkled hands and Selby Selby would be there, only in the flesh.

Presently there would arrive the six other girls and the ushers all laughing and dressed up in picturesque colors and severe black and white. Then there would be just time for a quick look at the arriving guests and then Lohengrin.

Selby was standing there glowingly radiant. "Tamar! Everything is perfect. Look at this gown—it couldn't be sweeter then if it had been 10 years in the making. Oh, Missy don't start crying again. There's nothing to cry about. I'd think you'd be glad to get rid of me!"

Selby pulled out a drawer. "Here, child, take this sweater and skirt for your going away dress. Make a good girl and ask mother if she can come up now."

The next hour the guests arrived, the prelude of the ceremony were all there excepting Christopher, the groom, and Dick, the best man. Tamar looked anxiously at her watch once more. Ten till 12. Oh dear, where can they be? she wondered. Thank goodness Selby didn't know yet that they ... had come.

Tamar went down the back stairs and crept cautiously into the kitchen hall. "Missy" she whispered, "Ask Mr. Todd, Ramy—to come here."

She watched through the crack in the doorway while Missy went up to the group in the conservatory where the attendants were chatting pleasantly. Missy whispered in Ramsy's ear and he quickly left them. How handsome he looked as he crossed the room. His broad shoulders well back, his tall figure proud in its bearing.

As Ramsy opened the door Tamar saw a fine black limousine pass the window. "Oh, thank heaven!" she gasped. "There they are, Ramsy. I was so afraid that something had happened. Get back to your duty ;," She gave him a quick smile and ran down the stairs. "Wait——" she stopped him. "Do you have the ring?"

"Safe as safe!" he patted an inner breast pocket. "Wait—Tamar! You look lovely. I——" he stopped inadequately.

This is just what Selby wants, Tamar thought as the minister began in a clear strong voice. Her back toward the sea of faces, friends of the Sheridans, beloved people of long years of close association. Her air was sweet with the scent of roses and lilies of the valley.

Then it was over, and the bridegroom had kissed his bride, and now it was Tamar's turn to kiss Mrs. Christopher Sands.

Congratulations, best wishes, glimpses of the wedding gifts in the big game room upstairs, and serving trays of frosted drinks. Selby cutting the wedding cake, with Christopher's hand on her to guide the knife down through the magnificance of white tiers.

"You are a beautiful bride, Selby," Tamar managed to whisper just before they hurried up to let Selby's mother help her with the going-away suit.

Then Selby was ready and she asked Tamar to run on downstairs so she could have one more minute with her mother and father. Tamar smiled at her and hurried along. "Is she crying?" asked some one quickly. Then the girls grouped themselves at the foot of the big stairway anxious for the bride's reappearance.

"Just time to get to the airport at Atlanta," said Dick methodically to the bridegroom, who stood with one foot on the first step.

Then Christopher went up them, two at a time, at the sound of an opening door above. Another moment and together they made the turn at the landing.

"The bridal bouquet, Mrs. Sands!" cried one of the girls.

Selby paused and leaned over the walnut rail. "Ready?"

"Tamar! Oh, Tamar!" some one cried anxiously.

"Why no one would I want to have my bouquet?" Selby whispered into Tamar's ear as she swept a good-by kiss to her cheek.

Then the guests rushed pellmell to the long verandah to throw rice and old shoes.

Tamar felt a hand on her arm. "I've got my car at the back door, and we can sneak away. Tam, so you won't have to dodge rice and shoes." Ramsy led the old trail through the Sheridan's peach orchard."

Tamar silently squeezed Ramsy's hand. Her eyes were ridiculously dimmed with tears and the bridal bouquet was pressed tightly in her arms.

It was good to feel Ramsy's hand about hers as they ran swiftly so that they could get out of the drive and away to the old road before the limousine started up.

Ramsy and Tamar, her cosyngingly. "It was tops, wasn't it?"

"Beautiful. Selby was the loveliest bride I ever saw. She will remember having the high color on Selby's cheeks, the gold of her thick curls clustered about the veil. The catch in her throat at their parting was not quite so painful at this moment. Selby would be back for a visit soon even if Chris were through temporarily at the Cricket Hill. As soon as they started up questions again he was going to be needed.

Just briefly her thoughts touched on Ramsy's future. But she would not allow any unpleasantness creep within them to mar the perfectness of the day. Ramsy would be with Major Towne had forfeited the right to his lease and was now in a Fed eral prison in Waco, Texas. Her confessed enough to make possible the capture of the others involved and once more things were at peace with the world.

Ramsy turned the car back into the main highway as they left the cross road and began to negotiate the direction that Christopher and Selby would take. "We'd better put this car about you," Ramsy said, holding the wheel with one hand and reaching for the robe on the shelf above the seat.

"I'm too excited. I guess I doesn't seem cool."

They drove silently for a moment. "Light me a cigarette, will you please?" he asked. He lit his and they smoked thoughtfully.

"Geo! I've gone all soft inside," Ramsy said, grinding out the smoke and the final spark.

He drove in between the two tall brownstone columns at Shadwell and up to the portico but did not stop. Instead, he took the drive that led to the stables and out past the wood ed lot toward the Chestatee

Tamar did not speak. It hadn't yet occurred to her that she had left her things, her luggage and her father at Pinecrest.

Ramsy drew the car up at the edge of the footpath that ran along the river. He slipped his arms out of his dinner jacket, lifted the robe from Tamar and held out the coat. She slipped her arms through his sleeves.

He got out of the car and went to her door and opened it. Taking her hand he led her to their favorite tree. She held the long blue shirt aside so that she would not step on its hem, walking softly over the browning moss and the rustling leaves.

Ramsy led her to the wishing stone in their fairy Ring of childhood days. He turned her about three times. "Make a wish, Tamar, and close your eyes."

She obeyed him, smiling as he began to count to 10 after the wish. Her self-conscious. He stopped on eight. "Now, Miss Randolph, would it be taking too much for granted to ask you to hold them closed for 10 seconds"

She felt his lips upon hers. It was much longer than 10 seconds. "Ramsy" she whispered.

"Todd has the floor, Miss Randolph. Will you marry me?"

Tamar's eyes opened slowly. Their blue was the color of heaven above the Chestatee. "Ramsy," she said, solemnly "That's the only wish I ever made on that darned stone that came true!"

Vancouver, British Columbia, probably has the narrowest building in the world. It is only six feet wide and is located in Chinatown. It has shops on the first floor, living quarters on the second. Its story is told in an Associated Screen "Old You Know That" movie short.

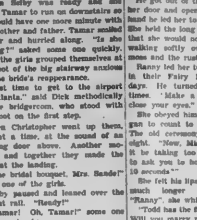
DID YOU KNOW THAT:

No Coupons Needed for Postum

TEA and coffee rationing does not apply to Postum. No coupons are needed to buy this grand mealtime beverage.

Conserve tea and coffee in your home by drinking Postum. You'll be surprised and delighted to learn how satisfying Postum is.

A delicious beverage with a robust, inviting flavor. Postum is quick and easy to make, and economical to use. SAFE for the whole family—contains no caffein or tannic, nothing to upset nerves or stomach.



NOT MANY SPECTATORS

When the town of Westwood, Mass., population 3,600, recently held a patriotic parade, so large a proportion of its residents marched that virtually the only spectators were a small group of Westwood's elderly people, the very youngest of its children and folks from out of town—and there weren't too many of them.

DIFFERENT OVER THERE

Some people, says the Ottawa Journal, worry about their tea rations. But in England there is hardly a night when at least a few German bombers are not overhead doing their devilish work. Here we can sleep safely in our beds. There, in a casual two-plane raid, a hospital was bombed, and the streets of a most town machine-gunned.

DEATH AND FUNERAL OF DAVID DEYRDALE
Came West in 1906

The death of David Campbell Deyrdale of Islay took place at his home 14 miles south of Islay on Friday August 21. He was 82 years, 4 months and 11 days of age.

Death came without warning as deceased had been in his usual good health and had been out in the garden, an especial hobby of his, during the morning. He had come into the house and turned on the radio to listen to the news when he suddenly fell from his chair and died instantly.

Mr. Deyrdale was born at Barrie, in Simcoe County, Ont., on April 10, 1860. He came west and settled in Vermilion in 1906 and lived here for over three years, being employed on the railroad. He then homesteaded fourteen miles south of Islay which has since been the family home.

Left to mourn his loss are his sorrowing widow, four daughters, and two sons Mrs. Charles Bland, Kitscoty; Mrs. J. D. Stone, Kitscoty; Mrs. C. Rose, Lloydminster, and Dorothy at home. The sons are Robert and Charles of the Islay district. There are also 14 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The funeral was held on Monday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the United church, Vermilion, the large attendance here testimony to the esteem in which this pioneer farmer was held in the community. The Rev. A. Walker of Lloydminster conducted the services and interment took place in the Vermilion cemetery.

Mrs. A. West kindly presided at the organ and both the playing of the hymns and the appropriate interlude music was much appreciated and made a fitting tribute to the sacredness of the service.

The pall bearers were C. Mitchell, W. Simmons, Chas. Bland, John Robinson, Norman Bowen and Chas. Jeffry.

Floral tributes were received from: Loving Wife and Family; Graham and family. The Wyley Family. The Shannon, Trotz and Mike; Duff, Mary and family; Graham, Shandro and family; Lower Aid of Wildwest; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rose and Lillian and Herbert Graham; Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Stone; The Redmond Families; Mrs. J. D. Campbell and family; The Simmons Family; Mr. and Mrs. Shockey and family; Rose Watters; Mrs. C.W. Lewis and Chris Thompson and family; Mrs. Wenger and family; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Mitchell, and several others.

J. Waring had charge of arrangements.

WILDWEST WINES

Fred Gulliveje,who has worked this summer for Geo. Cruthers, was a patient in the hospital with blood poison in his finger for a few days last week.

On Thursday George Cruthers and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cruthers drove up by truck to visit Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips near Heinsburg. They returned home Friday evening.

Mrs. John Bathe of Basswood met with a rather serious accident while out picking berries. She stepped into a hole and fell on the piece of metal that holds the handle on her pail, thereby pushing her throat and making it necessary to have several stitches put in there. Serious things can happen very simply some times.

Adam Smith left on Monday (Labor day) last. He is applying for a post poss-mest until after the harvest rush. Chas Bathe is assisting with the cutting. Looks like the curling will be a thing of the past as there will not be anyone here to curl this winter.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard entertained four of the C.W.A.C. girls. The girls would find a royal welcome at their home we are sure.

It is pleasing to hear that Mrs. Robt. Smith is home from the hospital feeling much better. On Sunday Aug. 16 Mrs. Riley and Mrs. Robert Martin visited her.

Mr and Mrs Geo Dibbon and lavid were Sunday evening visitors to the Wallington home. We surely enjoyed their short stay.

Grain cutting is the main topic in our corner right now. Members are far behind on the heavy crop All we hope for is good weather

Linden Paddon is running the binder for J. C. Wallington and Jimmie is standing.

On August 23, 1907, just 35 years ago, Robert and John Graham left Cruthers and Peter Johnstone filed on their homesteads in what is now the Wildwest district. The filing was done at Hardisty. Of the four mentioned only George Cruthers resides on his original homestead Robert Graham passed on in 1928, John Graham lives in the B.C. block of the Peace River country and Peter John stone gave his life in the last great war. John Wilson lives on the Johnstone homestead and the Watling ton's own the Robert Graham place but live on the original John Graham homestead.

Of interest to farmers concerned with the labor shortage is the announcement by Premier Aberhart that students who can produce evidence of having taken part in harvest operations will be excused for 20 school days between Sept. 1 and Oct. 1. Because many students throughout the province have no practical farming experience it was decided that complete closing of the schools was not necessary to provide harvest help. Under the arrangement adopted, any capable student will be enabled to work during the period named.

Alberta's representations on the manpower situation and the dearth of war contracts in the province were well received by federal officials in Ottawa, according to Hon. E.C. Manning who led a delegation to the national capital. The case for Alberta was representative of a common basis of agreement which was found by delegates from agriculture, labor, industry, local government and the Province at a recent Edmonton parley. The proposals include measures for stopping the manpower drain, for the decentralization of industry, the utilization of raw materials for processing as close to source as possible, and the employment of help as close to home as is feasible.

The Standard is reproducing the following extract from an official half-year review of oil progress in Alberta. This is written by J. L. Irvin, Statistician, Dept. of Lands and Mines, Government of the Province of Alberta. The article deals with Turner Valley and then goes on as follows:

OTHER ALBERTA FIELDS

Production from other Alberta fields for the half-year totalled 53,325 bbls. Nine fields contributed to this total, of which Vermilion proved to be far the greatest producer. The list is as follows:

Field	Bbls.
Vermilion	35,906
Wainwright	6,701
Taber	3,348
Red Coulee	6,172
Princess	1,370
Tilley	2,320
Ditn	2,400
Del Bonita	756
TOTAL	53,325

Vermilion Field

It will be noted from the above that the Vermilion field is quickly growing into an area of importance. The new field has much to attract the interest of not only petroleum engineers, but also of economic affairs of the province at such a time as this. There are many reasons to warrant such attraction.

BREWING INDUSTRY OF ALBERTA

WOODVALE

The heavy rains on the 19th did quite a lot of damage Crops were partly down, outfields suffered most with barley next, while wheatfields stood up the best. But on the whole the most splendid looking crops now present a sorry mess and will give a lot of trouble in cutting. The ripening process is considerably retarded too and with the cold weather we have been having lately frost seems just around the corner and the feed of snow is often in the air. There is plenty to cause a wrinkled brow on a farmer's face, besides shortage of help and high wages. However we have had worries like these before and lived through them and there is always the traditional next year coming when . . . .

In the meantime there is also lots we can enjoy. It is almost unbelievable in June the prairie still looking green with plenty of grazing and lots of water everywhere. Gardens too never better than ever and flowers seem brighter and more colorful than in other years.

All the Rankin children went together to Moose and Muriel Lakes to pick blueberries and do some fishing They caught plenty of fish but there are no berries, the blossoms having been frozen in May. Almost home they had a real blow-out that took quite a lot of packing. Lesley that did not happen further away than home. Hazel stayed with some friends north of town for a week's time.

The Alberta Wheat Pool held a meeting at Woodvale school recently Mr. Clay and Mr. Stewart were the speakers. A good crowd attended and the youngsters especially enjoyed the motion picture part of the program.

Evelyn de Breville who is staying with her Dad for the rest of the holidays went with him to visit Mr Pat Irvin near Wainwright. he has been sick with rheumatic fever for the last three months.

PLANS BEING MADE TO OVERCOME ACUTE SHORTAGE OF NURSES

Appeal to Young Ladies to Enter the Profession

Plans are now being formulated by the Canadian Nurses Association to overcome the "acute shortage of well qualified graduate nurses in Canada which will become even more alarming as the months pass", Miss Rea Chittick, president of the Alberta Registered Nurses Association, announced today.

"The situation today can be explained briefly, as follows:" Miss Chittick said. "Normally we have about 23,000 graduate nurses in Canada.

"The average number of students enrolled in Schools of Nursing in Canada is 11,300 of which about 5,000 graduate annually but approximately 30 per cent marry within two years of graduation and are lost to the profession.

"Since the war started about 1,500 graduate nurses have enrolled in the armed forces for overseas service in Africa while, during this period, the demand for competent nurses in hospitals, industry, and public health work, has increased by an appreciable amount.

"At present there is an alarming shortage which can only be remedied if parents, and daughters who show inclination, and who have the educational background, will interest themselves in the honorable profession of nursing which so well fits a girl for shouldering responsibilities that through her life.

"Nursing today offers many more opportunities than it did a few years ago. Hours are shorter; salaries, generally, are better than they were a few years ago.

"At the same time married and retired nurses who are physically fit can assist by reporting back for duty and, where necessary, take refresher courses which are now being planned.

"The Canadian Nurses' Association with the assistance of the Dominion government, is now considering ways substantial loans and bursaries designed to increase the number of qualified nurses and the number of those who can be trained, and third for educational and special work.

"The Association is also studying clinical service in hospitals with a view to setting up standards for post-graduate experience and is planning certain courses for the nurse placement service or bureau at national headquarters which will be invaluable in the post-war period.

"All the efforts of the Association, however, cannot overcome the shortage unless eligible young women and their parents realize that, upon them to a major extent depends whether this alarming situation will be remedied."

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

TRUCK LOADS RESTRICTED

EDMONTON.—Trucks travelling on Alberta highways will be required to restrict their loads to 16,000 pounds per axle according to regulations made public this week by the Highway Traffic Board. In addition a speed limit of 30 miles an hour has been set for all trucks except light panel deliveries up to three-quarters of a ton capacity. These may travel at 40 miles per hour. Government officials said the proposal to cut truck payloads 50 per cent had been modified when representations resulted in the province being given priorities on road repair oils. It had been feared that all of this commodity and continued heavy traffic would have ruined the highway system in a year.

New Treatment for Infantile Paralysis Is Being Demonstrated

The famous treatment for infantile paralysis evolved by Australian nursing Sister Kenney will be demonstrated before Alberta medical men who attend a refresher course to be held at the University of Alberta, Sept. 7 to 11. The demonstration will be given by Miss E. Wood, physiotherapist, and Prof. Hurkell, orthopaedic surgeon. Sister Kenney is an Australian bush nurse—somewhat similar to Alberta's district nurses — who evolved the successful and revolutionary treatment when far from medical centres. She is at present in the U.S. on government invitation, and is teaching her methods to many others.

o o o

CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT

Progress of the co-operative movement in the province is evidenced in the growing list of incorporations being announced by the government administrative branch.

Granting of charters to seven new co-operatives during the month of June brings to 31 the number of such associations actively engaged in business throughout the province. Among those chartered recently are four co-operative store businesses; one dairy and poultry products and two to carry on amateur activities.

o o o

Travelling Clinic Mercy Trek

Alberta's owned travelling clinic has just completed another mercy trek through rural centres, and reports having visited 22 points in all. 2,287 children received medical examinations. 1,677 were recommended for dental treatment. 1,785 teeth were pulled and 784 cases were referred to family physicians. Cases of thyroid trouble discovered numbered 464, and in some sections 25% of the children had this trouble caused by iodine deficiency. Commenting on this situation, Dr. M. H. Bow, deputy minister of health, said that the use of iodized salt at meals would assist in preventing its occurrence.

In a move to meet the current shortage of nurses in Alberta, a plan has been drawn up by the Provincial Health officials and a representative of the Municipal Hospital association for submission to the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses. If this latter body approves, the plan will be put into operation. The new program calls for the training of women as ward aids in larger hospitals, and their transfer to smaller hospitals where shortages are acute. Ward aids are non-technical workers, of great assistance to trained nurses.

Little Sammy Peet, 2-year old son of John Peet was the object of a wide search in the Angle Lake district when he was missing from 5.30 p.m to 9 a.m. the next morning. He was found alive and well 3½ miles from the point where he disappeared

Jack "Mose" Phillips came in for considerable fame in the Edmonton papers and the Standard for adding some sixteen hours on the Dominion Land office steps in order to be the first to file on a homestead in the north country. He got the homestead.

The population of the three prairie provinces is now 1,189,543.

A large movement of a very desirable class of settlers from Austria Hungary into the west has been noted during the past year.

WE FOUND ALL-BRAN SUPERIOR TO HARSH CATHARTICS

Says Mrs. R. E. Riches, Dorval, Quebec: "KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN has so many good qualities . . . it really is the 'Better Way'. It has been a family favorite for many years, and as long as it retains its qualities, ALL-BRAN will continue to be a big favorite in our home."

Why don't you try ALL BRAN'S "Better Way" to correct the cause of constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet. But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like cathartics. It takes time. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's, in two convenient size packages, or ask for the individual serving package at restaurants. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

A Vital Canadian Industry

IN A BOOK just published recently by the joint board of the Newspaper Association of Canada and the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association some highly interesting facts are given concerning this important industry. It may surprise many Canadians to know that our forests provide us with an industry which exceeds by far that of any other in the Dominion, and which might be called a mainstay of our economic structure. As a source of foreign exchange it ranks next to gold and is greater than that of copper, zinc and nickel combined. At the present time, it is bringing to Canada annually over a quarter of a billion dollars from the marketing of its products in other lands. The industry is said to affect almost every branch of Canadian endeavor and it has had a great influence on the development of other industries including farming, mining, and transportation. No other undertaking has contributed so much to the extension of hydro-electric power in Canada.

* * * * *

Source Of Revenue

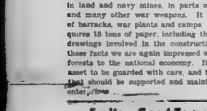
Half a million Canadian citizens depend directly on the pulp and paper industry for their living. No other manufacturing industry pays out as much in salaries and wages and its invested capital is the largest of any industry in the Dominion. Between 1930 and 1935 which were depression years, the pulp and paper industry brought to Canada $563,000,000. In those same years, the return from gold export was $475,000,000, and from nickel $130,000,000. In 1939 there were 99 pulp and paper plants in Canada. The people employed in this industry numbered nearly 60,000, and the total wages paid amounted to $42,619,311. With the added activity of the industry in wartime all these figures are now considerably increased.

* * *

Supplies Needs

Both for peace and wartime requirements the industry contributes much to our vital daily needs. In civilian life we draw from it newsprint, book writing, and wrapping paper and many building products. To the materials of war it contributes a great deal. It is used in the production of explosives, in shells, in land and navy mines, in parts of "airplanes and mechanized equipment and many other war weapons. It is also of great value in the building of barracks, war plants and camps. The construction of one battleship requires 15 tons of paper, including that used for the vast number of blueprint drawings involved in the construction of its guns and equipment. From these facts we are again impressed with the great contribution made by our forests to the national economy. It is clear that our forest lands are an asset to be guarded with care, and that the pulp and paper industry is one that should be supported and maintained as one of our foremost national enterprises.

Fruits — Good To Eat — And Good For You



We are lucky people in this country. We have fruit to eat the year around, fresh, canned or dried. All fruits give us minerals and vitamins.

The High Rankers For Vitamin C—

Some fruits have more vitamin C than others.
They rank: First—Oranges and grapefruit.
Second—Canned or fresh tomatoes
Third Canned pineapple

Note. Canned grapefruit and the juice have almost as much vitamin C as the fresh fruit and at times are cheaper.

How Much Fruit Do We Need?—

Eat one high ranker every day, plus one other kind of fruit. For example, add apples, prunes, or figs

Your Money Goes Farther If You Buy—

Small "juice" oranges instead of bigger ones.
Canned grapefruit or grapefruit juice instead of fresh
Tomato juice in large cans
Small prunes instead of big ones

Fruits Will Taste Better and Be Safer If You—

Keep all fruit and fruit juice in a cold place and cover the fruit juices.
Wash fresh fruits before eating
Wash dried fruits, soak, and cook in same water.

Do You Know That—

Dried fruits in bulk are cheap and taste good.
(Sweet prunes do not need extra sugar.)
Mixed dried fruits can be bought in bulk?
(Smaller pieces just as good flavor.)
Rhubarb in season or soaked dried fruit can replace apples in Brown Betty? (Try it with prunes or apricots.)
Best apple sauce is made from unpared apples?
(Better flavor and better color.)

FAVORITE RECIPES— APPLE BROWN BETTY

9 ½-inch-thick slices bread
3 tablespoons butter
3 cups thinly sliced apples (6 to 5 apples)
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Remove crusts from bread, cut in small cubes and saute in butter until evenly browned. Mix apples with sugar and cinnamon. Arrange alternate layers of bread and apples in greased pudding dish. Cover and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Uncover and bake until brown about 15 minutes longer. Serve hot with top milk or sauce. Yield 6 servings.

STEWED DRIED APRICOTS

Wash dried apricots and soak until plump in just enough water to cover. Cover and simmer in same water about 20 minutes, until fruit is soft. Add sugar to taste and stir until dissolved. Cool covered, to obtain thick syrup.

After you have tried one this diet for a week, write a 500-word essay describing either the economies you have effected or the benefits you have derived. The Health League of Canada will award a ten dollar ($10.00) prize to the writer of the best essay.

The Weekly Newspaper

Plays Very Important Part in Life Of Canada

The weekly newspaper now is "the real focus of local loyalty along with the church and the school," Dr. James S. Thomson, president of the University of Saskatoon, told delegates to the convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association at Saskatoon.

"With the growth of urban life our civilization has largely deteriorated," Dr. Thomson said. "We must look to the rural areas and the small towns for fresh streams of new life to cleanse our common life, therefore the rural church, the rural school and the small paper have an enormously important part to play in the shaping of the future."

Dr. Thomson said the war has brought a new and fundamental encounter with the basic questions of human existence. "We can no longer deal with these problems by the method of appointment and drift. The conspiracy of indifference must be broken and the time for any superficial views in education had come to an end.

"We must go forward but our success depends on the quality of the values —such as are provided by religion.

"The churches of North America have agreed on a general advance, using the methods of education The is a new evidence of co-operation in this venture by the taking of religious teaching into our school system. Such amounts to a revolutionary change in North American life.

"But the churches realize also that all that touches life is education Chief among these influences is the press."

Polio Precautions

Fly Is Branded As Carrier Of This Dread Disease

Recent research tends to prove that one means by which infantile paralysis is spread far and wide is the common house fly. Long suspected of being connected in some way with the spread of this dread disease, the fly is branded a carrier by investigators at the University of Cincinnati and Yale.

Last summer during polio outbreaks thousands of flies were trapped in the danger areas. Solutions made from these were given to monkeys in feedings or injections. Down came the monkeys with polio.

As a result of parallel investigations by the Ontario Department of Health Dr. John T. Phair, chief medical officer says: "We have found polio virus, which was still highly potent, four months after we had collected the flies killed and preserved them."

In reviewing what is now known about the method of spread of poliomyelitis, Harold J. Kirby, Ontario Minister of Health, points out that the disease may result from contact with those actually suffering from it; from contact with carriers who probably never had the disease; and by exposure to the excretions of both polio cases and carriers. This exposure may be either direct or through the medium of contaminated water or flies.

In the event of poliomyelitis occurring in any community, Health Minister Kirby recommends the following procedure: Keep all children away from crowds, wash fruits (contains and uncooked vegetables before serving; boil all water which is not adequately chlorinated and all milk which is not pasteurized; caution against bathing or swimming in contaminated water; destroy all flies.

Large sums of money and competent research specialists have been devoted to make insecticides efficient fly killers. For example, scientists of the Mellon Research Foundation were employed to perfect Fly-Tox. Insecticides act on the principle that flies breathe through nerves in their bodies. A fine mist of the chemical is blown into the air by means of a sprayer and kills every fly it touches. Science, in some cases such as Fly-Tox, has succeeded in making the insecticide odorless and harmless to humans, and proof against staining wallpaper and fine fabrics

But the main fact to remember if these late findings regarding flies and polio are correct, is kill that fly first. him by whatever means you wish as long as you do kill him.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

"What, more drill!" You've probably heard your friends in the services grumble about drill. I've done it myself. And I've joined in arguments in which John Citizens have held forth on the subject.

In the early days of this new war I found myself lending a ready ear to complaints that "Bow and arrow soldiers" were wasting the boys' time with a lot of "barrack-square stuff."

And for quite a long time, although for its precision and snappiness I like drill, I was inclined to subscribe to the opinion that a lot of it was wasted time, and to label myself a "bow and arrow soldier."

Two weeks ago, when I was first introduced to the new "battle drill," I began to see the light. I suppose the reason for that was because I had to convince Reserve Army recruits that there is a reason for the drill and the growth of their early army life is devoted.

In order to supply myself with good reasons to pass along I had to think about the subject considerably more than I had previously and, as is so often the case, the whole thing fell into a pattern.

Until then my sole excuse for drill had been that it is necessary in the early days of a soldier's training to teach him that he is part of it was and that the group is not capable of functioning as a unit until it has become trained through constant practice. In addition, of course, there is the fact that a body of men marching under complete discipline will move with less fatigue than a similar body waltzing at random.

I hadn't thought of the origin of the drill or the underlying reasons for its institution And I probably wouldn't have puzzled that out for myself yet if it hadn't been necessary for me to study the "battle drill" that is now a part of army training.

There have been one or two articles about Battle Drill written in England and published in Canadian papers. One of them, by Captain Kirk Seattle, Toronto newspaperman, who is now Press Liaison Officer at Corps Headquarters, emphasized that it had been received with enthusiasm by the Canadians, but did not go into much detail about the drill itself.

Two reasons for this lack of detail could be that a written description of a drill is a pretty dull subject or that for security reasons no details of the drill are to be made public.

For either or both of these reasons this column will content itself with saying that Battle Drill is a series of exercises designed to make each battle field habits instinctive and that the drill, which can be carried out literally anywhere, is practical and does just what it intended.

Introduction to Battle Drill gave me a shock and brought the realization that "drill" actually can have a goal, that its purpose is not necessarily a substitute and it had Object.

From that shock came the reasoning that "barrack-square soldiering" probably had its origin in something equally useful in the days "away back when."

Now, this is mere supposition, why could not the origin of "form platoon" have been for the purpose of teaching soldiers how to form squares rapidly and instinctively in the days when the "square" was the unit of battle formation?

You remember those gaily-coloured chromos of British infantrymen in battle don't you? The front rank knelt and with its fixed bayonets formed a sort of "cheval de frise" for the protection of the rear rank which stood with muskets poised ready to mow down attackers by volleys.

It is easy enough to picture the troops marching to battle in columns of fours and to imagine the command, "at the halt on the left, form half company." Forming two deep as they carried out the order, the leading group would then be in position to meet a cavalry charge.

It sounds reasonable, doesn't it? And at that time the drill would have as much to recommend it as Battle Drill has today.

Off the battle field it is still necessary to have drill, movements for the orderly handling of troops, and for soldiers of the Individual Citizen's Army drill has it uses too.

Drill for civilians? Sure! We've all been drilling ever since gasoline was rationed. That particular drill didn't affect us all, but the best one BE!

That's right! Sugar! But even more important than the absolute rationing of sugar announced May 26 was the voluntary rationing of tea and coffee we were asked to carry out.

It was a drill, a drill to train us for the battle field when absolute rationing of tea and coffee should come. How seriously we took that drill governs our fitness to "take it" when that war has no choice.

The soldier or sailor or airman expects to be given orders that will coordinate individuals so that they can carry out a joint job.

We soldiers behind the lines will have more and stern orders to obey before this job is done—let's do our drill cheerfully and be ready for what is to come.

Same In The West

Weekly Newspapers Are Carrying On With Reduced Staff

The Advance, Ont., Echo says: The war is making serious inroads on the staffs of weekly newspapers and we doubt, if there is a paper in Ontario, that is not trying to get along with a greatly reduced staff. The situation is getting more acute every day. This will mean smaller papers and a condensation of news if the newspapers are to continue. It would be a shame if any great number of weekly newspapers were forced to suspend publication due to lack of help and patronage. It is the duty of every merchant and citizen to lend a hand through advertising patronage or otherwise to see that such a condition will not come to pass.

Canada Conveys Admiration To Boys Overseas

Ottawa.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King cabled Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander-in-chief of the Canadian army overseas, that the people of Canada shared with the Canadian troops raiding Dieppe "the satisfaction of their opportunity to strike a telling blow at a Nazi stronghold."

He asked Gen. McNaughton to convey to the officers and men taking part in the raid "the expression of our deep admiration of their memorable exploit."

The text of Mr. King's cable follows:

"All Canada has been deeply stirred by the account of the raid on Dieppe. We were proud to learn that Canadian troops had been given the most place in the operation. The courage and determination shown by the men of Canada's army was no surprise. We all knew there were no finer disciplined or more resolute men in any fighting force. We were delighted to know that in the magnificent support given by the navy and air forces there were large numbers of our own air force.

"Through the long hard months of training and waiting for action, the people at home have shared the impatience of our soldiers, and we shared with them the satisfaction of their opportunity to strike a telling blow at a Nazi stronghold.

"Our hearts are filled with sympathy for the families of those who fell in action, and for the wounded and missing. Their sacrifice has strengthened the country's determination to give the utmost support to our fighting men on land, at sea and in the air.

"Will you convey, on behalf of the government and the people of Canada, to the officers and men who participated in the operation the expression of our deep admiration of their memorable exploit."

CLOSE CHECK-UP

Shows Excess Sugar Has Been Purchased For Canning Purposes

Vancouver, — Questionnaires from the ration division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board noting purchases of stated amounts of sugar for canning purposes and asking when inspectors of the ration division may call have been sent to many Vancouver housewives, it was learned.

A spokesman for the Vancouver office of the board said "There is no doubt that some women have been chiselling sugar for purposes other than canning," and that several hundred fractions had been disclosed through similar check-ups in other parts of Canada.

Ottawa.—After Sept. 1, printed matter addressed to neutral countries in Europe will not be permitted to leave Canada and the United States unless it is shipped direct from the office of publication.

The announcement, made by War Services Minister Thorson at the same time as it was made in Washington, said the new ruling applies to clippings as well as to complete copies of publications.

The arrangements were made by United States and Canadian censorship authorities.

FUEL PROBLEM

Signs Of Early Winter In Europe Causing Widespread Concern

Berne, Switzerland.—Signs of an unusually early winter have been reported from central and northern Europe, giving rise to widespread concern over the continent's inadequate fuel supplies.

An early winter, it was pointed out, also would have a direct bearing on military campaigns. Along northern sectors of the east front early freezing would be a substantial aid to the Russians.

Newspapers reaching here brought reports of early frosts in villages of northern Sweden. In the region of Taasjoe, potato plants were nipped by frost and the growth of grain was retarded. In the provinces of Jamtland a Stockholm despatch stated, extensive damage was done to crops by snow.

MEET IN CAIRO

Leader Of Fighting French Had Long Talk With Churchill

London.—Prime Minister Churchill had a long conversation with Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the fighting French, in Cairo recently, the Fighting French press service announced.

It said the conversation was "most cordial and covered all subjects relative to French-British co-operation in the Middle East.

Post-War Plans Must Include Work For All

Calgary.—Full and secure employment for every man and woman who desires it must be the general theme of post-war reconstruction policies in Canada, Dr. F. Cyril James, principal of McGill University, told the Dominion Association of Chartered Accountants in a annual convention here.

"That is not a new idea, but I think its modern concept transcends the definition which governed prior to 1939," said Dr. James, who is chairman of the ... tion committee of recruiting which ...

"We are not only concerned with providing employment in order that a man and his family may eat; we must find opportunities for employment which engage man's spiritual energy, which develop an esprit de corps, which encourage each individual to put forth his best efforts because he realizes that the work which he is doing is itself a contribution to the creation of a better society."

Dr. James said there were three main aspects of reconstruction policy, which he defined as:

1. Policies dealing with that group of problems which is wholly within the powers of the Canadian people.

2. That group of policies in which the problems transcend national frontiers

3. Policies in regard to that overriding group of problems which are international, in the sense that solution can only be attained by the co-operation of servers of the leading governments of the world

MAY EXCEED GOAL

U.S. War Production Board Boosts Its Shipbuilding Schedule

Washington.—The United States war production board expects to see President Roosevelt's shipbuilding goal for this year—8,000,000 deadweight tons—not only achieved but surpassed by about 10 per cent. The production board has boosted its schedule close to 8,000,000 tons for the year, it was disclosed by an official.

Approval of the increase scheduled by the maritime commission means that the board feels itself ready to give assurance that sufficient steel plates and shapes will be on hand to send perhaps 80 or 90 more cargo vessels into the water than were previously scheduled.

The best shipbuilding record so far achieved was July's record output of 71 ships weighing 790 000 deadweight tons. The monthly average will have to hit more than 1,000,000 tons to accomplish the new schedule.

BELGIANS FINED

Have To Pay Large Sum For Attempts Against Nazis

London.—The Free Belgian news agency reported that the Germans had fined Brussels 2,000,000 francs for eight "armed attempts" in 10 days.

One, it said was a dynamite explosion which damaged premises of the "Black Brigade," militarized formation of the Flemish Nazi movement.

Meanwhile a German language University in Belgium was reaching Stockholm disclosed that Brussels university would be closed because of the "hostile attitude of Belgian professors."

In Two Months British Took 10,000 Axis Prisoners In Egypt

Cairo.—A farewell message to the British 8th army from Gen Sir Claude Auchinleck announced that in the last two months in Egypt Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has lost 10,000 Axis troops in prisoners alone.

"In the last two weeks," the retiring Middle East commander told his forces, "you have at upped the enemy and forced him on the defensive."

The Egyptian battlefront remained quiet as Gen. Sir Harold Alexander took up his new job as Britain's Middle East commander and an newly-arrived United States troops bolstered the Allied reserves for the next phase of the fight.

Experts Think Japs Unable To Establish Air Bases In Aleutians

Anchorage, Alaska.—The fact that American bomber pilots did not encounter land-based aerial opposition in their raids on Kiska and other Japanese-held islands of the outer Aleutians has led to belief the enemy has been unable to establish landing fields in those islands.

An officer of the U.S. army air force said the Japanese were using single-float seaplane fighters based on carriers nor on land, but that this apparently was the total extent of their air defence.

Reasons for the enemy's failure to create usable runways either on the Kiska beaches or in the rocky uplands are in doubt here inasmuch as it is known the attempt has been made.

Some persons familiar with the Aleutians peculiar geological formations believe the usually efficient Japs may have run into an unexpected dy stuff is recognized.

Proposal Has Been Received From Moslems

New Delhi.—The working committee of the Moslem league issued a resolution declaring it will consider any proposal for establishment of a provisional government in India, but at the same time warning that Moslems will resist attempts from any quarter to interfere with their peaceful occupations.

The resolution was approved by the committee after several days discussion during which it underwent modifications. It said the league would be willing to negotiate with any other political parties provided Moslem insistence on the principle of Pakistan separate Moslem and Hindus by states is recognized.

The league called upon the British government to issue an unequivocal declaration guaranteeing Moslem rights to self-determination.

Transfer To The U.S. Forces Now Complete

Ottawa. An exchange of notes between Canada and the United States made public by the external affairs department disclosed that more than 2,000 United States citizens formerly serving in the Canadian armed forces have transferred to the United States armed forces under a military transfer agreement between the two countries drawn up last March

Transfers under the agreement, which accords the same right to Canadians serving in the United States forces, now are "virtually complete" the notes disclosed

The Canadian note, dated July 10, was addressed to State Secretary Cordell Hull and signed by Hon. Leighton G. McCarthy, Canadian minister in Washington

In his reply, Mr. Hull said

"... Should appreciate your adding my personal view that these young men who have now returned to serve in the American forces will constitute a group of ambassadors of goodwill to spread through the United States the story of Canada's great contribution to the common war effort"

Air Minister Power, in a message to Prime Minister Mackenzie King quoted the Canadian note, expressed appreciation to those American citizens who early in the war came to own assistance and, of their own volition, volunteered for service in the initial organization and operation of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

CANTEEN-WATSON RED CROSS NOTES

Members of the Canteen-Watson Red Cross spent a pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sadie Odenberg of Tolland on August 19th when the meeting took the form of a quilting party. A very pretty quilt top was donated by the hostess, and was quilted during the course of the afternoon. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. H. Portenuik of Hillville on October 20th when it is hoped most of the harvest operations will be completed and a good attendance of members can be expected.

Five blankets have been received from the woollen mills which have been manufactured from woollen rags collected some time ago. These are being forwarded to the Vermilion branch for use where they are needed most.

CAR-SHARE PLAN IS URGED BY A. M. A.

Striving to aid in the country's war effort, the Automobile Manufacturers Association is urging motorists in 88 more or less congested areas to share their own province during the holiday period.

Alberta has 8,000 square miles of national parks, a scenic wonderland that cannot be eclipsed anywhere, and still beckoning to visitors.

"New Alberta First" might well be the slogan in these critical times, when the normal questions are ways and means of conserving gasoline and rubber.

Vacationists have been urged to select holiday spots reasonably near their homes, which, in a great percentage of cases, will meet vacation requirements to the letter times.

Another suggestion which has been urged by motor club officials in Canada and the United States is the extension of the share-your-car plan. Adoption of this sharing plan for your relatives and friends will aid in conservation as the car can be used to maximum passenger capacity. Other wise, rubber and gasoline will be consumed by some other person's car, operated possibly at one-quarter or one-half passenger capacity.

LABOR FOR THRESHING

Every effort possible is an unusually heavy crop this year in the Prairie provinces. Many young men have left the farms to join the Armed Forces, sometimes younger and older men, girls and young women have left to answer the call to work in munitions factories. There will, quite evidently, therefore, be a serious shortage of

CURRENCY FLASHES

Alex Stone had a painful experience last week when he was badly stung by a black hornet. Medical attention was given him as well as a day or two in the hospital. The black hornet is a poisonous biter.

Mrs. Bud Wilson and son Stanley returned to Edmonton after spending a week at the Wilson home.

Mrs. Potter has her son staying with her for a few weeks. He was badly injured during manoeuvres in England which necessitated the amputation of one leg several months ago. He plans on returning to England when he is fit again. He enlisted in the Calgary Highlanders.

Dr. Jessie Allyn and Miss Laura Allyn who formerly lived in Indis are visiting their sister Mrs. Edward Dyer for a few weeks. Perhaps they will try their hand at stooking while here.

Miss Daphne Hogan of the R.C.A.F. (W.D.), spent a few days last week at her family home, looking fine and fit.

Mrs. Brent Marnash has gone to Edmonton to visit her parents Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard for a few weeks while she convalesces from her recent operation.

Vernie (Red) Arthur of the R.C.A.F. is visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. Alex Arthur, for a few days until an east coast port and this is his first visit home since joining the air force.

Mr. and Mrs. Bus Harle and family spent the week end at the home of the latter's parents Mr and Mrs. Burns at Pahpan. Miss Molly and Miss Rita Burns returned with them to stay a week or so.

We hear that our new teacher is Miss Evelyn Bruce of Minburn.

Mrs. Wilson celebrated her 60th birthday last week with a small family dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Brunk and family were the only guests. Mrs. Woodruff called during the afternoon to wish the birthday girl well and to present Mrs. Wilson with the most beautiful bouquet of flowers of all colors and shapes, which was very much appreciated. Mrs. Brunk was also remembered by gifts from her family and from the absent sons of the family.

We hear that W. J. Marnash has bought a combine this year and has also sold all his sheep.

Labor to harvest and to thrash this coming crop.

As in similar years in the past there are, however, certain things which can be done. High school boys can be given leave from school, and soldiers from the farms now in training can be given temporary leave from their units to help harvest the crop. Business and professional men in country towns and villages will also be able to assist. Farm neighbors too, will of course, help each other. Above all, however, it is hoped that the Government should make use of the large quantity of skilled American labor which will soon be available because of the earlier harvest in the U. S. Northwest. The Canadian and U.S. Governments merely need to make simple regulations permitting these men to cross the international boundary easily and freely.

This can be done, and it certainly should be done, to help bring in our harvest which will form a most important munition of war.

Following factors have tended to decrease supply or increase demand: The food situation in the European countries of Europe continues poor—Spain has conclused an agreement to take 20 million bushels of Argentine grain—The advance of the German armies in the rich Caucasus region imperils about 12% of Russia's winter wheat acreage.

Following factors have tended to increase supply or decrease demand: Canadian and U.S.A. crop prospects are the best in many years — Great Britain plans to increase wheat acreage by 400,000 acres next year — Argentine supplies of wheat for export on July 27th were 196 million bushels compared with 111 million bushels last year.

RAILWAY EAKER TO GET BOAT OIL FROM VERMILION

The Canadian National Railways is sufficiently anxious to get more fuel oil from that tank will be available to operators to drill additional wells as fast as possible, we are informed

Requirements of the railway are said to be in excess of 1,000 barrels daily, compared with the present rate of production of some 425 barrels from the thirteen wells now on steady production. Two other wells have been brought in during the last few days and another will be completed before the end of the month.

Production from the field can be increased at a rapid rate if the funds are available, since the productive horizon is located between 1,000 and 1,200 feet, which means speedy drilling at low cost. A well can be drilled to completion within thirty hours in the most favorable circumstances, it is understood. Difficulties or delays are encountered. — Toronto Globe and Mail.

Bowen, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, was a guest of the people of Vermilion last Friday following the graduation exercises of the first C.W.A.C. class at the Vermilion training centre The board of trade gave a banquet in his honor during the evening at the Masonic hall at which some sixty visitors and business men gathered Guests in the Lieutenant-Governor's party were Mr. Frank Pike, well known Edmonton business man, Mr. White of the Canadian National Passenger Department and Capt Gillies Other guests at the luncheon were Brigadier Harvey, officer commanding M.D. No. 12, Calgary; Lieut.-Col. His Honor chose for his topic "the Canadianism" and gave a truly inspirational address which had the effect of making all present very proud that they were Canadians.

The Lieutenant-Governor's address was followed by a fighting talk from Brigadier Harvey, Officer commanding Military District No. 12. Brigadier touched on the C.W.A.C. graduation held earlier in the day. "There are less women in the Army now" he said, "and we want less more as soon as facilities are available for training them. These girls are releasing A category men for active service. The Brigadier also appealed for Vermilion citizens to open their homes to the C.W.A.C. girls stationed here. "These girls want some place to go to relax They want to sit down in someone's home and forget about work and the army." He went on to state that the armories would soon be placed at the disposal of some Vermilion organization to use as a hostel to make a home away from home, away from the barracks and away from army environment. They want in drop in sit down, read a paper, write a letter and enjoy a cup of tea, and he hoped that a local organization would be quick to put the armories to proper use.

The speaker stated his pride at being a Canadian, "there is no country like it" he said, "and no country with its possibilities". In his opinion however we had failed to instil in our people, our youth and our new Canadians, a proper appreciation of this great country of ours.

Brigadier Harvey's straight from the shoulder talk, in which he touched on some additional topics to those notated, gave much food for thought and was earnestly listened to Mr Frank Pike spoke briefly and voiced the thanks to the speakers and to the visitors were moved by S. C. Hackbert and E. M. Stewart.

The catering for the banquet was done by the ladies of the Anglican W.A. and was warmly praised by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, and the speakers.

CHATSWORTH CHATTER

Harvesting became general throughout this district last week but Monday's rain has set some more behind in operations. On Sunday night 30th we had a light frost which blackened the gardens but did little damage otherwise. Lodged grain and buckwheat is causing quite a deal of trouble in cutting — and in handling, wet ground where even the steel-wheeled tractors have difficult footing.

School re-opens here on Tuesday with Miss Trudeau of Edmonton as teacher.

Miss May Hindmarch was a recent visitor at Mr. and Mrs. Jim Panter's where she met Mrs. Hindmarch and Miss Margaret Panter of the C.W.A.C., Vermilion, was also a visitor at the same home recently.

Mr. Klassbinsky, who has been quite ill, is home and around again.

Mr. E. C. Hughes who spent six weeks holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Panter and Dave, went back to Edmonton last week.

Mrs. A. J. Fuehs, Jimmie and Keith, of Acme, Alta., are now living at Jim Thompson's. Mr Fuehs has joined the R.C.A.F. as a mechanic. Keith and Jimmie will attend school at Chatsworth.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lyons and two children, of Toronto, are visiting Toronto, are visiting Mrs. Lyons' mother, Mrs. McKee. They arrived on Aug. 1st and have also spent some time visiting Mrs. Lyon's sister, Mrs. Geo. Garland of Vermilion, and Mrs. O. Bidne, Westlock.

Mr. [illegible] Koe is home on harvest leave.

Miss Gwen Dunsmore of Vermilion was a visitor at Mr. and Mrs. Archie Gault's for a few days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Gaud were visitors to Islay on Sunday 23rd.

Jane and Jackie Thompson spent the 22nd and 23rd in hospital having their tonsils removed.

Margaret and David Tovell, Lois Hendrikson and Charlotte Ferguson are continuing their high school work in Vermilion.

Harry Fergusen has gone to New Westminster, B.C. where he has obtained work.

Mrs. James Tovell is a patient in the Vermilion hospital. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. Pirh of the south mission field of the United church exchanged places with Mr. Lemkay last Sunday. The summer has passed so quickly there is but one more service to be held before the students return to their colleges.

RATION BOOK 1 IS IN THE MAIL

Cleared through post offices in Edmonton and Calgary are 818,000 ration books for sugar, tea and coffee for Albertans, is be in the hands of the population by Sept. 7. On that date all Canadians will have their new ration books, each coupon for the month numbered, qualifying each Canadian to the same amount of sugar, tea and coffee.

On the cover of each little book is the name and address of the owner, and a serial number. In case of error — and it is possible when 12,000,000 books have been written by clerical staffs of ration boards throughout Canada — report should be made promptly to the nearest ration office. Too many pages of coupons, or too few, should be reported. Children under 12 have had the coupons for tea and coffee deleted from their books. If in any case those pages have been left in, for children under age for the tea and coffee ration, parents or mothers will promptly return them to the Board.

There are five pages of coupons in the book. The coupons are numbered up to 13, pink for sugar, green for tea, and coffee. Supplementary pages in shades of blue, brown and grey for use in emergency only, are labelled "Spare B," "C" and "D."

P. O. BANS MAILING OF PAPERS BY INDIVIDUALS TO OVERSEAS ADDRESSES

A recent bulletin issued by the Post Office Department bans the mailing by individuals of complete newspapers to overseas addresses. This is the text of the announcement:

"To conserve shipping space for vital war needs it is necessary to restrict the mailing of newspapers and periodicals sent to civilians and the armed forces in the United Kingdom and the Trans-Atlantic destinations as well as to places in Central and South America, Bermuda and the British West Indies. Complete papers and periodicals cannot be mailed to those destinations.

"Instead of mailing the complete newspaper or magazine, publishers are requested to send only clippings of special interest."

The ban does not apply to papers mailed on subscriptions direct from newspaper offices.

SALLY EXPLAINS

Beloved friend of the soldier of the first great war and untiring social worker for the past sixty years, the Salvation Army is the victim of a misunderstanding which must be explained to the people of Canada. Officials of the Army are publicly assailed by rallying to the fighting men of 1914 18, is in need of funds to carry on her valued social work on the home front and is soliciting for funds. The appeal in September with the full approval of the government at Ottawa.

During the recent Red Cross drive the point stressed most was that it would be the only drive for funds during 1942 since the Dominion government was financing the war work of all other organizations such as the Red Cross, Canadian Legion, Knights of Columbus and the Salvation Army. While the statement was made in all sincerity at that time, it was not realized that it failed to take into account the valuable work that is being done by the Salvationists among our civilian population.

When that fact was pointed out to government officials they quickly recognized their error and granted permission for a nation-wide appeal but the damage had already been done and the Salvation Army is faced with the task of correcting the misunderstanding in the minds of most Canadians.

The amount to be asked will, of course, be much smaller in proportion to the sum required by the Red Cross but the need is great and the record of the Salvation Army in all branches of social service shows them deserving of the fullest support.

Canadians no doubt will understand the position of our "Sally" and make her task easier with a fine spirit of generosity when the appeal is made in September. "As ye saw, so shall ye reap," and if the Salvation Army receives the wholehearted support that it gives our men in the fighting forces its modest request for funds will be far exceeded. —Wetaskiwin Times.

Admiral Tells About The Work Of Eastern Fleet

At Headquarters of the Commander-in-Chief of the British Mediterranean Fleet.—Breaking his silence for the first time since assuming command of the eastern Mediterranean fleet, Admiral Sir Henry H. Harwood declared he does two enemies to whip in the Mediterranean—the Axis and geography.

In one of the clearest explanations of the naval situation in this sea yet given to newsmen, the admiral bluntly said Britain may has a big job to do and he would rather talk about it after it is done.

Sir Henry was handed one of the toughest naval commands in this war as successor to Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, now on duty in Washington.

"Geography is the essence of the whole naval problem out here—geography and airpower," he said.

He pointed out on big charts in his office the Axis air bases in Crete, Sicily, Greece, Dodecanese Islands, Pantelleria and Libya and the ease with which enemy bombers can swoop upon the fleet within a few hours after it put out to sea.

He emphasized that adequate air protection was the key to successful naval operation, although there may come a time, when the warships alone must risk all in an effort to carry out a vital task.

Too busy to see newsmen until now because of the press of work connected with supplying and guiding the stockily-built, blue-eyed admiral 54 years old, received correspondents for nearly an hour in the big room of his office in an old chateau-like building amidst putent pines along the Mediterranean seafront.

The admiral declared "there is no way of knowing how much or what types" of reinforcements the Axis has been able to get across the Mediterranean from Italy and Sicily. But he said he believed the Nazis had used air transports extensively as well as ships to pour fresh manpower into the Axis fighting reservoir.

The admiral did say that British submarines were doing excellent work destroying Libya-bound convoys while surface craft and planes are looking any chance to send an Italian warship or supply ship to the bottom.

He did not, however, supply any figures on the percentages of Axis ships lost in these operations.

Along with barrying the enemy's lines of communications, the admiral disclosed warships have been constantly bombarding Axis coastal positions and bases such as Matruh, Egypt, with occasional forays now to the north to the Dodecanese Islands.

Admiral Harwood said that what the British army succeeds in pushing the Nazis out of Benghazi the British command then would be in a position to afford adequate fighter protection for the harbor and convoys materially would permit bigger and more extended operations.

He said no clearcut information of the situation in the Pacific because of the difficulties of getting accurate information but jokingly remarked that if the Japanese lose all cruisers which have been reported hit they would have run out of cruisers weeks ago

The admiral said that as far as he knew there were no American warships in the Mediterranean. Axis broadcasts frequently have referred to "strong formations" of American warships here

INCREASE NOTED

Death Rate In Canada From Tuberculosis Higher Last Year

Ottawa. — The Canadian Tuberculosis Association, in a statement said Canada had not been able to escape "the effects of world war on the problem of tuberculosis" and there had been an increase in the death rate from this disease last year.

The association said that Dominion bureau of statistics figures for 1941 showed the actual number of deaths had risen from 5,790 to 6,087 and the rate from 50.6 to 53.1 per 100,000 of population.

The association said the figures represented "a warning and a challenge" and demanded that Canada carry on anti-tuberculosis activities.

For the first time since vital statistics have been recorded in Canada, Saskatchewan did not maintain its record of the lowest rate in the Dominion. In 1941 the death rate for Saskatchewan increased to 32.2 from 29.7, while Ontario showed a rate of 29.2, lower than Saskatchewan but with an increase from 28.7 per 100,[illegible]

MAY BE LOWER

Cost Of Living More Likely To Fall Than Rise

Winnipeg.—Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, federal minister of labor, in a statement, said that since the introduction of price control last autumn he cost of living index has risen only one-tenth as much as in the comparable period of the last war.

The statement says that during the nine months since control was introduced last October, the index had risen only two and four-tenths of a point. During the corresponding period of the First Great War (Sept. 1916, to June, 1917) the index rose seven times as much, the advance being 18 points.

"The index shows that 78 per cent of the increase since last October arises from higher prices for these products, namely, beef, potatoes and [illegible]

"All in all the cost of living is more likely to fall than rise in the next few months," the statement said

INCREASE IN SUGAR BEET CROP

Will Start Moving In Alberta In About Two Weeks

Lethbridge.—Alberta's 1942 sugar beet production will start moving to the province's two processing plants shortly after the middle of the month and is expected to yield more than 110,000,000 pounds of sugar, or about one-third of the Dominion's entire requirements for a year under the present rationing regulations.

This record-setting volume of sugar is expected from what at this time promises to become a record production of beets off the largest area ever sown to that crop in this province.

In response to appeals of the Dominion government, Alberta's sugar beet industry concentrate in the irrigated district, added 4,000 acres to the growing of beets and last spring the crop was planted on 27,800 [illegible]

New Board Will Help In Release Of Information

Ottawa. Charles Vining, 48, of Montreal, government newsprint administrator and veteran newspaperman, has been placed at the head of a new "wartime information board with responsibility only to Prime Minister Mackenzie King."

Mr. King announced creation of the board following a long meeting of the war committee of the cabinet with which the new board will work.

Size of the board was not indicated in the announcement but the Prime Minister said its members will be announced shortly. They will be representatives of government departments engaged in war activities.

The Wartime Information Board will function under a chairman and vice-chairman and will be an interdepartmental body. It will be related directly to the war committee of the cabinet and responsible to the prime minister as president of the privy council and chairman of the war committee. The members of the board will be representatives of the several ministers whose departments are most closely concerned with war news

The inter-departmental character of the board and its direct relationship to the war committee are means of assuring more effective co-operation between departments and of assuring immediate access to the main sources of war news Continuous contact with the war committee will be provided by close association between the chairman of the board and the secretary of the war committee

The primary purpose and function of the board will be to improve the flow of information about the war to the Canadian people and to facilitate the prompt and full release of all information which can be used without imperilling the war effort. The board will confine itself to war news and information, it will not be concerned with other action or policies of the government except insofar as they are related to news or information about Canada's war effort

The board will not supersede or exercise direct authority over the existing information staffs of the various departments As recommended by Mr Vining, the department of national war services will continue to be the source of news but the board will be in a position to bring about coordination and greater effectiveness in the handling of the news

STILL BIG MENACE

Germany's Construction Of U-Boats Keeping Up With Losses

London — Despite heavy aerial attacks on U-boat yards and bases, German undersea leaders still constantly menace Allied shipping, official circles said

The output of German submarines remains large and the Allies must depend on anti-U-boat devices to protect shipping, a source said. "The submarine threat is still very grave and our attitude toward it should recognize this fact."

The comment followed reports of increased sinkings of U-boats in the Atlantic and a reduction of Allied shipping losses on the sea lanes off the American coast.

The Germans are devoting their entire naval building program to the construction of U-boats and therefore can afford material losses the commentator said.

The loss of submarine crews is the important thing to Germany, he added. "The Nazis particularly feel the loss of U-boat commanders who must have experience to be successful"

REPLACE YOUNG MEN

Montreal. There are 20 new steel mass a blers in Norway today according to information reaching the information bureau here. It reported that to a large extent young Britons troops have been withdrawn from the country and replaced by older men who give the Norwegians the impression of being deprived and apprehensive of the future

SOLE SURVIVOR

Gun Gunner Thrown Clear When Sunderland Flying Boat Crashed

London —What happened to the Sunderland flying boat that carried the Duke of Kent to his death against a mountainside in the Scottish highlands may be told by a flight sergeant who turned up as the sole survivor of the air crash in which it had been believed all the crew perished.

More than 24 hours after the plane crashed while taking the Duke on a war mission to Iceland Flt.-Sgt Andrew Jack, a 24-year-old Scots man was found dazedly stumbling through the heather

From the tail-gunners post he was thrown clear and had wandered about three miles from the scene, suffering burns on face, arms and legs, but not seriously injured In all, 14 were killed

Price Ceiling On Magazines And Papers Lifted

Ottawa. The wartime prices and trade board announced removal of the over-all price ceiling from Canadian and imported newspapers magazines and periodical publications in general, leaving the press free to adjust rates and safeguard its revenues

The exemption applies to newsstand and street sale prices and to subscription rates Advertising rates already are exempt

In announcing its decision the board said it carefully considered the administrator of publishing printing and allied industries showed that while the larger revenues had offset higher operating costs in 1940 and 1941, revenue recently had suffered a "serious decline"

"There are too many variations of circumstances to deal with each case individually so as to maintain a control of price," the board said "Accordingly, it has been decided to remove the over-all price ceiling and leave the press free to adjust rates and safeguard its revenues too so that freedom and independence of the press may be preserved

"This decision brings the Canadian regulations into conformity with those of the United States, where newspapers, magazines and periodicals were from the outset exempted from the price ceiling

Increase in the price of newspapers and magazines have been fairly general in the United States

There has been no uniformity in the increases, but in most cases it has been one cent in the case of newspapers, although in the south and far west many have raised their price from three to five cents In New York city afternoon newspapers raised the out-of-town price from three to four cents but inside the city limits the price remained unchanged

Many frequent magazines have been raised in price A number of higher priced periodicals also have gone up but in this group the increase has not been as general as in the five-cent class.

Wartime prices and trade board officials said that United States publications, in some cases available to Canadians at lower prices than in the country of publication, would be able to increase their Dominion rates.

The Lessons Of Dieppe Are Still Being Studied

Somewhere in England. Lt.-Gen A. G. L. McNaughton told a group of newsmen that "if anyone thinks we are going to sit back of the ditch, which in the channel he has another think coming."

Gen McNaughton was welcoming a group of visiting Canadian editors and other correspondents to army headquarters and naturally talks at the press conference centred on Dieppe

The lessons of Dieppe are still being studied, he said

"In combined operations it is necessary for each of the forces concerned learn each other's means and certain information obtained And after that is told to the enemy all that has been learned

"The general training that is necessary for Dieppe could not be carried out in secret — if much of that should be decided upon

Matters were gone at thoroughly he said. We have to develop and learn technique But just as in industry when you have the first models it grows easier

"There is one thing that should be said—the raid proved the alertness and courage under fire and the absolute devotion to duty of Canada's young officers and the confidence the men have in them

"The raid proved the three separate services can coordinate and carry out an action of that kind

He said he believed the fact the enemy had moved its dispositions into forward areas did not necessarily indicate advance knowledge of the specific raid

"It probably means he had a feeling that something probably would be done somewhere and made preparations"

He added "A great deal of useful information on enemy dispositions was obtained before the raid was made

"Training operations were carried out on the British coast on two occasions and there was great improvement between the first and second of these Every leader had full knowledge of what he had to do."

MONTREAL. — While experiments have been carried out with steel and concrete as railway crossties, wood continues to furnish the standard method of securing rails to the ground. The number of ties per mile of track on the Canadian National Railways rises to 3,250 on heavy traffic main line, each 29 foot rail requiring 24 crossties. In an average year the railways of Canada and the U. S. install about 60,000,000 crossties.

WILDMERE WINKS

Miss Evelyn Howard has taken a school near Prince George, B.C., for the next year.

Most of the schools, at least the ones which have teachers, opened this Tuesday morning for the fall term. We are fortunate in getting the services of one of our ex-teachers Mrs. John Wilson, who lives in east district as well. Miss Evelyn Green, the teacher who was to have come has gone to Triangle; also Myrtle Gibb, who has been shifted to Gantow, we hear Miss Hazel Gilldeen is at Battleview school.

Miss Gladys Wilkinson, Edgerton, spent a few days visiting at the Howard home last week. She has taken a teaching position in the city this year.

Gnr. Laurence Graham did not get home on harvest leave. On finishing his truck driving course at the trade school he was sent to another school in Toronto for a motor mechanic course.

Percy and Bobby Graham visited with Berna and Alice Sneffert Sunday after church. Tom Best was also a visitor at the same home.

Alec Love and family visited at the Paddon home Sunday. Later he and Mr. Fadden called at the Haines Bros.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Kenst from near Mowbray visited over the week end at Mrs. Kenst's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Gibson, Innewood. They took back their two sons who have spent the holidays with their grandparents.

It certainly is very poor harvesting weather these days, cloudy and rainy. Last year most all of the threshing in our part was over at this time. This year cutting is just slowly starting. Those boys who have gone back to harvest leave will have to return before they have been able to help much.

Many are wondering if the schools are going to continue throughout the winter on the new war time. Children having to go a distance will have to leave home in the dark. Then the daylight gets shorter eight or nine will find it still not light. It would be advisable if the schools anyway were using bus back to the old time through the winter months. What do others think along this line?

Stooks:... and pig feed are two very scarce commodities in our part right now.

Everyone at church on Sunday enjoyed the splendid Mission Sunday sermon given by Mr. Lemkay and hoped he could come again. This was more Sunday of church by Mr. Pick, then on Sept. 12 Rev. Sether will conduct communion service. Anyone wishing to help with the Ministry's salary, please bring it along on this Sunday if possible.

SEEDTIME AND HARVEST

Tough Grain

Tough or damp grain is like the fly in that the sooner you can get rid of it, the better. The farmer with tough grain will be in a tough (!) position this year. Due to the congestion in public storage, accommodation for tough grain will be extremely limited or entirely lacking.

The volume of tough grain is likely to be increased this year as a result of the more general use of combines, particularly in the hands of inexperienced operators who may start harvesting before the crop is ready.

The following suggestions are reproduced from a statement issued by the Manitoba Department of Agriculture. They have equal significance for Alberta and Saskatchewan farmers.

To Avoid Loss from Tough Grain

Allow grain in stook or swath to become thoroughly dry after a rain or heavy dew before threshing or harvesting.

Allow standing grain to become fully ripened before straight combining.

Weedy crops should be swathed before combining. Straight combining such crops adds to the moisture content of the threshed grain.

Farm Storage Suggestions

Wood sheds and other roofing material should be removed by cleaning before final storage.

Build up the floor, to prevent risk of spoilage.

Where grain must be stored on earth or concrete floors, a foot of straw covered with building or waterproof paper will assist in preventing spoilage. (Avoid use of tar paper.)

Avoid leaky roofs. Recheck defective areas.

Where labour permits, graft top soiled to be threshed may often be cleaned and sorted over satisfactorily to thresh at a later date.

There are no practical ways of drying tough grain on the farm.

Further particulars on farm storage of grain may be had by writing to your Provincial Department of Agriculture.

Weekly Press Essential

—Excerpt from report of C. V. Charters, Managing Director of Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association at the Annual Convention recently held in the city of Saskatoon.

"The weekly newspapers of Canada are more essential in the present emergency than ever before. Their influence and prestige are increasing. They must be kept functioning."

"Simply because printing presses and processes are readily convertible to making munitions doesn't mean that printing hasn't a big war job to do. People—all kinds of them, everywhere—have to be told and taught things. Not merely that they can't have automobiles and tires and a lot of other things they're used to. They need to be told how to use what they have—that many familiar products are of necessity packed in a different way—that substitutes are being or will be made to replace articles not available—that employee loyalty and hard work are positive war-winning contributions—that buying should be more intelligent—that savings are essential

"It's printing press' job to inform people of these and other conditions imposed by the nation's tremendous productive effort. That's a big undertaking, and in proportion as printing accomplishes it, printing will be doing its war work."

THE NATIONS DANCE FOR JIMMY GOWLER

The Nations Dance For Jimmy ...

When not otherwise engaged Jimmy Gowler, youthful Winnipeg musician and orchest a leader spent most of his waking hours a mile times. He chases them through Winnipeg's cosmopolitan streets, and through rural Manitoba when the opportunity offers. In some town or country home, some farmer or town dweller from Russia or Czechoslovakia or Norway or Sweden or, lastmark, home over a folk dance remembered from his light footed youth and Jimmy, with a stub pencil and the back of an envelope, jots it down. A week or so later you hear it on CBC's "Dances of the Nations (Sat. Nite at 10:30 p.m. M.D.T.). A few days ago some of Winnipeg's lovely young dancers from several national groups came down to the CBC studios during rehearsal to show Jimmy how the dances really went. Here they are: Miss Gladys Pundyk in Polish costume, is demonstrating a polonaise while standing by and clapping hands to the my music are Miss Marion Kummen, of Norway, and Miss Greta Hemmarstrand, of Sweden. Miss Kummen is the daughter of Mr C.T. Kummen, Winnipeg's Norwegian consul. The costumes worn by the young ladies are not only complete and authentic, but extremely valuable and, at present—almost irreplaceable.

MRS. MINIVER

By HALSEY RAINES

CHAPTER I.

Mrs. Kay Miniver, her great delusion of the day, having been made, hurried across the clamorous London railway station, and entered the first carriage of the train marked "Kent". As she looked across the aisle and caught sight of the vicar of her own village, her face lighted up, while at the same time she glanced a bit self-consciously at the basket she was carrying. That box concealed her secret.

"Why, Vicar!" she cried. "Isn't this nice?"

The vicar smiled, and offered to lift the box up in the rack. Mrs. Miniver demurred, and explained that she couldn't possibly run the risk of forgetting the bundle.

"I know the feeling," said the vicar understandingly, as he glanced at a smaller parcel beside him. "Guess what this is!"

Mrs. Miniver hesitated. "Port!" she ventured archly.

The vicar's voice descended to a stage whisper. "Worse than that," he answered. "Cigars!"

"Well, why shouldn't you?" asked Mrs Miniver. "My husband does."

"Ah, but he can afford it," responded the vicar.

A slightly roguish, self-accusatory look crossed Mrs. Miniver's face. "I'm not so sure," she said. "He has a very extravagant wife. At least he had today, but I couldn't resist that hat." She paused. "I do like things beyond my means sometimes."

Mrs. Miniver was an exceptionally young-looking woman to have a son at Oxford, and her face reflected a kind of warm, quiet dignity. Her three children and her husband idolized her.

Lady Beldon, who entered the carriage at that moment, was an aristocrat of the old school with almost a feudal sense of responsibility and graciousness. She was far beyond the three score and ten mark, but still made frequent shopping excursions to London.

"My dear man," she said, catching her breath, as she faced the vicar, "I've spent the whole afternoon buying pushed about by middle-class women, buying things they can't possibly afford!"

"Oh dear!" said Mrs. Miniver impulsively. "That means me."

Lady Beldon stared. She was unaccustomed to such candor. "You're Mrs. Manning, aren't you?" she asked. "The lawyer's wife?"

"No," rejoined her travelling companion quietly. "I'm Mrs. Miniver. And my husband's an architect."

"Hmm-m," sniffed Lady Beldon. "Got to be thrown off the trail, she returned to her first thought. "No wonder Germany's arming," she growled. "Everyone trying to be better than their betters. Middle-class government. That's the trouble. It's turned us into a nation of shop keepers."

The vicar excused himself, conceiving a smile, and in a moment Lady Beldon went browsing down the aisle in search of a vacant double seat.

Mr. Ballard, the white-haired station master and church bell-ringer, earned his living by recording tickets sales and supervising the flow of travel traffic, but he had a keener interest than that. It was floriculture, and in particular roses. When Mrs. Miniver paused to admire the handsome new rose he had developed, Mr. Ballard drew back and remarked:

"I've got a name for it, if you'll give me your permission."

"Of course, but I don't—" began Mrs. Miniver, puzzled.

"I want to call it the 'Mrs. Miniver,'" said Mr. Ballard gravely. "You remind me of the flower."

Mrs. Miniver was genuinely touched. "It's a lovely compliment," she said, when she recovered from her surprise. "I'd be very happy to have you name the rose after me."

"I'm going to enter it in the flower show this year," Mr. Ballard told his assistant after she had left. "Lady Beldon's been winning the prize for the best rose every year, but it'll be different this time."

Tommy and Judy, the two younger Miniver children, were much excited when their f r s returned home, especially the family cat, had turned a bit pale around the gills after partaking of some left-over salmon. He was recovering, however. After dinner, when the youngsters had been sent to bed, Mrs. Miniver fidgeted about while she tried to figure out the most discreet way of breaking the news about her London extravagance. Then, her husband, suddenly paused over his coffee and said:

"Tires are getting pretty worn on that old bus."

"Clem," said Mrs. Miniver, "you ought to buy yourself a new tire." She looked birds' eye fashion at him. "It shouldn't cost any more than — well, a hat, should it?"

"A hat?" said Clem blankly. "Why, no I suppose not. You know this car of ours has been giving us a lot of trouble lately. It's slow, it's dangerously slow —"

"Clem," smiled Mrs. Miniver, "what are you hinting at?"

"Get your coat on," said her husband, rising. "I've got something to show you." When they had reached the courtyard, he pointed to a new low-lined car, with cobalt-blue trimming. Mrs. Miniver gasped slightly, and suppressed a chuckle. Here, while she had been fighting a mental battle about buying the hat, her helpmate had traded in their old car for a new one.

"What's the use of having a little money," said Clem, pressing her arm, "if once in a while you can't be reckless with it?"

When Vin arrived on the train from Oxford, next morning, he was three-quarters of an inch taller than when he left Kent, he had acquired a pipe, and he looked abnormally mature. He gave merely a casual glance at the new car, and when, after dinner, his food had settled, curious parents tried to draw him out, he said:

"When I think of the vast amount of knowledge in the world, and realize how little I possess, it makes me shudder. And the time I've wasted —punting—cricket—dancing—"

"You haven't wasted so much time," said his mother tenderly.

"Oh, yes, I have!" cried Vin emphatically. "You see, most people don't have enough social consciousness. I tell you Father, when I think of the class system that exists in this country —"

Before he could complete the sentence, Gladys, the Miniver maid, stepped in to announce the arrival of Miss Carol Beldon. The Miniver exchanged surprised glances, for the visit was totally unexpected.

Carol, a pearl-eyed girl with sparkling eyes, came forward, introduced herself, and then turned to Vin.

"You really must excuse me for inviting your self like this," she said, "but, frankly, I've come to make a request. You see, my grandmother doesn't know I've come. It's about the rose."

"The rose?" echoed Mrs. Miniver, puzzled.

"Yes," answered the girl. "The one Mr. Ballard grew. The Mrs. Miniver. You see, he intends to enter it in the flower show."

"You mean, for the Beldon Challenge Cup?" asked Mrs Miniver, eyes widening.

Carol nodded. "No one has ever entered a rose in competition to my grandmother before," she said. "It's become a sort of tradition." She paused. "I know it seems an awful thing to ask, but it means so much to her, and I thought perhaps as a favor, you might persuade Mr. Ballard to withdraw his entry."

Vin swung about. "I see, Miss Beldon," he said coldly. "So the feudal system still exists in this village."

"Vin, please' interrupted Mrs. Miniver.

"I mean what I say, reiterated Vin. "This is supposed to be an open competition, but Mr. Ballard isn't of the ruling class."

"Remember, Vin," said his father, "Miss Beldon is a guest here and if you've got any manners at all—"

"Manners are everything, aren't they?" asked Vin ironically.

"If you feel something is wrong with our system, why don't you do something?" asked Carol. "I've spent most of my holidays these past years doing settlement work in London."

"The usual aristocratic evasion," said Vin in polite scorn. "You'll have to excuse me, Miss Beldon." He turned and strode from the room.

"Really, I must apologize," said Mrs. Miniver warmly to Carol.

"Oh, no, please," smiled the girl "it's all right — and besides, he's rather nice, isn't he?"

To Help Morale

Letters To Soldiers Should Be Cheerful Says Red Cross

Keep your letters to fighting men cheerful!

That advice comes from the Red Cross which says its workers have found that "too many times the folks at home pour forth petty family problems in letters to their boys who are away in camp or fighting at the front."

"The result in many cases," it adds, "is the demoralization of a brave soldier."

The Red Cross cites cases of soldiers getting wires saying: "Come home; mother seriously ill" which actually were sent by girls who wanted to see them.

Most unwise letters, the Red Cross says, are from persons who thoughtlessly seek comfort on small personal problems from a soldier who himself needs the united support of his family at home."

It adds:

"So the next time you write be cheerful, and if you cannot be cheerful, be factual. A demoralizing letter, whether intentional or not, can be as damaging to the armed forces as an enemy bullet."

Told By Australian Airmen About Italians In North Africa

Australian airmen back from North Africa are telling Italians approach Allied soldiers with notes reading: "Take me prisoner."

One day, they say, scores of Italians tried to climb aboard an Aussie truck. There wasn't room for all of them. So the driver sent many unescorted toward Allied lines with a note reading "This is an Italian prisoner. Take him somewhere."

THE BIRD CHORUS

The National Audubon Society estimates the U.S. bird population at 5,750,000,000. No figure is given for Canada, says the Edmonton Journal, but a man who likes to sleep in Sunday mornings thinks it must be considerably higher, judging by the number of birds singing outside his bedroom window

Man has learned to fly higher, faster, straighter, and farther than birds, and he is able to fly across country in weather that limits birds to short, local flights

KEEP SEWING MACHINE IN GOOD CONDITION

No more sewing machines for home use will be manufactured while there is acute need for metals for war, the Department of Munitions and Supply has ruled.

When these now in process of manufacture and stocks on hand are disposed of there will be nothing else to do but to make those available give the longest service possible.

Permits will be granted for making essential repair parts, but extra care may often eliminate this procedure.

Take care of your sewing machine needles. To avoid breaking, see that the presser foot or attachments are securely fastened by the thumb screw. A large needle and thread to correspond should be used on heavy work. Avoid pulling material when stitching to avoid bending the needle and thus rendering it useless. The machine feeds the work without assistance.

If the machine runs hard after standing idle for some time, use a little kerosene in the oiling places, run the machine rapidly, then wipe clean and oil. Keep well oiled at all points indicated in the instructions that come with the machine.

See that the belt has the correct tension This should be only enough to keep the belt from slipping.

Travel Light, Railways Ask

MONTREAL — "When you travel, travel light." The adoption of this slogan by the public would be of real assistance to the railways in these days of pressure on railroad equipment and baggage-checking facilities, according to C.P. Riddell, chairman of the Canadian Passenger Assoc. "In fact," he said, "in asking all users of trains to take as little baggage as possible, we are giving them a real chance to assist the railway in solving the space problem A certain amount of hand baggage is necessary of course," he added. "But the rail ways would look upon it as a great favor if all unnecessary baggage were left at home."

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

EDMONTON. — Effective Sept. 1, licensed premises will remain open for the sale of beer from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., according to terms of an order-in-council passed recently. Making the announcement, Hon. Solon E. Low said that beer will cost more. The 10-cent glass will henceforth contain seven and one-half ounces only, instead of the former eight ounces.

Farm workers may enter this country from U.S.A. It is made clear by a department of agriculture announcement. So long as they have sufficient money to enable them to reach their destination, their movements across the border will not be restricted. Also of interest to Alberta farmers is the announcement that federal aid has been granted toward setting up a farm labor organization which will endeavor to supply help as needed in various areas.

A move to standardize the city charters of Alberta has been made, following discussions at the last session of the legislature. Hon. Lucien Maynard, minister of municipal affairs, has called a conference of city governments to consider the matter. Meetings will be held in Calgary, at the council chambers. When the Legislature had the matter under consideration, it was argued by several members that the present varying charters made for wastage of time in dealing with amendments, and a uniform charter would save both time and expense when cities submitted proposed amendments to the Legislature.

ISLAND HILL

oo oo oo

Heard so much about the Elks hall we were interested in seeing how things were run Saturday. Judging by the happy smiles on the faces of those we met there we can say the entertainment is good and wholesome and everyone seemed to enjoy the fun. We were not long there when a lady requested a dance and, Gosh, we could not refuse. We were not on the floor long when a mild mannered man approached us and said the committee wished to see us. They must have heard the famous Island Hill scribe was amongst them taking notes — Withal we reached home alive!

Three Years at War

It is three years since our lads went away
To keep the German Hun at bay.
They have a touch job to do —
They want help, boys, from every one of you.

Messrs. Nesbman and Handford of the Alberta Farmers Union held a meeting here Thursday. Another meeting will be held in the near future in Campbell Lake district The date will be given in the Standard.

All the way from Montreal a reader wrote some weeks ago asking what happened the island Hill scribe. She will now see by her Standard that we are in full blast again. The best of luck to you down east.

The Bowtell scribe and her husband were kindly motored us to town the other day. They were accompanied by a charming daughter who at the age of eleven can milk three cows morning and evening. Prodigious!

Mrs. Downey, Edmonton, is visiting her sister-in-law Mrs. Richardson.

We came across Mr. McConville who resides north of here, the other day. He is a good story teller and we requested him to put down on paper some of his stories and experiences and send them to the Editor of the Standard. We hope he will do so as we are convinced they would make interesting reading.

Store Surplus Food Supplies

An abundance of feed is assured in all parts of Alberta for 1942. The proportion of land devoted to forage crops and coarse grains is higher than ever before and good yields of all kinds seem to be assured.

The live stock industry of the province depends upon the maintenance of a supply of feed, both as roughage and grain concentrates. A surplus of feed every year is the basis for success in animal production. Dry years are frequent in Alberta and when they come feed prices are high, often forcing the liquidation of breeding stock at low prices.

Therefore, stock and store surplus forage and coarse grains produced this year as insurance against the years in which crops will be short. In the past the saving of feed supplies has not received the attention its importance warrants. The practice of storing feed should be begun on every farm in Alberta in 1942.

1942 HANDLING CHARGES

The Alberta Pacific Grain Company has completed arrangements with the Wheat Board for the handling of wheat of the 1942 crop delivered to the Wheat Board through Alberta Pacific elevators.

The operating basis and margins provided in this agreement, under which all elevator companies will operate, are not exactly the same as recently announced by the Alberta Pacific, but the benefits to producers generally will be on substantially the basis outlined in our announcement. The reduced margins this year, when compared to those of last year, will result in benefits to farmers ranging from ½c to 2c a bushel.

OUR FAMILY went through hard times once. It taught us that you can't keep your independence without foresight and sacrifice. We learned what we could do without when we had to. So we know that a real nest-egg means more than just compulsory savings. It means all the War Savings Stamps and Certificates we can lay our hands on.

They're safe. And they're an investment every Canadian should make. Why? Because they help equip our fighting men to protect everything we've got. And because, too, they pay back $5.00 for every $4.00 we put aside now. We've got to win this war no matter what it costs — and we've got to prepare against the time when the boys come home.

Buy War Savings Stamps from druggists, banks, post offices, telephone offices, department stores, grocers, tobacconists and other retail stores. Certificates may be purchased for immediate delivery in denominations of $5, $10, $25 from Banks, Trust Companies and Post Offices.

SHAKING SOLDIERS TOUGH THESE DAYS; NO TRICK MISSED IN TRAINING

By Lt. John W. Stephen

They make 'em tough in Brockville these days. Tougher than ever before.

The new officers of the Canadian Army who are now training at the Officer's Training Centre in Brockville have recently had instruction in what has been called "gutter fighting" by experts.

No trick is missed by the officer candidates, and the "daddy of them all" is at present at the centre instructing the future commando leaders as he is Major Stuart Fairbairn, late of the Shanghai Municipal Police — the toughest police force in the world.

For thirty years prior to the outbreak of war, the Major was with the Shanghai police. His methods, now being used at Brockville, were developed in alleys and shadows of Shanghai. The famous Japanese Jujutsu (Jiu-Jitso) contributed, and so did Chinese boxing. Major Fairbairn's methods can beat both.

Shanghai was filled with cut-throats and the police had to be tough. Even tougher than the killers they had to bring in.

Major Fairbairn made them tough. Since then he has instructed British Commandos and parachute troops, and the American Armed Forces. Now he is in Brockville for a short time to give the instructors there an insight into his methods.

Knife fighting is one of the most important phases of Commando training, claims Major Fairbairn—and he knows whereof he speaks. The "Commando knife" was designed by him. And he shows his followers how to use it.

The modern soldier can't carry the spirit of sportsmanship into a theatre of action. He has to be hard-hearted to live. It's himself or his enemy. And the Commando has already proven himself superior to his opponent.

Cutting will be pretty general by the time this news appears in the paper. It will be no joke the year, what with the lodging crop, and the abundance of weeds specially blue weed and the heavy stand. It will also be late before one can start work in the field, if this heavy dew every morning keeps up.

School opened on Tuesday with Miss McCraw as teacher, and about youngsters, all under twelve years, in attendance. Ruth and Jean Rankin and Verna Potter all go to high school in Vermilion; Suzanne and Therese Goulier walk to Vegreville convent school; Maurice Goulier to St. Joseph's college in Edmonton and Kay Van Wageningen to Kitscoty. With all these young folks gone it is likely so many of the boys get postponed otherwise the district would be completely drained of boys and girls. The latest to be called are Dave and Chas Sweeney and Tim Turner.

Western Economy

SINCE THE EARLY SETTLEMENT of the prairie provinces some sixty years ago agriculture has been the basic industry. Even before the building of a transcontinental railway, hardy pioneers from the eastern provinces and elsewhere were attracted in large numbers by the opportunities this country offered for quick advancement. Here was the virgin unlimited prairie awaiting the plow with no impediment by way of stumps or stones to clear the land. Bountiful crops and a ready market for all the grain that could be grown and all the cattle and other livestock that could be raised. Settlers poured in, bringing new wealth to the country, transcontinental railway lines were built, and branch lines criss-crossed the country.

Plenty Of Work

Result: employment was furnished by railroad construction, by the building of new towns, the construction of countless grain elevators and many other activities always associated with the beginnings of a new country. An excellent market was at hand for the farm products of British Columbia as well as the fisheries and fruit growers. Then, the West was then the world's granary, the best basket of the Empire and to use for many the type when its produce was sold in Europe. Then came the first World War, and the immediate demands for almost unlimited supplies of foodstuffs for the world at war naturally led to a further development of western resources. As the Lethbridge Herald aptly says there was "no limit to the possibilities of the country in the West which could be fathomed in war-time days. With the necessity of shipping the grain from over the Canadian Pacific established here. It is not only during war time that we must look to the future, for wars and means for providing employment for the returning men of industries. If we are going to have a prosperous country we shall have to plan and work on aggressive methods to attain that end.

Potatoes—Are Brothers Under The Skin

HIGH ON THE MARKET LIST—

If you are watching the food prices and want to get good food a little cheaper, mealtime, the potato is always a big help. Cereals and bread both are on market list.

THIS IS WHY—

The Irish potato is more important than we thought. In fact the potato is so valuable we must give him a seat of honor at the table. Why? Well,

Potatoes are cheap
Potatoes give you Vitamin C and iron
Energy and warmth

THIS IS HOW MANY—

From 1 to 30 potatoes each day for each man, woman older boy or older girl. From 1 to 3 potatoes each day for young children.

THESE ARE THE KINDS OF POTATOES—

First in our hearts and on our tables is the white or Irish potato. Then there is the sweet potato. The darker the yellow of the sweet potato the richer it usually is in the "A" vitamin.

TWO WORDS OF WISDOM—

1 Don't diet by not eating potatoes at a meal and then later eating a dessert three times as fattening.
2 Give your family potatoes often and serve them in different ways.

OLD FAVORITES AND NEW DISHES—

1 Imagine Irish stew without potatoes!
2 Clam chowder demands potatoes.
3 Cod fish cakes rarely do require mashed potatoes in them.
4 What would a New England boiled dinner be without the big white potatoes?
5 Why dream of like Shepherd's pie with its top "crust" of mashed potatoes?
6 "Does your family dislike liver? Try cutting it, or grinding it, after boiling or frying it, mixing with cooked potatoes and seasonings. Serve on toast.
7 Don't dislike hash browned potatoes?
8 Do you like fricasseed potatoes and eggs scrambled together?
9 Potatoes and eggs in cream sauce are delicious.

The referee's vitamin chart for hanging or framing in your kitchen is still free for the asking from the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto.

Chicago Doctor Explains Why Many Men Lose Their Hair

Father's hair falls out and mother doesn't because of it, Dr. Frederick Hoelzel of Chicago explains in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Baldness or hair in person in whom calcification of the skull bones apparently has not yet finally knitted the cranial sutures but also closed or narrowed various small foramens openings to pass through which blood vessels pass. Since bone growth or calcification is generally greater in males than in females. It's the man who goes for the dandruff cures.

Mother keeps her hair because she keeps her brain open. Father grows bonehead and bald like Mussolini.

Yes we know Adolf still has lots of hair but other hirsute authorities say that crazy people rarely lose their hair.

Measured With Spoon

There Are Eight To Ten Teaspoons Of Tea In Ounce

An ounce of tea and four ounces of coffee doesn't mean a thing to me" said a harassed housewife reading the rationing order. I want to know what it means in spoonfuls and I haven't any scales with which to measure it out.

Consumer Information Service made inquiries and here are the answers. The Government tea tester at the Department of National Revenue, who obligingly turned into a coffee measurer too, reports that there are from eight to 10 level teaspoons of tea to an ounce, and five tablespoons to an ounce of coffee.

Experts at the Empire Tea Bureau claim, however, that most teas provide 15 level teaspoons and a check with an economist verifies this report.

An individual cannot be a Commando though he may be a member of one for Commandos is the formation or unit in which he serves. The word originated in the Boer war applied to small mobile Boer formations operating behind British lines.

Prime Minister Churchill, a Boer war correspondent, first applied the word to British formations. His comparison of special service troops with Commandos caught the fancy of the public and the press.

Just for the record, Combined Operations say the plural is spelled without the "E"—"Commandos."

Authorities point out, of course, that there are variations according to the type of tea and coffee being measured some weigh less than others. Although opinions on the number of spoonfuls in an ounce differ, all are agreed however on one thing that the rationing order means drastic changes in consumers' coffee and tea drinking habits.

Every slouch hat worn by an Australian soldier is made from the fur of about nine rabbit skins which years of experimenta have proved unequalled for durability.

When the public talks about "Commandos" it is speaking of special service troops whether it knows it or not.

The men who made the daring raids on Lofoten Vaagso St Nazaire and Dieppe are special service troops. And any one of these daring dynamiters, says Combined Operations command, is a special service trooper.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

On or twice I have let my temper run away with me in these columns and have said a good deal of what I thought about a number of Canadians who didn't seem to know that we are fighting a war.

Of course that "good deal of what I thought" was said in a manner not calculated to enrich the vocabularies of compositors. If compositors' vocabularies can be enriched—but, nonetheless, despite its moderation my language was intended to conceal none of my thoughts on the subject.

It is only fair then that having found something to boast about I should do my boasting with even less reserve than my readers.

And it is something to boast about!

At the risk of boring you with stories about the Reserve Army I am going to tell you what happened yesterday in my own battalion. Because that unit is representative of the whole Reserve Army and what happens in it is being duplicated all across the country I am not going to name it.

Yesterday, in keeping with the setup of the Reserve Army, we were ordered to hold a full day's workout in the open. Yesterday, I might mention was Sunday. Unfortunately the weather was not only inclement it was a downright day-long soaker.

We are not fair-weather-soldiers by any means, but when your men are old soldiers "C" categories or youngsters you think about "hardening" them to the extent of risking a high percentage of pneumonia cases, so our commanding officer decided upon lectures and demonstrations indoors until the weather cleared.

But the weather didn't clear!

In due course, when he felt that a full day's work had been done, the O.C. decided to dismiss the parade. That was all very well but he hadn't counted upon the eagerness of the new recruits.

Through their instructors these men asked if they might have some more instruction, taking advantage of a wet Sunday to bring themselves to the point where they could the sooner join their companies and get on with their regular training.

Routine never refuses a request of that kind and, since the basic training of recruits is the province of the Regimental Sergeant-Major and myself, we asked for volunteer instructors and carried on for an hour and a half.

Without question I have never before seen people work so hard when they weren't compelled to do so. At the end of the period an experiment I asked the recruits if they wanted to go home or, after 10 minutes for a smoke, would like to work another hour.

Only one man elected to go home and that was because he had been on the night shift in the munitions factory and had worked all the preceding night.

When the time comes for active defence of Canada we'll have the satisfaction of knowing that men like these will have our safety in their care.

And mind you, there is no feeling about this Reserve Army of ours. The terms of engagement are for the duration of the war or, in the case of the men in the lowest age bracket, until they are old enough to volunteer for active service.

Of private soldiers, 48 days of training each year are required. These are divided into: 15 days in camp, 10 full Sundays, 60 nights—considered the equivalent of the remaining 20 days.

Non-commissioned officers, warrant officers and officers are required to put in 10 extra days of training which brings their quota of drill nights up to 90—plus their work as members of committees, orderly duties, etc.

"No fooling" seems to be the proper description, doesn't it? Especially in view of the way the new recruits feel.

And don't let anyone tell you that middle-aged folk can't learn new tricks. You should see the progress made by men who have never before run into squad drill or the manual of arms!

It's not particularly easy to learn how to march, how to turn, how to change step or how to throw a rifle around so as it's always under your control but these men are doing it and doing it faster than we did as young recruits 25 years ago.

Now let's come to the un-uniformed Individual Citizen's Army. We are going to have to learn new tricks, too. We are going to have to learn what our fathers and mothers did a quarter of a century ago, that wars can't be won without sacrifices both in the front line and on the home front.

The casualty lists so far have been infrequent and small. Both those conditions will change. Our sacrifices on the home front have been infinitesimal. What's a little gasoline when none of us should be driving cars? What do tea and coffee matter when there is an abundance of milk and good, healthful hot water? And why use sugar when explosives do blast our enemies can be made from it?"

We cursed the profiteers in the war of 1914-1919. This time, through the operations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, we can curb them before they get started.

It's up to us—let's do as good a job on the home front as the Individual Citizen's Army in khaki will do when McNaughton is allowed to point his "dagger" at the heart of Berlin.

Real Canadians Led Dominion Troops In Raid on Dieppe

KINGSTON — Major General John Hamilton Roberts, the 51-year-old courageous and resourceful officer from Kingston, Ont., who led Canadian troops in the daring commando raid on Dieppe, was awarded the Military Cross for bravery in action during the last war and was gazetted in January 1917. He was wounded in March 1918.

Since his early schooldays, he trained to be a soldier. He entered Royal Military College here in 1912. During his entire army career he has specialized in artillery, and has labelled in his men that not one bit of fighting equipment should be sacrificed if at all possible.

In June 1940, then a Lieutenant-Colonel, he returned from France through Brest with the 1st Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, and his was the only artillery group in the British Army to save all of its guns.

After the signing of the Armistice of the First Great War, Major General Roberts, who was promoted to captain in the field, stayed with the permanent force.

In 1920 he was a gunnery instructor, and was a member of the annual training camp administrative staff at Petawawa in 1921. Later in 1921 he took gunnery staff course in England. He travelled extensively in France, Great Britain and the United States.

A native of Pipestone, Man., Major General Roberts is especially well known in Military District No. 3, as he had been stationed at Kingston for some considerable time, and was a frequent visitor to Ottawa.

Promoted to the rank of brigadier in July 1941 after assuming command of a Canadian division, he was raised to his present post of Major General in April of this year.

Major General Roberts is the father of a fighting family. He has three sons with Canada's armed forces. His 23-year-old twin sons are both overseas. They are Lieut. Richard Roberts, of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, and Capt. William Hamilton Roberts, the 25-year-old Royal Canadian Artillery. Sergeant John G.R. Roberts, 19, of Kingston, another son, is also with the armed forces.

The fighting general is a keen sportsman, and his favorite games are polo, rugby, tennis, cricket and badminton. Shooting and fishing are also listed among the sports he enjoys.

TURKEY HILL TID-BITS

It has been a long time since we have been able to gather enough news to warrant putting in any notes. Things seem to be very quiet around Turkey Hill as there are few of us left here now. However we wish to express our belated congratulations and best wishes to one of our neighbors and a former neighbor on their marriage last July, namely Mr. and Mrs. Teesdale, nee Eunice Rankin and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Emsland, nee Barbara Young. May both couples enjoy long and happy lives together.

Louise Davis of Turkey Hill and Kay Van Wieringen of Woodvale left on Monday night to take up residence at the dormitory at Kitscoty where they will study Grade 12 and 11 respectively. We wish them every success.

Mr. and Mrs. Younger Young of Prestonia, B.C., received word recently of the safe arrival overseas of their son Charlie, a recent Turkey Hill boy, Good luck Charlie.

The closing of our school because of a shortage of teachers is proving a hardship to some of our pupils. Donald Davis and Gerald Powell will attend Union while the thirteen children will go to Vermilion school.

Miss Mahaffey our last teacher was a district visitor recently.

Even though late, this is our first opportunity to express our heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. E. Knoll and family on the loss of a grand husband and father. The loss of Dr. Knoll will be keenly felt by the entire district for a long time to come.

First Aid Courses for Rail Workers

MONTREAL.—Now that residents in every Canadian community are being trained in aid in air raid protection work, increasing importance is attached to first aid instruction for Canadian National Railways employees throughout the country. For years this work has been carried out as part of the normal training of men and women in every branch of the C. N. system activities, particularly in the shops and along the right of way.

Canadian Women Serving in Ground Crews

A BRIGHT yellow tractor, skilfully guided by a driver in overalls, pulls one of the two-engined Avro Anson aircraft in a flight hangar built in the sand dunes of the Prairie farmland. More blue-overalled figures swarm around the plane, while into its motors, cleaner up on the ground wings. After tractor pulls it outside and gasoline is fed into the wing tanks the plane is checked over by the figures in overalls.

There is nothing unusual in this scene at any airport, military or civilian, except that in this case, the overalled attendants are not brawny, grease-stained men, but attractive, capable young women, who somehow manage to retain their natural measure of daintiness despite the grease-stains that go with working on a gasoline crew.

These photos were taken at No. 8 Air Observer School, Ancienne Lorette, P.Q., which is operated by Quebec Airways (Directors) Ltd., under the supervision of Canadian Pacific Air Lines Limited in conjunction with the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Seven such civilian-conducted flying schools across Canada are sponsored by Canadian Pacific Air Lines Limited on a non-profit basis.

More and more women are being recruited for this type of work, still more are being sought to fill a similar phase of the war effort being shouldered by the forces, in addition to those men now serving with the auxiliary services. Story Of Empire's Air Forces Fills American Magazine

In a move without precedent in international publishing history the magazine "Flying" turned over its entire September issue of 276 pages relating the death of his brother in action with the German army in the First Great War

Profiteers in Afghanistan are having their ears pinned back the mayor of Kandahar having ordered a number of butchers suspected of overcharging nailed by the ears to their shop doors for two hours

It is in 40 articles the men who run the R.A.F. tell the people of the United States the story of the Empire air forces their successes their difficulties and their hopes

Profusely illustrated and with a foreword by Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair the issue was planned by the magazine's editor and publisher William B Ziff, aviation authority who recently wrote the controversial book "The Coming Battle of Germany" Ziff flew to London to make arrangements

In an introduction, Ziff wrote: "It is important to all Americans to know and understand the R.A.F - its history, its character and constitution, as well as its exploits. These are the things by which the world of tomorrow may live."

All the commanders-in-chief of the R.A.F contributed lengthy articles on their commands — bomber, fighter, coastal, army co-operation, balloons, maintenance and ferry—other articles being devoted to operations in the Middle East and to the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, photography, radio aviation medicine, aircraft production, air-sea rescue, research and development, salvage and training and manpower.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal, chief of air staff, in an article on "Air Power in War," outlines the importance of air superiority in land and sea battles and says: "The time is not very far off when the British and American bomber squadrons in England will be able to destroy the industry and power of Germany at a rate which outstrips repair."

Air Marshal Sir Arthur Harris, commander-in-chief of the bomber command, writes: "Germany's air power is declining. That of Italy had declined earlier for her heart is not in this war. The United Nations have only begun their climb to production. No power, no combination of powers, can hope to stand against that rising tide."

He discloses that the March 3 raid on the Renault works near Paris "robbed the Germans of all the armored fighting vehicles and transport of five motorized divisions for a long period," and says that "history will show enemy shipping losses in our air-laid minefields as a major contribution to the outcome of the war."

Air Chief Marshal Sir Sholto Douglas, commander-in-chief of the fighter command, says that since the summer of 1941 the heavy and continuous sweeps of fighter planes from Britain over occupied Europe, together with the bomber and coastal command activities, have aided the Russians by keeping more than 50 per cent. of the German air force's total fighter force pinned down in the west

Warm tribute to the Canadian businessman who in 1940 founded the Atlantic ferry service since taken over by the R.A.F. is paid by Air Chief Marshal Sir Frederick W Bowhill commander-in-chief of the ferry command. Sir Frederick also speaks glowingly of the work of the Canadian department of transport in building the "splendid airport" at Dorval, Que.

INFECTIOUS DISEASES

Warnings that we must expect epidemics of infectious diseases are being given by medical authorities, who point to the influenza epidemic of the last year of World War No. 1 as an example of what may be expected.

Some medical writers suggest that enforcement of certain precautionary measures difficult to achieve in peacetime, become more feasible in wartime. In ordinary times universal vaccination, like a whole host of unemployed breaks out in a certain community, we are shocked to find that a large proportion of the population is unprotected.

The same situation applies to universal typhoid inoculation; and in its program for Toronto the Health League of Canada is endeavoring to bring diphtheria under effective control.

One medical writer, drawing attention to this situation recommends that the medical departments of civilian defence groups make it a part of their program to tackle this problem, particularly in relation to smallpox, typhoid and tuberculosis.

THE ALCOHOL PROBLEM: PAST AND PRESENT

Golden text: The wages of the wicked shall perish. Proverbs 10:28.

Lesson: Ancient Sodom.—Genesis 18, 19; 19:23-25; Deuteronomy 32:31-33. In Ancient Israel—Amos 6:1-7.

Devotional reading: Psalm 1.

Explanations and Comments

Wickedness in Sodom and its Punishment. Genesis 13, 18; 19:23-25. Our text from Genesis takes us back to the time of Abraham and Lot, when their herds were so great that the land could not support them, and the two were obliged to separate. Abraham, though the older man, gave his nephew the choice of sites. And Lot lifted up his eyes and beheld all the Plain of the Jordan, that it was well-watered everywhere, like the garden of Jehovah. So Lot chose all the Plain of the Jordan; and Lot journeyed east. Abram dwelt in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelt in the cities of the Plain, and moved his tent as far as Sodom. Lot knew the evil reputation of Sodom, that the people there were wicked and sinners against Jehovah exceedingly, but he did not think that wickedness in him. But in the end he found that their influence resulted in the degradation of his family and the ruin of his happiness. Recall our lesson of August 9th, about Abraham's interceding for the wicked people of Sodom.

"Escape for thy life; look not behind thee, neither stay thou in all the Plain; escape to the mountains, lest thou be consumed." was the warning that came to Lot. Lot succeeded in reaching Zoar, and saved the two wicked cities, Sodom and Gomorrah brimstone and fire fell and utterly destroyed them. It was the work of Jehovah, through natural means. "It is a plausible suggestion that the physical cause of the destruction was an eruption of petroleum, occasioned by an earthquake. Such eruptions arise from the existence of reservoirs of compressed inflammable gases, by the side of the petroleum, at a considerable depth below the surface; if from any cause, such as an earthquake, a fissure is opened the fluid mass readily ignites, whether through lightning or spontaneously; and it then runs down in burning torrents, while a dense smoke towers up into the air. All the conditions for such an eruption are present in the region of the Dead Sea.

Taxes could be a lot worse. Suppose we had to pay on what we think we're worth.

Third Of U.S. Population Within 350-Mile Radius From New York

Everyone, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal, knows that New York is the largest city in the United States and the area that surrounds it the most densely populated, but the information recently given by the Commerce and Industry Association of New York is a revelation. This shows that a third of the nations population and half of its wealth are to be found within a 350-mile radius from New York. A breakdown of the population figures show that in that 350-mile radius there are 432 cities having a population of 10,000 or over, or 39.3 per cent. of this class of municipalities in the United States. The total population in the area is 40,359,34 or 30.7 per cent. of the population of the United States.

WEDDING BELLS

ANDERSON — JESSOP

The Alliance Tabernacle, Winnipeg, Man., was the scene of a pretty wedding at 7 p.m. August 8th, when Doris Joyce, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Jessop, became the bride of Rev. David Thomas Anderson, son of Rev. G.C. Anderson, Kindersley, Sask. Rev. William Price officiated. The Tabernacle was decorated with palms, ferns and garden flowers.

Miss Cora Johnston played the wedding music and Mrs. R. P. Anderson sang "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us" during the ceremony, and "Together With Jesus Life's Railway We Tread" during the signing of the register.

The bride wore a white sheer gown featuring a dirndl waistline and embroidered flowers on bodice and bishop sleeves. Her chapel veil was held by white roses. She carried Briercliffe roses and white sweet peas.

The bride and bridegroom were unattended. The bride's parents were Rev. A. Schellenberg of Brandon, Man., and Mr. George Layland of Winnipeg. The reception was held in the Tabernacle.

The bride's going away outfit was a wool dressmaker suit of turquoise blue with white felt hat. Rev. and Mrs. Anderson left by car while a few days for Vermilion, Alberta to take up their pastorate.

STEWART — FARRELL

A pretty church wedding was solemnized at Carstairs on Wednesday, August 19th at 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon, when Florence Hazel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Farrell, was united in marriage to Hugh, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart of Vermilion. The Rev. A.D. Seaman performed the ceremony. Mrs. H. Anderson played the wedding march.

The bride was charming in a dusty rose crepe gown, and wore a corsage of sweetheart roses. She was attended by her sister Margaret who wore a gown of blue crepe trimmed in red and wore a corsage of talisman roses.

HEAVY RAIN IS FOLLOWED BY FROST

A hard frost varying around six degrees was registered throughout this district on Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Ice a good quarter of an inch thick was found on water troughs etc Grain men think that considerable damage will result from the frost as most grain had been kept soft and doughy by continuous rains.

Light frosts were registered on two previous nights.

On Monday a very heavy rain fell amounting to over a half inch, the bulk of this coming down in a torrential downpour mixed with a little hail in a very short length of time.

Following the Wednesday morning frost the weather appears to have settled and is much brighter Very little progress with harvest work has been made during the past week due to the wet cloudy weather

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vermilion, Alta., Sept. 1, 1942.
Editor, Vermilion Standard.
Dear Sir:

I notice in last week's issue of the Standard that a local gardener had displayed a potato plant with neutral rubers.

This condition is usually caused by "Rhinesonia", a fairly common and injurious disease. The disease may affect garden beets, carrots, asparagus, cabbage, cauliflower and many of the legume plants. Grass and cereal plants are apparently immune, therefore their use is recommended in a rotation designed to rid a piece of ground of the disease.

Seed from diseased stocks should be treated either with mercuric chloride or hot formaldehyde.

Yours sincerely,
D. A. Andrew,
District Agriculturist.

FORMER VERMILION GIRL WINS HIGH HONOR AT C.W.A.C. TRAINING CENTRE

The honor of winning the award donated to the girl making the most progress and showing the greatest proficiency in connection with the training at the Canadian Women's Army Corps at Vermilion fell to a former Vermilion girl, Mrs. Helen Mackness, nee Helen Evans, whose family resided in Vermilion for several years prior to moving to Edmonton in about 1935. Helen's name will be found on the registers of both the public and high schools. Her brother George, also a public school pupil here has been serving in the armed forces overseas for the past two years. Mr. Mackness too is overseas. There were few if any of the Vermilion people attending the concert on Thursday evening at the Centre recognized the smartly appearing young woman who stepped up to the platform to receive the proficiency medal from Brig. Gen. Harvey, as the former Vermilion girl Helen Evans. It brought generous applause from her fellow-trainees.

The medal was donated by Mrs. Cutford of the Brunswick hotel.

Salvage Booming in Winnipeg

The Winnipeg City council has authorized the dynamiting of city dumps in order that scrap metal, long buried under refuse, may be recovered. There is no doubt in the minds of the salvage committee of this Manitoba city that the detonations heard there when operations get in full swing, will be the cause of reverberations on a much larger scale in far distant parts of the world.

Maybe the Vermilion nuisance grounds would yield some scrap metal.

FORMER VERMILION BOY HURT IN BORDER CRASH

In England—But Tommy Wotherspoon Will Fly Again

The following story, taken from a Toronto newspaper, will prove of interest here as Flight Sergeant Thomas Wotherspoon was a Vermilion boy and spent some ten years of his boyhood here. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wotherspoon.

"When a coastal command bomber crashed in Britain a little over a year ago, a 20-year-old Toronto flier, Flight Sergt. Thomas Wotherspoon, was seriously injured and very badly burned. So badly burned, in fact, that it was doubtful if he would ever be able to walk again. Much work, however, his mother, Mrs. E. Wotherspoon of St. Germaine Ave., received a cable from her son. 'Promoted to warrant officer first class.' It read. 'Had medical board. Expect to be flying again soon.'

"Tommy was eight months in casts." Mrs. Wotherspoon told The Star Weekly. "His recovery is a tribute to medical science."

Flight Sergt. Wotherspoon, enlisted in the R.C.A.F. two years ago, received his wings at McLeod, Alta., and went overseas 11 months ago. He was attached to the coastal command as a bomber pilot. A brother, Ken Wotherspoon, is a sergeant instructor in the Bombing and Gunnery school at Mossbank, Sask.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

The writer received a letter from Clifford Shepherd, Bowtell boy who is now somewhere in England with Canada's armed forces. Clifford is well and happy but is having a little difficulty with the English money. The only thing they really notice is the shortage of cigarettes.

Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Saunders and Frank were visitors at the Perkin's home on Tuesday and at the Repp home on Thursday.

Folks, did we see Marion Semple trying to give her lad a bath in lemonade or didn't we?

A large number from this district were in town on Friday last to attend the graduation exercises of the first class of the C.W.A.C. girls.

People of the Bowtell community are pleased to welcome Miss R. Smith as the new teacher.

Some fifteen people journeyed north to help Mrs. Robinson move back to her townhouse. A very jolly trip was enjoyed and the lunch we had was turned into a picnic consisting of fried chicken, etc. Ghost crops were noticed along the way. On their return the crowd stopped in to see Grandma and Grandad Robertson and it was fine to see the former looking so well and feeling so much the better for her visit to Edmonton where she took treatments at the clinic.

Mrs. Wasney stopped off in Vermilion for a day on her way to Edgerton, for with the R.C.A.F. in Calgary. The Wotherspoon family is well known in Bracebridge and Northern Ontario.

She reports that Donnie is now walking. The Wasney family formerly lived at Borndale.

Mrs. Gow's mother has returned to Calgary.

Mrs. Saunders has returned to Edmonton, making the trip by bus Sunday morning.

REGISTRATION OF WOMEN IN CANADA STARTS SEPTEMBER 14

Ages from 20 Years to 24 Years Inclusive

Because registration of Canadian women will be compulsory under National Selective Service regulations, with the first group registering between September 14 to September 19, Mrs. Rex Eaton, assistant director of National Selective Service has issued clear-cut explanations of who must register so that no women will break the law unintentionally.

The first group to register will be the age classes born between January 1, 1918 and December 31, 1922 — in other words, women between the ages of 20 to 24 inclusive. All women must register, with one exception and that group is made up of the women who are employed and in possession of Unemployment Insurance Registration cards 411 and 413 and who are still working for wages or salaries and paying unemployment insurance. Inmates of institutions such as hospitals, mental hospitals and members of religious institutions need not register.

Any women, however, who did register for unemployment insurance last April and are not now working for wages and salaries must register again. Women who were registered but signing but have now left jobs in which they were paying unemployment insurance for those which are not insurable must register again.

For example, a girl working in a factory in April, might have left now to take farm work or domestic service, both non-insurable industries. She should still have her unemployment insurance card as required but must re-register because she is not working in an insurable industry so that the National Selective Service offices would not have an up-to-date record of her employment.

Other groups who must register include housewives, domestic servants, farm workers, women employed in hospitals or charitable institutions, where they are not already registered; professional private duty nurses on probationers undergoing training to become professional nurses, women employed as teachers, including teachers of dancing and music who are not already registered; women employed as agents paid by commission or fees, such as real estate and insurance agent; and self employed women which will include those operating their own business, proprietors of beauty parlors, gift shops, etc.

Registration will be conducted in Employment and Selective Service offices (formerly Employment and Claims offices of the Unemployment Insurance Commission), where these are set up and in rural areas registration will be at the nearest post office.

The form which the women are asked to fill out includes questions of their education and training and willingness to go into war work. After all this are group has been registered, the women who seem to be most likely prospects for work will be called for an interview with one of the personnel workers of National Selective Service. The interview will be detailed and explain to the women, the urgency of their place in war production.

Mrs. Eaton stresses that all women must not expect to be placed immediately in some essential work for they may receive that placement in industry and essential occupations, such as nursing, social welfare or munition work must be carefully done. Registration will give Canada a complete up to date inventory of the workers available to keep guns, tanks and planes supplied to the men in the front lines. Eventually all women will be registered but registration will proceed slowly until all age groups are tabulated.

COUNCIL HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

Resolution Urging Continuance of Demonstration Farm; Miss Jean Eckford Appointed Assistant to the Secretary.

The regular meeting of the town council was held on Tuesday evening with Mayor Morrison and Councillors Stewart, Bushell, Porter and Kaiser present.

The minutes of the last regular and intervening meetings were read and on motion of Porter seconded by Kaiser, adopted as read.

Correspondence: Can. Pacific Railway Co., re Paulson; Bureau of Public Welfare re McDowell; Unemployment and Farm relief re payments; P. J. Richardson re evictions.

The monthly balance sheet was examined and duly signed by the Mayor and Sec'y.

Captain Mollitt attended the meeting in connection with using the room situated at the back of firehall due to the armory being required for a recreation centre.

Garbage collection came up for discussion, and it was stated that many complaints re non-collection arise from the fact that sufficiently large containers are not used by householders. It was decided to review the situation at a later meeting.

Proposal of Harry Armstrong re house improvements, and lot purchase was refused.

The following motions carried:

Stewart — Bushell: That permission be given to military authorities to use room at back of fire hall providing that good behaviour is maintained.

Porter — Kaiser: In consideration of taxes on property N.E. 21-50-9 W5th be consolidated the penalty be remitted.

Porter — Kaiser: That accounts of P. J. Richardson re Wells and Smith evictions be paid as per letter of Sept. 4th, 1942.

Bushell — Kaiser: Resolved that Mrs. McDowell be given relief for the month of September.

Stewart — Kaiser: That a resolution be prepared urging the Provincial government to continue the operation of the local Demonstration farm, and that the adjoining municipalities be asked to forward resolutions to same effect.

Bushell — Stewart: That necessary repairs to K.L. & P. building be proceeded with.

Porter — Bushell: Moved that Miss Jean Eckford be hired as Asst. Sec'y at $70 per month

Subject to confirmation or council.

BARN AND HORSES BURN AT DON BUTLER'S FARM

Struck by Lightning Wednesday

The big frame barn on Supt. Butler's farm in the Allandale district, was struck by lightning in the storm Wednesday morning about 8 o'clock. It was set on fire practically from end to end and completely destroyed along with 3 head of horses, 11 sets of harness, 2 loads of chop and a grinder. A wagon standing just outside the barn was also burned. The lightning struck in the dying moments of the storm which had raged around this area during the early hours of the morning.

The big, well-equipped barn has long been a landmark in the Allandale community and its loss, along with the horses and harness is indeed a severe one. The family have the sympathy of the community in their misfortune.

NEW SIDEWALKS, ROADS GRADED, IN WEST END

The public works department of the town council are grading the road on Vermilion street between Alberta avenue and Oliver avenue. To any one not familiar with the streets of the town this is from Carmen Lowe's corner west to the river hill road. Alberta avenue is also being improved from Main street to the top of the river valley and this work should materially improve the drainage in that section. The work on Vermilion street was certainly due as this is the first time it has ever been graded.

Two stretches of sidewalk have also been laid. One is on 1st street North (reaching from Alberta avenue to the tennis club property) while the other starts at Kennedy's service station and leads west. Both are material to on hand these walks will be continued to the corners. The last named will provide a much needed walk to the arena rink and will have the effect of keeping pedestrians off the road which is the only place they could travel heretofore.

Activity in the Oil Field

Greater development of the Vermilion oil field to meet the growing needs of the Canadian National Railway for fuel oil was predicted by R. C. Vaughan, Montreal, president of the Canadian National Railways, when interviewed in Edmonton Saturday on his arrival from an inspection trip through British Columbia.

He said the company was now taking a car load of oil daily from this field and would use more. "We are looking into the possibilities for greater development," he added.

Dr. G.S. Hume, (geologist, and western representative of the Dominion Oil Controller, arrived in Vermilion Wednesday on an inspection trip of the oil field.

NEW LOCATIONS SELECTED

Home Oil Company and Anglo-Canadian Oils will sponsor a new test well in the Buffalo Coulee area. Both companies will have a 50 per cent interest in the venture. Location is at particular interest in that it is the offset to Vaughan No. 1 south of that in which Alberta Nor. Rys. was drilled by a subsidiary of Imperial Oil Company. This well gave promising results and a statement of producer might have been brought out but for the failure of a crew. It was drilled in 1937.

o o o

Location for a new well for the Imperial list was announced this week as North West Imp. No. 1 for Lsd. or 24-50-5W5th. This is 1½ miles east of the point of production in the Vermilion field.

o o o

Midfield No. 1 has been granted permit for Lsd. 1 or 11-51-6W4 and will move No. 1 in Lsd. 5 or 6-51-6W4 to a depth of 3,000 feet.

BOARD OF TRADE OPPOSES SALE OF DEMONSTRATION FARM

Weekly Meetings Recommence with Good Attendance

A good attendance marked the first meeting of the board of trade which commenced its fall and winter weekly sessions on Tuesday. The next meeting will be on Monday Sept. 14th and some interesting meetings are in prospect if the large number of business men and farmers attend each week.

President Gerald Stephens was in the chair and complimented Mr. J.D. Adam on his recent election to the school board, C.L. Whitby on his recently attained status of grandfather, and Albert M. West on the numerous prizes won by his mare, Ladybelle at the Edmonton Horse show.

The harvest help situation was discussed at some length and as neither of the plan of help being worked at Lloydminster was given. It was left over more of a bit and some phone calls with bees being organized to help out any farmer who was sick or behind with his work through unavoidable shortage of help etc.

The proposed sale of the Demonstration farm came in for vigorous discussion. It was felt that the farm served a well defined purpose here and accomplished much good also that when the school of agriculture reopened after the war that the farm would be an indispensable part of that educational institution. It was therefore decided to send in a protest to the department of agriculture regarding the sale which plan it is understood is still in the embryo stage.

Several other subjects were not fully dealt with and will be brought up at the meeting on Monday at 8 Sept 14th

REPORT C.N.R. TO ADVANCE PAYMENT ON VERMILION OIL

It has been reported from the east that the first plan by which the C.N.R. may participate in a big program of development for the Vermilion field has been altered and that in place of building an actual band in the operations in the field the railway company will give assistance in several of the companies hold leases and on a deferred actual drilling.

It is known that companies have applied to the C.N.R. asking for assistance in financing new wells but a definite presentation of the result has not been given out.

During the past week there were reports in eastern Canada among financial interests with operations that some agreement had been concluded with several of the companies, by which the railway company agrees to purchase actual shipments in advance of actual delivery in order to facilitate operations and enable the companies to go forward with their drilling program at a greater speed.

While there is no direct confirmation of this report operators in Calgary consider it likely that some such arrangement will be arrived at.

SUGAR FOR PRESERVING

Voucher Check Is To Prevent Abuse

Emphasizing that the careful check of sugar vouchers for preserving is to prevent abuses of the rationing order but not to discourage home canning of fruits, S.R. Noble, sugar administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board urges Canadian housewives to continue to put up quantities of home fruits. There is difficulty in obtaining fresh and dried fruits from abroad and tin shortages restrict commercial canning.

Thus the sugar administrator has ruled that "until further notice", one pound of sugar for eight pounds of apples may be exchanged by voucher for cooking apples. This is equivalent to one pound of sugar for a six quart basket of apples or five pounds of sugar per bushel, but crate or hamper it is hoped that Lib measure will stimulate consumption of the large apple crop cut of from export this year.

Confidence is expressed that housewives will not abuse their voucher privilege. When purchasing sugar by voucher they are required to produce their ration card from which the serial number is recorded on the voucher.

STOOKING BEE PROVES BIG HELP TO FARMER

Possibly the largest stooking crew ever to go to work in one field in this area went into action at Bill Steele's at Claymore on Sunday morning and in two hours and ten minutes had stooked up some fifty acres of wheat. Bill had run into trouble with binder with a cow and was in the hospital and the scarcity of help put him behind with his harvesting operations. Word got around and when the big crew started work.

The bee was organized among the town men by Ronnie Barwick and by rumors afloat other outings of a like nature are in the air providing the weather notice does not admit.

ISLAND HILL

We don't want to be garrulous but it is hard to refrain from being so when one sees their beautiful garden flowers and fruit knocked out during one night's hail and to add to the agony we cannot forward the Standard to the fighting forces overseas—we depend on the navy to these conditions that would be unbearable. And moreover these same lads went across to Europe with the American troops and did the same gallant deeds but do not receive the same pay—no wonder most of it with the unselfish who praise our lads to the skies give these same lads $6 bucks per month. To add to all our troubles the Model goes on a sit-down strike every half hour. All above facts are irrefutable.

Mrs. Richardson and the Misses Williamson were visitors at the home of the writer during the week.

A telegram from Kevin McIntosh states he has reached Australia safely. He has three brothers to meet him there who have been overseas since 1939.

John McCambridge, Campbell Lake, has also arrived overseas safely.

We have had some peculiar things at times and here is one at them —

A young man writes "Could you let me have one hen? I can get introduced to one of the C.W.A.C.'s." The best way I hope to join the army as these charming ladies are attached to some training centres. Only last week two of these ladies wrote a Saskatchewan paper requesting letters. Had they send their letter in the Standard the above mentioned gent would find an easy way of getting an introduction.

Bendige McDaniel has gone to Edmonton and will attend high school there.

It's A Lot of Applesauce!

British Columbia has 6,000,000 boxes of High-grade Apples and only a Domestic Market to eat them.

But — The Sugar Administrator, working with the Food Administrator, has announced that "Until Further Notice" domestic consumers may purchase by voucher extra sugar at the rate of one pound to eight pounds of apples consumed in the household This is equivalent to 5 pounds per box.

So — The Opening Price of the main apple crop represents an All Time Low and Okanagan Farmers are hoping Housewives will take advantage of this "Home Front" opportunity and use apples in many ways; also "put up" good quantities of applesauce for use next spring.

Wealthies — Now at their best, are among these Fall Apples and they are second to none for applesauce and pies. This makes eight pounds of apples and a pound of sugar today's Best Food Buy.

Now Highway through Cummings

A new highway is being built through this area. The road leads from the Vermilion-Wainwright high way east and west to the road from Hanaville to Irma, a distance of about 18 miles. A real road contractor is doing the work and the ranges with their trailers, cabins and tents are like little villages. The road will be a great help in winter for the west people who chiefly do their shopping in Vermilion.

Mrs. McArthur and family have returned from the north country after a month's holiday.

Mrs. B. Holland and little daughter Dianne from New Westminster, are spending a few weeks visiting Mrs. Holland's father, Mr. S. Harle and also her brothers and sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wilson and son Stanley and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Murray (nee Madge McMinn) all of Edmonton spent the holiday week end at the Wilson home. The boys hauled in a couple of loads of hay which helped out quite a bit.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fish, Melvin and Mac. Velma and Deanie Bennett spent the Labor Day afternoon and evening at the Wilson home. The youngsters surely had a great time.

We hear that Miss Rita Mabry is teaching near Lacombe, and that her sister Mrs. R. Myers has a school near Ribbon. It is a good thing that they were married teachers to fall back on this year.

Mrs. Dave Macauley and five children of Manawille and Mr. and Mrs. B. Rimbole spent Sunday at the Samuelson home.

Another oil well will be drilled on the Samuelson farm in the immediate future.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Emeland are down from Edmonton taking care of their crop.

CAMPBELL LAKE

Well here we are again after many weeks of absence. Everyone knows there is very little time for anything but hard work these days.

Harvest operations are in various stages in the district now. Some have completed cutting, and some have only just started but the majority are almost through.

There has been grass seed threshed already on the farms of H. Armstrong and M. Enfield.

Miss Isabel Dynes of Edmonton has been spending a month's vacation at the home of F. McCambridge.

Mrs. Pat Dynes and son George of Edmonton arrived last Thursday to spend a short holiday with her parents. Heavy crops are the general rule.

MRS. MINIVER

CHAPTER II.

Carol Beldon looked prettier than ever, in her latest frock, at the Sailing Club dance that evening. When she passed by the table where Clem and Kay Miniver were sitting, she paused and said:

"I was rather looking for your son to be here."

"His present principles forbid such frivolity," said Clem.

"Oh, that's too bad," said Carol, eyes twinkling responsively.

"We give this phase a week or two at the outside," said Mrs. Miniver.

"I'm afraid that will be too late for me," rejoined Carol. "I'm going to Scotland tomorrow. I wanted to tell him I was sorry about this afternoon. . ."

At that very moment, a waiter approached with a folded bit of paper. Carol took it wonderingly, opened it and read: "May I have you for a moment alone? I am waiting on the old boat landing. Vincent Miniver."

"A secret?" asked Mrs Miniver, as as the girl glanced up smilingly.

"I suppose it is," answered Carol. "Will you please excuse me?"

Vin was standing with folded hands and solemn mien as Carol approached. "Miss Beldon," he began, "I don't want you to think I'm going back on anything I said this afternoon, but I did express myself a bit emphatically. I hope you'll excuse me."

"There's really nothing to excuse," said Carol. "Everyone's entitled to his mode of recreation, Beldon. I was in the wrong anyway." The sound of dance music swept down with the breeze, and she added: "I must get back. I promised this tango."

Vin felt an odd clutching fear. "Oh, I'm sorry," he said. "There's so much I wanted to talk to you about."

"You don't dance?" asked Carol, politely.

"Well, yes, I do," said Vin awkwardly. "But I've rather given it up. I mean, frankly, is this a time for frivolity?"

"Is this a time to lose one's sense of humor?" rejoined Carol.

Ten minutes later, the Minivers, glancing casually across the dance floor, were astonished to see their sociologist son dancing, quite obviously to everything, with Lady Beldon's granddaughter. When the couple parted, at the end of the evening, Carol explained that she had to leave on a visit to Scotland the next morning. Vin asked permission to write. He couldn't himself analyze his interest in this girl of aristocratic lineage, but he felt a sense of frustration at the news that she was going away.

* * *

The weeks sped by. The news from the Continent was distinctly disturbing, but most Kentish Englishmen of upper, lower and middle class alike regarded it not too pessimistically, as a storm signal that would in due season give way to clearing skies. Certainly there could not be another war so soon after 1918—not really another major conflict. And yet that element of doubt was constantly mounting. The crisis seemed close.

Sitting in the church pew next to his father and mother for morning services, Vin looked up in surprised elation as Carol came down the aisle with Lady Beldon, a trailing, chauffeur carrying a hymn book, Bible and blanket.

"She wasn't to have returned for another week . . ." quavered Vin.

"Well, people like to be home in times like these," returned his mother. During the singing of the opening hymn, the verger entered the chancel through a side door and came over to whisper to the vicar. The conversation continued after the last bar of music had sounded. Then the vicar rising solemnly, said:

"Will everyone please be seated?" His looked about and after only a brief hesitation continued: "It has just been announced over the air by the Prime Minister that our country is at war."

There was scarcely any audible reaction from the congregation. Clem and Kay looked at his wife's. Other couples engaged in similar gestures. Carol looked tenderly and meaningly at Vin. Vin looked away.

"In the circumstances," went on the vicar, "I do not think you will want me to proceed with the service, as you will probably have other duties to perform. I will say merely this, that the prayer for peace still lives in our hearts, coupled now with the prayer for our beloved country. We in this village have not failed in the past. Our forefathers for a thousands years fought for the freedom that we now enjoy, and that we must now defend again. With God's help and their example, we shall not fail."

For Toby and Judy the news was mysteriously exciting rather than alarming. They had heard all kinds of rumors about what might happen if war broke out; as Clem came up the path from the church, Toby seized his arm and asked: "Are we going to be bombed, daddy?"

Others within earshot, who had already been voicing the same question, exchanged grave looks.

Foley, the affectedly gruff, rather grouse-colored individual, who had been hurriedly appointed Air Warden for the district, found himself sternly rebuffed in the first joust with Lady Beldon, who had little use for the mazeuverings of Downing Street. With the Minivers the situation was different, for Clem had immediately volunteered for river patrol duty, and co-operation need not be sought out.

The first drill was scheduled for that evening. In the family head gathered in the cellar, after trying valiantly to console Gladys for the call to duty of her fiance, Clarence, a stomping was heard above. Hurrying to the door, Clem found Foley there. He was rigged up with tin hat and canvas haversack, and he complained that the house was showing a light. Shuffling to the cellar like an alert bird dog, he pounced on a chair and put his flashlight on a grating just below the ceiling. Then he pulled over a wooden case to cover it.

"There," he cried. "That does it. It's those tiny cracks that can do the damage! Ellen was lighting a cigarette in the road stands out like a beacon from five thousand feet up. One little crack to light might lead the 'ole German Air Force straight to the house!"

Vin hurried away from the scene of Mr. Foley's dress review to see if he could offer any help at the Beldon house. He felt a closer bond, with Carol, than ever before, although it had scarcely been delineated in actual words. Vin had left her home, however, he had kissed her for the first time; and when he reached his own home he had arrived at a personal decision. His mother had expected it might come, but at least not so suddenly.

"Kay darling," said her husband, after Vin had gone upstairs, "I know it's hard, but you wouldn't care to have a son who didn't want to fight for his country."

Mrs. Miniver seemed dry-eyed but she was holding a handkerchief in her lips. "His country! . . . Are schools—What's Poland got to do with us?"

"You mean it doesn't matter how much other people suffer so long as you don't?" interjected Clem.

"I didn't say that," returned his wife. "I am all mixed up—thinking of Vin. But we didn't want this, and perhaps they didn't want it either. There must be thousands of German mothers who feel as I do, with none just like Vin . . ."

"Mothers, perhaps, feel that way," answered Clem, "but not many sons. The system doesn't allow for that."

He took her arm. "Well, there's not much sense arguing about it. As far as Vin's concerned, he's settled the matter for himself."

Mrs. Miniver put away her handkerchief in the pocket from which it had been extracted, and, looking up affectionately gave her husband a little grateful kiss.

War Savings Certificates Do Not Come Under Head Of Income

Holders of government bonds will receive their full coupon interest, or if registered, their full interest cheque, without income tax deduction at the source. But this income will be taxable when the taxpayer is making his final settlement with the government. War Savings Certificates, on the other hand, accumulate interest over a period of seven and a half years so that at maturity a bond which cost $4 will bring $5, but this increase in value is non-taxable.—Toronto Star.

Small-Sized Freighters Came To This Country From Other Side

It is now revealed, says the Brockville Recorder and Times that nearly 70 St. Lawrence canal-sized freighters have been turned over to the Admiralty for anti-water service. If it be doubted that they are capable of such duty, it need only be recalled that most of these vessels, small though they are, were built abroad and crossed the Atlantic in this continent under their own power. Many of them are moreover, larger than the coal-burning tramp steamers which ply regularly in coast service.

LUXURIOUS DRAPES TO MAKE YOURSELF

Swags, Cascades Easy To Sew

If you have yearned to treat your living room to really stunning drapories like lovely triple-swag style in your picture

If you can make it all yourself, inexpensively. The swags are easy, so are the cascades which smartly finish the corners.

You might make the main swag of luscious apricot sateen, matching the side draperies, and the smaller swags of brown.

The main swag should be cut nearly twice as deep as it will be, when folded and several inches wider than the window.

Cut the smaller one on the same plan, allowing of course for the smaller space to be covered. To shape swags, slant ends, then curve the lower edges as the diagram shows.

Brown fringe makes a smart trimming. Stitch it on, then fold and tack swags to valance board.

Now—the graceful cascades. For each, take a 22-by-14 inch piece of fabric; snip off corner and pleat. Stitch in place.

For details of making curtains see our 32-page booklet Given illustrated directions for swags, cascades, side draperies for stunning styles in glass curtains drapery-curtains and formal draperies valanced.

Send 10 in coin or stamps for your copy of "New Ideas in Making Curtains and Draperies" to Home Service Dept. 175 Mc-Dermot Ave., Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

SNAP IS OUT OF BOBBY PINS

Taking the snap out of women's bobby pins puts a spring in the war machine. Low carbon steel wire, rather than high carbon steel wire is to be used henceforth in the manufacture of hair pins in order to conserve vital metals needed for war purposes. Accordingly the administrator of Steel and Non-Ferrous Metals has restricted the manufacture of metal hairpins in the year commencing July 1, 1942, or any subsequent 12 month period to 50 per cent of the tonnage in the calendar year of 1941.

LOWER GAS RATION
ORDER IS EXPECTED

Pending federal move to lower the gasoline ration for those who use their cars for pleasure only, which may be announced shortly, is being watched with interest by officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

A recent Ottawa report said that the federal plan is to issue a new ration book for pleasure drivers who will be in category "AA" and they will receive less gasoline than those in "A", which is the lowest category at the present time.

There has been no statement as to the amount of the allowance in category AA, as officials have said it will take some time to cut it up. However it has been stated that an early announcement may be anticipated.

Under the system in operation at present, the A category ration books provide for 60 coupons. The value of these coupons is five gallons each in Alberta and the other provinces and four gallons in British Columbia.

The A.M.A. has emphasized for some time the need of motorists using all possible means to conserve gasoline and tires under present war-time conditions. Also, it has been suggested that the "share-the-car" plan should be adopted, which would help further in conserving fuel and rubber tires.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

EDMONTON.—Because of the teacher shortage, it is feared that some one room schools in the province may not open this term until the next group of Normal students is ready for emergency work. As a means to obtain an accurate picture of the situation, the Department of Education has asked all superintendents to file reports by Sept. 15. About 150 will be able to leave Normal on Oct. 5, but it is not likely that these will fill all the possible vacancies.

MORE ALTA. ROAD MACHINERY NEEDED

Providing additional assistance to the federal government, the Alberta department of public works has made available many modern road machinery for airport construction. The equipment was turned over in response to an appeal by Hon. C. C. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply. Earlier this summer some of the province's largest pieces of equipment went to the dominion authority. Because of these transfers, it is warned that Alberta's road building and maintenance program may be curtailed. While the machinery is on actual war work it is impossible to do final substitutes to carry on provincial projects.

STUDY OF TRAFFIC RULES IS ESSENTIAL

Importance of making a careful study of traffic regulations is stressed by officials of the Alberta Motor Association, who are appealing the interests of safety-driving in Alberta.

Every motorist, whether he has been driving a car for one year or 10 years, whether he never has had an accident or not, should study the traffic regulations, reading those which he may have forgotten and becoming informed on those which may have been enacted in the interval.

Arrest and a penalty for violation may represent the hardship which the motorist undergoes for his infractions. At the same time there is the possible serious bodily harm or financial loss to a far greater degree that other motorists may suffer because of a driver's negligence or thoughtless conduct.

Just as drivers should now be informed of the 60 miles per hour speed limit for all highways in the dominion, fixed by a regulation of the War-Time Prices and Trade Board, so they should have knowledge of the general traffic regulations. In that way they will be fortified against the occurrence of accidents that might have been prevented if they had had full knowledge of the regulations as changes thereto.

GOVERNMENT INSURANCE IN CASE OF WAR DAMAGE TO PROPERTY OWNERS OF PROPERTY ARE URGED TO INSURE AGAINST LOSS BY ENEMY ACTION
The Government of Canada, by Act of Parliament, has set up a Plan of War Risk Insurance against damage to property caused by enemy action—by countermeasures taken against the enemy—by explosions of war munitions handled by third parties.
In terms of general information, it may be stated that the Plan provides a certain limited FREE COMPENSATION for damage to owner-occupied homes and on chattels, but the main feature of the Plan is that owners of most types of property can protect their property by PURCHASE of GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE at very moderate rates.
This type of War Risk Insurance is not being sold today by private insurance companies, because of the risk involved. Consequently, the Government has established a national scheme to make it possible for each citizen in Canada to purchase the sense of security that comes from knowing that if his property does suffer war damage (and the war has come much closer to Canada in the last twelve months) he can call on the resources of Canada to help him make good his property loss.
HOW TO OBTAIN GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE
The Fire Insurance Agents and Companies of Canada have volunteered to the Government the services of their extensive facilities and personnel, on a non-profit basis, thus avoiding the setting up of the large organization that otherwise would be needed to handle details of this nation-wide Government War Risk Insurance scheme.
YOUR FIRE INSURANCE AGENT OR COMPANY WILL GLADLY SUPPLY COMPLETE DETAILS OF THIS GOVERNMENT INSURANCE PLAN.
TO HOME OWNERS
HOUSEHOLDERS and OTHERS
Limited free compensation is provided under the Act for damage by enemy action or owner-occupied homes up to $4,000. Also, for chattels, in the household of the wife, up to $400 for each child under 16, up to $100—for other chattels, householders, up to $200.
No policies are needed in this limited compensation class; additional to the above amounts may be purchased.
Ask any Fire Insurance Agent or Company for complete details.

Rigid Control Of Beef Cattle Trade In Canada

Ottawa.—The wartime prices and trade board, assumed rigid control of the beef cattle trade in Canada, announcing the government-owned Wartime Food Corporation as sole exporter of cattle in a move which is aimed at meeting the "acute shortage which the board said now exists "across the whole country."

The food corporation "will when necessary, buy cattle in the domestic market to support cattle prices in Canada."

The board disclosed in its announcement that Canadian packers have been required to give priority to military requirements for some time, "yet notwithstanding this action military requirements have not been met."

"Accordingly," said the statement, "the board has carefully reviewed the whole situation and made recommendations to the government, which decided upon the drastic change in policy, making Wartime Food Corporation the sole exporter and at the same time assuming the loss thus ceiling prices to producers.

"This should remove any incentive to hold back cattle at one period and press sales at another.

"Thus, while the new policy may not restore beef supplies immediately, the removal of the incentive to hold cattle should result in resumption of the customary flow of marketings."

The board's sweeping action represents a definite change in policy followed since the Canadian beef corporation paid the equivalent of export prices to divert cattle from the export to the domestic market up to the summer when all cattle would be eligible for export under the United States quota.

The old policy, the board said, had resulted in "very uneven" marketings of cattle—abundant supplies in the early part of each quarter and acute shortages toward the end of the quarter.

"This neither stabilized prices to the producer nor provided adequate beef supplies for civilian and military requirements in Canada," the announcement said.

TO SAVE LIVES

Blood Freezing And Drying Plant Being Built In Britain

London. — British scientists are spending a legacy of nearly $100,000 on a blood freezing and drying plant which will carry the development of life-saving plasma still another great stride forward. Every dollar spent may represent a life or more saved.

Building of the machine, largest yet erected for the freezing and drying of plasma, the British scientists in a field of science which is being diligently studied, for peace as well as war, by the United nations. It was made possible through a gift to the medical research council by trustees of the late industrialist chemist, Sir Henry Wellcome.

The machine resembles a giant refrigerator coupled to a group of tall cylinders. Through a new process discovered by British scientists it will freeze and dry each week the full blood gifts of 10,000 donors. Next week—or even eight years from now —the frozen dried plasma will give life to sick and wounded in any climate because it retains its quality indefinitely.

Dried plasma is saving lives in Egypt today and British warships, fighting their way to Russia, or Malta, carry the flake-like substance to save lives in the middle of intense actions or raging gales.

British blood also flows in the veins of many Chinese soldiers, wounded in the never-ceasing fight against Japan. To reach the Chinese the blood gifts from Britain are sent thousands of miles by air and sea and pass through all kinds of temperatures Yet the plasma remains perfect.

AIRPORT ADDITION

Million Dollars To Be Spent On Airport In Winnipeg

Winnipeg.—A $1,000,000 addition to No. 4 Air Observer school, involving extension of the Stevenson airport here and construction of two new runways, will be built on the site originally selected by the Dominion airdrome committee of Ottawa, it was announced. St. James municipality, in which the school is located, had proposed an alternative site to be considered with a view to protecting the residential area.

INVASION TALK

Premier Of Poland Says Venture Is Absolutely Feasible

London.—The Canadian-led raid on Dieppe "proved that an invasion of the continent is absolutely feasible," Gen. Sikorski, premier of Poland, said in a statement, marking the third anniversary of the Nazi invasion of Poland.

"The American army, gathering in Britain, and the Allies' shattering superiority in the air show what the Germans have to expect in the future," Gen. Sikorski said. The early of the United States into the war "unfavorably decided the final result," he added.

TEA PRICES

New Schedule Of Prices For Small Packages Of Tea

Ottawa.—Thomas K. Wade, tea administrator of the wartime prices and trade board, announced a schedule of "appropriate" prices for small packages of tea—now in demand under coupon rationing—based upon maximum retail prices established by the board last January.

Noting that the January schedule did not "anticipate" the small packages now brought into general use, the announcement set forth the following schedule:

For tea with a maximum retail price of 80 cents a pound, the retail price will be 23 cents for a four-ounce package and 12 cents for a two-ounce package.

For tea with a maximum of 90 cents a pound the four-ounce package will be 26 cents; the two-ounce 13 cents.

For tea with a maximum of $1 a pound the four-ounce package will be 26 cents and the two-ounce 14 cents.

The announcement said maximum prices for four and two-ounce packages of qualities not specified in the January schedule will be determined upon application to the administrator, who will also determine prices on tea bags for ultimate sale to consumers.

Allied Western Front Success Worry To Nazis

London.—Marshal Hermann Goering was reported to be shaking up the German air force on the western front as an aftermath of the Allies' continued successful daylight fighter and bomber sweeps over [redacted] France.

Reports reaching Fighting French circles in London as well as news despatches from the continent indicated that Allied control of the air over Dieppe and continuous fighter sweeps is causing Hitler the "greatest concern."

At the same time a Reuters' news agency special correspondent on the French frontier reported that stern measures had been taken inside Germany to suppress a rising tide of gossip concerning Dieppe. Hitler was reported to have ordered an intensive propaganda campaign to turn the battle into a verbal "German victory" and to confuse the occupied countries and attempt to sow the seeds of distrust in Canada, whose soldiers led the Dieppe raid.

The Reuters' story listed those factors as worrying the Nazi high command:—

The ability of a Canadian-British landing forces to approach Dieppe without interception and to remain for nine hours.

Four co-ordination between the German army and the air force, resulting in a "terrific" loss of planes, and most important of all, the landing of tanks by the Allies.

A Fighting French source here said word had reached London that Goering is trying to find new fields for his bombers and fighters to operate from along the invasion coast. This was described as an apparent result of heavy damage caused by precision daylight bombing by American Fortresses on present airdromes.

It was reliably stated that the German air force was unable to offer serious challenge to the Allies over Dieppe until three hours after the raid started. Then the Germans called up all available reserves, including night fighters and obsolete planes, to try to break the Allied cover.

Goering now is reported to be changing commands of the air force in the west and bringing up more planes and reorganizing plane concentrations.

DEMAND FOR LUMBER

Serious Shortage Of Men For Work In Forests

Ottawa.—As lumber requirements mount steadily, Canadian forests are facing a shortage of lumbermen totalling more than 53,000 it was revealed in information placed before Elliott M. Little, director of national selective service.

A survey of the situation and subsequent conferences between Mr. Little and lumber and pulpwood producers shows the need will increase to 110,000 by December, when logging is heaviest.

British Columbia lumbermen say they need 3,500 loggers immediately to meet quota obligations and an unusual demand for lumber, while 50,000 men are reported to be required in the eastern provinces.

Every effort will be made to supply both the lumber and pulpwood industries with men, spokesmen said, but should curtailment be necessary the pulpwood industry would suffer first as a less essential industry.

FLOUR IN RUSSIA

Shipments From Canada Sent In Considerable Amounts

Ottawa. — Canadian wheat has moved en route to Russia "in considerable amounts" in recent months in the form of flour, and negotiations for shipment of further supplies now are underway, Trade Minister MacKinnon revealed.

Last year shipments of Canadian wheat and flour went to northern Russian ports via the United [redacted] dom, and were welcomed as vital food supplies for Russian armies locked in combat with the Germans.

ARRIVE IN BRITAIN

Canadian Airmen Are From Many Walks Of Life

With the R.C.A.F. somewhere in England.—Men who occupied widely different occupations in civilian life are among the latest batch of R.C.A.F. fliers to arrive in England.

A lawyer, a miner, a civil servant, a telephone inspector, a bank clerk and a school teacher make up a group of radio technicians. The lawyer is LAC. L. Biff from Port Erie—he used to work in the bureau of statistics at Ottawa. LAC. W. R. Penney, of Montreal, inspected telephones before he joined up, and LAC. Wilcox, of Ottawa, was a bank clerk. The school teacher was LAC. R. J. Thompson, of Rosetown, Sask., and the miner LAC. E. I. Woolman, of Sudbury.

Another school teacher LAC. J. D. Winfield, of Toronto, had the satisfaction of landing in Britain on his 21th birthday.

STEEL SHORTAGE

People Are Urged To Put All Possible Steel To Work

Ottawa.—Munitions Minister Howe urged Canadians to put all possible idle machinery to work in need a serious shortage of steel and of manpower to process the steel.

In a departmental release, Mr. Howe offered Dominion citizens this advice: "Instead of buying a new machine, a new electric motor, or a new farm implement, try to borrow, rent or purchase what you need from your neighbor. Instead of letting machinery deteriorate from disuse, dispose of it to someone who can make it serve a useful purpose."

The war items minister said "Canada now is facing so serious a shortage of steel, and of manpower to process the steel that unless machinery now idle is put to essential work there may not be enough for essential industries."

Expression Of Confidence In Fight For Victory

London.—Britain viewed with calm confidence the opening of the fourth year of war and looked optimistically to a new period of offensive after three years in which reverses outnumbered victories

Dominion Secretary Attlee, in an anniversary statement, spoke for the nation when he said "we must expect further difficulties, but we can be certain that, however long the way, the issue is sure."

Confidence that, while the way still is difficult, the fourth year will see the beginning of a victory offensive was the keynote of many London and provincial newspaper editorials.

Prime Minister Churchill, Mrs. Churchill and all members of the cabinet attended services at Westminster Abbey

Typical of the newspaper comment was that of The Times, which said: "Whatever the forces in action are moving at last towards a balance. Of the forces in reserve, an overwhelming preponderance is with the United Nations. . . . The fight for survival is ending. The fight for victory must soon begin."

Commented the Daily Telegraph: "Whatever the dangers of the time and what doubtful days lie ahead, the union of the United Nations must be decisive in the end."

Said the Mirror: "We shall do well to look into the future with full confidence backed by unreserved determination . . . We wish that the next phase of the war may mark the longprocess the steel that unless machinery now idle is put to essential work there may not be enough for essential industries."

An Allied Move Against Dakar Seems Possible

There apparently is fire as well as smoke behind Berlin's sudden interest in French Dakar

It is entirely possible that the Allies will move against the French colony in the near future

But whether they plan such a move, the Germans are trying to create the impression that they do.

Should that map hope to take over Dakar peacefully by posing as a disinterested defender of French interests.

The sudden trip of the French governor general of West Africa to Vichy suggests that Hitler may be succeeding

It is unlikely that Laval is derided by the Axis suggestions that an attack on Dakar is imminent. Rather, he probably is an agreeable party to any plot to hand over Dakar to Germany.

Dakar, the westernmost point in Africa, always has been strategically important. With Brazil's entry into the war and the intensified U-boat campaign, Dakar is more than ever to both sides

The bulge of Brazil is only 1 700 miles from Dakar. That is within the range of big bombers. And it's not too great a distance for an invasion force to cover although an actual Nazi offensive against South America seems remote at the moment.

There never has been any de-finite proof that the Germans are using Dakar as a submarine base but there are considerable grounds to believe that they may be Laval hardly would deny Hitler a little favor like that.

That's why it seems logical that the Allies may try to occupy Dakar

Hitler probably doesn't need anything there that he doesn't already have His only motive for moving into Dakar openly would be an actual fear of an Allied occupation

The occupation of Dakar by the Allies would be a step toward protecting the important communications lines in the south Atlantic lines which supply Africa, the Near East, and India.

It also would be the first move toward ultimately clearing the Axis from all Africa—a task that must be attempted sooner or later.

FACTS ABOUT RATION BOOKS

Now in circulation is ration book 1 for six months use and bearing the name and address and serial number of the holder on the cover. The number is important, and a record of it should be kept in a separate place in case the book is lost. The same number will be given each Canadian for this and all subsequent books for the duration

In not present home coupon when buying sugar and tea or coffee They must be detached in the presence of the retailer.

Observe the statement on the post card in the back of the ration book. "Do not use this card until advised to do so," means that it should be left in place in the book until notice is given for it to be returned to the rationing office.

On each page of coupons the holder should write his name and address and book serial number on the lines specified for this information.

Post Offices are not permitted to release any ration books addressed to General Delivery. It is essential that a definite address be given Neither will post offices forward ration books. Change of address must be recorded at the regional rationing offices of the WPTB

Salvation Army Asks Help

Next month the Salvation Army will appeal as the Canadian people for the money to continue its valued work on the "home front." After sixty years of continuous service in the needy and sick, that work and the place it fills do not have to be explained. But what should be understood is that this work and the money required for it are quite separate from the splendid work the Salvation Army is doing in our military camps and overseas.

Unfortunately there has been a widespread misunderstanding of this fact. When the Canadian Red Cross was raising funds a short time ago, the public was officially told that it would be the only appeal during 1942.

PRICES PEGGED ON EGGS

Maximum wholesale prices for eggs in eleven Canadian cities serving as main distributing points have been set by the W.P.T. Board. Normal fluctuations below this top level are expected to continue through most of the year.

For grade A large eggs the maximum prices, representing wholesale delivered costs, are Montreal 50 cents a dozen, Toronto 49½, Winnipeg 48, Saskatoon 47, Regina 47, Calgary 47, Edmonton 47, Vancouver 49, St. John N.B 50½, Halifax 50½, Sidney 50½.

At points not designed in the order the Grade A delivered wholesale price must not exceed the price prevailing at the nearest designated point plus freight charges from that point.

Lower grades and sub grades are required to be sold at appropriate levels below those for Grade A. The usual premium prices must be continued but must not exceed those of the 1941 basic period.

Don't Confuse Your Radio Broadcast

Salvage items are frequently heard over the radio and Canadian listeners are advised to be careful in distinguishing whether the information emanates from a Canadian or United States station. While the salvage situation in the United States is in many instances similar to our own, there are others where their need for certain materials, and their methods of collection and disposal, are at variance with Canadian needs and practices. Check your station carefully.

Scrap metal and rubber urgently needed. With it we shall win With out it we MAY fail!

Doesn't Pay to Hold Wool Clip

Wool producers are advised that there is a risk, and no advantage in holding over the 1942 wool clip as the hope of more favorable prices later. The Canadian Wool Board Ltd., states that the price to all growers by grades on the 1942 clip will be on a similar basis irrespective of time of delivery

The producer takes a chance that wool will deteriorate if held over under unsuitable storage conditions, and is without payment as well. Any competent grader can readily distinguish new clip wools from those of the previous season. This summer's clip held until next season would still be graded as the 1942 clip, it is affirmed.

SUGAR FOR APPLES

OTTAWA, Aug. 28. — In order to encourage greater consumption of the earlier varieties of apples, which because of the loss of export markets are in surplus this year, S. R. Noble, Sugar Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, announced today that "until further notice domestic consumers may purchase by voucher extra sugar at the rate of one pound per eight pounds of such apples consumed in the household. This is equivalent to one pound of sugar for a six quart basket of apples, or five pounds per bushel box, crate or hamper

As apples are not preserved in any great extent, this fruit has not hitherto been qualified for the issue of sugar on purchase vouchers, but it is recognized that it is desirable to stimulate the use of early varieties which are not keepers and are mainly used for cooking purposes. To the extent that they can be brought into additional consumption by an allowance on sugar this will tend to reduce the demand for imported dried fruits.

The extra allowance of sugar now authorized may be regarded as inadequate to take care of full requirements for cooking apples, but the present allowance, equal to one and one half pound per person per week, is intended to cover ordinary cooking needs. The extra allowance is therefore an encouragement to housewives to do more cooking of these early varieties than otherwise would be the case, and an additional incentive to make the best possible use of the large supply.

One Big Problem

Is How To Make Good Apple Sauce Without Sugar

Apple sauce, Canada's national dish, is in peril.

Nature intended that stewed apples should be sweetened with sugar, it seems, for no other combination is quite as good. Apple sauce can be sweetened with honey, maple syrup, corn syrup or saccharine; but then it isn't apple sauce.

This difficulty has created an economic and marketing problem of first rate importance. Duchess apples have not been selling because apple sauce and apple pies are more or less out. The Duchess is an apple sauce variety, par excellence, and sugar rationing has made the sale and distribution of this apple extremely sticky.

Moreover, the present situation has created a fear that consumption of all varieties of apples may be at low ebb this season. A percentage of the crop is consumed in the raw state, but by far the largest proportion goes into consumption via the many ways in which apples may be cooked and served.—Farmers Advocate.

Explanations and Comments

Joseph's Favoritism, Genesis 37.1-4. Joseph's Dreams, Genesis 37. 5-13. Joseph's Journey in Search of his Brethren, Genesis 37. 13-17.

Joseph's Brethren Plot to Kill him, Genesis 37.18-24. Joseph's brothers saw this dreamer, as they called him, coming, and conspired to Kill him. His dreams of his sheaf as the one to which all the sheaves of his brothers bowed down, and of himself as the one to whom the sun, moon and stars made obeisance, had given him this nickname of "The Dreamer." Their plan was to slay him and cast his body into a pit and then report to Jacob that he had been slain by a wild beast. Then "We shall see what will become of his dreams," they cried! How Joseph's claims to superiority rankled in their hearts this remark shows. Where jealousy "of favoritism are, there is confusion, and every vile deed, without Person. Jas. 3.16.

When Reuben, the oldest of the brothers, heard their plan he counseled them not to take the lad's life, but to cast him into a pit, whence he hoped to free him and deliver him to their father. His plea prevailed, and on Joseph's arrival they stripped him of his coat that showed their father's favoritism, and cast him into a dry pit.

Joseph Sold to Merchantmen and Carried to Egypt, Genesis 37.25-30. "The heartless barbarity with which Joseph's brethren sat down to eat and drink the very dainties he had brought them from his father, while they left him, as they thought, to starve, has been regarded by all later generations as the height of, hard-hearted indifference.

The plain near Dothan was, and still is, part of a regular trade route from Gilead through the Plain of Sharon to Egypt. When the brothers saw a caravan of Ishmaelites coming from Gilead with their camels bearing spice and balm and myrrh (gums that were used in Egypt for embalming and also for incense and medicine) Judah cried, How shall we benefit from killing our brother and concealing his blood? According to the ancient idea blood would cry to God from the ground, Gen. 4.11. Then Judah counseled his brothers to sell Joseph to the Ishmaelites and not be guilty of taking a brother's life. His counsel prevailed.

Joseph Sold to Potiphar, Genesis 37.36. In Egypt Joseph was sold to Potiphar, one of Pharao's officers, the captain of the guard. "Head of the Police, we might call him; his position was one of power and dignity. Pharaoh was the royal title of all the rulers of Egypt. The ruler at this time was probably one of the Hyksos kings. Potiphar's residence was probably at Memphis, the most magnificent city in Egypt.

DYNAMIC LANGUAGE

American English, says the New York Times, is dynamic, and in particular newspaper English. The story of an air raid by our own people on the R.A.F.—not one of the gigantic 1,000-plane attacks, but a routine performance—is likely to begin thus: "Roaring out in massed formation over Western France yesterday Allied planes blasted Nazi factories and airdromes."

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

"TAKE CARE OF YOURSELF"

An industrial health sound slide film, "Take Care Of Yourself," is reviewed in the current issue of Health Magazine published by the Health League of Canada.

Unlike slide films of the strawberry - festival - magic - lantern era—which consisted for most part of post cards showing scenes of Grant's Tomb or the Great Wall of China—this film has definite human interest. It contains sound advice on health given by a genial doctor and a pleasant nurse in conversation with Jim, hero of the play, who punches in for work one morning after a night of overindulgence in food, drink, cigarettes and lack of sleep.

Jim protests that a fellow has to get some fun out of life. "Right," answers the doctor, who proceeds to explain that good health enables a fellow to work better, play better—and get more fun out of life.

"Take Care of Yourself," one of a series of slide films dealing with industrial health education, will be shown in Canada under the auspices of the Industrial Division of the Health League of Canada.

Jim is a typical factory worker around whom the story of "Take Care of Yourself" has been sketched. He is a very wrong one morning. Goes to the doctor's and asks for something "to keep me on the job." He gets a tablet from the nurse—and some incidental advice from the doctor. Jim becomes interested, asks questions and the doctor answers them under the headings of:

Rest; Food; Recreation and Exercise; Cleanliness; Mental Attitude.

The give and take of dialogue between Jim, the nurse and the doctor holds interest from the beginning and neatly gets a lot of information across without resorting to a lengthy dissertation on health. Plant and personnel officials may secure further details from the Secretary Industrial Division, Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario.

EMBRYO HEROIC TRAVIER

It is the first time for over a century that the Germans have been made to learn in their own land what war means, and the taste and memory of that very bitter medicine is an indispensable condition of a really permanent peace. There can be no permanent peace until all nations—and the Germans most of all—realize that those who take the sword shall perish by the sword.

The Chinese invented or discovered silk, porcelain, tea, printing and gunpowder.

Department of National Defence has listed 569 Canadian soldiers known to be held by the Japanese as prisoners of war at Hong Kong.

FOOD UNBELIEVABLE, STATES REPATRIATED RAILWAY

NEW YORK.— When Stanley Hosley, traffic representative of the Canadian National Railways at Hong Kong, visited the company's New York office to report his safe return from Japanese internment at Hong Kong, he had two dollars left of 13 he possessed when Japanese soldiers thrust him at bayonet point with other Anglo-Saxons into confinement at the Hong Kong Bank building. Later, Hosley was transferred to prison at Camp Stanley.

Mr. Hosley, who drove a British ambulance in Hong Kong after the Jap attack on Dec. 8th, told of the extreme bravery of the British and Americans under fire and during the long months in the prison camp where two meals of rice each day was the regular fare. This was supplemented once weekly by a piece of meat "the size of a postage stamp, of doubtful origin".

The Canadian National traffic representative, who left Hong Kong aboard the Japanese liner Asama Maru on June 29, lost 26 pounds during captivity. He described the food on the Asama Maru as "fair" and on the Gripsholm, which brought the released prisoners from Portugese East Africa to New York as "good", while New York food was "just unbelievable". Hosley said that all personal records as well as cash and steamship tickets in the Hong Kong office were destroyed before the Japanese military took over the C.N.R. office, now being used as military headquarters.

VIOLATIONS PROVE COSTLY

During one week in August 24 completed prosecutions were conducted in Canadian courts for violations of W.P.T.B. orders. Fines paid amounted to $797.00

There were 11 cases of violations of rationing regulations eight violations of the Price ceiling, one for hoarding, and two for contravention of rationing regulations.

Canada Needs Half Milion Tons of Scrap Before Winter

Have You Any Scrap Iron in Your Yard?

OTTAWA.—Half a million tons of scrap iron and steel must be added to the stockpiles throughout Canada before the winter freeze-up, the Department of Munitions and Supply has announced.

"Canada faces a steel crisis which can be solved only by the active cooperation of every farmer, every manufacturer, and every other owner of machinery," said F. B. Kilbourn, Director of Salvage. "If our steel mills are to keep up maximum production all winter, every last item of scrap iron and steel must be sold to a collection agency or given to a National Salvage committee within the next few weeks."

The Controller added that a recent order makes it illegal to retain, except by permit, any obsolete machine which is not now serving a useful purpose. Such machines, and scrap iron and steel in all other forms weighing a total of 500 pounds or more, must be disposed of before Sept. 15, or otherwise must be reported to the Steel Goods Administrator of the War Prices and Trade Board, Lansdowne Building, Toronto.

"The order does not mean that normal machinery which will be used again next year should be scrapped," said Mr. Kilbourn. "On the contrary it is essential that the fullest possible essential use be made of all existing equipment so that new steel need not be used in the manufacture of additional equipment."

The Controller added that the successful outcome of the war hinges on the ability of the United Nations to gather sufficient scrap iron and steel to keep the mills in full operation "We need the scrap today," he said "Tomorrow might be too late"

Every piece of waste steel, copper brass, lead, rubber around premises of any kind, gathered up and delivered to Salvage Committee will be a blow to the Axis.

THE NEW INCOME TAX

PART I - As it Affects

SALARY AND WAGE EARNERS

1. Question: WHO MUST PAY?

Answer: All persons in receipt of incomes over $660 single—or $1200 married.

2. Question: WHAT FORMS DO YOU HAVE TO FILL OUT?

Answer: Unless you are single, without dependents, and not claiming payments for allowable personal savings (item 9D), you should file Form TD-1 with your employer. Otherwise he must deduct the amounts provided by the Table of Tax Deductions for a single person without dependents or personal savings.

If ½ or more of your income comes from salary or wages, you must file your 1942 Income Return by 30th September 1943. If your income is over $1,000, including not over $100 from investments, you will use Form T1-Special; otherwise you will use Form T1.

3. Question: WHEN AND HOW IS YOUR TAX COLLECTED?

Answer: Your employer is required by law to make deductions from your salary or wages on account of your 1942 tax during the period September 1942 to August 1943. Each deduction must be the amount provided by the official Table of Tax Deductions for your current rate of pay, and family status and personal savings as declared on Form TD-1 (item 2 above).

The Table is designed to collect about 99% of the tax on your salary or wages, leaving a balance of not more than 10%, in most cases, (plus tax on your other income, if any) to be paid with your Income Return to be filed in September 1943.

If your salary or wages are less than ⅔ of your income, you must pay tax on your other income by compulsory instalments. (See Part II below).

4. Question: WHAT CONSTITUTES TAXABLE INCOME?

Answer: Your income is made up of your full salary or wages before any deductions whatsoever, plus living allowances, gratuities or bonuses (including cost of living bonus) and the value of any board, living quarters or supplies, etc., given you by your employer. It also includes such receipts as interest and dividends, rents (after taxes, repairs, etc.), royalties and annuities. From your income you deduct payments (up to $300) into certain types of employees' superannuation or pension funds, charitable donations up to 10% of your income, and medical expenses over 3% of your income (maximum—$400 single, $600 married, plus $100 for each dependent up to four), to find the amount of your taxable income.

5. Question: HOW MUCH DO YOU PAY?

Answer: (A) Normal Tax—(whichever rate is applicable is applied to the full amount of your taxable income from the first to the last dollar).

(1) Single—with taxable income between $660 and $1200—3%
with taxable income between $1200 and $3000—8%

(2) Married (or equivalent status)— with taxable income over $1200—3%
(3) Dependents—tax credit for each—$120

(B) Graduated Tax—

(1) On first $660 of taxable income—No Tax.
10% on next $ 500		15% on next $ 1,000
13% on next 500		60% on next 7,000
17% on next 1000		65% on next 10,000
21% on next 1000		70% on next 20,000
25% on next 1500		75% on next 20,000
30% on next 1500		80% on next 30,000
		85% on excess over $100,000

(2) Married (or equivalent status)—tax credit—$110
(3) Dependents—tax credit for each—up to $80

(C) Surtax—9% on investment income over $1100 without exemptions.

NOTES

(1) In no case are you required to pay a net tax (i.e., after credit for dependents) which would reduce your taxable income below $660 single or $1200 married.

(2) If a wife has earned income over $660, then both she and her husband are taxable as single persons, but any amount a wife earns does not affect her husband's right to be taxed as a married person. A married woman is taxed as a single person under all circumstances except only when her husband's income is less than $660

6. Question: HOW MUCH OF YOUR TAX IS SAVINGS?

Answer:

(1) Single—the lesser of
(a) ⅓ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax, or
(b) 6% of your taxable income (maximum $300); plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).

(2) Married (or equivalent status)—the lesser of
(a) ⅓ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax, or
(b) 10% of your taxable income (maximum $1000) plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).

You will get back the savings portion of your tax when you actually pay, plus 2% interest, after the war.

(D) Tax Credit for Personal Savings—
You may deduct from the savings portion of your tax (item 6) 1942 payments on account of—

(1) an approved employers' (or trade union) superannuation, retirement or pension fund;
(2) premiums on life insurance policies issued prior to 23rd June 1941 (if issued after that date ask your insurance company or Inspector of Income Tax);
(3) annuity or savings policies not purchasable without substantial loss or forfeiture, and
(4) principal payments on a mortgage or agreement of sale of a dwelling prior to 23rd June, 1942, on one residential property; provided (a) they do not exceed the savings portion, and (b) receipts are produced for the payments when filing your Income Return.

(E) National Defence Tax—
This tax does not apply after 31st August, 1942. The deductions made during January to August 1942 apply as a payment on account of your 1942 tax.

7. Question: HOW MUCH OF YOUR TAX IS SAVINGS?

Answer: (1) Single—the lesser of
(a) ⅓ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax, or
(b) 6% of your taxable income (maximum $300); plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).

(2) Married (or equivalent status)—the lesser of
(a) ⅓ the total of your Normal Tax, Graduated Tax and Surtax, or
(b) 10% of your taxable income (maximum $1000) plus 1% for each dependent (maximum $100 for each).

You will get back the savings portion of your tax when you actually pay, plus 2% interest, after the war.

FLAX RUST

No less than 153 distinct species of fungi causing rust diseases have been collected in Manitoba alone. Rust diseases are common but only on our cereal crops, but on bellflowers, dandelions, roses, goldenrod, spruce trees, willows, poplars, sandgrasses, wild grasses, sunflowers and a wide variety of other plants.

All rust fungi are obligate parasites. That is to say they can only live and reproduce on living plants. Some, such as the one causing stem rust of wheat, require two different host plants to complete their life cycles. The stem rust organisms develops red and black spores on wheat and other grasses. The rust spores multiply and produce new infections, while the black spores live through the winter and germinate in the spring. When they germinate, they produce small short-lived spores which remain infect wheat, but only the barberry. Infections develop on the barberry and a still different type of spore is produced which can infect wheat. We have no barberry in Western Canada, so each spring we depend upon spores blown to us from the United States to start our epidemics.

But flax rust is different. When the black spores germinate in the spring, the tiny spores they produce can infect flax directly. Herein lies an important moral. Rusted wheat stems lying about the field in fall and spring is harmless. Rust flax straw and stubble are likely to produce a crop of spores which will infect nearby flax fields. So, burn all rusted flax straw and plow under stubble in the fall if it will not burn. Rust spores are fast for some of the parasites, but slow for others.

A Permanent Peace

NO MATTER HOW LONG the present war continues, there can be only one outcome. The nations ranged on the side of the democracies have solemnly pledged to continue the struggle until final victory is attained. If the war should be prolonged, there will no doubt be further peace-offerings from the enemy nations, who may ask for an armistice with a view to a patched-up peace. As the enemy has undertaken to wage a total war, so must the Allied Nations be just as determined to continue the struggle until the final peace is won. There can be no sentimentalism shown when the curtain is rung down on the final act.

* * * * *

Will Wars Continue?

There is a school of thought that enunciates the view, that inasmuch as from time immemorial there have always been wars, that this curse of humanity must inevitably continue. Within the lifetime of the present generation we have witnessed two world wars and it is unconceivable to think that we are doomed, either ourselves or our children, to endure another world cataclysm. We are a peaceful people, and as such why should we be called to defend ourselves from other war-like and predatory nations We are, however, given to understand from views expressed by prominent statesmen and war leaders that we are now fighting for a permanent peace, and that steps will be taken to make sure that in future the peace will be maintained.

* * * * *

A Policy Needed

The only method by which this high purpose can be attained, would seem to be primarily by a unification of the English-speaking world, and with the aid of the other peace-loving peoples which comprise the United Nations. The man-power and resources of this continent, coupled with the might of the British Empire, should act as a strong deterrent to any act of aggression. It would require a permanent policy and a singleness of purpose to attain this much-desired end. One of the lessons we have learned from this war is that no country, no matter how distant from the seat of trouble, can escape from its terrors. The airplane has annihilated distances, and the world has become small indeed. Isolationism can be likened to the proverbial ostrich who hides his head in the sand to escape his enemies. Our only hope then is for a new and revised League of Nations that will stand the test of time.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Major Bowen Tyrwhitt

A suit of battledress, as the only uniform available to a soldier, can be expected to last six months. If it is sized out by the issue of a cotton drill uniform in the summer the length of time before replacement becomes necessary is lengthened by a few weeks. When, in addition, a soldier is issued with a "walking out" uniform to wear in the fall and winter months the battle-dress can be expected to last at least nine months.

What is all that about? You ask.

Just that when you are clothing or equipping an army you think of durability, utility, and the public purse. The main idea is to give each soldier everything he needs—but nothing more than that.

Which is a good target for us soldiers in the Individual Citizen's Army to aim at. In other words, let's buy only what we need and preserve what we have.

There are many organizations in the Army charged with seeing that soldiers have everything they need, that they take care of what they have and that what is no longer usable for its original purpose is salvaged for some other use.

We have dealt, from time to time, with the Service Corps, the Q.M. or Quartermaster-General's branch and the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps but so far we haven't got down to the housekeepers of the different units yet.

These "housekeepers" are the Quartermaster sergeants. There are two varieties, Regimental Quarter-Master Sergeants and Company Quarter-Master Sergeants. I nearly forgot the top man, the Quarter-Master who is the responsible commissioned officer in each unit.

The unit organization is: Quartermaster, a commissioned officer who is usually a captain; R.Q.M.S., a regimental officer, second class and a Regulation Battery, or Company Quarter-Master Sergeant who is the senior non-commissioned officer of the company ranking next below the Company Sergeant-Major

These men function as a supply service for the unit and are responsible for obtaining all arms, clothing, equipment and rations for the men in their care. But, and this is a big "but", they are also responsible for the care, maintenance and return of these articles or for a satisfactory explanation of clearance of them.

That through this chain of responsibility, the people's purse is watched, care is taken of the people's property and that the needs of soldiers and provision is made—through the chain of responsibility—for the collection and return to the Salvage Branch, R.C.O.C., of used or worn articles that can be repaired or otherwise salvaged.

"If it's good enough for the Army, it's good enough to the taxpayer." That would be a good motto for us to adopt. Then, conversely, "if it's not good enough for the taxpayer, it's not good enough for the Army," must be true, too.

That refers to material things. As regards the preservation and conservation of material things the Army can show the rest of us the way.

A full record of everything issued is kept in the Company and Regimental Quarter-Master's store. That record shows just when Pte. John Smith was issued with his new coat or his battle-dress or his boots. It records the loss by Pte. Canuck of any of the equipment—and passes that information to the Paymaster so that deductions can be made.

Do we do that in our homes?

In other words are we taking enough care of what we have to enable us to play our part in blocking the infiltration of inflation forces? Or are we rushing off to the store to buy something we don't need because the style has changed—or because we just plain want it?

I heard an indignant citizen (feminine) say the other day that she saw dresses in a window that "certainly had not been simplified." Sure! Why not? There are still many retailers who have clothes in stock that were manufactured before the simplification orders were made Are these to be wasted?

These are the things we must guard against. Turn that spare money for a new suit or coat into War savings. Or, for war time—in other words, do as the army does, make what you have last by taking care of it, by buying carefully in the first place.

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has stated emphatically that the rationing of clothes is not imminent. But that does not mean we should go on buying apeces. 3480

GEMS OF THOUGHT

Selected by J. Bleasdell

The best teacher one can have is necessity.—La None.

Necessity will teach a man, however slow he be, to be wise.—Hurdipedes.

Necessity is always the first stimulus to industry, and those who conduct it with prudence, perseverance, and energy will rarely fail.—Smiles.

Necessity of action takes away the fear of the act, and makes bold resolution the favorite of fortune.—Quarles.

Godliness or Christianity is a human necessity: man cannot live without it; he has no intelligence, health, hope, or happiness without godliness.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Want is a bitter and a hateful good. Because its virtues are not understood.

Yet many things, impossible to thought.
Have been by need to full perfection brought.—Dryden.

Has to Explain

Mrs. Newsreel: "Henry, I thought you told me that your boss loaned money on notes."

Mr. Newsreel: "So it does, dear. Why?"

Mrs. Newsreel: "Well, it doesn't. I sent the maid down there with a note telling them I wanted to borrow $100 and they wouldn't give it to her."

Even though their lungs are removed frogs are able to continue living, as they can take in oxygen and give out carbon dioxide through their skins.

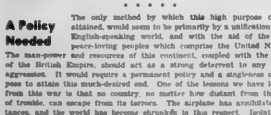
Eggs—White Or Brown



THEIR MORNING ON MILLIONS OF BREAKFAST TABLES—

Eggs helped to get the families ill to a good start for the day, and in millions of other homes eggs will continue the good work at lunch and dinner in varied dress—as golden scrambled, poached on toast, hard or soft in their shells, "sunnyside up" with ham or hidden away in muffins or dessert—eggs are good for us at any meal.

A "MUST" FOOD—

Eggs are one of the "must" foods. Even when budgets are limited, at least three or four eggs a week are needed for each person. If possible, one egg a day for each child and each grown-up is recommended and sometimes two.

WHAT'S IN AN EGG?—

Eggs are rich in iron—one of the minerals our bodies need. Vitamins A and G. Good quality protein—important for children. They contain also some Vitamin D.

STYLES IN SHELLS—

Some people like white shelled eggs while others prefer them brown. The color of the shell is related only to the kind of hen. Leghorns lay white eggs; most other hens lay brown eggs The color of shell has no'ting to do with age, condition or flavor of eggs Flavor depends mostly on what the hens eat. Grade for grade, white eggs and brown eggs are the same.

YOLKS—LIGHT OR DARK?—

Many people think the color of the yolk indicates its "freshness"—the orange ones being older. This is not true for color depends on the hen's food and may vary from light yellow to deep orange and the egg still be of excellent quality.

COOKING PREFERRED—

Once a good egg, not always a good egg—unless properly cared for Eggs, like milk, are perishable and should be kept in a cool place—in your refrigerator, if possible.

THE ART OF COOKING EGGS—

High temperatures make egg white tough. Today, the best cook doesn't boil eggs. Instead she puts the egg in cold water brings it to a boil, covers, and turns off the heat. The egg should stand in the water for three minutes (soft cooked) and 20-25 minutes (hard cooked).

Scrambled eggs are best cooked in a double boiler, instead of directly over the heat A moderate oven should be used for such dishes as custards, soufflas and cakes.

On the vitamin chart, free on postal card request to the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, you can further explore the importance of eggs in your diet.

DO HOME PILLS AND POWDERS FOR IRON HAVE YOU DISCOVERED ALL-BRAN?

Says Mrs. William Brady, Pender, Ontario: "We have no more use for harsh cathartics! When we found out about ALL-BRAN we knew we'd never go back to pills or powders any more. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN* is certainly the 'Better Way' to iron!"

Why don't you buy KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN? Try ALL-BRAN'S "Better Way" to correct the cause of constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet. But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like cathartics. It takes time. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's. In two convenient size packages, or ask for the individual serving package at restaurants. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

CBC NATIONAL FARM RADIO FORUM

Although Municipal Health Services are doing a good job in Saskatchewan, a long way from perfection, in the opinion of speakers heard from Regina, in a recent broadcast of the CBC's National Farm Radio Forum. The speakers were: C. H. Chapin of Strasbourg, secretary-treasurer of the rural municipality of Wellington No. 97; Reeve M. S. Anderson of the same municipality; and Dr. E. Hitaman, rural physician of the McKillop health unit Mr Anderson, a Norwegian by birth and conversant with the highly developed public health services of Norway, was one of the prime movers in the framing and passage of Saskatchewan's Municipal Medical and Hospital Services Act.

The plan discussed by the speakers has been in operation in McKillop municipality since 1939 Provincial and municipal authorities co-operate in the work and individual residents pay an annual contribution which has been set at $7 20 The doctor serves about 2100 persons in an area extending about 25 miles east from Strasbourg, and also serves as Municipal Health Officer of four municipalities co-operating in the plan Strasbourg, Balgonie, Sutton and McKillop. He is paid an annual salary of $4,000, and provides all municipal and surgical care outside of hospital and within the scope of local facilities. Hospital care is provided for a small fee of $1 day in public ward rates. It does not include dental treatment or examinations for glasses. Patients take care of their transportation. X-rays and physiotherapy are included, when requested by the local doctor or by a specialist.

It was generally agreed that public health had improved under the plan. Patients felt much freer to consult their local doctor about minor ailments and in many cases more serious ailments were detected by prompt treatment. Illness was laid upon the work in the district at bay. The schools, twenty in all, had been visited, all children examined, and about 600 school children pre-school age children inoculated for diphtheria and scarlet fever, and vaccinated for smallpox.

It was stated that there were seven of these health units operating in Saskatchewan, and that other municipalities had petitions in and were awaiting the completion of their organization. The health units kept in touch with one another through an association known as the Health Service Union, of which Mr Chapin was secretary-treasurer. The chairman of this Union was Reeve George Byrne of Eyebrow, and the vice-chairman, A. E. Jones of Lumsden.

Mr. Anderson stressed the point that health should be a national problem, and hoped that some day municipal boundaries could be disregarded and centres set up for medical treatment of all Canadians wherever they might be. Dr. Hitaman said that from the doctor's point of view, perhaps the greatest benefit would be to national health as a result of early diagnosis and preventive treatment. The municipal plan, however, was working well in Dr. Hitaman's opinion and had given a sense of security to the people of the community.

VERY WONDERFUL.

Captain George Freed, of the Bureau of Navigation, was talking about hazardous new liners. "A young man," he said, "crossed on the newest of these His friends, when he disembarked, asked him how he had enjoyed the trip.

"It was wonderful," he said, "Why if I hadn't been seasick all the way I wouldn't have known I was on the ocean."

BOWTELL BULLETIN

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Gannon on the birth of a baby boy in the Vermilion hospital.

Kenneth Rindale and Robert Repp are attending high school in town this year.

Our new teacher is Miss Rhesa Smith of Dewberry and she is boarding at the Knutson home.

Mrs. Dalford spent Wednesday at the Monaghan home canning corn.

Mary and Gertrude Gow arrived home on Thursday after spending a few days in Calgary.

Mrs. Doddy, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sheen and acted as God parents on Sunday when Evelyn Carol Perkins was baptized in the little church at Pleasant Valley by the Ven. Arch deacon Lewtas.

Mrs. Mellinis has two boarders at present, both workers from the oil field.

We are pleased to report that Del bert Miller's crushed hand is healing nicely but is still in a cast.

Everyone appears to be experiencing great difficulty in cutting their crops this year. The grain is so thick and tangled.

Jimmy Repp is our school janitor for the present but we understand that Jim expects to go to Calgary this winter.

Mr Groscop made a good quick job of cutting Mr. McClellan's wheat.

Molly Fenton and Treva Walsh are continuing school by taking correspondence courses.

BOURNEMOUTH, ENGLAND, WARNS

We have been a pleasure-loving people, dishonoring God's Day, picnicking and boating. Now the sea shores are barred, no picnics, no bathing.

We have ignored the ringing of the Church bells calling us to worship. Now the bells cannot ring except to warn of invasion.

We have left the churches half empty when they should have been filled with worshippers. Now they are in ruins.

We would not listen to the way of peace. Now we are forced to listen to the blitz-way of war.

The money we would not give to the Lord's work now is taken from us in taxes and higher prices.

The food for which we forgot to give thanks, now is unobtainable.

The service we refused to give God, now is conscripted for the country.

Lives we refused to live under God's control now are under the nation's control.

Nights we would not spend watching unto prayer, now are spent in anxious air-raid precautions.

The evils of Godless modern ideologies we would not fight, now we see what Germany has got of this teaching, has produced.

STAGETTES RE-ORGANIZE

Miss I. Noonan, Pres. — Resume Made of Work of Past Year

A reorganization meeting of the local Stagette club for 1942-43 was held on Thursday evening Sept. 3. Elections resulted in the following slate of officers:

President—Imelda Noonan
Vice-President—Lucie English
Secretary—Nora Nelson
Treasurer—June Burch
Editor—Jessie Swanson
Editor of Stagesette — Dorothy Heidebrecht
Social Convenor—Betty Caldwell
Educational—Lee Oldenburg
Charity—Marjorie Stewart
Sick Committee—Dolly Isley
Membership Committee — Lavinia Broughton

The retiring president, Miss Marj Stewart gave a resume of the club activities since it was organized in February of this year.

Liberal donations have been made to the Red Cross, to the Red Shield and to the Kinsmen club at Lloydminster. A number of parcels were sent overseas and letters of appreciation have been received from the boys.

A contribution was made during the winter to the Hockey Boys' fund for the purchase or an artificial limb for a local boy.

The Stagette club is sponsoring the Kinsmen's "Milk for Britain" bottles for which are placed in several of the stores in town.

This year the National Club of Stagettes have their own project in the Waldemar St. school in Montreal. This is a school for underprivileged children of London who have been evacuated from the slums. The Calgary club which has a direct contact with this school has sent several hundred rounds of food and clothing to them in the past few months. These are greatly appreciated as evidenced by the number of grateful letters which they have received. The clothing or donations to this worthy cause will be appreciated by the local girls.

The club has been very valued members to the Edmonton club in the persons of the Misses Margaret Shand and Edna Jones who are employed as an American firm and Miss Doris Snelgrove who is attending MacTavish Commercial.

The new clubs, Victoria, Vancouver and Vernon, B.C., have been added this past summer through the efforts of two Edmonton Stagettes. The Stagette name will be soon as well known in B.C. as it is in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The girls are always willing to help so if any of the other clubs in town need a helping hand, call on them.

The manufacture of ice cream is prohibited in Britain, as from 30th of September, 1942. Its production makes considerable demands on manpower, factory space, and transport. All these will be devoted to actual war service.

Don't Feed Raw Wheat to Poultry

The feeding of raw wheat to poultry may cause severe dietetic according to Dr. T. Lloyd Jones, Animal Pathologist, Dept. of Agriculture.

Raw wheat is unpalatable that combined, frequently contains a considerable portion of immature kernels. These kernels are likely to cause digestive disturbances in poultry which result in the development of Enteritis.

Wheat should be allowed to age at least a month after threshing before it is fed to poultry.

TOLLAND

Harvest is in full swing and every one is very busy these days. The grain is so heavy that farmers are having lots of trouble keeping their binders in a running order.

We are sorry to hear that Grandma Nichols is a patient in the hospital at Vermilion and we wish her a speedy recovery.

Miss Myrtle Glidden is teaching the Canton school this year, Rest. Ramsay is at Vassell.

Pte. Pete Ruud was home on a 10 hour leave over the week and from the training centre at Red Deer.

Pte. Robert Wilkinson is home on furlough from Victoria.

Pte. Fred Blades came home last week for a few days to harvest his crop. He is stationed at the West coast.

Many of the boys have received their army suits on there aren't many young men left.

Mildred Cooper, Mary and Eileen Preston are attending high school in Vermilion this year.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stoole of Basswood on the birth of a daughter in the Vermilion hospital on Aug. 30th.

WHY DO WE EAT MORE?

Consumption of food in Canada has increased 15 to 20 p.c. over that of pre-war days. Three reasons for this stated by the W.P.T. Board are that more than one million men and women are gainfully employed than at the beginning of the war.

Canadian people have more money in their pockets.

Practically everyone in employment is working much harder than he did before the war.

PROMISING SAND STRUCK AT SASKAHEAD WELL

Means Big Extension of Oil Field of Prince Gets Big Contract for Auxiliary Supply

During the past week there have been four drilling rigs at work in the Vermilion oil field indicating that a speed up in drilling activity is well under way.

Foremost in developments was the striking of a promising oil sand late Monday night in the Saskahead well located on lsd 7 of Sec. 23-50-6 W5th. The sand was reached at 1828 feet and a thickness of from 7 to 8 feet is indicated This is more than usually important as it proves the extension of the oil sand into new territory not more than a half mile, the Saskahead being located in a new area fully a half mile east and a little north of the closest producer, Princeville No. 2.

The Saskahead was drilled by the B.W.S. for a group of business men of Indian Head, Sask.

An electroloog will be taken this week, casing will be run and the well completed in, preparatory to being placed on production.

AUXILIARY GAS WELL

Another big development of the past week has been the securing of a second gas well as an auxiliary for the Prince Public Service gas supply, and while it may never be needed, it will always be there in case. This well located by the Vermilion Consolidated No. 13, drilled last fall by the B.W.S. Drilling Company, just a mile north-west of the Shane well. It was taken down to 1800 feet where a casing factory supply was not obtained. Last week it was taken back to 1573 where a first gas flow had been struck and cut off. Here the pressure and flow seems to be very good and tests are to be carried out and measurements taken during the coming week.

ELMORE NO. 1

The K de K Drillers were reported to be coring on Wednesday at the Elmore No. 1, the most easterly well in the field and results here are according waited with great interest. It is on lsd 1 of Sec. 25-50-5.

MIDFIELD No. 3

Driller C.A. Withers was down 700 feet on Wednesday at Midfield No. 2, located on lsd 12 25-50-5 W5, just south of the Old Discovery well, V.C.O. No. 2.

Atlas-Vermilion is down 1535 feet but is held up by some lost casing and a difficult fishing job is necessary.

BOARD OF TRADE ASKS FOR IMPROVED TOWN ROADS

There was only a small attendance at the board of trade meeting on Monday when a number of matters came up. For the information of those who should have attended and didn't, the luncheon cost the board the price of three meals, $1.20, as a minimum of fifteen plates is guaranteed.

An excellent report on road work carried on throughout the district was given by the Chairman of the Roads committee, Wilsey Wilson. Included was the re-grading of the road north of town, and the connecting link between highway 16 and the oil field at Barrhaddie, also the graveling of a considerable portion of the road in the oil field. It is understood that the new roads will also be graveled.

Arising from the above report was considerable discussion about possible road improvement in the town itself, particularly around the main business block. It was acknowledged that this was a difficult problem but the town had the best streets in the province a matter of four or five years ago and it was too bad that they had been allowed to deteriorate in the intervening short space of time to the extent that they had. A resolution was passed directing the attention of the town council to the sad state of the roads and asked that some action be taken to improve same. It was felt that some definite policy of street improvement to be carried out year by year, should be determined by the council.

Gerald Stephens gave notice of motion to be discussed at the next meeting to the effect that the stores close on Christmas eve but remain open two nights before that.

The next meeting of the Board will be held as usual on Monday, 21st at 12.10 noon.

R.C.A.F. TO TRAIN WOMEN STENOGRAPHERS

Classes in Connection with Sufficient Girls Enroll

Announcement is made by Flight Lieutenant W.F. Graham of the R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre in Edmonton, that training classes for women stenographers under the War Emergency Training Program may be started in Edmonton, if there are sufficient girls interested. The same general qualifications as for enlistment in the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) are necessary. It is desired to attract young intelligent girls who will apply themselves diligently to the course in view of the urgent need for trained stenographers in the Service.

The course will be of twenty weeks' duration, and trainees will continue to live with relatives or friends in the city while studying.

Will interested girls please call at, or write, the R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centre, Provincial Bldg., Edmonton, and get further particulars from Asst. Section Officer Marjorie Race, R.C.A.F., (W.D.). It is hoped there will be sufficient response to justify the opening of such classes in Edmonton, so do no delay.

Announcement is also made that the trade of Wireless Operator (Ground) is now open for enlistment in the R.C.A.F. (W.D.).

The consignment is announced in Edmonton of Muriel Olive, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Blott to Peter Burden of Lougheed, Alberta. Muriel was a student of the Vermilion high school when the family resided in Vermilion. They moved to the city about seven years ago

HIGH RANKING OFFICIAL OF WOMEN'S ARMY IS VISITOR IN VERMILION

Major-General Jean Knox Inspecting C.W.A.C. Training Centre Here

Major-General Jean Knox, Controller-General and Director of the Auxiliary Territorial Service in Great Britain, is expected in Vermilion today (Thursday), in the course of a tour of inspection of C.W.A.C. training centres. She is spending four days in Alberta — at Calgary, Vermilion and Edmonton.

First woman general in the British Commonwealth of Nations and the first woman holding that high rank to visit Canada, Major-General Knox is on a dominion-wide tour to see the Canadian Women's Army Corps in action.

Accompanying her will be Lieut-Col. Governor of London, England; Major R. H. Dayton, representing the Adjutant General; Lt.-Col. Jean Kennedy officer administering Canadian Army Corps, and Major Margaret Eaton staff officer.

SALVAGE CORPS WEEDS HELP

The Vermilion Salvage Corps will be loading a half carload of paper sometime within the next week its first shipment in Windsor and volunteers are asked to help in this work — see the car is spotted. Word of the time will be received a week ahead so as to be sure it is known. The first half of the car will be loaded at Vegreville and then filled up here

If any persons has bundles of papers or magazines they don't know what to do with, tie them up securely into handy sized bundles and deliver them to the C.N.R. freight sheds If it doesn't happen to be open leave whatever you have outside the b'e door. Salvage is always picked up and put in before night.

A well attended and much enjoyed dance was sponsored by the Rifle in their spacious hall on Wednesday night for the benefit of the Sergeant's mess at the W.A.C. training centre. During an intermission in the dancing a floor show was presented by members of the corps and every number was loudly applauded with the exception of "Sunshine Susie", already well known over the air waves from Vancouver, and who is now in the W.A.C. was the M.C. and took a leading part in the entertainment. The girls were good and the general survey appreciated the program presented to them.

TOWN COUNCIL URGES GOVT. RE-CONSIDER

Proposed Sale of the Demonstration Farm

Considerable agitation has been aroused over the announcement contained in the daily press that there was a probability that the local demonstration farm would be discontinued and the farm itself sold by the provincial government. Local builders took a definite stand opposing the move and the following resolution passed by the council of the town of Vermilion was forwarded to Edmonton in the matter, expressing the consensus of opinion very well The resolution reads as follows:

WHEREAS it has been reported the press that the Government proposes to sell the four demonstration farms in the Province, to include that at Vermilion;

AND WHEREAS the farm at Vermilion was established primarily to serve the farming communities in the north and north-eastern sections of the Province;

AND WHEREAS during the years the farm has been in operation, several hundred students, of both sexes, have participated in the instruction and direction given at the School of Agriculture in connection with the farm, carrying into their homes and farms the valuable experience which undoubtedly have been reflected in the adoption of a more scientific basis of farming as well as of caring for stock, implements, etc. A noticeable improvement has also been shown in Home-book Economics as a result of the training received by girl students the home has gained equally with the farm;

AND WHEREAS the operation of the farm has enabled farmers in this district to secure pure-bred stock, learn about [illegible] crops, seeds etc. and at a great many other ways have materially benefitted and been assisted by the School and Farm;

NOW THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF VERMILION RESOLVES:—

1. THAT the town does [illegible] to reconsider the proposal and [illegible] the sale at this time, as the serious effects such a course would have upon agricultural industry generally.

2. THAT in addition to [illegible] interests of the [illegible] agricultural experience at the School of Agriculture [illegible] the Demonstration Farm would have a most detrimental effect upon [illegible] communities throughout the [illegible] of the Province where conditions are susceptible to change and successful leadership which can be supplied by trained agriculturists through the medium of such schools designed on the benefit and advantage of farm men and women.

3. THAT after the war there will undoubtedly be an increased demand from among soldier farmers for guidance and assistance such as only can be had at a School of Agriculture and Demonstration Farm

4. THAT the interests of agriculture, from whatever point viewed will be best served by retaining the School and Farm as it is for the [illegible] after which they should be questionable be put [illegible] farmers originally interested.

The foregoing Resolution was carried unanimously at a regular meeting of the Council of the Town of Vermilion held on Tuesday [illegible] ber 1st 1942.

NEW X-RAY INSTALLED AT LOCAL MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL

A new Fernmil X-Ray 100 milliampere machine was installed in a special X-Ray room at the Vermilion municipal hospital last week at a cost of $2,045.

The new X-Ray is one of the most modern machines manufactured and is capable of doing work such as doing in the larger city hospitals. The machine is in charge of the hospital superintendent, Miss A. Keith, who has specialized in x-ray work.

THRESHING STARTED; NEW GRAIN MARKETED

Don Logan of the Alberta Pacific Grain Co. reported to the Standard that the first new wheat to be marketed with his company here was brought in on Tuesday when loads were delivered by three parties. Pat Cummings brought in a load of combined grain which was threshed one week earlier, while Bill McBride and Bert Gabaldeston each brought in loads. All the grain graded No. 3.

JOHN R. MacNICOL, M.P. INVITED TO VISIT OIL FIELD AT VERMILION

Some days ago Mayor Morrison extended an invitation to John R. MacNicol, M.P. Toronto, to visit the oil field at Vermilion. Mr. Mac Nicol agrees that as his itinerary had been arranged before leaving Toronto it would not be possible for him to visit Vermilion but promised that he would keep it in mind for next year. In the meantime he has written to the Mayor for full information covering the field and of which he says he will make use in making up his development of our oil resources. Mr. MacNicol has brought the north country to the attention of parliament on several occasions in the past two years it probably will include Vermilion in his speeches on Western conditions to the House next session.

Weather Cool, Unsettled

Cool unsettled weather with numerous scattered heavy showers and alternate drizzles has been the order this week. Harvesting operations are being carried on under extreme difficulties.

Fourth Year Of War

THE WAR HAS NOW ENTERED its fourth year. In the past twelve months we have had triumphs and reverses, but slowly and surely the offensive is now being taken by the Allied Nations. Since the last anniversary of Hitler's fateful march into Poland, the United States has entered the war on our side, and has taken her place on the fighting fronts, on land, and sea and in the air. We have also entered into a full alliance with Russia, that gallant nation which has held the Nazis at bay in spite of overwhelming odds. At the same time, we have acquired a powerful enemy in Japan, who has broken down many of our defenses in the Far East, and whose strength and determination will not be easily overcome. Great Britain in addition, is faced with difficulty in India, and it is possible that the next year will see further blows delivered to the Empire in the East.

* * * * *

Position Of Germany

At this time we might compare our position with that of Germany. Hitler marked the third anniversary of the outbreak of war with a speech appealing for still further sacrifices by the people to support the war effort. He also appealed for supplies of warm clothing for his armies in Russia, now facing another winter of that long campaign which was scheduled to end many months ago. In addition, Germany is now involved in the initial stages of the Battle of Germany. In the autumn of 1940 the Battle of Britain was fought in the skies over England. Now the Luftwaffe is defending the skies over Germany and occupied Europe. The great bombing raids, now being carried out regularly on German cities, show that we are winning this air battle. With the numbers of planes and men from the Allied nations constantly increasing there is no doubt as to the final outcome.

* * * *

Canada's Effort Grows

Canada commences the fourth year of the war with the imposition of new and heavy income taxes, and with the initiation of Selective Service. Before the end of 1942, the government expects to have added 250,000 persons to the ranks of the armed services and to war industries, and as far as is possible, to have every man and woman in Canada in the place where they can give their greatest contribution to the war effort. With the armed services and industry geared to greater and greater capacity there is no doubt that Canada is prepared to play her full part in the offensive that will eventually bring victory to the United Nations. The Canadians showed that they can do in battle and the people at home must prepare to match their courage and endurance until victory is attained.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Brett

Three weeks ago I devoted this space to the subject of drill. Here comes the same subject again because we have been given an object lesson by our own soldiers at Dieppe in its value.

For the past two years instructors have referred to an incident at Dunkerque as an illustration of the value of drill as a discipline builder. It was the evacuation of the beach by The Guards.

Newspaper despatches said: "The Guards brought their rifles with them."

That was all! But it was quite enough. No-one would have criticized them if they had left their equipment behind on that shell-swept beach—hardly anyone did have his equipment behind and there were no recriminations.

But, "the Guards brought their rifles with them." It has long been fashionable for Line Regiments to sneer gently at the Brigade of Guards for their meticulous adherence to parade ground soldiering. The sneers were good-natured, of course, as all bickering between regiments is, and no-one really believed what he said.

Not after Le Cateau in the last war, or after Dunkerque in this!

Now we have a new tradition, of course, examples of how well-drilled soldiers act in a tight place—the Canadians at Dunkerque!

Then a quotation of one of the early cables from the Channel front written by Ross Munro of the Canadian Press who went ashore with the troops:

"One group of the Westerners was in such good form that even after a five-hour battle they smartly slopped arms and marched aboard the boat that picked them up."

The "Tankers" have earned a place in military history, too!

Of them another Canadian Press despatch said:

"Crews of the Calgary Tank Regiment, which led the way into Dieppe yesterday, drove the remnants of their battle-smashed tank formations through this town tonight . . . .

Those two examples of the intelligent discipline that grows out of drill will be quoted by many a drill-sergeant, by many an officer lecturing to recruits in the next few years and well, I hope, for some time to come by those of us who are apt to criticize without thinking.

None of you are bound to be asked just about now: "what's he trying to get at?" Surely he doesn't suggest that the raid on Dieppe was not a good idea to demonstrate the value of parade ground drill!"

No, I don't suggest that for one moment.

In fact any columnist who tries to say why the Dieppe raid was made would be a fool! There are many reasons why a military high command decides to stage a raid—especially with the war conditions that confront us at present.

And the high command cannot take even the public that pays it bread its confidence. We'll have to be kept guessing about it—and so will the enemy.

Perhaps its intention was to find out the defense system employed by the enemy.

Perhaps it was to draw attention from some other point.

Perhaps the idea was to find out the morale of the enemy now in France.

Perhaps it was designed to disrupt communications by causing a rush of reinforcements to the place attacked.

Perhaps it was a realistic training scheme in the co-operation of Navy, Army and Air Force.

Perhaps it was for none of those reasons, but, whatever the reason was we members of the Individual Citizen's Army may be sure that "Andy" McNaughton who would rather spend machinery than lives, had the best of all possible reasons and that the keenest, learned and the knowledgeable mind will be used to prosecute the war and hasten the Allied victory.

In the meantime new recruits who join up here as volunteers for service anywhere will start out with equal drill without fear that the manner of arms, musketry and all the other "kindergarten" work that teaches them unity, cohesion and intelligent discipline as that they, too, when their opportunity comes, will be ready to take some share in the attack aboard."

The men who took the beaches at Dieppe and played their part in demolishing the town have found out after weary months and years of waiting what war is like.

That is something we have still to find out.

So far we have only bought a few bonds, licked a few war savings stamps, given to the Red Cross and the Buchanee Fund—that sort of thing!

We haven't sacrificed anything. We don't expect to for the war.

Public men rap us on the knuckles if we say that Canada is not doing a full job of war work. They rap with a smoke-screen of empty eloquence to boast of what is being done. They promise that some day the government will place the whole war effort on a wartime basis, but in the meantime too many of us carry on with our bridge and our golf. We still, nobly to the rations of sugar and coffee and sugar and gasoline—and count out of all-out service by buying cakes and pastries with sugar in them, by drinking tea and coffee in restaurants and hotels, by using taxi cabs to take us on our useless errands when our own tanks are empty.

We are long on talk and short on discipline. What we need is drill, and lots of it, thrown at us by tough sergeants with a rasp in their voices. That is the secret aboard with our rifles at the slope?

Scarcity of imported fruit is giving rise to considerable anxiety last deficiency of vitamin C should result. Fruits are looked upon by a large public as the main source of vitamin C. Fruits are, of course, a valuable article for inclusion in the diet for the artificially fed baby and delicate for all children, are often at a loss to know what to use as a substitute.

This very general reliance upon fruit, especially the citrus fruits, is partly due to popular knowledge of their value as anti-scorbutics in early voyages. It overlooks the fact, some too well known even to those interested in nutrition, that on the whole most vegetables are much richer sources of vitamin C than most fruits. The proverb about "an apple a day" would have been much nearer the truth if it had run "some cabbage each day." People whose main source of this vitamin is a daily apple get from it only one eighth of their vitamin C requirements! Plums blackberries, grapes, pears, melon and bananas are also poor in vitamin C. Brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower and the salad vegetables especially mustard and cress and watercress are seven or more times as rich in vitamin C as the group of fruits last mentioned. Some of these green vegetables, if they are cooked in such a way as to preserve the vitamin, can provide more of it, weight for weight, than does orange or lemon juice.

The optimum amount of vitamin C (ascorbic acid) needed by an average adult is 75 mg daily. As a matter of convenience an estimate has been made showing the number of house supply of vitamin C yielded on this basis by 4 oz. portions of all the well known fruits and vegetables. Typical examples, arranged in order of merit are as follows:

Number of Hours Supply of Vitamin C Given by 4 Ounce Portions
Blackcurrants	70	Cauliflower - cooked	20
Brussels Sprouts - cooked	30	Watercress - raw	19
Mustard and Cress - raw	29	Oranges - raw	18
Strawberries - raw	26	Lemons - raw	18
Broccoli - cooked	24	Gooseberries - raw	13
Cabbage - cooked	20	Spinach - cooked	13

It will be observed that potatoes are not included in the table, since the method of presentation does not take account of the fact that they are customarily eaten in quantities much larger than 4 ounces. Twelve ounces daily will supply 15 hours requirements.

Vitamin C, however is not among the most stable of the vitamins. It begins to be lost as soon as fruits or vegetables are gathered. The loss continues during storage. Part of the vitamin goes into solution in the cooking water and prevention of loss in this zone of the again advantages of cooking potatoes unpeeled. Quick rise of temperature and fast cooking —by rapid destruction of the enzyme which would otherwise break down the vitamin C lead to greater preservation than the alternative method of gradual heating from cold water. All slow cooking methods, including hay-box cookery, are detrimental to vegetables. Use during cooking of alkaline like bicarbonate of soda increases the loss of vitamin C.

Sunshine and vegetables may contain anything from 50% to 100% of the vitamin of the fresh materials, the amount varying with the fruit or vegetable and the method of canning.

Cooked green vegetables, rubbed through a sieve, can be given to young children, or raw vegetables such as swedes or carrots can be finely grated or pulped and served

Wheat Crop Is Estimated At All-Time Record

Ottawa.—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimated Canada's total 1942 wheat production at 618,343,000 bushels—an all-time record.

The bureau said the estimated 1943 production was considerably above the 331,825,000 bushels produced in 1941 and exceeds by 48,517,000 bushels the previous record crop of 566,786,000 bushels harvested in 1928.

The unprecedented production was being realized despite a drop in 1943 wheat acreage from that of 1941 to a figure "substantially below" the average for the preceding 15 years.

The exceptionally favorable weather conditions during the growing season in the prairie provinces, where more summer-fallowing was made available for wheat growing than in any previous year, have resulted in the harvesting of more than high per acre yields the bureau said.

In eastern Canada and in British Columbia the wheat crop is better than in 1941. The 1943 fall wheat crop in Ontario totalled 32,097,000 bushels which is slightly above average. In all provinces amounted to 391,264,000 bushels. The latter figure includes the fall wheat crop in the prairie provinces estimated at 357,000,000 bushels, which is twice the 1941 crop of 293,000,000 bushels.

By provinces, the 1943 wheat estimate for the prairies is distributed as follows: Manitoba, 52,000,000; Saskatchewan, 250,000,000; Alberta, 185,000,000 bushels.

The estimates for Manitoba and Saskatchewan include Durum wheat. The production of 2,700,000 bushels and 7,000,000 bushels respectively, making a total 1942 Durum wheat production of 9,700,000 bushels.

Because of the heavy rains and cool weather during the growing season, harvesting in the prairie provinces is just getting into full swing with a week of good drying weather having elapsed since threshing at the end of August, the bureau said.

Because of the lateness of the crop, it is still very possible to make an appraisal of the quality, although early estimates by grain companies have already lowered grades in northern and northeastern Alberta and northwestern Saskatchewan, it added.

Feed grain supplies for Canada as a whole now are the "best in history" with a record production of oats and barley accompanying Canada's largest wheat crop. Not only were the acreages given to oats and barley considerably expanded this year in the prairie provinces but new high average yields per acre grains in the three provinces were established.

For all Canada the 1942 production of oats is estimated at 571,000,000 bushels which is more than double last year's production of 305,579,000 bushels. Production of barley in Canada is placed at 272,910,000 bushels, almost 2½ times the 1942 production of 116,566,000 bushels. Fall rye is estimated at 19,381,000 bushels, and spring rye at 7,112,000 bushels, making a total rye production of 26,494,000 bushels compared with the 1941 crop of 11,559,000 bushels. Both the acreages and yields per acre of rye were higher in 1942 than in 1941.

Flaxseed production for all Canada is estimated at 16,981,000 bushels for 1943, compared with 8,586,000 for 1941. Flaxseed acreages and yields in 1942 were both substantially higher than in 1941.

Production of hay and clover in 1943 at 15,498,000 tons, shows an increase of 2,866,000 tons over 1941 production

THREW A BOMB

Fifty Belgian Citizens Are Arrested As Hostages

London.—A Reuters correspondent in Stockholm quoted a Brussels despatch as saying 50 prominent citizens of the Belgian capital had been arrested as hostages following the throwing of a bomb in a cinema during the showing of a German eastern front film.

One girl in the audience was killed and many persons wounded German occupation authorities ordered the municipality of Brussels to pay damages to the cinema and deliver 5,000 liters to the Germans, the despatch said.

DANES WERE SMART

London.—British officials hear that as foreign Danish saboteurs are really hot stuff. After setting a recent blaze they proceeded to turn in false alarms for other plants. So by the time the firefighters reached the real blaze, considerable damage had been caused.

SENT FROM BRITAIN

Gun Factory Was Dismantled And Shipped To United States

Philadelphia.—A gun factory which six months ago stood in a bomb-scarred city in England has been dismantled and shipped piece by piece to the U.S., Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., lend-lease administrator, said.

Stettinius, in an article in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, cited the transfer to show that lend-lease now is "no longer a one-way street" directly aiding only U.S. allies.

"It was easier and faster to ship the factory than to ship the guns," he wrote. "We paid nothing for this arsenal. Britain considers itself amply repaid by the damage these guns will inflict on the Germans and Japanese in the hands of our soldiers."

Britain has also sent "several thousand" barrage balloons to "protect vital spots along our coasts" and from England and other Allied nations the government has received "guns and tools, military and aeronautical information — anything which they can spare and we are in a better spot to use than they are."

Say Shortage Of Timber Is The Worst In History

Ottawa. Munitions Minister Howe said that Canada faces "the gravest timber shortage in her history" and announced a eight-point government program to assist operators in stimulating output and to curtail civilian use of forest products.

Production in 1941 was approximately 5,800,000,000 feet but because of the labor shortage 1942 production may be substantially less, he added. Commitments for the remaining four months of the year called for delivery of 1,040,000,000 board feet for war purposes, "of which about three quarters is for Britain, the United States and other Allied nations."

Mr. Howe said "this means that we will have no new lumber to spare for the civilian. As new civilian gets must come from inventories, largely in eastern Canada.

"The seriousness of the situation is underlined by the need for extra storage facilities for the bumper crop in the west. Limited quantities of lumber must be made available for building these storage facilities."

The eight-point program, worked out and to be administered by A. R. Nicholson timber controller, was announced by Mr. Howe in the department statement:

"1. Effective today, the Sawmill and logging industry is officially classed as an essential industry.

"2. The director of national selective service (Elliot M. Little) will provide, at the earliest opportunity, more manpower, chiefly bush labor, for the year-round Pacific coast timber area, and for fall and winter logging in the east

"3. The use of timber by civilians, industries, railways, and municipalities will be rigidly controlled Restrictive measures will be announced shortly and more stringent control will be exercised over the use of products by the Dominion government and its agencies

"4. The production of newsprint will be controlled by the newsprint administrator of the wartime prices and trade board (H. L. Welden of Montreal) to conserve power and labor and to divert pulpwood logs into the making of lumber Already quantities of pulpwood logs have been shipped to the sawmills and pulpwood ramps are being switched over to the production of sawlogs.

"5. The export of logs from the Pacific coast area to the pulp and paper mills on the United States Pacific coast will be restricted drastically These exports are now about 15,000,000 feet of hemlock and balsam logs per month The export of fir logs is already prohibited

"6. To spur production, price increases on certain grades of lumber will be permitted. These increases will be absorbed by the retailers and industrial users, and will not be passed on to the civilian consumer Retailers may obtain relief if and when the squeeze is too great.

"7. A lumber division of the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation will be set up immediately With an experienced lumberman at its head, this division will provide financial assistance where and when it is required to stimulate economic production. No sound lumbering operation will be held up for lack of financing so long as it is practical and in the national interest.

"8. The general trading policies and customs of the industry will be maintained."

BRITISH PRISONERS

London.—At least 77,000 British war prisoners are in Axis hands. This was made known in the House of Commons by War Secretary Sir James Grigg. He said that the figures, as of August 25, did not include those captured in Malaya and most other Far Eastern areas, with the exception of Hong Kong

GERMAN LOSSES

Soviets Issue List Of Nazi Casualties In Russia

Moscow.—A special Russian announcement said that 73 enemy divisions were routed by the Soviet army in fighting on the Russian front from May 1 to Aug. 31.

The Soviet bureau of information statement said that during the same period 42 Soviet rifle divisions and 25 brigades, of which 14 were tank units, suffered considerable losses.

The announcement said that 70 per cent. of the fighting effectives of the routed divisions had been annihilated.

The bureau listed 34 German divisions that were routed, comprising 24 infantry divisions, four motorized, two motorized S.S. elite guard), two Slovak motorized infantry, and 12 tank divisions."

Other Axis divisions routed were:

Rumanian — Five infantry, two mountain, one cavalry.

Hungarian — Five infantry, one tank.

Italian —Two infantry, one motorized one Alpine

Slovak "motorized"

Also routed, the announcement said, was a "legion of Danish Hitlerites."

In addition, the announcement said, 21 German infantry divisions suffered severe losses—"from 40 to 50 per cent of their effectives" in the same period

Canadian Soldier Appreciates Gallant Act Of Sailor

London.—A Canadian soldier has adopted a British sailor in appreciation of the sailor's gallant act which enabled the soldier to have a last word with his youngest son who was fatally wounded at Dieppe

The soldier is W. Emperingham and the seaman G. F. A. Thomas of Liverpool. Emperingham went to Canada from Britain and settled in Saskatchewan after the last war and returned for this one with his three sons, all members of the Canadian army.

Thomas found Emperingham's son wounded on the beach at Dieppe and carried him to the ship on which the father had embarked. When Emperingham discovered that Thomas' parents were killed in an air raid he decided to adopt him to replace the son who died.

A DRASTIC MOVE

United States Assumes Control Of Commercial Cars In Some Parts

Washington.—The U.S. office of defence transportation has announced it would assume sweeping control over millions of commercial vehicles Nov 15, including rationing of gasoline, tires, tubes and accessories to such vehicles.

Described by O.D.T as "a drastic move to obtain further conservation of such equipment for the purpose" the order will supplement conservation regulations already in effect.

Approximately 5,000,000 trucks 150,000 buses upwards of 50,000 taxicabs and similar vehicles will be required to carry a certificate of war necessity in order to obtain fuel tires, tubes and accessories

FISH FOR BRITAIN

To Organize Large Pack Of Herring And Salmon From Canada

Saint John, N.B.—"We are trying to organize as large a pack as possible of canned herring for Great Britain all of the herring canned this year is being requisitioned to fill British requirements and for other armed forces overseas," Fisheries Minister Michaud said here. "The same applies to all the salmon which is canned on the Pacific coast."

"Canadians will have to be satisfied with fresh, frozen, salted and pickled salmon and herring, although other varieties will be available canned," he declared.

Benoni, South Africa —The municipal council of this Transvaal town is considering a post-war scheme to provide employment of discharged soldiers which will cost £2,000,000 ($8,900,000).

Adopt New Plan For Call-Up For National Service

Ottawa Pre-classification of men to show possible candidates for military call-up is regarded in informed circles as one of the most important features of the new manpower set-up which will link the call-up with needs of essential industry under the control of national selective service, a branch of the labor department

Under present conditions practically all men outside the immediately eligible group—single men and childless widowers from 20 to 40—are uniformed on the possibility of their being called in the event of an extension of the call-up provisions

The new plan it is understood provides for pre-classification as to essentiality in civilian occupation and pre-medical examination of men likely to become subject to call

Such action it is believed would relieve unsteadiness and insecurity which now is felt by both workers and employers Fit in the standpoint of the war effort the greatest value would be an advance warning so that a substitute worker could be trained more fully to take over the job and to classify the employees into such groups as dispensable dispensable on short notice and dispensable on long notice and indispensable

A Gunn, assistant secretary of the British ministry of labor and national service who has been loaned to the Canadian government is expected to have an active part in making Canada a new manpower plan effective

Needs of the armed forces and industry for the last five months of the year are placed by Elliott M. Little director of national selective service, at 250,000 people

Of these only some 40,000 fully employable men shown to be without jobs in the June registration, and those

WE ALL WOULD PUBLIC OPINION

The majority of Canadian citizens are on the march again. With bonds street cries ended, their ranks are shrinking past frontiers and non-essential trade on their way to purchase the key factory lands.

Every man and woman in the public is performing an extra war service for his country. He is setting a powerful example that will attract other citizens into the ranks of the majority.

In these war days we can no longer afford to spend any more than is absolutely necessary for good health. Our sailors, soldiers and airmen are risking for every other penny of our earnings to make their striking power more and more potent. Every time any one citizen answers that cry resolutely turning his back on the temptation to buy something he does not really need his example helps materially to create solid public opinion.

When we shut out our short-sighted selfish considerations so that we may Victory Bonds we not only take a direct part in the war—we perform an invaluable service in crystallizing a strong united Canadian spirit that shouts "Nothing matters but Victory!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(The paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

Vermilion, Alta., Sept. 15, 1942.
The Editor, Standard.
Dear Sir:

Please allow me the use of some of your valuable space to make a public protest against the condition of the streets of the town. A few years ago we had as good streets as any town in Alberta, but today they take first prize as the worst in the Province.

It seems that the only effort that has been made by our works department included the building of a monstrosity which was called a sidewalk, and which has now been removed from its first location and put elsewhere, and the hauling of clay on top of gravel streets which were reasonably good.

It is usual if an employee does not know his job to replace him with someone who does and if the councillor in charge of streets does not know how to go about their maintenance he should be replaced.

Vermilion should be graduated from the horse and buggy stage but it looks as if the present administration was still in that classification.

Yours truly,
Taxpayer.

PREPARE FOR GAME SHOOTING SEASON

With the game shooting season at hand, and preparations being made for expeditions, the need of exercising care in connection with regulations is emphasized by officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

The Game Act provides that it is unlawful at any time to have a loaded shotgun or loaded rifle in any vehicle of any kind or to discharge any shotgun or rifle from any vehicle.

Strict observance of these regulations will eliminate such accidents, some of which have had fatal results in this province.

Numerous inquiries have been received by game officials concerning the prospects for this season and it is anticipated that many outside hunters will take advantage of Alberta's big game and bird shooting attractions.

Importance or attracting big game hunters here has been stressed by provincial government officials.

Several thousand of these hunters would leave a large amount of cash in the province, due to purchases of supplies and outlays for outfitters and other requirements.

Some provinces take special ste ps to offer inducements to big game hu ters, even to reducing the license fee. Alberta could do much more along the line of improving the attractions for these non-resident sportsmen, it is suggested.

SELECT NEW COLORS ALBERTA 1942 PLATES

Alberta's plates for the 1942 motor vehicle license year which opens on April 1 next will be black on orange, according to official information received by the Alberta Motor Association.

Next year, for the first time, cars will carry one license plate instead of two, authority for this step having been given in an amendment to the Motor Vehicles act, passed at the last session of the legislature.

The 1942 plate will contain a slot so that if there is a shortage of material the following year a small type plate of about 2½ inches square can be attached to the old license.

Some time ago the possibility of a shortage of material for the number plates was anticipated by the provincial authorities and orders were placed early for the 1942 plates.

As a result, the 1942 plates have been received for some time, according to departmental officials.

Other provinces have taken steps to adopt the single license system, owing to wartime conditions.

British Columbia adopted the single license plan last year. In Manitoba the license plates for 1942 will be about 2½ inches square and will be attached to the old license.

Canada's Largest Wheat Crop

The federal bureau of statistics estimates Canada's 1942 wheat crop at the enormous total of 515,262,000 bushels, an all-time high. The previous record crop was 566,726,000 bushels produced in 1928.

The dominion's largest annual Sunday youth rally and patriotic service is that sponsored by the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides, Navy Leaguers and other youth organizations of Hamilton, Ont.

ISLAND HILL

Luxemburg, which lies between Germany, Belgium and France, is in the news these days. Before Hitler took possession the city of Luxemburg was like a little Paris, with cafes on the pavement where everybody met everybody. For ages the State of Luxemburg had no unemployment. With a population of 250,00 Luxemburg was the richest country to care for the continent with one car to every 25 inhabitants. For an eight cylinder Ford the annual tax was only $7 in pre-war days its army consistes, of six officers and 250 men. Today the towns in Luxemburg form part of the news which reaches us speaking of conquest and blood. But as history repeats itself, we may hope Luxemburg will again be an independent state among European nations, and again become a symbol of justice stronger than force.

Hon Lucien Maynard minister of municipal affairs, attended a Calgary conference of Alberta civic representatives this week in connection with the proposal to standardize the charters of all Alberta cities The proposal was originally voiced by Dr J.L. Robbins, M.L.A. for Medicine Hat and subsequently the Legislature requested that a survey of the situation be made and a report be submitted at the next session. Reports indicate that city representatives do not favor having their charters standardized, also that most of the objections raised have already been considered by municipal heads in the interests of

FREE HUNTING PERMITS FOR U.S. SERVICE MEN

United States service men on duty in Alberta will be granted free hunting permits, according to terms of an order in council which has been recently passed. The same privileges were extended to British fighting men on active service some time ago, and numerous applications have already been accepted and permits granted. For United States service men, the regulations are the same; application for the permit must be made by men on active service in Alberta, and they should enclose a letter from his officer commanding stating that he is on active service here.

TO AID CONSERVATION OF ALBERTA BIRDS

First of their kind to be introduced in Canada, a series of Conservation stamps have been issued by University authorities headed by Prof. Rowan, with the object of raising funds to further biological and conservation work among the Alberta bird population. The stamps sell at 25 cents each, or five for one dollar. All are different. The same branch and sportsmen's clubs regularly are co-operating in the sale. In U.S. sportsmen have for some time been buying Duck Stamps at a dollar each for the same purpose, and the Alberta venture is the first of its kind here. Dr. Rowan has won a name for himself for his pioneer research into bird life and habits.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Increases in Old Age Pensions which were brought into being by the province are costing $600,000 yearly, Premier Aberhart told a meeting of the Alberta Pensioners' Society, Inc. this week, and "there is no group of people in the province more deserving of this and further assistance", he added. He said that although it was difficult to make promises, he felt certain that time would bring greater security to the aged, and their rewards would be in the nature of payment for services rendered, rather than as bequests.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 20

SUBJECT: AN EXAMPLE OF HELPFULNESS

Golden text: Hereby know we love, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. 1 John 3. 16.

Lesson: Genesis 43—44.

Devotional reading: 1 Peter 2. 18-25

Explanations and Comments

The Brothers stand before Joseph. Genesis 44. 1-13.—Joseph is still at the house where the brothers arrange the day against a small infant. When they bow low before him, he knows serious that they are fulfilling one of his early dreams. What deed is this that you have done? Joseph questions. No one attempts a defense. The cup had been found: the fact can neither be denied nor explained. How shall we speak and how shall we justify ourselves? Judah asks. God hath found out the iniquity of thy servants. Judah's confession is full of the sense of their guilt. Joseph's cup was found in Benjamin's sack, but they all share the blame. They all return to the city. We are my lord's bondmen, we also with whom the cup is found. Joseph refuses to accept this. The man in whose hand the cup is found shall be my bondman; and as for you get you up in peace unto your father.

Joseph's Intercession for Benjamin. Genesis 44. 14-34. Sincerity and depth of feeling mark Judah's plea. Joseph is not. He first of all recalls to Joseph's mind the way in which he had interested upon Benjamin, a being brought to him by touching on the grief of the father's reluctance to part with Benjamin, a reluctance overcome only by dire hunger. His father had reminded them at parting of how he loved Joseph, "and if he take this one from me and harm befall him," he had cried, "ye shall bring down my grey hairs with sorrow to the grave." His father's life was bound up in the lad's life, without him he would surely die. Judah had become surety with his father for the lad, and he ends his pathetic plea by asking to be made himself a slave and let Benjamin return.

There are many things in the family life of Jacob and his sons that are far from ideal, but in one respect they were in most pleasing and fine contrast to the well-nigh universal evils which these patriarchs have for their aged father. Nothing could be more tender than their affection for Jacob in his old age. Filial love is a beautiful and winning virtue.

"What would I not give to be able to pray before the Lord as Judah does!" comments Dr. Jowett, for it here introduced for Benjamin, for it is a perfect model of prayer, say, in the shrewd feeling which must underlie all prayer" (Luther).

R.C.A.F. Bomber Crew Tours Canada

Five tired but still somewhat excited young veterans of the "air blitz" on enemy and occupied Europe met in the Fort Garry Hotel at Winnipeg and recounted some of their experiences on more than 20 bombing raids over Germany and different parts of Europe.

Accounts of some of the raids were factual and without any trimmings. What was more exciting was the fact that they were back in Canada for a visit and a holiday. As F/S. Hart Sveinson of Elfros, Sask., stated, "I can hardly realize yet that a few days ago we were bombing Saarbrucken and tomorrow I expect to see some of the folks from home." Their flight home to Canada a few hours after bombing Saarbrucken is a history-making one and serves to spotlight for Canada the night-in-night achievements of thousands of young Canadians since the bombing offensive against Germany began. The entries in their log-book read like a Who's Who of Canadian names that appear in the casualty lists. Sometimes they are repeated once, twice, thrice—or four times. They are names that mean much since the opening of Bomber Command's big offensive, but the lads who have been there speak of them familiarly as a tourist tells of the landmarks of his tour. Only the bomber-crews speak knowingly of the curtains of vari-colored tracer and death-dealing flak that rose skyward from these cities, the dummy fires the enemy lights up to lure the bombers into his defended sectors, the bends and turns of the Rhine, the Ruhr Elbe and Weser Rivers glistening palely in the moonlight amid the dark mass of an awakened city, and the terrible concentration of searchlights that combines with the flak and fighters to turn night into nightmare.

Three of the "hottest" trips made by this "Wimpy" crew were to Essen, Hamburg and Duesseldorf. "We came back from Essen with 14 flak holes in the kite," says F/S. "Siggy" Lee, of Minnedosa, Man., the navigator, as explosive "Helvitia!" nevertheless in the ear-phones of his crew mates. In English that's just plain "Hell!"

Kurt, whose full name is Martin Gauthiaugur Karl Sveinsson, was born in Canada and lives at Elfros, Sask. His father who died when he was a youngster was Icelandic. His mother is in the United States. His mother is a native of Iceland. Until he was six years old, this stockily-built, blonde, curly headed young westerner spoke only Icelandic, but now he finds it hard sometimes to reach for words in the language of his forefathers—except when he's exploding into the Inferno.

He worked in a garage before joining the R.C.A.F. in July 1940. He went overseas in July 1941 and after an extension wireless course was posted to his present squadron as wireless operator. He has completed done 28 "ops". 21 of them with his present skipper.

One of Karl Sveinsson's most exciting trips was an early "op" with F/S. Joe Dalton now unfortunately among the missing. Joe was a son of "Red" Dalton, famous N.H.L. star and more recently manager of the Brooklyn Americans. "It was a good flyer," Karl says. "It got out of a nasty spot when it was coned by searchlights and over the edge by fighters" and he had to use every efficient evasive action he knew.

Karl would have been with Joe on the last trip from that night but he had trouble with his kite and had to return. Pals stepped in. He had graduated to Canada from the front turret and was transferred to his present crew just before the "op" from which his former crew-mates did not return.

F/S. Don R. Morrison is the rear gunner, who will be 21 in November is the son of a Toronto fireman on the C.P.R. and like most railwayman's families he has done a lot of moving around in his younger days.

Don was born at Sault Ste. Marie, went to school at Chalk River, Sudbury and Schreiber, all C.P.R. divisional points. He graduated here from Chalk River when he enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in October 1940. Since then they have lived in Peterborough, Ont., and are now residents of Kentville, N.S.

Morrison is known as "Mo" Morrison in his squadron mates, and as "Mo" Morrison his name appears on the trophy kept in the squadron gunnery headquarters. There are only two other names on this trophy. Both the third, for his guns brought down the squadron's third fighter victim. The coveted award followed the 1,000 bomber raid on Bremen last June. An ME 110 attacked the Wellington and the sea about 30 miles from the German coast on the homeward journey, while the latter was flying at about 1,400 feet. Bullets began to fly. "I couldn't see 'em" until he was about 150 yards away coming in on a quarter. "Then I got in a burst on us first," Morrison relates. "About one second later I got a burst a long burst. He broke off to starboard then, when he was about 200 yards off, banking to come in again to attack us, his port engine caught fire. The flames spread to his wing as he tried to side-slip and he fell in the sea. We did a circuit and saw him break up into burning wreckage as he hit the water." No bullet or cannon holes were found in the Wellington when it reached base after this encounter.

Altogether Morrison has made 36 bombing "ops" to Germany or German-held countries, and has been to all the famous targets except Berlin. He was on the three 1,000 bomber raids, the attack on the Gnome-Rhone works at Gennevilliers, the blitzes on Rostock and Lubeck, and on five consecutive raids on Essen.

Morrison thinks that the "dirtiest" trip he had was the attack on the Gnome-Rhone works at Gennevilliers. "They are so coming and went light flak criss-crossing all around us from just about every part of the city. We went in at 1,800 feet and had to dive to about 40 or 50 feet. Once we nearly hit the roof of a building. We got out of it when we by climbing steeply. As we skimmed the roof-tops as terrific speed and found ourselves heading for this cathedral, we had to climb suddenly to avoid the big building. We had so much momentum that we were able to keep on climbing. In spite of all the flak we encountered, we weren't hit once."

A few nights ago Morrison received a radio from Canada. It was from Mrs. Morrison, at Kentville, who is in Manchester, where she has been visiting relatives. Don has left that land but joined the R.C.A.F. in Canada.

Youngest member of the crew is the front-gunner and bombardier F/S. Art Leach, of Brighton, Ont., who will be 20 next month. Art joined the R.C.A.F. in December 1940, a few months after finishing school. He went overseas in December 1941 and was posted to his present squadron in April 1942, and has done some 30 "ops" with it.

He has used the guns of his front turret once during a Rhineland raid and has good reasons to believe that he drew first blood in the attack on the 1,000 bomber raid on Bremen, a fighter attacked them as they were not far from home.

"He came in from the starboard beam, about 1,000 yards off. At first I saw him coming going to stand for that," said Vin, rising with an awkward gesture. "Carol, I meant to wait for a more suitable time to tell you but now—well—look, will you marry me?"

Carol leaned over and gently kissed him. "Why, Mrs. Miner, I guessed her.

"My dear, I'm very happy," she said. "You're both terribly young, but very sweet."

The ringing telephone was for Vin. He returned to the table to announce that his leave had been cancelled and that he must report at once to the airfield. He hurried upstairs to get his bag. Not for the world would Carol have let anyone see how she felt. It left him see how depressed they were as they came bounding down.

"Goodbye, darling," said Mrs. Minever. "Take care of yourself."

"Don't worry about me," cried Vin. Slightly-to-one odds in the last, you know!" ...rried to kiss Carol. "So good," he admonished her. "Remember you're engaged. I say, you'd better not tell the old lady—not till I get back. We'll get married in hand then and board the license in her own rose garden!"

The clock on the bedroom table showed 2:15 a.m. as the Miniver were aroused by the phone. Mrs. Miniver's eyes reflected her unexpected fears as Clem came back to her side.

"It's all right," he said. "Only the Patrol."

"Clem, you're not going out on the river tonight?" she demanded.

"I must, darling," he answered. "I'm on the Patrol."

"But what on earth can they want?" she pursued.

"It can't imagine," replied Clem, seizing his clothes. "But there's work for everybody these days."

Clem was the centre of an eerie, tossing groups of boats, at the pier near the Sailing Club. Rehabilitation shone back and forth like giant fireflies. One by one the men recognised each other and exchanged inquiries, but no one knew what the hurry call was all about.

"I've got a boy over at market at daylight," exclaimed a farmer across the way. "You should 'ave 'eard my missus when I come away! What a row!"

"I've got three extractions at nine-thirty!" added the village dentist, who had just come up.

Captain Halliday, whose duty it was to supervise the gathering of the mixed volunteers and their craft, said merely that orders were to report up the river at Ramsgate.

When Clem arrived at the latter place, a thin, menacing mist, half-enveloped the river, he was conscious of a startling number of boats all around him. It looked as if there might be a thousand, most of them small pleasure craft, but of very varying shapes, designs and engine powers.

Suddenly there loomed up on the river the dark hull of a British destroyer. The voice speaking from the megaphone on deck might have been addressed from another world.

"Attention, everyone!" it called. "Your destination is Dunkirk! As you know, the British Expeditionary Force is trapped between the enemy and the sea. Four hundred thousand men are crowded on the beaches, under bombardment from artillery and planes. Their only chance to escape is by small craft with you. It is my duty to tell you that the effort is not without risk. You're asked to cross forty miles of open sea, many of you have boats that are by no means seaworthy. Shore guns and enemy aircraft are going to make it hard for you. Any of you who wish to withdraw may do so now."

There was muted Tulsi silence presented. Most of the unmanned craft crews in the dim light quickened distance.

"Very good," resumed the voice. "You will put to sea at once. Smaller boats without compasses will endeavour to follow in the wake of larger ships. Every moment counts. Good luck to you."

The Old Books

No More Reprints In Britain Due To Paper Shortage

"You cannot buy 'Jane Eyre' in London today," we learn from James Agate's column in the London Express. "You cannot buy a cut of Dickens. If you don't have Shakespeare at home, it's too late now. The bookshops could sell the Encyclopaedia by the hundreds—if they had them."

Apparently England is continuing to produce new books—one of them is reviewed in the article quoted. But "Jane Eyre" and "David Copperfield" and "Hamlet" are reprinted for a long, slow sale, and cannot be afforded when there is a paper shortage.

It is one of the effects of war that probably was as little foreseen as the subsequent shortage, and its results can be as little predicted. The Bible is reputed to be the perennial best seller, and if no more Bibles were printed for a hundred years, there would still be Bibles. But how many? How much does our culture depend upon old books? If we could rest know unless, when printing was stopped, all existing copies were destroyed.

A Secret Preparation

Bottles Doctors Testing Liquid Which Nazis Give Their Troops

A phial of colorless liquid, familiar to Rommel's Afrika Korps, has been unearthed by British authorities. It is a preparation which the Germans give their troops to increase endurance. A German doctor who left Germany in 1933 and went to London, claims that the Nazis have been testing the effectiveness of this concentrated energy-giving preparation for some years and he believes that Rommel's men are receiving it—probably in tablet form. Doctors in Britain are testing the efficiency of the preparation, which is not a drug. Apparently it has been known for some time that the Germans administered drugs to their troops, just before going into battle, but now the Nazi medical organizations are discouraging the use of drugs. They claim that the ultimate effect of these "pep" preparations is harmful in the end resistance to fatigue and exhaustion is lowered.—Toronto Telegram

Mrs. Miller of Prince Rupert has been visiting at the home of her uncle Mr. Thos. Bothwell. She has been spending some time with her father Mr. Stuart Bothwell of Manville.

Congratulations are extended to Private Bill Belton and Mrs. Belton on the birth of a son, William Darrel, on Aug. 28th in a Saskatoon hospital. Bill is stationed at Dundern.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher are at present in Edmonton where they expect to spend some time.

We think we heard that Mr. C. C. Mitchell and Mr. J. Bristow had been out stooking grain?

Among the girls in our midst doing their bit in the harvest fields is Pte. McLennan. Marion and Sarah Olds and Thelma McNeely.

The anniversary fowl supper of the United church will be held on Oct. 19 commencing at 6 p.m.

The second annual Thanks Offering sale will be held in the hall Oct. 28 in the afternoon—plan ahead for these two important events.

Farmers here are helping each other. John Marlo is barging for Thos. Bothwell; Mr. Gould is using tractor and binder cutting for George Robertson; Charlie Hanna and two boys are stooking for Mr. Shaw and Dave Martin and many others are doing likewise.

Miss Jean Robinson is assisting at Ford's store.

We saw Mr. Hanson who is Mrs. Hutton's brother and also agent for Patmore's Nurseries, giving advice to a couple of men trimming the trees in the church yard. Mr. Hanson is 80 years of age but gives no sign of slowing up or taking his ease.

You may have heard of "bees in her bonnet"; "Bats in her belfry", but did you ever hear of "bees in the attic"? Yes Sir, there came a swarm of bees to the Bothwell farm and they took up their abode in the attic of the house, gaining entrance through a knot-hole under the eave.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodgkinson have shown pointed their residence on First St. West in Islay, both of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon's. Mr. John Young has been the contractor.

A crew has been making some repairs on the Pool elevator here.

Cutting and threshing are held up once more by rain; if it had stayed dry some would have started to thresh this week. It will be plenty late now when all the fields are cleaned off.

Here is an item we forgot to mention that was brought in our attention awhile ago. Mr. Adam Smith found a wild oat plant in his crop that just measured seven feet. Some yield that they too can grow if given the right kind of weather. Anyone else got one higher?

Stagette Notes

A regular meeting of the Stagettes was held on Tuesday evening with Miss Marjorie Stewart acting as the hostess.

As the girls have pledged themselves to help at the canteen Monday and Wednesday evenings three of the members attended visitors evening at the C.W.A.C. barracks last Friday to become acquainted with the girls. They enjoyed their visit so much that we are all looking forward to canteen work.

A letter of appreciation for our splendid efforts in helping the Milk for Britain fund was received from the Kinsmen club.

"Miss Canadas" will appear on Vermilion streets again on Saturday as they "did during fair week. This movement which takes place all over Canada is sponsored in Vermilion by the Stagette club.

Three new club members, Misses Patsy Burns, Cora Harrison and Hazel Lawrence were initiated after the business meeting. Our fourth new member Miss Janet Robert, due to work, was unable to take part in the fun.

Any queer noises or sights heard or seen along the main streets can be traced to said initiation and by the way the girls have a new and eccentric nonsense we know we shall feel proud when they are sister Stagettes.

Radio in Wartime! There's a trio of words that's certain to get any radio man talking. And like a bell, he'll launch himself into a lengthy explanation of the hundreds of ways radio is being used to aid in the prosecution of the war. Radio is of valuable assistance to aircraft, ground troops and naval units. But one of the most important works of radio is one being carried on every hour of the day, right here at home. Everyone dines are better informed today than they have ever been before, largely through radio newscasts and broadcast analyses of important trends in national and international affairs. After three years of war there is no panic or war hysteria in Canada, and morale is higher than at any time past. In this phase of wartime activity every entertainment program has its part. Laughter and music are necessary in the life of any healthy nation. Remember that — and offer thanks for the tremendous variety of entertainment which is available to

DEMONSTRATION FARM WILL NOT BE SOLD

Minor Retrenchments Until After the War

The Alberta Department of Agriculture is not contemplating the sale of the four Demonstration farms of the province, one of which is located here, according to word received from the Minister of Agriculture, and also from the Hon. W. A. Fallow.

The letter from the Minister of Agriculture to the Secretary of the town of Vermilion states in part as follows:

"I am in receipt of your letter of September 16th attending resolution re the Provincial Farm at Vermilion. I wish to assure you that the report which appeared in the press regarding the disposal of the provincial farms had no foundation in fact. We are not contemplating selling any of these farms, Vermilion included.

You will appreciate that the Vermilion School of Agriculture is primarily an educational institution, and is now being utilized by the armed forces. Until the School is returned to the province for educational purposes, there will of necessity, have to be some minor adjustments in the interests of economy for the duration of the war. In the procedure, however, the disposal of the farms is not contemplated."

Some half dozen of the faithful who are really sticking to voluntary stooking have been out several times to the McFarland farm just east of town in an endeavor to stook up the crop there which has been cut for considerable time. Mr. McFarland himself is ill and confined to the hospital so the efforts of the boys will really be appreciated.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS HELP OUT WITH STOOKING

Husk school students, both girls and boys, are doing their share of stooking this fall in an effort to help out with the labor shortage. On Saturday last some 20 girls and boys were taken out to the town Burns' farm and here they spent 8½ hours hard work in setting up Charlie's crop. They were a tired but happy crew when they returned home that evening, proudly displaying their earnings to other members of the family. On the previous Saturday high school boys stooked on the farm of Bert Hamers helping out greatly there.

SALVAGE SHIPMENTS CONTINUE

Carload of Scrap Iron and Carload of Paper Leave Vermilion This Week

A huge car containing 47 tons of scrap metal was loaded up on Monday and Tuesday and shipped out by the elevator as a further aid in Canada's war effort. Nearly another large carload is already on hand and a dozen more cars of scrap are to be quired from the Vermilion district. Bring in your scrap metal at 87 per lb.

During the past week also, a car of scrap was shipped from Islay on the new buying plan being carried out by the elevator companies.

SALVAGE CORPS SHIPS PAPER

On Tuesday evening the Vermilion Salvage Corps held a bee and loaded up a good half car of paper consisting of magazines, newspapers and various types of cardboard etc. The final half of the car had been filled at Vegreville with scrap paper and then it was packed to the roof here. This paper goes to the Winnipeg Paper Co.

The local Salvage Corps is not collecting any more paper or any kind until further notice. This is on instructions from Wartime Salvage committee in Ottawa.

Only a small crew turned out to help load the paper on Tuesday night and a hot, dozen more boys or men would have been appreciated. It is easy to see that if such actions were left to the faint male population of the town there would be little or no volunteer effort of any kind in Vermilion The Salvage Corps needs thanks the half dozen Air Cadets for their valuable aid, and the 4th corps who did the townsmen's share of the work.

NEW EQUIPMENT AT WIEBE'S BAKERY

Bread Moulder Does Fast Work

Owing to the ever increasing demand for their products, Wiebe's Bakery have installed a new moulder to install a bread moulder. This machine is of the latest type and does the work in 15 minutes which formerly took two men an hour. Not only is it a labor saving device, but it produces more uniform loaves than when made manually

It may be mentioned that on account of war priorities considerable delay was encountered in securing this equipment from the manufacturers in Toronto.

Important Decision At Next Meeting of Board of Trade

Weekly Gatherings Hang in the Balance

To continue or discontinue the weekly meetings of the Board of Trade will be one of the main items of discussion on Monday noon Sept. 28th when that body holds its next gathering. The attendance has fallen down to a mere 12 and 14 and this is only half enough to warrant the continuation of the weekly meeting. The whole matter will be thoroughly discussed and it is hoped that some 25 or 30 members will be in attendance

By weekly meetings the board is enabled to keep in close touch with current happenings and thus able to take immediate action when necessary. The idea was started ten years ago with an effort to revive the organization and has been continued to good purpose since that time. It is not difficult to think that the present crop of business men have enough interest in the welfare of the town where they earn their bread and butter to spend an hour or so considering matters pertaining to its present and future prosperity.

Alternate plans will be [illegible] such as the holding of meetings every other week, or of two sessions per month, one at noon and one in the evening. At any rate, expression of opinion will be appreciated and the officials hope that there will be a good attendance on Monday Sept 28th at 12.15 noon.

Among the satisfying things scientists and food experts have discovered about fish is that from 85 to 90 per cent. of it when digested is absorbed by the blood stream. Fish supplies a complete protein food. It contains the materials necessary for body building and repair. Sea fish should be included frequently in the diet because of its iodine content. Fish generally contains excellent proportions of other minerals including phosphorous, calcium, phosphorous, iron and copper

New York Harbor Lacks Colorful Steamers Of Yesteryear

War has brought new changes to the great harbor of New York No. 1 port of the world, where once speedy ocean liners sailed with the luxury passenger trade and busy freighters carried the imports and exports for almost half the nation, says "This World"

No longer do the sleek, brightly painted passenger vessels move slowly up the Hudson River with gaily waving crowds at the rail. If they come at all they come in battle dress, and secretly.

Passenger traffic to Europe South America, Bermuda, and the Pacific has ceased. The last regular lines, the Portuguese and Spanish ships, have moved south in deference to the German announcement that, New York was now blockaded.

No longer do the hundreds of freighters bring their cargoes of spice and coal, of fruit and wool, tea, lumber, coffee, and cotton to the great piers that gathered their freight and stuffed them again with wheat and machines for the world.

Some still come occasionally in the secrecy of convoys, but you have only to wander along the docks along the Hudson River or the East River to see the empty piers that once housed thousands of tons of freight a year

The port is not dead. There is military and naval activity as at every port, but the activity is considerably less than it was in the last war when the harbor's facilities were taxed to the utmost.

Typical are the longshoremen, whose union official's estimate that 50 per cent. are out of work. In the conference at Ottawa the board plans to establish a modest office in Washington and another in New York.

Counteracting Force

Has Been Set In Motion By Aggression of The Wasps

The New York Times says: The Nazis are shrewd. They make skillful use of the technique of the warfare of words and of the war machines. In the light of three years of war they are not more than shrewd. It is not in Nazi nature to be wise. Wisdom would have refrained from attacking the United States. Wisdom would have known that the Germans are not numerous enough or strong enough to rule the world. Wisdom would have learned from Germany's own philosophers that when you set an aggressive force like Nazism in motion you bring into being the force that will counteract it.

The counteracting force is gathering strength day by day. It is growing inside Hitler's lines as well as outside them. It is growing faster than any possible Axis victories, in Russia, Asia or Africa, could whittle it down. The Second World War has lasted longer and spread farther than Hitler planned. When he failed to end it or limit it in 1940, and again in 1941, he was, perhaps, the victim of his own movement. But his failure ended his, and the movement's ultimate doom.

On The Home Front

German People Facing Hard Winter Are Weary Of War

Hunger, war-weariness and depression are growing on the German home front, Germany, and together with it, the occupied countries of Europe, face the prospect of a winter grimmer and more terrible than any since 1918. German cities, one by one, are being laid in ruins by the new fearful striking power of the Royal Air Force, greatly augmented by bomber fleets from the United States.

In the east, the Nazi Wehrmacht is locked in a struggle to the death with the Soviet Union. Throughout the conquered countries of Europe, overrun in the past three years by Hitler's armed forces, unrest and oppression reveal are spreading among the peoples whom Hitler is seeking to bludgeon into his Nazi "New Order" system. In the West, German garrisons wait uneasily for the second front which the armies of Great Britain and the United States may open at any moment.

Hitler and the other Nazi chieftains know clearly only hope today of avoiding defeat is to crush completely the military power of Russia in the days still left before the armies are immobilized again in the frozen horror of a Russian winter.

The German home front today is enduring hardships—to an extent even privations — comparable only with those of 1917-18. The food situation is distressingly alarming, and critical shortages are almost certain this winter. The situation can be summarized as follows:

1. One of the most disastrous harvests in years is expected.

2. Germany is suffering the worst shortage of potatoes and vegetables since 1918

3. The fruit crop has been almost completely ruined.

4. The shortage of fats throughout Germany and the occupied territories this winter will be more critical than at any time since the outbreak of war.

Normally food conditions in Germany show a marked improvement during the summer. This summer they have been little better than last winter, which foreign residents in Germany agreed was the grimmest since the World War. Potatoes were rationed for the first time in the war, but in Berlin and many other large German cities they were unobtainable for weeks on end. Vegetables, normally plentiful in summer time, are so scarce this summer that strict rationing had to be put into operation.

Armed For Victory

People Of Britain Have Produced The Weapons They Need

The lessons that the Russians have learned in a year of constant battle, we are learning now in the cold-war school where they can be learned—in battle. The British people have produced the weapons needed. They have built up the greatest air force in the world alongside the greatest navy. They have produced land war weapons in such numbers that with only 30 per cent. of their output they have made Britain the best armed camp in the world. Four times as much they have sent to their armies and their Allies abroad. The mighty endeavour of three years is only the start. The reverses they have suffered are only the prelude to the battles they mean to win.—London Daily Express

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 27

JOSEPH AN EXAMPLE OF FORGIVENESS

Golden text: Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you. Ephesians 4.32.

Lesson: Genesis 45—50.

Devotional reading: I John 4. 7-21.

Explanations and Comments

Joseph Discloses Himself to His Brethren, Genesis 45. 1-4. Joseph's emotions overcame him, and he could not refrain from weeping. Standing by were obsequious Egyptian servants and officers who would not understand his emotions and might even think that their great ruler was degenerating himself by a display of feeling for those foreign shepherds, and therefore he sent them all away. The precaution was futile, however, for when he gave way to his feelings and wept aloud, the Egyptians heard his weeping and it was reported in the house of Pharaoh. There can be signs of joy as well as of sorrow. "I am Joseph," he cried. Can you not picture the astonishment, incredulity and fear upon the brothers' faces as they heard those words. "Doth my father yet live?" In a previous interview with them he had been told several times that his father was alive, but he felt the need of again hearing the welcome words. No wonder the brothers were silent. "Come near to me, I pray you," continued Joseph, watching them to see his face closer at hand. And then he added a bit of information which must have convinced them of his identity, for he knew they could have known this fact: "I am Joseph, your brother whom you sold into Egypt."

God's Purpose in Joseph's Life, Genesis 45.5-8. Joseph wished to save his brothers from grieving or being angry with themselves for their crimes of long ago in selling him into slavery in Egypt, and three times in these four verses he asserted that in reality it was God who had sent him to Egypt. Thus, he recognized plainly God's providence. God had brought him into Egypt to make his savior of life during the years of famine. "This seems of a providence, of a Divine care which watches sleeplessly over the fortunes of the individual and of the nation, and one of the most precious things in the Old Testament." (John E. McFadyen).

"Humble belief that God is working through him to carry out his inscrutable designs dignifies a man, for it makes him a co-worker with the forces that keep the stars in their orbits and hold the earth to its course round the sun."

GAIN AND LOSS

In a civil service examination given in New York some time ago one of the questions asked was, "If a man buys an article for $12.25 and sells it for $9.75, does he gain or lose by the transaction?"

One of our modern sweet young things, after studying for a while, answered, "He gains on the cents but loses on the dollars."

MRS. MINIVER

Adapted From The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture

By HALSEY RAINES

CHAPTER IV.

One of the two hobbies of Mr. Ballard had been of necessity suspended: the church bells were to be rung now only as an emergency alarm. And so Beldon was still going to hold her Sweet show, however, and the station-master had definitely decided to enter his Mrs. Miniver's case in competition against her.

All this he confided to Mrs. Miniver as he met her in the early morning by the hedge near the river's edge. She listened absent-mindedly, and with heavy heart, for there was no news of Clem.

She had left Mr. Ballard, and was proceeding toward the garden, when she stopped short. Protruding from a clump of shrubs were the feet of a man in German aviator's uniform. Mrs. Miniver took a deep breath, and tiptoed closer. The pilot looked very young; he was asleep and his clothing was torn and stained.

Turning impulsively, Mrs. Miniver began to run. Her foot tripped on a stone and she sent pebbles and mud flying as she caught her balance. All at once a Teutonic voice rang out from behind, like a pistol shot.

Mrs. Miniver looked back. She was covered by the lieut. aviator's pistol. Not one was in sight, and probably no one within earshot.

"Make noise—I shoot!" muttered the German. "Food—drink," he continued.

Mrs. Miniver pointed to the house, and beckoned to him to follow. As she watched, she saw that one arm hung helplessly at his side, and that he winced with effort.

When she reached the doorway, and saw the look of suspicion in the wounded flier's eyes, Mrs. Miniver told him that her children and the maid were all asleep upstairs. Her only thought now was to allay his fear until she could somehow, anyhow, reach a telephone or give a warning signal. She gave the German some toast, and a bottle of milk. Then he asked for a coat, and located an old one belonging to Clem. As the aviator tried it on, keeping his gun still on her, an involuntary cry of pain broke from his tight-clenched lips.

"You need help," said Mrs. Miniver. "Your arm is stiff with blood. You must get to a hospital."

The young German shook his head sullenly.

"You'd die out there," continued Mrs Miniver, gesturing. "You can't escape. They're scouring the woods day and night."

The pilot's only response was a slight, contemptuous twist of his mouth. Finally he turned, and started for the door. He paused, steadied himself against a chair. As he tried to navigate the last ten feet, he stopped, swayed and then crashed headlong, while the gun slipped from his limp hand . . .

When he regained consciousness Mrs. Miniver, who had phoned the police, was covering him with his own revolver. In response to his appeal she went to the cupboard and brought out some cognac. She no longer felt frightened or nervous. As she stood facing him, the cut-out signal from an airplane was heard overhead.

Her face lighted up, that was Vin signalling as he had done a hundred times before!

"That's my boy," she said. The German looked at her in surprise. "Did you expect your mother when you got back?" she went on.

"Ha!" muttered the enemy flier. "We are not soft, like that."

A look of understanding, a sudden cool appraisal of what was being de'ied into the youth of the Rhineland, as Clem had tried to do with her, swept over Mrs. Miniver. A minute later two policemen arrived, and took their captive into tow.

When Mrs. Miniver heard a mechanical sound down by the river's brink, a sound she had been waiting for as eagerly as the put-put of Vin's motor, she ran wildly out of the house.

Clem, who was tying up his boat, looked startled and haggard. The boat was criss-crossed with machine-gun fire. His clothes were blackened and torn.

"Are you all right?" begged Mrs. Miniver folding him in her arms.

"Fine," he smiled Clem. "But I'm tired. I'd like to get some sleep."

When he had awakened, ten hours later, Mrs. Miniver and Ada, the cook, were standing in the bedroom doorway.

"How about some ham and eggs?" asked Clem, his whole manner one of rejuvenation.

Mrs. Miniver gave all the ham to the German pilot," popped up Ada.

"What?" cried Clem. He turned to his wife. "You mean a German flier was here?" He stared at her. "He let you have a gun?"

"Oh, yes," nodded Mrs. Miniver, "but I took it away and called the police."

Clem dropped back on the bed, and laughed till the tears came. "Gosh! What a woman!" he exclaimed, when he could catch his breath. And I thought you'd been having a nice, quiet time, when I was in Dunkirk."

Lady Beldon's arrival was not unexpected to Mrs. Miniver, she had foreseen a visit from the first lady of the township ever since Carol and Vin had announced her engagement.

"I think I can guess why you've come," said Mrs. Miniver, taking her hand. "I hope you're as pleased as we are."

"I'm afraid not," said Lady Beldon stiffly. "Carol is only a child infanta." She fixed her eyes on Mrs. Miniver. "I think I should tell you, I hope to persuade Carol to wait."

"Isn't it a Beldon tradition to marry young?" asked Mrs. Miniver.

"I don't know what you mean," said Lady Beldon, knitting her brows

Mrs. Miniver smiled gently. "My daughter Judy," she said, "had a composition to write last week on the Crusades. She brought home a book, with an ancestor of yours. I got interested and looked up some other books. What interested me especially was the extreme youth of the Beldon brides. This Gilbert de Beldon who went to the Crusades, married Isabel de Something-or-other, aged twelve!"

Lady Beldon seemed to assume an extra two inches of height. "Mrs. Miniver," she said, "we're not in the Middle Ages!"

"Oh, there were others!" continued Mrs. Miniver, unperturbed. "There was a Findley Beldon-Beldon in the seventeenth century who eloped from Eton with the fourteen-year-old—"

"Mrs. Miniver," interrupted Lady Beldon "I didn't come here to chat, or pedigrees. Carol's eighteen, your boy's not yet twenty

"We're at war, Lady Beldon." said Mrs. Miniver gravely. "In wartime time is so precious for the young people." She took the other's arm. "Lady Beldon, you were sixteen yourself when you were married. Did you regret it?"

A fiery look crossed the other woman's eyes. "I've never regretted a moment of it!" she exclaimed. "My husband was in the army he was killed in action But I wouldn't want Carol to suffer as I suffered -

"Don't you want her to be happy, as you were, even if for a little while?" went on Mrs Miniver.

"I was afraid you'd think of that," answered Lady Beldon. But there was a marked difference in her manner All hostility was gone. "Of course," she continued, "you and I both doesn't really matter what we say."

Mrs. Miniver's eyes twinkled "You mean, Carol will go her own way?" she asked.

"She's my granddaughter," said Lady Beldon, with an answering twinkle.

Mrs. Miniver looked at her oddly. She didn't quite know how to express herself tactfully. "Then why—" she began.

"Goodness knows!" cut in Lady Beldon, "I was beaten before I started"

Mrs. Miniver stepped over, sat on the sofa beside her, and placed a hand on her arm.

"You don't mind terribly, do you?" she pleaded. "He is a nice boy."

"He's a charming boy," said Lady Beldon. "I see now where he gets it from. You're pretty too. Don't wonder that wretched Ballard named his rose after you. But I still he has a chance of taking the cup from me." She paused and added abruptly: "Well, as long as we're going to be relatives the least you can do is to offer me some tea."

Were Going By Boat

But Small Undertaking Proves Very Small Undertaking Proves Very

There is a promise of coming events in the Gaucho song of Colonel Armando Arariboia, the Brazilian air attache, of the arrival of 44 small single-seater American airplanes under their own power at Rio de Janeiro. Fifty-eight pilots and mechanics of the Brazilian Air Force flew 19 four-place cabin monoplanes and 25 primary trainers from the Fairchild factory in Hagerstown, Md., to their goal more than 8,000 miles away without serious variation from schedules set up before departure. This was the largest flyaway delivery of airplanes yet made to South America from the United States. It was necessitated by war conditions. The little planes for the Brazilian Air Force had been going to make the journey in more prosaic fashion. Indeed, they had been crated and delivered to a pier when the submarine menace in the Atlantic caused the change of plan. Returned to the factory, they were reassembled and tested, and hopped off.

In this rapidly evolving era of flight we are beginning to take as a matter of course overnight transport of the Atlantic by Clipper and journeys of diplomats and rulers between the continents. Even the visit of Mr. Churchill to Moscow, in big bombers. We will take such distant happenings as a matter of course as our stride as the impact of air power, not only on war but on commerce, becomes all more evident. But the small aircraft with a range of not more than 500 miles to make severely and without exception the long trek between Rio and the Canadian and world markets.—New York Times.

POPULAR GIRL IS SURE OF ETIQUETTE

"Did I Do Something Wrong?"

That's anything that you've done something wrong, that people are laughing at you (or wondering!) may sometimes be perfectly right.

People DO look down on you when you commit some obvious breach of etiquette

Even walking across a dance-floor alone! After a dance a girl who knows what to do asks her partner to take her back to her friends or wherever she may wish to go

And a well-bred man, of course, will never leave a girl in the middle of the dance floor—any more than he'd give his order first in a restaurant—or neglect to offer his arm to his girl when crossing a crowded street or getting out of a car.

The popular girl knows her part in to receive such courtesies graciously, not with a crude "Don't bother"! That's why she's dated, rushed!

You could be, too, if you were sure of the rules. Our 32-page booklet tells both girls and men how to act on dates—whether dancing, dining indoors or at the theatre or sports events Tells what to say in introductions, on the telephone Discusses coffee and travel etiquette, petting.

IN CASE YOU DON'T

Neal O'Hara, in New York Post, tells a young traveller—reported that in a pullman diner, when the coffee in his cup begins to squirm about a bit as the train moves, it'll stop sloshing and spilling if he places a spoon in the cup Of course, that isn't according to Emily Post, but do you want your coffee spilling or don't you"

NO RELAXING PRICE CONTROL

"Any thought that Canada can now relax controls which have been enforced to prevent a runaway rise in the cost of living is based on completely fallacious reasoning," Donald Gordon, Chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has made this statement to counteract opinion that taxation, compulsory saving and the closer co-operation of United States with the Canadian plan may relax the Canadian price control policy. Mr. Gordon has declared that now more than ever before we need to keep the prices stabilized.

Increasing requirements of the ... forces, scarcity of manpower, result in dwindling supplies of civilian goods, Mr. Gordon elaborated. "Price control does not permit these short supplies to be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

At the end of a year of price control the Board has had experience with ... seasonal factors, adjustments, when necessary have been made, but by now, with its understanding of these factors, the Board will be inclined to resist such further claims.

The public must fight the assumption that the battle against inflation has been won. "The threat of a disastrous inflation is as real now as it ever was and the danger will be ever present under conditions of war," Mr. Gordon concluded.

Price Control To Be Topic in School Classroom

School children will learn about price control in Canada through the literature published by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board available in their classroom libraries. Dr. H. C. Newland, Superintendent of schools in Alberta in co-operation with the Women's Regional Advisory Committee, has agreed to use literature on Canadian controlled economy in wartime in provincial schools, for reference in social studies and current events. Distribution will be handled by regional superintendent of school divisions throughout the province.

Days are certainly noticeably short er and we are beginning to ponder whether the geese flying south portend an early winter. The frost does not seem to bring any more settled weather. It has been a very damp September to date. Let's hope it doesn't snow before it clears up.

Daylight saving time is quite a handicap to farmers at this time of year Several families hereabouts have reported to standard time again but this is impossible where there are still men going to school. In another few weeks we will have the coal oil lamps and lanterns going for about three hours each a.m. (which reminds us of the poem "In winter I get up at night and dress by yellow candle light" etc

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

EDMONTON.—Alberta now has 67 active credit unions operating in the province, and one of them, the Edmonton Civil Service group, reached its fourth birthday Monday, Sept. 21. This typical union has at present 238 members, and their pool of savings amounts to $126,238 to share among themselves. Of this amount, $4,231.12 is out on loan, working at various personal jobs for credit. One of the principal objects of credit unionism is to keep the money working, rather than lying idle. Members obtain loans for a wide variety of purposes, to finance vacations, to cover maternity and sickness expenses, to con solidate old bills, to buy clothing and household goods.

In other fields of co-operative endeavor, progress continues at a steady pace. The latest report issued by the co-operative activities branch lists 120 active associations of various kinds at the end of July and at the beginning of September three new co-operatives were chartered. These were at Battle River (Rosalind), Holyoke and Simonton, where a vegetable and seed growers' group has commenced operations.

Alberta will presumably have free diagnostic clinics to serve all citizens of the province, it was stated by Hon. H.C. Manning in Edmonton this week. The minister was recounting accomplishments in the field of public health in a broadcast address, and after citing the free diagnosis, treatment and hospitalization provided for the tubercular, cancer and Polio patients, he said, "The next step, which will go a long way toward providing a comprehensive health service to the people, is to set up free general diagnostic clinics. Then the field of medical services will be completely covered."

ELEVATORS UNABLE TO HANDLE TOUGH OR DAMP GRAIN

MacMillan Urges Threshing Only Dry Grain

The Honorable D. Bruce MacMillan, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, has issued the following statement with regard to the harvesting and threshing of the Alberta grain crop:

"Alberta's wheat and coarse grain crop this year has possibilities of producing highest yields in the history of the province. Unfortunately adverse harvest weather, with wind and rain, has prevailed with the result that crops in most sections are two weeks late in ripening with considerable lodging in many fields.

"The combining of lodged crops or immature crops, is sure to yield tough or damp grain. Too early threshing will be equally disastrous. Grain which is to be stored must be dry, because of limited storage facilities. Tough grain must be moved frequently to allow it to cool. This cannot be done in over crowded elevators or home granaries.

"Elevator agents will be compelled to refuse storage for tough grain. Risks are too great. Heating may take place in bins which may not only spoil the grain but which may also cause fire in the elevator. Grain mixes also thrive when the moisture content of the crop is high. Farm storage of tough grain is subject to the same risks.

"Farmers throughout the province should avoid threshing or combining until grain is dry. The crop is safer stooked in the field than when stored in a tough condition in a bin.

Provincial Department of Agriculture asks for the co-operation of all farmers in connection w h the above matter."

Price Policy on Apples Steady

Short crops of apples in Ontario and Quebec are counteracted by a large crop in British Columbia, equalizing the situation sufficiently to avert the necessity of imposing a price ceiling on apples, except under the general provision do not come under the price ceiling. A statement to this effect is made from the Ottawa administration. Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

British Columbia Weathys are available on Eastern Canadian markets. According to the department of Agriculture unprecedented Canadian consumption involves a total of from 2,500,000 to 2,500,000 boxes of B. C. apples to be marketed in Western Canada

This week we'd like to tell you about some musical programs on CJCA. We receive many comments on the type of music heard on the air here, the majority favorable, and some not so favorable. No one wants to hear a symphony from morning to night any more than they do satin, spun, or boogie woogie so we try to give a balanced diet. Let's pick out a few to show you what we mean by variety.

It is' classics you favor, be sure to hear the CBC Recital Series Wed., and Fri. at 4.15 and Sun. Mon., and Thurs. at 10.30 p.m. Recital Series presents both vocal and instrumental artists whose repertoires range from Debussy and Bach to German and Victor Herbert. And most everyone listens to "Album of Familiar Music" on Sunday evenings at 7.30 because, as the title implies, every number is a familiar one. The songs range from adaptions of operas to a familiar folk song story of Tin Pan Alley ballad. Frank Munn, Vivian della Chiesa and Jean Dickenson share the vocal honors with the Buckingham Choir as a pleasing background.

These are just a few picked out at random from the many musical programs on our schedule. You can be sure we'll do our best to satisfy you desires and continue to give you a variety of musical entertainment.

On its way to North America, the rutabaga or swede turnip is said to have been introduced into Scotland about 1741 it. into England in 1790, and is mentioned as being grown in North American gardens in 1806

WOODVALE

We are sorry not to have much news lately, everyone is busy in the district seems to be so busy trying to get their crops cut between rainy spells, to make much news. Hindering is getting to be an old old story by now and we would not be surprised if thrashing will also be one long drawn-out affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Ross and little son spent a short turlough in the district a few weeks back.

Our school did not open on Sept. 1 after all. Miss McCrae being transferred the last minute to the Kolmoc school. We now that the other day Widower Wilkes was wondering how the smaller children, living any distance away from school would manage this winter and how he was to know it's still dark at the time they leave home. Last winter Woodvale school opened an hour later, everyone being most agreeable to that arrangement apparently. Then changing to now time as soon as it was broad daylight an hour before school opened. After all, we farmers might have our clock on wartime but most of us live on old time as it suits our day or is very convenient to putter around in the dark early in the morning and at night again when it's absolutely hazy in. With parents, teacher and the school board in agreement we imagine other schools could do the same thing as there are no school hours lost.

They are working at the oil well in the route again but it looks as if everything is being hauled away to be used somewhere else. Big trucks and Jones welding outfit are very busy in evidence on the road.

Our former teacher, Mr Prentice was transferred from Nanaimo, B.C., where he is in the Signal Corps, to Peterboro, Ont., where he is now an instructor. We just wonder what Jim likes better, teaching recruits the art of signalling or the three R's to his former pupils?

Socks 252 pr., sweaters 126, vareys 65, mitts and caps 76 pr., scarf 1, and rubber under wartime conditions, is advocated by the Alberta Motor Association.

With the speed limit reduced, there is no reason why accidents in this province should not show a big reduction this year. There was a big decrease in motor accidents during May, and general confidence that the tendency will be to improve the showing for the entire year.

British India is divided into eleven provinces which, since 1937, have enjoyed self-government with virtually the same powers as those enjoyed by states of the U.S.A.

OLD RUBBER

If you think that the bit of old rubber that you can contribute can make little difference in winning the war, consider these facts: An autown tire can provide as much as sixteen pounds of reclaimed rubber and an inner tube about two and five-tenths pounds. Fifty feet of garden hose yield twenty pounds of scrap and a single pair of four-buckle all rubber arctics three pounds. There is a pound or rubber in every foot of rubber floor matting and another pound in an old hot-water bottle. In most cases, reclaim constitutes from 20 to 40 per cent of the rubber articles that we use

Germany Must Pay

HERBERT MORRISON, British Secretary of State for Home Affairs and Minister of Supply, says that justice for Germany will have to be tempered with mercy. He says he made the Nazis pay in part for all the atrocities they have committed in European countries. Enough people have suffered and are good for those guilts of the unspeakable things that have been committed. Let the Germans realize that they have been defeated by Adolph Hitler and his followers. Somewhat the same sentiment is expressed by Frank Wintersmith, President of the British Trade Union Congress, who says he warned British workers that the Germans have made a similar attempt to enslave Europe after they lose this war unless they are notified to them what they have meted out to millions of the people in occupied countries.

Nazis Must Be Overcome

These public men have voiced the feelings of the people of the United Nations. We are determined that Hitler and his gang must be punished until Germany's military power is completely crushed. When that is accomplished steps must be taken to ensure that it will not have a chance to form again and we shall have to face the colossal problem of dealing with a generation of Germans educated from the cradle on the principles of Nazism. It is now almost one hundred years since the Versailles Treaty was in the German mind, a treaty which allowed them time to prepare for the war against all the nations attempted to dominate the world by force. That time was permitted in spite of all that we can point to the weakness of the people of the time, but they did not have the advantage of modern means of communication to prevent the development of another world struggle ten or twenty years from now.

Wars Of Aggression

It has frequently been pointed out that in the last eighty years Germany has four times started wars of aggression. In 1864, 1870 and 1939 they set out to conquer their neighbors. Each time they were ultimately subdued, but it would be impossible to fully reckon the suffering and havoc which has resulted from the world-wide clash of which has been more violent than the last. The war of 1914-18 was a terrible and bitter conflict yet the present war far exceeds it both in intensity and in the extent of operations. One shall hesitate to contemplate what would be the nature of a war fought in twenty or thirty years from now, if the present trend of scientific progress at the present rate. There a little old but that the German people were behind the governments which led them into wars of conquest, and that they will support their leaders as long as they are victorious. It is the hope of all free people that the present war will see the end for all time of these cruel and vicious conflicts

The Avro Lancaster

Another Sold Of Its Performance Can Readily Be Believed

We can start with the sun to get out to Berlin, to see some in Britain from eastern Canada to Port Arthur last season. To Adolf Hitler but a ground fog there won't set off to Up lands instead. After a cross-country the new air-raid Up lands with only a few miles to wage at the speed of Avro Lancaster bomber. Before it hastened off to Trend with a large of government thanks.

They were this great bomber was eight tons of bombs on its belly and still with 2,000 pounds of fuel to spare with which to fly home. Looking at it you can see something they can't do.

Hitler's and Yales looked like Beaverbrig grouped this great squadron whose production rubber feet also must face the rubber shortage. But suddenly she wasn't squatting any more, waiting for any order with no pulling away of blocks or waving of flags the big black beetle moved ahead and manoeuvred around the field to her starting point as nonchalantly as a sleek limousine with a Negro chauffeur at the wheel.

The plane started from the same place as all those other little planes start that drone away all day and with of any particular danger or sense of romance about. Manned by 1000 feet wide and 65 feet long, it didn't appear to be attaining the kind of speed necessary to take it aloft. But at last about along the runway [illegible] 23 seconds after it started the big craft eased into the air so gently that its rise was almost imperceptible. Another 67 seconds and it was out of sight complete with C D Howe and his colleagues. For the time and all we could see of anyone in that night have carried the Hallet and the Lord Beaverbrook chair.

Trans-Canada Highway

First Cars Have Travelled From East To West

The first cars have driven through from eastern Canada to Port Arthur and the west over the nearly completed road via Hearst and Long Lake. Then they have brought into the realm of actuality the Trans-Canada highway product of many years of planning and actuation and of the spending of some millions of dollars.

The event under other circumstances could have been made the occasion of a big celebration. No doubt it will later on after roadwork has been officially declared complete there a still quite an amount of work to be done be observed in a reasonable way.

Real appreciation of the accomplishment would, however, be seen in the use that would be made of the highway were conditions normal as regards supplies of gasoline and tires.

The probability that it would be largely used under normal conditions is increased by the fact that it provides a shorter route between this part of Canada and eastern Ontario than the American routes

The distance from Port Arthur to Toronto by the Trans-Canada is given as 946 miles. To reach Toronto by the American route necessitates a drive of about 1,300 miles The difference in favor of cities east of Toronto and including Ottawa and Montreal is much greater

This mention of the Northern route and the Soo brings up again the old discussion regarding routes The controversy about Lake Shore route versus Northern route went on for years before the war The coming of the war found the Northern route nearer completion and det was made to finish it up as a through road in spite of the calls for labor and money in the war industries As a matter of fact it was felt desirable to complete the road so that it could be used as an alternative route in the event that anything happened to the railways which are so important in wartime transportation This new Trans-Canada road may be said, therefore to owe its completion at this time to the coming of the war. It is something of a wartime project Port Arthur News Chronicle.

Engineering Students

Western Students Supplement Academic Work By Practical Experience

As a further step toward filling Canada's increasingly serious war need for engineers, many undergraduates in engineering at western Canada, students in engineering and other scientific courses have been supplementing their academic training by practical experience this summer at the plants of The International Nickel Company of Canada in the Copper Cliff area.

In line with the program laid down by the Wartime Bureau of Technical Personnel in Ottawa, details of the plan under which the students canvassed were worked out co-operatively by university heads and employers' officials. Impending military and war-industry requirements for engineers and chemists and metallurgical men than Canadian universities will graduate from present enrollments if acceleration continues to [illegible] the engineering undergraduate can make is to finish his course But to use all technical knowledge to the limit of its availability the Wartime Bureau program called for all such students to engage in summer work which is not only essential but which also increases their professional skill and ability after graduation

As a spokesman for one western university states "Training that these students are receiving during the summer is most important." He points out the fact that practically all our undergraduates are employed for the vacation on essential war work is a tribute to the policy of both government and industry."

To the large body of engineering undertaken in the nickel industry by western universities have supplied an important group The field work in the Copper Cliff area not only involves mining operations but also a variety of metallurgical processes Engaged in it are students in mining, chemical, electrical and mechanical engineering and other allied courses Under the supervision of outstanding industrial experts and research scientists it links their academic work in western Canada with valuable first-hand knowledge of production in one of Canada's greatest industries.

Australian Scientists

Have Contributed Valuable Ideas To Air Services Of Empire

Australian scientists have played a foremost part in radio location experiments which have proved invaluable to the air services of the Empire Details of these investigations, as of many other efforts of Australian scientific contributions to the war effort, must for the present remain secret There is no secret, however, about the bulletproof armorplate which has been perfected by the efforts of a group of metallurgists associated with a well-known company armor which is not only more effective than that which formerly was imported, but which is cheaper and I drawn entirely from raw materials available in Australia

Something Really New

Porridge Parties Have Replaced Afternoon Tea in Scottish Office

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Several young gentlemen of my acquaintance have dropped out of sight in local circles. No more are they seen at the square dances that have recently become very popular at a dance pavilion not far away. The local "hot doggery", where boys and girls who never have any appetite at meal times stuff themselves away for hours on end, to the detriment of pocket money that can't stay in pockets, will have to struggle along without them. No longer, will these particular young gentlemen three of them English — three French-speaking strum their guitars and other musical instruments in my living-room.

No longer that is until their first leaves roll around and they turn up in uniform, heavier, more erect and bronzed, to earn and deserve the admiration of their dancing partners

They have gone off in several directions, to the Little Black Mariyday, the Air Force and to work on the construction of a strategic highway The girls who have been their playgirls and hired and danced with them all summer set me right when I made the remark that I supposed these young boys who are to be paid almost as much per hour in highway construction as the soldiers and airmen get per day

They've been turned down for the army" was chorussed at me, "and, anyway by the time they've got board and room and clothes there won't be much difference in their pay."

Another point made by the young ladies in putting this old soldier to rights was that the road-makers will probably be in almost as great danger as their pals in uniform

It all goes to prove two things that even an old soldier has no right to judge the motivations of youth, there is more than one way to be of service to the Dominion in this fight, for self-preservation

Probably the most illuminating feature of this sudden exodus and the young gentlemen from a small community leaves a noticeable gap is the tranquillity that has descended upon those who play the stellar roles. We older people don't realize the problems with which we have faced our juniors. From our act ideas and politically muscle-bound brains, we evolve a series of mystifying regulations and conditions. Then we expect youngsters just out of school to understand what we haven't courage enough to tell them when their minds are busy trying to adjust themselves to a life that has none of the protection with which we surround their school days

Put yourself in the position of a teen age boy. He suddenly becomes conscious of a world that is peopled mainly by contemporaries in uniform He learns that a khaki uniform minus a word "Canada" is the badge of a "draft-dodger"

Others in khaki, but wearing "Canada" are volunteers They will be accepted at the age of eighteen but will not go overseas until they are twenty.

But if they do not volunteer they will not be called until they are twenty.

What shall he do? We can't tell him. We should be able to tell him what we want. We are the people, aren't we? We govern the country, don't we?

We've got to wake up. If we are going to ask our young gentlemen to enlist to serve us from the enemy who will spare no-one the least we can do is to make quite clear what we expect of them

That's why I say that the most illuminating feature of what has been happening in our village is the descent of tranquillity upon the young gentlemen There are no perpetrators left for them

Now they are in uniform the Personnel Selection directorate will see to it that they are employed where they fit in best which means that they will have greater opportunities for advancement and promotion than was the lot of the private soldier before the war They have no decisions of a major character to make They are doing their duty and are in the hands of men trained to employ them to the best advantage, men who know that their own future, their own safety, their own lives will be in the hands of those youth they are training.

What about us? We are older. By now the perpetrators of life should not be as troublesome to us as they are to the teen age world.

We can't rely upon an administrative and training staff to direct our activities into channels where we can be of the greatest service to our country and, therefore, to ourselves.

Which makes our duty all the plainer!

Our duty right now—and perhaps we'll think more about duty and less about ourselves now that casualty lists take up several columns of a daily paper—is to do everything we can to back up these young gentlemen in uniform.

It is a duty that is simple enough to perform. All we have been asked to do is to conserve vital essentials to aid in winning the war Some things we have been asked to do we do. Some things we have failed to do.

The result of our failures shows in such things as poor service in restaurants, cheating store keepers, chiselling landlords and their ilk.

What doesn't appear is that some of us must be equally guilty in many of these cases prosecuted for our safety by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board There can't be an illegal sale without an illegal purchase any more than there can be an illegal purchase (hoarding) without an illegal sale

Back the soldiers up? Sure we can!

The Individual Citizen's Army can help to win the war by refusing to defeat wartime inflation are observed both by themselves and others.

These young gentlemen are, pausing us let us prove them.

New Gasoline Rationing To Come Into Force

Ottawa.—Establishment of a new gasoline rationing category for all persons using a car for personal transportation and not for business, reducing the motor fuel available to them, will be effective Oct. 1, Munitions Minister Howe announced in an address over a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation national network.

The ministry said the curtailment attacks have caused "colossal" damage to oil tankers, reserves of gasoline are about 30,000,000 gallons less than a year ago, and stocks of crude oil and unfinished products are about 60,000,000 gallons less.

Those to be moved into the new "AA" category are users of cars for other than essential purposes and who can best do without a car if the gasoline supply situation continues to deteriorate, the minister said.

Category "A" will permit the purchase between Oct. 1 and March 31, 1943, of 16 units for cars in class one—the lighter cars; 18 units for class 2—the medium-size; and 20 units for class 3—the larger types.

The gasoline unit is three gallons in the maritimes four in Quebec, Ontario and Northern Alberta and Saskatchewan and five in the prairies.

In the present category "A", a driver is entitled to 60 units a year and in the six months from Oct. 1 to March 31, could get 30 units. Almost double the "AA" allowance. In category "A" the driver with a class two car may receive 36 units for six months and in class three, 38 units.

Everyone who depends on fuel oil for heating this winter will do so at his own risk since the supply of this fuel is more precarious than it was in the summer, said Mr. Howe, adding:

"In the month of July, not one ocean tanker entered Halifax.

"Let us not discount the impact on Canada of submarine warfare."

He could give no assurance there would be sufficient oil for winter heating. If sufficient oil could not be brought into Canada, oil installations that could be converted to coal would be the first to be deprived of supplies.

Car drivers who had already been moved from a higher to a lower category for gasoline rationing will not be moved into category "AA". The new category coupon book would not contain more coupons than the book of higher category which might be turned in. Motorists will be mailed those being transferred to the new category

"You must understand now, that when your coupon book is exhausted your motoring is finished until April 1 of next year," Mr. Howe said.

"No supplementary book can or will be provided. To do otherwise would make rationing meaningless also, please bear in mind that the coupons you do not use are a valuable contribution toward solving Canada's gasoline problem.

There could be no hope of the motorist obtaining tire replacements for other than the most necessary war uses

"Therefore, for your own protection, as well as for the good of the country, I urge all of you who can do so, to lay up your cars in the winter months," Mr Howe said

"By so doing, you will accomplish much to conserve adequate supply of gasoline for your motoring next summer When your car is laid up the tires and other parts will be your means for your conveyance to and from your work."

"The brutal fact" was that while gasoline reserves were lower, the demand was increasing because of the quickening tempo of the war, while sources of supply grew smaller month by month

BRAZIL HELPING

Sea And Air Forces Are Fighting German Sub Menace

Rio De Janeiro President Vargas ordered general mobilization throughout Brazil

Brazil declared war against Germany and Italy Aug. 22 after intermittently heavy losses from Axis attacks on her merchant shipping.

Since then Brazilian sea and air forces have been helping the Allies combat the enemy sea menace

The general mobilization extends steps already taken by the Brazilian government which have put the nation on a military basis.

Brazil could place 250,000 trained infantrymen in the field.

START DEPORTATIONS

Nazi Conquerors Of Luxembourg Wielding Big Stick

London.—The Nazi conquerors of Luxembourg are beginning deportations in efforts to stop anti-German activity in the little grand duchy, a Reuters dispatch from a German frontier point reported. The dispatch said Nazi commissions are compiling "black lists" of Luxembourgeois known to be loyal to the grand duchess, and it was reported reliably that the first batch already has been rounded up.

The Germans were quoted as saying they are prepared to deport the entire population (296,912 in 1935) if necessary and bring in German workers to keep the iron mines running.

More Air Raids Against Hitler Are Necessary

London.—Air experts pointed to approaching bad weather, and a consequent drop in the number of days for bombing operations as increasing the need for immediate consolidation of thousands of British and Allied-owned bombers for an "air blitz" against Hitler.

Even as the R.A.F. added Bremen to its "select" five cities which have been visited 100 times or more, these informants said that if the German war machine is to be "softened by spring" the Allied air forces must be able to throw hundreds—even thousands—of bombers into single actions every flying day.

The world's axiom holds particularly true for high-flying American Flying Fortresses which have made a good start in initial raids upon the continent.

"We must have good weather for the Fortress precision bombing and the only way to make up for the lack of the number of days of operation is to throw more planes into a single attack," said one air authority, whose name could not be disclosed

Such attacks, he added, also relieve the pressure of casualties among attacking forces.

Because American bombing raids have been on a small scale, the German air force has been able to concentrate practically every fighter along the invasion coast on stopping them.

Concentration of Anglo-American air strength for an all-out assault against Germany this winter has been hampered, experts agree, by dispersal of planes to India Egypt, China and other fronts.

The belief that Germany could be dealt a mortal blow from the air was expressed by Air Marshal Sir Arthur T Harris recently when he said the Nazis could be knocked out by the use of 1,000 bombers could be sent on each raid

The bombing pattern of the R.A.F. now supplemented by precision blows of the Flying Fortress and swift daylight forays by Beatons has resulted in more than 100 attacks on each of the western desert Under Montgomery's brilliant leadership Allied troops have stopped the Nazi General Rommel's drive towards the Nile valley and Lake Alexandria is being the starting point of their last attack Standing just behind and to the left of Montgomery is Lieut Gen Horrocks

FUR FARMING

Making Important Contribution To The War Effort

Ottawa.—The fur farming industry of Canada is relatively prosperous and is making a substantial contribution to the war effort by bringing in foreign exchange through sales to the United States, C. D. Lang, of Winnipeg, editor of "Fur of Canada," said here.

He is attending a meeting of the Dominion Council of Fur Breeders which has been in consultation with government officials and problems relating to labor, military service and food supplies.

Mr. Lang said there had been some concern about profitable markets for mink, but improvement had been noted recently. Lower grades were being used in the manufacture of army clothing, including caps.

J. E. Crawford, of Port William, was re-elected council president, Archibald Campbell, of Saskatoon was named third vice-president and secretary.

ANOTHER LIDICE

Quebec Municipality Is Taking Name Of Czech-Slovakian Village

Frelighsburg, Que.—This municipality about 40 miles south of Montreal will soon change its name to Lidice, homage to the Czech-Slovakian village savagely razed to the ground by the Nazis last July. Frelighsburg has a population of 851.

Lidice, near Prague in Czecho-Slovakia, was completely destroyed by the Nazis during the night of last July 9-10. Many were killed and more were deported.

Two weeks after that occurred, a new Lidice was officially opened in the state of Illinois. A town in Mexico has also changed its name to Lidice.

WARNS PETAIN

Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies of the French republic, who, with Jules Jeanneney, president of the French senate, has signed a letter, written in the name of the French parliament, accusing Marshal Philippe Petain of assuming an unlimited dictatorship and warning him not to try to draw France into war against "our Allies". The letter indicates that France is facing its greatest crisis since its fall in June, 1940.

BELGIAN PATRIOTS

New York. BBC said that Belgian patriots have blown up a power station in Junnet. Iron works and rolling mills nearby had to close down as a result of the damage and the coal production of the district was noticeably affected

Tokyo — Masayuki Tani, president of the board of information, was named Japanese foreign minister to succeed Shigenori Togo, who resigned Sept. 1.

Plans Trouble For Rommel In Egypt

Lieut.-Gen B. L. Montgomery, commander of the British 8th Army, charged with the defence of Egypt is shown bareheaded as he discusses operations during the 22nd Armd Brigade facing the Nazis in the western desert. Under Montgomery's brilliant leadership Allied troops have stopped the Nazi General Rommel's drive towards the Nile valley and Lake Alexandria is being the starting point of their last attack Standing just behind and to the left of Montgomery is Lieut Gen Horrocks

Greets Soviet Sniper

Lieut. Liudmilla Pavlichenko, young Russian Soviet sniper whose heroic exploits against the invading Nazi armies won her the Order of Lenin decoration, is shown getting a healthy handshake and a pat on the back from Mayor LaGuardia, in New York. Lieut. Pavlichenko is credited with having destroyed 309 Nazi officers and men during eleven months of action on the Russian front.

Radio Stations To Sign Off At An Earlier Hour

Ottawa. — Canadian Broadcasting Corporation network will sign off the air at 11:30 p.m. local time in all regions beginning next Sunday

This is announced by the CBC general manager, Gladstone Murray, who says the move is designed to reduce wear on equipment

Murray says that such a reduction of broadcast operations in each time zone across the Dominion will lengthen the life of a large amount of equipment, some of which can't be replaced

He says that the early sign-off will be put into effect at all but one of the broadcasting stations owned or operated by the CBC. These are CBL and CBY, Toronto; CBO Ottawa, and CBF and CBM, Montreal; CBV, Quebec, CBJ, Chicoutimi; CBR, Vancouver, and CBK Watrous Saskatchewan

Co Savitch has come to Canada on a military mission He now is trying to find what Yugoslav citizens who may be fit and available for service are in Canada with a view to asking them to join the army and report for training at Windsor Ont. A similar survey is being made in United States

Dr Savitch was chief of staff of his country's air force when the Germans attacked Yugoslavia in the spring of 1941 He was not home at the time as he was a plenipotentiary at the signing of the Russian-Yugoslav non-aggression pact in Moscow and the country was over-run before he got back

Since then he has devoted himself to the activities of Yugoslav forces outside the country and their chief concern is men.

The problem of supporting Gen Mihailovic is also a vital one for the moment he said Weapons munitions and supplies are needed and this is one of the factors Yugoslav government has in mind in recruiting men in Canada and U S

Some of them may be trained in parachute work. They will be given instruction which will enable them to go to certain places and carry out certain duties which they alone by reason of their knowledge of the language of the country, could perform

Because our forces are still fighting in Yugoslavia infiltration can be carried out more efficaciously there than in other parts of Europe," says Col Savitch.

Would Recruit Yugoslav Troops For War Roles

Ottawa Special and probably dangerous war roles await the Yugoslav troops whom Col. D. P. Savitch hopes to recruit and train in Canada

He is looking for men to reinforce Yugoslav air force squadrons fighting with the R.A.F. in the Middle East and Gen Mihailovic's tough army which is still battling the German occupation forces in the homeland

Just how men who may be recruited and trained in Canada can reach and join the Yugoslav army at home is something he is not talking about for obvious reasons

Price Ceiling Control Must Be Maintained

Ottawa With a year of price-ceiling control almost completed, Donald Gordon chairman of the wartime prices and trade board said that adjustments to meet cases of extreme hardship or seasonal factors have been made and the board now proposes to resist any further claims in this respect

In his statement Mr Gordon said that what has to be fought now is inflation in the sense of any rise that the battle against inflation has been won

The threat of a disastrous inflation is as real now as it ever was and the danger will be ever-present under conditions of war

Any right that Canada could relax controls enforced to prevent a runaway rise in the cost of living was based on fallacious reasoning he said

To boast that, as imposed in the 1942-43 budget, could with the likelihood that the U S would enforce their own control of wages and farm prices bringing their total spending into [illegible] harmony with that of Canada would be able to achieve a breaking spell in its policy of price controls.

Nothing can be more dangerous he said Now more than ever before we need the utmost determination to keep our controls established

With all keeping it Canada just a year and began laying the foundation of the [illegible] control legislation which has been effective since Dec 1

The price charged throughout the Dominion for period from Sept 15 to Oct 11 1941 are basically the ceilings on costs which have to be borne by the average Canadian in the business of living

Wartime prices and trade board officials said that in general the ceiling holds although in some cases adjustments had to be made to meet special circumstances and to ensure adequate supplies would be available.

REDUCE CAROLINE RATIONING SYSTEM

Reduction of the gasoline ration for car owners, affecting those whose cars are deemed to be in the non-essential category, will take effect Oct. 1

A new order issued at Ottawa provides for "AA" category, for which the allowance will be, for light cars, 15 units or 80 gallons in the six months period ending March 31, 1943. This is a drop of nearly 50 per cent from the previous allowance of 90 units or 500 gallons per year, or 150 gallons for the six month period.

Officials of the Alberta Motor Association are giving close attention to the new order and making arrangements to ensure that full information is given to the motoring public.

It has been estimated that 25,000 motorists of this province will be affected. Those particularly affected are persons whose cars have been used for convenience or pleasure and not essential for business purposes. People who are in this category have been using one solely for convenience may find that this car is in category "AA".

A housewife normally would be placed in category "AAA", but if it is found that she has a job in war industry and no adequate means of public transportation, and is driving for law employees to work, she would be placed in category "A".

Within a few days, the regional oil controller's office at Edmonton will send out notifications to those who have been placed in category "AA", calling in their old ration books so that they can be supplied with the new books.

RED CROSS NEWS

At a meeting of the local branch of the Red Cross held in the Legion hall on Sept. 21st Mrs. Tom Dick was appointed to convene the committee for packing of the overseas parcels. The Legion and Elks were asked to appoint representatives to act on this committee.

Many thanks to the ladies of Cassie Watson for their kind donation of two quilts and five woollen blankets. The Red Cross work has fallen off during the summer months and since there is such an urgent need members and all others interested are asked to please resume work again. Let's all get together and push ahead to make up for the slack.

Mr. Douglas E. Sexton who has been in charge of the Mission Field of the Presbyterian church in the Vermilion district since last spring preached his farewell sermon Sunday evening to a large and appreciative congregation. The services were in the nature of an harvest festival, products from farm and garden being profusely distributed about the church. The soloists were Cpl. Milliman of the C.W.A.C. training centre and Miss Bellingham, the recitations being in lovely voice. Mr. Sexton left the same evening for his home in Toronto to resume his studies at Knox College.

Stagette Notes

A regular meeting of the Club was held on Tuesday evening, Sept. 22nd with Miss June Burch acting as the hostess.

A letter was read from Miss Alice Miller, one of the members, who has been ill in the hospital. The girls hope to see Alice out at the next meeting.

Although the corn sale which was held in the Elks hall on Saturday was not quite the success that other Stagette undertakings have been, the girls feel we gained some experience and we all know how to cook corn!

Plans are underway for a Harvest Ball which will be the first Stagette dance of the season. This is to be held on Friday, October 2 and should be a real hoedown. Overalls, gingham dresses and straw hats is the correct thing to wear so come dressed for the occasion.

Still Picking Strawberries

Mrs. R. L. Burns is still picking strawberries and raspberries from her garden on the shores of Vermilion. They are big luscious berries and the plants have been bearing bountifully all season. These berries were picked on Sept. 18th and the treat apparently did not harm the plants, shows what a wet year can do in Alberta!

The meeting of the Happy Hour Group of St. Saviour's church, held at the home of Mrs. Grace Barwick on Tuesday evening, took the form of a farewell for one of their members, Mrs. Lottie Garland. Mrs. Garland and children will leave Vermilion at the end of this month to reside in Edmonton where Captain Garland is stationed. A parting gift was presented to Mrs. Garland with the wish that she soon return to Vermilion.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stack, Mrs. H. Elliot and Mrs. Doug Cooper spent a couple of days in Edmonton this week going up by car Wednesday morning.

St. Saviour's W. A. will hold their annual bazaar Saturday Dec. 5th. The time and place will be announced later. 22x

COMMERCIAL FLASHES

Hembherveil school has been closed for two weeks as the teacher contracted measles and had to go home. Fortunately none of the children took them. It is not known definitely when the school will re-open.

Things appear prosperous here about as there is so much traffic on the road. Machinery, tools and equipment generally are on the way to the new oil well which is being drilled. What we all thought was a bluff about oil and gas in this area 25 years ago now appears to be the real thing. The district is now well blanketed with gas and oil lease rights. All we hope now is that the drilling will produce oil.

Noticed here and there: A number of women out stooking; Mrs. Brooks building a granary, Mr. Brooks hasn't fully recovered from his illness yet. Ivan McInnes is doing the cutting on the Brookes farm; Edith Wilson out stooking—the boys are surely missed when it's harvest time but we must carry on for victory and hope all our soldier boys will be home before next harvest.

LAC. NORMAN WILSON KILLED ON ACTIVE SERVICE IN INDIA

Sad News Received by Parents Last Week

LAC Norman Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson of the Cumming district, was killed in action in India on Sept. 10th, according to a wire received by his parents early last week. Norman was a well known and justly popular member of the community's young people and news of his death was received with the greatest regret and sorrow in town and country alike. The deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and to all members of the bereaved family.

Leading Aircraftsman Norman Fiste Wilson was the eldest son of the family and enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in December 1940 as a wireless operator (ground work). He left home on Dec. 31 to report for training in Eastern Canada. After a course there he left for overseas and landed in England in April 1941. After several months of strenuous training he graduated with high marks and honors, his excellent standing entitling him to a special course in radio by the government. He then spent a few months in North Ireland, being attached to the R.A.F. In May of this year he left on the long journey to India and landed in that far eastern country on July 2. In a letter received from him via air mail last week he said that he was now stationed in an Indian village. This letter, although coming by air mail as much as possible, took one month to reach Mr. and Mrs. Wilson at Cummings.

Norman was a true local boy as he was born in the Cummings district on October 4th, 1910 and spent all of his life there with the exception of four years spent in Vancouver when a child. He attended the Heatherbell school and was a member of the Heatherbell Fliers hockey club. He was a valued member of the community, possessed of a pleasant disposition and was always ready to help out his neighbors. Since leaving here he has been greatly missed.

Left to mourn his loss besides his sorrowing parents are one brother Ben in Edmonton and two sisters, Mrs. Ed Wilson in the district and Hilda at home. Greater love hath no man than he lay down his life for his loved ones and fellowmen.

JOINT TEACHERS' CONVENTION AT VEGREVILLE OCT. 8th, 9th

A joint convention of the teachers of the Vermilion and Vegreville school divisions will be held in the United church at Vegreville on Thursday and Friday October 8 and 9.

The program will be officially opened at 10 a.m. on the first day by Jas. A. Smith of Kitscoty, who is provincial president of the A.T.A. In the afternoon there will be separate division business sessions, followed by separate supervisors periods, presided over by C. M. Laverty, supervisor of Vermilion and Mr. White, supervisor of Vegreville.

At 8 p.m. Thursday there will be a public address in the United church by Dr. Walter Johns, University of Alberta, followed by a theatre party and social hour.

On Friday there will be group discussions on public and high school work. The high school section will be addressed by D.M. Sullivan, M.A., Inspector of Schools and Mr. L. Broughton of Provost. Mr. Davison of Mannville will be the chairman. The public school section will discuss "Enterprise" under the chairmanship of Mr. Harold White of Islay.

Miss N Redmond of Islay will give a talk on "Beginning Reading" to the elementary group while Mr. W. R. Waddell of Innisfree will address the intermediate school group on "Community Economics"

Mr. M J Hilton of the Technical school, Edmonton, will deliver the final address of the sessions on Friday afternoon.

BUSINESS DEBATES AT BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

Attendance Climbs — Gatherings to Be Continued

Judging from the remarks and suggestions at the Board of Trade meeting on Monday, the business men of the town are certainly averse to seeing this organization cease holding its regular weekly meetings. They may be content to let a small number attend the meetings and carry on the sale supervisors periods, presided over by C. M. Laverty, supervisor of Vermilion and Mr. White, supervisor of Vegreville.

A larger attendance always makes a much more interesting meeting as was quite apparent in the debates on several subjects on Monday.

A letter was read from the Minister of Public Works of the province asking the board that the Demonstration Farm was not going to be sold. This was a matter in which the Board, together with the town council, took quick action, sending in a protest against the rumored sale.

The matter of town roads again came up and it was felt the town council would attend to the improvement of same as soon as a grader was available. It was explained that the road machine was kept very busy on the three highways leading from the town. The poor condition of the streets also is laid to the fact that there is so much heavy traffic, there being a tremendous increase due to the development of the oil fields.

The matter of reduced hours for retail stores was left with the retail section to study, as the proposed ruling has not yet been made law by the Dominion government.

Following the last meeting, the Vermilion Board of Trade strongly endorsed a resolution directed to the Minister of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa against the enforcement of restrictions that would include within the inestimable quota of grain, grains grested by farmers for family use.

The Board of Trade will hold its usual weekly meeting on Monday next Oct. 5. A full attendance will be appreciated and will be in your own interests.

IN THE AIR FORCE

Vermilion's latest recruit in the air force is Wm. E. Meadows, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Meadows, who live south of town. He will commence training as member of aircrew on October 23

News items of all kinds are always welcomed by the Standard.

HUGE FIRE LOSSES MAINLY PREVENTABLE

The Government of Canada has proclaimed the week commencing Oct. 4 as Fire Prevention Week and Convention Week. An authoritative statistician show that the past ten years 600,000 lives in Canada have destroyed insurable property valued at more than $360,000,000, and that during the same period 2,715 persons lost their lives, and at least 10,000 others have been seriously injured as the result of fire.

Statistics also show that at least 80 per cent of the fires which occur originate either directly or indirectly through inexcusable ignorance and neglect and are therefore preventable, and that the exercise of reasonable prudence and proper care on the part of responsible individuals would substantially reduce the losses occasioned by fire.

The Government has proclaimed that during Fire Prevention Week all dwellings in the Dominion and their surroundings be carefully inspected by their occupants and all conditions likely to cause or promote the spread of fire be removed, such as defective stoves, furnaces, pipes and chimneys, improperly installed electrical circuits and appliances, inflammable rubbish in attic, basement, and closets, and gasoline or other dangerous volatile liquids used for cleaning purposes in the home.

All public buildings, stores, warehouses, and factories must be inspected and cleaned of rubbish in order to reduce fire hazards and maintain health and safety; and in the case of hotels, theatres, asylums, hospitals, and other institutional buildings, in addition to inspection, provision must be made for all changes necessary to protect the occupants from danger in the event of fire.

PERFECT INDIAN SUMMER WEATHER THIS WEEK

Real Headway in Harvesting

Perfect Indian summer weather has been enjoyed since Sunday, the long set spell of ideal weather this fall. As a result some real headway has been made with harvesting operations. It is estimated that 35% of the wheat has been cut with about 5% threshed; 45% oats cut with 3% threshed, all the barley cut with 2½% threshed.

Although grades were knocked down by the frost, graimers figure that the yields will hold up to previous estimates of 22½ bushels of wheat, 50 bus oats and 25 bus. barley per acre

The bulk of the wheat will grade 2 and 3 and it is estimated that the severe frosts knocked fully 20% off the value of the wheat crop, 21% off the oats and 5% off the barley

A former Vermilion boy, Sgt Athol McDonagh, is reported missing after air operations. He is a son of A. G McDonagh formerly of the C.N.R station staff here.

The Importance Of Health

CANADIANS ARE CONSTANTLY reminded of the importance of the "home front" in this war. The gallant conduct of our sailors and airmen, and the heroism shown by our soldiers at Hong Kong and Dieppe, give us a great incentive to do all we can here in Canada, to match their effort to bring the war to a successful conclusion. Through contributing generously to war urings, and paying increased taxes cheerfully, Canadians are doing their part in meeting the heavy financial obligations that the war has placed upon the country. There are, however, other important ways in which we must help to maintain the flow of supplies to our men in the services. The increased tempo of life in wartime puts an added physical strain on workers both on the land and in factories and makes the problem of guarding the nation's health, of great importance

Statistics On Tuberculosis

In August, the Canadian Tuberculosis Association issued a report which stated that Canada had not been able to escape the effects of a world war on the problem of tuberculosis, and that there had been an increase in the death rate from this disease in the past year. The death rate of the nation has been 50.6 to 53.3 per 100,000 population. For the first time since statistics have been recorded, Saskatchewan did not maintain its record of the lowest death rate in the Dominion from this disease. The death rate in Saskatchewan increased in 1941 from 25.2 to 32.2, while Ontario showed a rate of 29.2. In 1940, Ontario's rate was 26.7 per 100,000 Manitoba's rate in 1941 was 45.4. In Alberta the rate was 41.6 and in British Columbia 64.6. This is the first appreciable increase in the death rate in the past fifteen years, the report stated, and Dr G J. Wherrett, executive secretary of the association warned that disease can be as serious in its casualties as bullets and can also be the arch ally of the pestilence line". In Canada, the actual number of deaths from tuberculosis in 1941 was 6,057 while in 1940, it was 5,790.

* * * * *

Need For Prevention

Dr Wherrett s warning that "there should be no tendency to put off until after the war measures which can be taken now to prevent the spread of this disease should be heeded as well to other measures to the health of the people. The great financial burden placed on the country by the war, must lead to the curtailment of some of the public services maintained in peace time, but, through education in nutrition and in preventative medicine, much has been done to raise the standard of health both of the men in uniform and the civilian population. All public support should be given to any measures taken in the interest of the maintenance of a high standard of health among those who are working to sustain our war effort both at home and abroad

Church Of The Temple

Inside Completely Destroyed By Nazi Bombs But Walls Stand

The beautiful Church of the Temple one of the four existing churches in England built by the Crusading Knights in the days of the Templars, has been badly damaged by bombs Built in the twelfth century, it was modelled after the Church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem. The great outer walls, five feet thick stood up amazingly, in the fires caused by incendiary bombs which the Nazis dropped when they raided London. "As you turn down Inner Temple Lane you can see the old grey circular building looking much the same as it has always looked, with its grey stonestones lying peacefully amid the short green turf. Yet not long ago on a night of terror and destruction, the furnace within it raged for six or seven hours, reducing it to a hollow shell. During the long history the Temple has suffered much damage from various causes, especially fire. More, indeed, than any other part of London covering the same amount of ground It was attacked in the Wat Tyler rebellion in 1381, and the Great Fire of 1666 had much of it waste though the flames then did not reach the church nor Middle Temple Hall. Again in 1677 1679 and 1703 fires did an enormous amount of damage Minor fires have since taken place from time to time, even as recently as 1925 there was a disastrous outbreak in Lamb Building As a consequence of the many ruin calamities, few of the buildings that were standing in the autumn of 1940 dated back beyond the seventeenth century Perhaps its crowning disaster was the loss of the Middle Temple Hall Thus and the Round Church were its chief architectural glories The Hall was built in Elizabeth's reign In February 1602 "Twelfth Night" was performed there Shakespeare himself taking part in it.

Columnist On Calgary Herald Likes To Hear Train Whistles

When a Calgary citizen wrote the newspaper that train whistles disturbed his sleep, Richard J Needham, Calgary Herald columnist, replied: "We simply say that we like to hear them we need to them to know what they are saying When we hear the northbound Midnight blasting along Nose Creek we know it is time to go to bed and don't When we hear the southbound Midnight bugle through the morning air We hear it is time to get up, and don't Whenever we hear a passenger train blowing its way through Penley at night we like to think of all the passengers tucked snugly in their berths guardian angels with dark faces watching over them, keen eyes and stars protecting them along 1 000 miles of track Blow, whistle! In the still watches of the night, ringed around with wars and uprisings and shadowy alarms we like to hear the long, deep blast. It comforts us, somehow, to know that the C P R is still there "- Calgary Herald.

Machine Tools

Now Being Exported To Britain And United States

It is amazing to read that Canada, once so critically short of machine tools that she had to beg borrow or steal them wherever they could be found, is now actually exporting them to Britain and the United States, her production having increased by about 500 per cent It is quite evident that the job done by the machine tools branch of the Department of Munitions and Supply is one that it can afford to boast about Brockville Recorder and Times.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That in Our Canadian Army

By Alan Maurice Irwin

A few weeks ago the question of age entered into this column. Age, to the aging, is an absorbing topic and one that must be thoroughly explored in time of war.

At a recent meeting of lawyers in Cleveland, Col. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence (or do you prefer "Offence"), told his audience that he looks for a long war. A day or so before that address Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King told us of the country's plans for the proper use of every man and woman in the prosecution of the war.

These, let us hope, are more than "straws in the wind". They are definite indications that we are coming to the realization that the suggestions made at the very start of the war by the Canadian Legion and other ex-service men are bearing fruit

Evidence that they are is to be found in the recent recruiting campaign for the Veteran's Guard of Canada Work has been found for the old soldiers to do.

That there is yet more work for old soldiers - in uniform and out - is indisputable, and it now looks as if the day is at hand when the great army of middle-aged Canadians will find itself considered qualified for something more than membership in the House of Commons.

Last night a battalion of the Reserve Army - Underground - paraded in a park in an Eastern Canadian city The men were learning formation for different kinds of parade Nine of the time they gathered round their instructors to watch demonstrations of the right time they practised the formations - a slow job

It was a cool night and the men were thinly clad in summer uniforms Some of them, including the instructors, were chilly.

The lieutenant-colonel commanding the unit—he wears the D.S.O. and M.C.—passed from group to group observing the training. He observed more than that. He observed that his men were cold. He passed the word to the instructors to interrupt the training and give some warming-up exercises.

How that is a little thing in itself. But it is a big thing when you look right into it. Any one of those instructors had the authority to break off from his work and lead in warming up exercises. Or, if he did not want to act on his own initiative, could have obtained permission.

Yet it took the old soldier, the seasoned veteran who is considered too old for active command, to think of his men's comfort.

The younger instructors are all for efficiency—for "harnessing" his men. That's all very well. So is the old soldier, but he knows there is no grain in efficiency if time is lost from the next training night by men who contracted colds through lack of care.

As I have written earlier in The Individual Citizen's Army there are many jobs that can be filled in Canada, in England, at the bases and on the line of communications by veterans of the last war, by men who were too young last time and are called too old this time and by men whose categories are lower than the "A" that is required of the fighting soldier.

To such jobs as organization, administration and supply such men take the more balanced thinking that comes with maturer years. Youth can, will and, in the final essence must plan and execute attack but youth is less apt to worry about such important work as consolidation and—where the plan calls for it- evacuation.

The same thing applies to the war work available for those who are not available for the armed forces After years of toiling married women who have raised families and are freed from domestic ties that they are too old authorities in various lines of endeavour are now getting round to the realization that there are many spheres of useful activity in which older women will not merely "do" but for which they are much better fitted than young ones.

I have seen no announcement yet about the nursing service of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps at most summe that the age limit still here most veteran Nursing Sisters of the 1914-1918 war from serving again.

Most mothers of young men serving in the Army will agree with me that a Nursing Sister who, in addition to her training, has the advantage of being a mother who has raised children of her own, would be the ideal type for hospitals in this country to which wounded who face a long convalescence will undoubtedly be sent.

Yet—and here is a situation worthy of Gilbert and Sullivan—the only ex-Nursing Sisters who can qualify for such appointment are those who lied about their ages and were officially too young in the last war! No matter how you try to figure it 1914 subtracted from 1939 still leaves 39 and any nurse who is less than 45 today must have been less than 20 in 1914. She had to be 21 to enter training school, three years were required for the course leaving the minimum age on enlistment as 24 Twenty-four and 25 always add up to 49—and 45 is the upper age limit!

That's by the way—what we are concerned with is the desire of older people to do something to help the fight along. Not only their desire—their undoubted capacity for service

The time will come—it must—when all of us who are capable of helping will be drafted. Until that time comes let's do our share by helping to save merchant seamen's lives by stinting on commodities that come from sea, by carrying parcels from the store, by doing our own little bit to keep prices down and the wolf of inflation from the door.

No one is too old for that kind of work'

Reported Missing

Worry About Assignment Of Pay And Allowances

The wives of some of the men reported missing in recent actions have had their natural anxiety for the safety of their husbands increased by worry about the amount of assigned pay and allowances which they will now receive. In response to inquiries, the authorities indicate that this is what is done in such cases:

In general, assigned pay and allowances for dependents of men reported missing are continued until investigations can be completed to determine as nearly as possible whether the missing person is a prisoner of war or has been killed. If the Forces Department finds that the missing man is a prisoner of war, full amounts of assigned pay and allowances are continued.

If no trace of the man can be found in enemy prison camps, the department for statistical purposes classifies the casualty as "presumed dead". The period of this investigation varies in the different services and circumstances under which the casualty occurred.

When the serviceman is listed as "presumed dead" the dependents are transferred to the care of the Department of Pensions and National Health. A representative of this department then calls upon the dependent and outlines the circumstances of the case. Subsequent payments come from the pension fund.—Winnipeg Tribune.

WANTED TO BE LIKED

Enough Wheat To Meet Needs For Many Years

Ottawa.—When Canada has harvested her crop this year she will have enough wheat on hand to meet her normal requirements of this product for human food for 30 years, officials estimated.

When the new crop, estimated at 335,243,000 bushels, has been garnered it will be added to a carryover of about 400,000,000 bushels of previous crops to make a total of at least 1,000,000,000 bushels. Annual domestic consumption of wheat for food has been running about 50,000,000 bushels annually.

When the 1942 production of other grains was considered in addition to wheat, officials said Canada could be looked on as a land of plenty in comparison with other countries where there is limitation in essential foods.

Officials considered massive piles of coarse grains being gathered across the country and translated them into millions of beef and dairy cattle and hogs they will feed.

About 20 bushels of barley, with minor supplementary feeding, is sufficient to finish a hog. On this basis, the estimated barley production of 272,910,000 bushels this year is enough for 13,645,500 hogs.

But recommended rations for livestock now favor mixtures. If this year's estimated production of oats barley and oats were placed in one pile for livestock feeding purposes there would be a total of 1,568,800,000 bushels.

This supply could do one of three things:

1. On the basis of the mixed ration, it would be enough for somewhere near 100,000,000 hogs.

2. It would provide the grain requirements for about 40,000,000 baby beef cattle fed for 12 months.

3. It would represent enough grain feed for dairy cattle to produce 1,564,800,000 pounds of butter.

But, of course, there will be no concentration on one type of production and the grain supplies will meet various demands. Some grains will be exported to the United Kingdom and to Russia, as well as supplying Canadian human food needs. Part of the coarse grains supply probably will be sent to the United States, and quantities of all grains will be held for seed.

A portion of the oats production will be needed for human consumption, and industrial requirements will take part of the barley crop. Poultry and turkeys will have their share and the growing horse population must be fed.

Officials said estimates of the annual production possible from grain stocks were necessarily rough because of the varied fields and different conditions in various provinces. Range cattle, they instanced, seldom received feed grain and Canadian production in this line probably would be maintained apart entirely from grain surpluses

Agriculture department officials said that the vast grain stocks being harvested this fall made possible long-range planning for the first time since the war began Agriculture Minister Gardiner recently announced a two-year program to enlarge production of livestock and livestock products

GETTING NOTHING

Italy Losing Hope Of Winning Material Rewards From Nazis

Berne, Switzerland.—A bitter tirade against France by a semi-official Italian publication was interpreted as indicating Italy's growing dissatisfaction with what she has got out of the Axis and her dwindling hopes of winning any material rewards from participation in the war.

This conclusion was drawn by experienced observers from an article which appears in the weekly foreign journal, Relazione Internationali, and which, though directed at France, lacked any expression of faith the Nazis would support Italy's war ambitions.

The article, voicing a fear known to have been widely held for some time in Italy, expressed belief that Laval, chief of the Vichy government, is manoeuvring with the Germans in the hope of winning the upper hand over Italy and foiling German territorial ambitions.

Production Of Naval And Field Guns Increases

Ottawa.—Canada now is producing in one month more than three times as many naval and field guns and small arms as it turned out in all of 1941, the munitions and supply department announced.

During August said a departmental statement, three Canadian plants each started production on a new type of ammunition—a new type of 4-inch naval gun, a large anti-aircraft gun barrel, and the Browning tank-type gun.

It added: "There now are 13 types of guns, 16 types of carriages or mountings, and 10 types of small arms being produced in Canada, in addition to the foregoing new types, these include the 25-pounder artillery gun, carrier and trailer, the 6 types of tank guns and mountings, two types of anti-tank guns and carriages, Bofors anti-aircraft guns and mountings, 3.7-inch anti-aircraft gun and equipment, 4-inch naval guns, 12-pounder naval guns, 2-pounder naval guns, naval mountings, and small arms of various types.

Canada's first magnesium plant which went into operation near Renfrew, Ont., a few weeks ago is surpassing the most optimistic expectations and turning out metal equal in purity to that of laboratory tests, munitions and supply department officials said

For war purposes magnesium is being used as an alloy with aluminum. Adding only a little magnesium greatly increases the strength and reduces the weight, and alone in castings for airplane engines. In pre-war years castings of aluminum was the material best new methods have made it practicable to use this light weight metal in rotating parts and for other purposes with tremendous savings in weight

Large quantities of magnesium are required for incendiary bombs and flares.

The Renfrew plant now is in only partial production but is expected to reach a capacity of 10 tons a day early next year.

BEEF BOOTLEGGING

Heavy Penalty Is Provided For Any Conviction

Winnipeg.—George R. Cormack, regional food director of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said he has reason to believe certain wholesale meat houses are aiding and bootlegging beef in an effort to defeat price ceiling regulations.

"If such a condition exists and sufficient evidence is secured, drastic actions will be taken," Mr. Cormack said.

Conviction of an offence of this kind means a heavy fine and possibly a term of imprisonment, or both, he added.

Warn French To Evacuate Areas Along The Coast

London.—The BBC urged French men again to evacuate the coastal areas because a United Nations' offensive aimed at the "annihilation of Hitlerite Germany" is being prepared and will be launched without warning the announcer said

"No one will be warned in advance of the day of attack or the point at which it will take place," the French-language broadcast said, "the French the moment comes to call for the cooperation of the French people as a whole we will keep our promise to let you know in time".

The BBC announcer emphasized that a series of such warnings has been given to the French in the last six months in order "to prevent as far as humanly possible the useless shedding of French blood."

"In the course of our military operations," the message said, "it was necessary, and today it is more necessary than ever to envisage the possibility of landings by British and United troops on French soil, of operations by our navy in French territorial waters, and attacks by the R.A.F. on military objectives in occupied France

"An offensive of the United Nations is being prepared. On the day when we can be assured that victory our goal which is nothing less than total annihilation of Hitlerite Germany this offensive will be launched."

The message concluded by telling the French "By following our advice you will contribute to the success of present and future operations that form the prelude of full-scale action which has been so long awaited."

Alaska Road Ready To Use About Dec. 1

Washington. — The Alaskan highway will be ready for use about Dec. 1, War Secretary Stimson announced, and traffic is expected to move steadily over its 1,600 miles until spring thaws make it impassable in April and May.

Not only is the highway being completed months ahead of schedule, he said but instead of the contemplated rough "pioneer" road the highway as it is now being constructed by the corps of engineers is a well-graded, well-drained truck road fit practically its entire length and will afford two-way traffic over many long stretches"

Stimson said that mucking, the long moan that was expected to give the highway an unsteady haze over long stretches and provide some of the worst problems of the undertaking had proved to be a minor consideration

The engineers report that the threats of mucking proved wholly unfounded said his announcement

Most of it has been successfully bridged and that where that is unavailable has been overcome with corduroy roads. In one particular section of 25 miles in length, encased in constat principally of muskeg, only four miles of it were encountered."

The highway, beginning at Dawson Creeks B.C. runs northwest to Whitehorse Yukon Territory, and then crosses the Alaskan boundary, terminating at Fairbanks. It connects with the rail and highway systems of southern Canada and U S at Dawson Creek, and not only provides a motor highway to Alaska, but serves also as a feeder route for various military airfields now virtually had to depend on air transport alone for all supplies.

The agreement between U S and Canada, the highway was undertaken by the army engineers as a military project

Army engineers for winter maintenance of the road include rest houses for the operators of truck convoys barracks for engineer maintenance troops, and weather observation and radio installations the length of the highway.

Construction began in March.

ACTS OF SABOTAGE

Germans Have Plenty Of Grief In Netherlands

Berne, Switzerland. — Bitterness against the German conquerors is increasing in The Netherlands and, heartened by hopes of an eventual Allied invasion, the people are committing almost daily acts of sabotage, a correspondent of the Basler Nationai Zeitung wrote

The invasion threat, he said, compelled the Germans to strengthen their coast fortifications and to transfer many of their troops in the eastern Netherlands provinces to coast stations

He wrote that at the same time almost daily acts of sabotage occur.— German road signs are destroyed, tires on German cars are slashed, trains of war supplies and food for Germany have been derailed and telephone lines have been cut. Bombing attacks have been carried out against German officers and soldiers who venture singly into the blacked-out streets at night

The Nazis in their reprisals have arrested a thousand hostages, including writers scientists and officials, who have been sent to Germany.

SUPPLIES FOR RUSSIA

Big Convoy Gets Through To Destroying Fleet

The great majority of a big convoy of British U S and Russian merchant ships heavily laden with war supplies for Russia has reached its destination in north Russian ports despite Nazi air raid and sea attacks, an admiralty announced.

It announced some losses, but a communique remarked acidly that German claims to have sunk 28 ships of 45 merchantmen were "mere exaggerated than usual."

Some of the convoying warships were not the admiralty bulletin added, contradicting the German assertion that an escort vessel was damaged or sunk in the running attack by planes and U-boats in the lengthening autumn darkness of the Arctic.

ROAD GRADING CARRIED OUT BY PUBLIC WORKS DEPT.

Considerable road grading has been carried out by the public works department of the town recently, streets to be graded for the first time are those leading from 1st St. South to Railway street past the residences of C. C. Smith, Frank Pilkie et al (some one forgot to name this short street and thus it appears a blank on the town plan). Vermilion street between the Atkinson and Strecker residences also received its first grading, while the same street from John Brimacombe's house to P. H. Castle's received a going over and smoothing up. Ditches have been improved for drainage in several cases and the road widened and built up at the arena rink corner.

DOMINION WILL OBSERVE ONLY SIX HOLIDAYS

OTTAWA, Sept. 28.—By order-in-council the Federal government today declared that only six statutory holidays should be observed by employers and employees for the duration of the war, apart from Sundays or weekly days of rest.

The government order set forth the following as statutory holidays:

New Year's Day, Good Friday, the first Monday in July (in lieu of July 1), Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day

In his announcement of the order, Labor Minister Mitchell said that in the interests of the war effort and to promote uniformity among employers and employees in the observance of statutory holidays throughout the Dominion, "the government has found it expedient to declare its policy in the matter".

Fire Prevention Week

Once again by Proclamation of His Excellency the Governor General of Canada, the week of October 4th to 10th has been set aside as Fire Prevention Week.

Why a Fire Prevention Week? Fire Prevention is a matter which needs attention fifty-two weeks in the year. It has been found desirable however, for the past twenty-two or twenty-three years to designate a week in which the public consciousness may be impressed with the enormous cost of our waste in the hope that conditions may be improved and carelessness reduced.

Canada's fire waste in 1941 amounted to more than $28,000,000 in property loss and 323 lives lost. If we are to give our best in this war against Nazism, Fascism and Japanese imperialism, we must reduce our fire waste by many millions of dollars. We must realize that every fire is a national calamity, something that runs into our reserves of much needed material or slows down production. Fire is one of the means by which the enemy hopes to defeat us and it doesn't matter whether it is of accidental origin or set by a saboteur, the same purpose is accomplished.

Carelessness is the greatest obstacle to date in Canada. We can eliminate that threat to our war effort by being more careful with fire in our daily life. Al fires are small in their beginning but they may develop into conflagrations. Your duty is to see that they don't start.

Fire Prevention is really an application of common sense, such as for example, being sure that your cigarette is out before you throw it away, examining your heating appliances for defects before starting up the winter fire, seeing that there is nothing near your stove that could catch fire in your absence. There are many other ways in which fires start but by being careful we can remove the conditions which so often result in tragedy. Let us resolve to be careful not only in Fire Prevention Week but during the other fifty-one weeks of the year. Your local fire chief can help you. Co-operate with him in removing fire dangers from your home or factory and thereby add one more to your efforts to win the war.

Having resigned as District Agriculturist in this territory for the Alberta Department of Agriculture, I wish to thank you for the co-operation and support you have given our work in the past and trust that the same cordial relationship will continue with Mr. E. H. Buckingham, who succeeds me.

Mr. Buckingham has served with the Provincial Field Crops branch for over ten years in this district and is therefore well informed on Agricultural conditions in the Province.

I have been appointed Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Hereford Breeders' Association and by the time this letter reaches you will be in Eastern Canada on business.

My headquarters will remain in Vermilion for some time, although when conditions change, the office will be transferred to one of the larger centres.

Again thanking you for past favors and wishing you every success, I remain,

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

Alberta Farmers' Union,
206½ Agency Building,
Edmonton, Alberta.

Editor, Vermilion Standard,
Vermilion, Alberta.

Dear Sir:

I cannot imagine anything more harmful to the cause of Agriculture in Canada than what has been announced over the radio and published in the press that we shall have 70 years supply of wheat on hand after this harvest.

It presumes we are merely growing wheat for Canadian consumption which is entirely wrong. We are also producing for Britain and we need a quota of 280 million bushels to supply her needs as well and if losses at sea are very severe we may have to ship a lot more than that.

Anyway the present crop has not yet been harvested and stored in a satisfactory keeping condition and a lot may happen before it is, if it ever is! The farmers are fighting against almost overwhelming odds in their gallant attempt to make up for lack of adequate help with insufficient funds to get all the machinery repairs required. They have to pay cash, you know! While a certain amount of assistance is being rendered by volunteer help for the harvest and the effort is much appreciated, yet anyone working with the facts knows that this is merely a drop in the bucket. The real load comes on the farmer and his family and while it is an offence is automatically suspended and this suspension stands indefinitely until the person entitled to the matter of his financial responsibility.

"Many of the insurance companies refuse to give insurance in such two sons who have been convicted and the 2 still to that as their criminal record. I cannot comprehend why they are off the road so far as driving fleets are concerned.

"Some headstrikers pick up the offence immediately when the conviction is ordered and evidence is submitted on the license. I refer to those who are indebted to the Farm Loan Board advising them that in view of the "concession" of being able to retain the first five bushels quota, the farmer is expected to deliver 50% of all succeeding quotas to the board until his obligations are met. To finish, if such conditions as this were imposed on any other industry in Canada our war effort would stop. A complete shut down. If the farmers were to run their farms in the same spirit as the administration shows to them it would not be long before there was an actual shortage of cattle, hogs and dairy produce and soon as the present wheat surplus was exhausted. Germ small, be a shortage of that too.

Another thing, there is no evidence yet of any serious attempt being made to utilize our large stock of surplus wheat for making alcohol and rubber. Mr. Howe has expressed the opinion that Canada may never return to the importing of raw natural rubber. It has been shown that synthetic rubber is superior in some respects to the raw variety. Surely in this time of National stress our daily press should only be used for urging with all their might that all possible measures should be taken that will not only aid our effective war effort but at the same time save from utter ruin the one industry which is able by reason of its very efficiency to show a surplus in these stressful times namely agriculture.

The Alberta Farmers' Union has already submitted briefs showing how the debt situation, the surplus wheat situation and the provision for after war production can be met but nothing has yet been done about it. Surely the farmers are not going to be forced into the position of being utterly unable to continue production on existing terms before the Government wakes up to the fact that Canada's greatest contribution to this war is being made by farm aliens.

And on top of all this Mr. Hitler advises that out of this present crop and succeeding crops take all the farmer should pay his debts and SAVE. About the only thing the farmer will be able to save out of the crop will be his LIFE.

Yours truly,
H. E. Nichols, secretary.

CHIMNEY FIRE SATURDAY

The fire brigade was called to the residence of J. G. Tillett on Saturday at noon where the chimney had caught fire and which necessitated some little work before it was subdued.

Had fires often result from dirty chimneys and the lesson is here your chimney cleaned out today as the season of heavy firing will soon commence.

CONVICTED DRIVERS FORFEIT LICENSES

When a car driver is convicted of being intoxicated while in charge of a motor vehicle, his license is automatically suspended, according to officials of the Alberta Motor Association. In the year ended March 31, 1942, there were 84 convictions in Alberta.

In recent months there have been numerous convictions in the province of persons being intoxicated while in charge of cars. Many of these have been jailed for 10 days, there being no option that provides for a fine.

"The result is that these men are off the "road," said a government official. "The act provides that the license of a person convicted for such an offence is automatically suspended and this suspension stands indefinitely until the person satisfies the minister of his financial responsibility.

SUGAR RATION RULES REVISED

Revision of sugar rationing regulations, which will increase the home consumption of sugar by some three months' supply of sugar at the present time, was announced Tuesday by Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Consumers may now purchase a month's supply of sugar at one time instead of two periods of two weeks each, as formerly. Under the new regulations consumers may buy two 5-lb. packages or the equivalent in other containers at any time after the first date this ration book is used before that time and it is emphasized that anyone still having coupons affixed to temporary ration cards may still use them.

To allow for increasing industry and volume of business and shifts of population the supervision of rationing will adjust the quotas of sugar to industrial users, public caterers and institutions during the final three months of this year.

INSPECTION OF HOME CANNING IS ARRANGED

Inspections of home preserves will be made by local officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and on the order of the Dominion sugar administrator, severest penalties will be applied to those who are found to have bought excessive sugar which they will not actually use in October, it was announced Monday.

Extension of regulations for home canning is creating a shortage of sugar in western Canada, and if validly vouchers were extended further the entire rationing plan would be upset.

According to the board the main reasons for local shortage is the inability of refiners and beet sugar factories to obtain adequate labor for loading cars, and with excessive traffic on railroads, extra time is taken between loading and delivery.

The government is endeavoring to make cane sugar available from Vancouver and the east to supplement supp ilsuntilthe enw shao nyANI NNG supplies until the new beet crop starts. First deliveries from the beet crop cannot be expected until the latter part of nex month, however.

Refineries and factories have been requested to deliver their sugar equitably, and if they consider that any buyer is receiving excessive amounts they are ordered to cut down that quantity.

The Dominion government feels that the present rush is unwarranted and that many persons are signing vouchers for canning sugar, but are not using it for that purpose, therefore, home supplies will be inspected, starting immediately

SHOW BIG REDUCTION IN GASOLINE SALES

In the first months period ended July 31 last the sales of casoline for motor vehicles including trucks in Alberta decreased by approximately 25 per cent according to information received by the Alberta Motor Assoc.

Total sales reported by the provincial secretary's department for this period were 17,602,870 gallons compared with 23,935,986 in the similar period in the previous year.

The A.M.A. has stressed the need of conserving not only gasoline but also rubber under wartime conditions. Curtailing of fuel targets for essential purposes has been advocated, as well as the sharing of car rides to effect savings in fuel consumption and wear on rubber tires.

For instance the gasoline sales for July last amounted to 1,870,028 gallons compared with 3,841,181 in the same month of 1941.

While conservation of gasoline has been brought about, due no doubt in large measure to regional rationing much has been accomplished on a voluntary basis and it is believed by motor club authorities that much more can be done along this line when there is a full realization of the national emergency, and heavy demands to supply Canada's war industries its growing army, navy and air forces.

YOU SLEPT WELL THAT NIGHT, DIDN'T YOU?

BUT GEORGE WAS AT DIEPPE!

NICE fellow, George—one of the lads from the office. Remember, you had him out for dinner one night. He made a great fuss over your kids—and your wife was very pleased. And then, all of a sudden, he slipped away and joined up. Left his good job, his girl and his future. And he was at Dieppe, slogging up the beach into a murderous rain of steel—fighting for you and your wife and those kids of yours he played with. And that same night you slept well, didn't you . . . in a soft bed. You had an egg for breakfast too. But George didn't. And you've still got a good job and you wear good clothes.

And being conscientious, you worry about these things a bit. But you just haven't been able to push yourself into doing much more than pay your taxes. Well, those taxes aren't enough. Think of what George gave up, and then sit down with your wife and ask yourselves, "What else can we do?" Sure, you've given up a few little luxuries. But there are lots of things yet that you can cut down on. Do it gladly. Because you'll really get a kick out of investing the money you save in Victory Bonds, and in knowing you're not letting George do it all.

Just keep thinking about George and what he gave up. And remember, those Victory Bonds you buy aren't giving—they're lending your country money to help protect you. That money will come back to you with interest.

Hail, Hail the gang's all here! Or they will be when some more of your favorite programs return to the air this week. Your old friends Fibber McGee and Molly are back in their Tuesday 7.30 p.m. spot, along with their Wistful Vista neighbors, with a streamlined show to suit 1942 tastes. Jim and Marian Jordan will again play the neighborhood blowhard and his sympathetic spouse; with Isabel Randolph as Mrs. Uppington. Bill Thompson as Wallace Wimple and the Oldtimer, and Gale Gordon as Mayor LaTrivia. Harlow Wilcox is announcer, with music by Billy Mills and his orchestra and the King's Men Quartet. The Jordans no longer play characters other than Fibber McGee and Molly, since they feel that every time they double a part, they take work away from a radio actor. The only exception to this is Molly's "little girl", whom fans will not let die.

"That Brewster Boy", the teen-age lad who is constantly getting himself and his family into hot water, is up to his pranks again. Sunday, Oct. 4th is the day Jack Benny and his radio gang return to the air after their usual summer vacation. Along with Benny will be Mary Livingston, Dennis Day, Don Wilson and probably Rochester (who is just finishing a picture in Hollywood) to add to the half-hour of fun and nonsense at 5 p.m.

When it comes to variety in popular music, you'll have to admit that the Kraft Music Hall supplies plenty of that, with Bing Crosby, Mary Martin and the Merry Macs. The gang at the Music Hall are out to bring you the hits of the day, as well as some of the hits of days gone by. It was the Merry Macs who introduced the popular "Jingle, Jangle, Jingle" in the air waves. On Tuesday evenings at 6.30 Eric Wild and L's 20-piece Blended Rhythm orchestra combine with Alan Young as M.C. to bring you a sparkling half-hour of mirth and melody. Eric's smooth melodic arrangements, and Alan's gay wit make a combination you're sure to like.

MODERN PIG MANAGEMENT

Recently I was able to visit a number of pool 5 farmers. I found that many wheat growers are not aware of the latest up-to-date labor-saving methods of pig feeding and management. Those who are handling pigs for the first time should therefore, I suggest, make special efforts to find out from their nearest Experimental Farm or University or Provincial Department of Agriculture, or from their District Agricultural representative, the methods of feeding and management that would best suit the nature of their individual farms and the feed they actually have on hand.

I am sure that many young pigs now being lost can be saved, that the quantity of grain now fed can be cut down, and that much labor now expended in hauling feed and water by hand can be avoided. Sows and litters require sunshine and exercise; growing pigs need sunshine and suitable feed, and above all lots of good clean water.

Following factors have tended to decrease supply or increase demand: Turkey and Greece have recently received grain from overseas — Crop yields in central and south-eastern Europe were below normal this year — Canada has agreed to ship Russia 9 million bushels of hard spring wheat and flour.

Following factors have tended to increase supply or decrease demand: Crop prospects in Canada and Australia are excellent—U.S. crop returns for winter and spring wheat are higher than for many years past — Crop yields in the United Kingdom and Western Europe this year were above yields of last year.

HARVEST LABOR AND THE INCOME TAX

Farmers who employ temporary help for harvest during the months September, October and November must file a statement with the Income Tax Inspector, but will not be required to deduct the tax from the pay or such employees.

The Department of National Revenue has recently ruled that farmers who engage temporary help for the months of Sept., Oct., and Nov. will not be called upon to deduct income tax from such employees when they pay the helpers. Persons employed for the harvest season generally are paid on a daily basis and do not earn enough to render them liable to the tax.

Farmers, however, will be obliged to file a statement with the Inspector of Income Tax for his district, giving the name and address of the employee and the amount paid.

BEEF CATTLE

Beef cattle situation in Alberta is "satisfactory" according to A. A. Campbell acting provincial livestock commissioner. Mr. Campbell was commenting on a report from Ottawa that consumer rationing is being considered to meet the acute beef shortage. He said fewer cattle were marketed in August and September because of poor rond conditions due to rain, because of harvest operations and because of an abundance of feed.

Census of beef cattle in Alberta showed 996,400 head for 1940 and 1,082,000 for 1941. Heavy marketings were expected when the harvest period was over, Mr. Campbell stated.

The British harvest is being rushed in order to start plowing for the 1943 crop, which, in view of the critical shipping position, may well be the most important crop in the country's history. The wheat area is being increased a further 600,000 acres, bringing the total to well over 2,000,000. With favorable conditions Britain may produce half of her total wheat requirements.

EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITIES OFFERED IN AIR FORCE

Both Men and Women Needed

CALGARY. — The Royal Canadian Air Force offers an excellent opportunity for young men who are anxious to serve as members of air-crew. Pre-enlistment schools have been established at various Western Canadian centres for those who lack educational qualifications. The thorough training which the students receive is coupled with a stress on the value of team work, and with a keenness for aviation—Canadian airmen are among the best.

Recruiting officers state that there is also a need for enlistments among skilled tradesmen, particularly engineers and firemen with first-class certificates.

A school for women who wish to become stenographers in the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) will open in Calgary at the Western Canada High school approximately Oct. 14, it was announced by Flight Lieutenant J. L. Pugh, Commanding Officer of No. 2 Recruiting Centre. The Air Force urgently requires enlistments in this branch—and every woman enlisting releases a man for aircrew or for heavier work.

Production for Peace

The common man has come to be here that the great miracles of production, brought about by the needs of war, should be utilized after the war is won to improve the lot of the people of all the world. Surely, the credit of the whole nation can be made available for the production of armaments, when peace comes so that needs can be met under the same terms that is to say without the necessity of profits and regardless of prices and competition. It is not going to be easy to convince the people that security and unemployment are essential parts of national life.

The Newest Technique

New York Surgeon Prefer The Chilling Method To Anaesthetic

A new type of shockless amputation—accomplished by chilling a leg or arm in a refrigerator rather than using a general anaesthetic—was described at Pittsburgh before the American Congress of Physical Therapy.

A portable refrigeration unit has been developed to produce the chill and the technique is suitable for use in soldier casualties, the congress was told.

Dr. Lyman Weeks Crossman, senior attending surgeon at New York City Hospital and Dr Frederick M. Allen of the New York Polyclinic Medical Hospital, developed the technique and Dr. Crossman described it in a prepared paper

The method was devised following experiments in which limbs were immersed in ice water or packed in ice.

With the mobile refrigeration unit, numbness may be produced more conveniently. The unit may be used simultaneously on two persons and may be operated by the electric generator of an automobile.

"It is important to emphasize that the tissues are not frozen" the surgeon said

The technique is equally valuable in cases of compound fractures and burns, he said, and has been tried and found satisfactory in army and navy hospitals

Describing the principle, he wrote: "Cold tissues cannot transmit impulses and cold tissues cannot respond with shock. . . The wounds heal better after refrigeration than after other means of operation."

Dr Crossman said that refrigeration, by minimizing infection and loss of blood, made it possible to amputate limbs lower than is necessary in other techniques.

High thigh operations at City Hospital in New York have become "practically obsolete" since experiments began, he said, and the mortality rate in gangrene cases has been reduced substantially.

Russian Woman Sniper

Had Cause For Anger When Her Fatherm Was Criticized

Lieut. Liudmila Pavlichenko, Russian woman sniper credited with killing 309 Nazis, declared that "it is plain to see that with American women what is important is whether they wear silk underwear under their uniforms."

She added grimly: "What the uniform stands for, they have yet to learn."

In an interview given Alice Hughes, radio commentator, at the Soviet consulate in New York, the lieutenant said that she had been amazed by "the silly questions asked me in America."

"One woman even criticised the length of the skirt of my uniform, saying that in America women wear shorter skirts and besides my uniform made me look fat," she added.

"This made me angry. I wear my uniform with honor. It has the Order of Lenin on it. It has been covered with blood in battle."

FAITH IN CHRIST AS OUR PERSONAL SAVIOUR

Golden text: Being therefore justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.—Romans 5:1.

Lesson: Acts 16.11-34; Romans 5:1-11; I John 5:1-5.

Devotional reading: Ephesians 1: 15-23.

Explanations and Comments

The First Person in Europe to Have Faith in Christ. Acts 16.13-15. When Paul felt called to go over into Macedonia and preach Christ, he sailed from Troas to the island of Samothrace and thence to Neapolis. A nine-mile trip inland on foot brought him to the city of Philippi. When the Sabbath came he went to the riverside expecting to find a place of prayer there (as was customary in places where there was no synagogue), and he was not disappointed. There he met a group of women, among them a prosperous merchant from Thyatira named Lydia who dealt in purple-dyed garments. Since it is said that she "worshiped God" she must have been a Jewish proselyte.

Paul gave his message about Christ and "the Lord opened her heart to give heed unto the things which were spoken by Paul." These words may well remind us of what is too often forgotten today, that religion begins in the passive voice, commences as Dr. Halford E. Luccock, "It is not first a matter of acting or doing, but of receiving. Religion begins in the passive voice and then, having freely received, freely gives. Lydia was the first Christian convert in Europe. She at once brought the missionaries to make her home theirs, and they gladly accepted her invitation. She was a capable businesswoman and a hospitable home owner, free-minded, and of a generous understanding and decision.

The Sin of Accepting Christ. Romans 5.1-5. Being justified by faith, that is having had our transgressions forgiven, cleansed by faith in Jesus Christ, we are at peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, "we have been admitted to God's favor and we rejoice in the hope of the glory of God, the future presence of God." We are able to rejoice in our tribulations, our troubles, knowing that tribulation leads to steadfastness; our steadfastness, proved, leads to hope; and hope, not being put to shame by being proved mistaken, is accompanied by a sense of God's love implanted by the Holy Spirit.

Corn Growing In Park

England's Historic Royal Park Now Meeting Nation's Wartime Needs

Windsor Great Park, England's historic Royal Park, has become a

By the King's command it has been given over to corn-growing, to meet the nation's war-time needs.

The Commissioners of Crown Lands may this year be able to claim from it the biggest single-field wheat harvest in the country.

The ancient oaks and beeches are now viewed from the castle tower standing deep in wheat; at its widest, the corn stretches a mile long and a mile across without a break.

The King's farm, two-thirds of which will soon be under arable crops, is now growing: 350 acres of wheat, 147 acres of oats and barley, root crops and clover.

G. H. Elsbury, a laborer on the Royal estates, is the only man who can remember previous arable cropping on the Norfolk Farm, which was one of the areas earmarked for farming by George III.

Mr. Elsbury has worked in the Great Park for 53 years.

The Castle kitchens help with work in the dairy farm; the famous pedigree herd of large white pigs has been reduced and the animals which remain are fed entirely on kitchen scraps.

The famous Windsor deer herd has also been reduced to have breeding necessity.—London Daily Sketch.

Will Fight Until Crushed

Former U.S. Ambassador To Tokyo Says Japs Will Not Crack

Describing Japan as far tougher than Germany, former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew told a rally luncheon at Syracuse, N.Y., that the Germans cracked in 1918 and they will crack again, but the Japanese will fight until they are utterly crushed.

Grew, an American diplomat in Berlin in 1917 and American ambassador in Tokyo in 1941, indicated he was profoundly shocked to hear people in the United States talk as if Germany in time will be defeated "and then we'll mop up the Japs."

He agreed with those who believe German morale will not survive a series of setbacks. But he added in a prepared speech which was broadcast:

"The Japanese will not crack. They will not crack morally or psychologically or economically, even when eventual defeat stares them in the face. . . Only by utter physical destruction or utter exhaustion of their men and materials can they be defeated."

"That," he said, "is the difference between the Germans and the Japanese. . .

"The Japanese have trained long and arduously for full-scale modern war. They have studied out, in detail a specialty of following the "impossible" route to their objective.

"The most important factor in Japanese victories is "the spirit which permeates all the armed forces of the empire."

Illustrating the fanatical uncompromising sternness of this spirit, Grew told how he once received from the Chinese government the name of a Japanese who had been taken prisoner in China and who wished to let his family in Japan know he was alive and well. The government in Tokyo replied: "So far as the government was concerned, and also so far as his own family was concerned, that man was officially dead . . . The matter was apparently to be captured has disgraced himself and his country."

Saves Shipping Space

Milk Being Shipped To Britain In Empty Shell Cases

Milk from Canada is now shipped to Great Britain in empty shell cases. One firm alone has thus exported 180,000 cases of milk out of a total order of 650,000 cases ordered in Canada. The plan originated in a Canadian brass-cartridge plant. There it was discovered that two cases of milk could be placed in one case. From this one plant 2,000 quarts of milk a month are thus sent abroad for British children and much shipping space saved. A large blue "M" on the box indicates that the box contains shells loaded with milk—News, Toronto.

CHAPTER V.

Rankled at the heroic rebound that England had made after Dunkirk, the German radio stations were blasting away at all hours with a campaign of defeatism. The biggest air force in the world's history was about to let loose all its fury on Britain and the propaganda coming invisibly through the sky was designed to soften the recipients. That it utterly failed to achieve such a goal puzzled and angered the senders.

The concrete shelter that had been completed, by summer's end, in the Miniver garden, contained bookshelves, a portable radio, cots for Toby and Jody, even a pillow for Napoleon, whose fallen eyes peered out disturbingly in the blackness.

The old village had never looked lovelier. Clem thought, as he came out to join Kay and the children. The three-quarters moon, such a deadly invitation to bombers, lighted up the ready banks of the river, the undulating landscape, the vine-covered, gabled houses, and the proud steeple of the old Norman church.

A distant roar, like the sweep of waters in some far-off valley, came to Clem's ears. The horizon began to be pencilled with searchlights that swung back and forth in eerie oscillation, while the barking of guns provided a suggestive undertone.

"They're coming in from the southwest again," said Clem, as he reached the doorway of the shelter, and put his arm around his wife.

"I wonder why they came such a long way around?" asked Mrs. Miniver

"It's easier to fly against the moon," said Clem. He looked up at the speckled sky and added: "I don't hear any bombs yet."

"Maybe they're keeping them for our poor old London here," said Mrs. Miniver wryly

As they closed the door of the shelter Clem drew a heavy dark curtain across the passage to keep out light. Descending the rather crude steps to the lower level, Clem turned to Toby who was moving restlessly in his bunk.

"He's better," said Mrs Miniver. "Both of them are. No temperature, and the swelling's gone down." She sat down at the little pine table and drew over a note-pad. "Did you ever have mumps, Clem"

Clem nodded. "I enjoyed 'em," he answered. "Stayed out of school."

Casualness was a defense against the nerve havoc with which the country was faced, but it was hard to keep it up without intermission. As Clem filled his pipe, his wife drew close to him and said: "I'm so grateful Vin and Carol could be away for this little bit."

Clem nodded "Wish they could stay in Scotland longer," he said. "London is certainly no place for a honeymoon." He picked up the copy of "Alice in Wonderland" that his wife had been reading to the children "It's a lovely book," he commented. First story I ever read. I wonder if Lewis Carroll ever dreamed it would live forever."

The barrage was growing in violence. The dull thuds of falling bombs came plainly to them now, and with increasing proximity. Mrs. Miniver began to recite from memory some of the well-loved concluding lines from the book: "How she would keep, through all her riper years, the simple and loving heart of her childhood," she said softly. "How she would gather about her other little children, and make their eyes bright with the dream of Wonderland of long ago"

There was a sudden, explosive crash. The children started from their sleep Mrs Miniver moved over to reassure Toby, and Clem took Judy in his arms.

"Is Napoleon scared, Daddy?" asked Toby

"No he's aren't," said Clem "He's gone to sleep

Another sharp crash brought cries from the children.

"There that's all right," said Clem. "It will soon be over. No one's going to bother about a lonely little house like ours."

Suddenly with brutal impact, roar after roar resounded about them. The shelter seemed to quake; cannon shots broke down. A frightful and all-encompassing explosion seemed to engulf everything, as the tiny light inside was extinguished.

The crescendo of murder tapered off. An indefinite number of minutes passed. The children's panic subsided.

Toby lifted his tear-stained face from his mother's shoulder. "They nearly killed us this time, didn't they?" he asked.

His mother pressed his small trembling form closer. "It's all over, darling," she whispered.

When Vin walked off the train the next day with Carol, the Minivers were smiling, calm and near-eyed, at the station with Lady Beldon at their side.

"The children got anywhere near here last night?" asked Vin.

"The nearest one caught it again," said Clem in an offhand manner. "Matter of fact, a few small bombs fell pretty near the house."

Vin looked at his mother questioningly. "Nothing to worry about, dear," she said quickly. "We were in the shelter."

When the party had reached the Miniver home, understatement could no longer be employed. One wing was completely demolished, the chimneys toppled, plaster everywhere, all the windows gone, the front door shattered across the threshold.

"We'll have it right in no time," said Clem. They're fixing the windows this afternoon."

Mrs. Miniver took the homecoming couple by their hands and led them upstairs, pausing at the head.

"It's your old room, dear," she told Vin. "We refurnished it as a wedding present."

Aside from "we bits of plaster, glass, and broken vases the room had escaped the general onslaught. It had been decorated with taste and care.

"Thanks for the lovely room—and thanks for Vin," said Carol to Mrs. Miniver, when the two men had left. "He is nice, isn't he? rejoined Mrs. Miniver.

"I wonder if you know how much I love him,' went on Carol, taking the older woman's hand.

"I've only to look at you both," smiled Mrs Miniver. "You're happy, aren't you?"

"Of course," replied Carol. "I've had a lifetime of happiness in these two weeks." She stepped to the window and looked over the century-old roofs, the gleaming river

Mrs Miniver caught a shade of expression on the girl's face that seemed to clutch at something in her own heart "That Carol," she said hurriedly, "it's only the beginning."

Carol turned sharply around. "Kay," she said, "I'm not afraid to face the truth—are you?"

"No," said Mrs Miniver in a taut voice

"I love him," went on Carol passionately, "but I know that I may lose him. He is young and he loves life. But no matter what happens to him I'll feel better if I say it aloud. He may be killed—any day—any hour. You must have faced that in your own mind."

Mrs Miniver nodded her head. She had thought of little else these past months . . . that and Clem . . . and what might happen to the youngsters with the bombing.

"Then you know that every moment is precious," went on Carol. "We mustn't waste time in fear." Her voice was vibrant. She sat down beside Mrs. Miniver and put her hand on her arm. "Kay, you won't hate me for saying this—"

"No, Carol, no," said Mrs. Miniver, thinking she had never seen anyone look so beautiful.

"I will be very happy," said Carol fervently. "Every moment that I have him. Every moment. And if I lose him—there'll be time enough for tears. There'll be a lifetime for tears, afterwards. . . That's right, isn't it?"

Mrs. Miniver nodded her head, and clasped her arms about the girl.

Curious Legacy

Equal Pay For Equal Work Has Come At Last

It is surely a curious legacy from our past that the National War Labor Board has to instruct regional boards that there must be "equal pay for equal work," this to meet the case of women in war industries. Because if a woman worker performs the same task as a man worker, performs it as quickly and as well what reason on earth would justify her getting less pay than the man?

Yet, apparently, a contrary view prevails. Despite all that has come to the world men still look upon themselves as the "brawn winners" and look upon women as the "weaker sex" and retain in the back of their minds ideas that were implanted there in the dim ages and current right down to the comparatively recent times when wives were "chattels". That is the idea that dies hard, it dies nevertheless. That it will be buried pretty much without trace by the time this war is over we have no doubt at all.—Ottawa Journal.

Many Accidents

Much Time Is Lost Because Of Strikes And Accidents

Accidents in Canada last year likely caused sufficient loss of time to construct 700 medium-sized bombers, R. G. Pierce, general manager of the Toronto Safety League, told a service club luncheon at Toronto.

"During 1941, there were 275 strikes, causing the loss of 330,000 man-days of work throughout Canada—enough to build 60 medium-sized bombers," he said

"Comprising the loss of time from accidents is the loss of time because of strikes. It seems remarkable that we generate so little enthusiasm for the prevention of accidents

His Idea Worked

Glasgow Scientist Solved Problem Of Singing Propeller in One Night

The singing telegraph boy has gone. The singing propeller has gone too

The singing propeller was one of the worst enemies of shipping during the war. It probably cost many ships and lives. But just as British scientists solved the menace of the magnetic mine by a special steel cable around the ships which demagnetized the hulls, a Glasgow scientist solved the problem of the singing propeller in a single night. No doubt that is one reason why the U-boat sinkings have decreased during the past few months

The propellers of modern ships are made of fine bronze, like the metal used in cathedral bells The propellers are of fine design but this fine finish gave them a singing tone As they churned their way across the ocean they either made a continuous sound or emitted a note with every revolution

That was grand for the U-boats with their sound-detecting apparatus It was as easy as getting a signal from a ship itself When the first of the 10,000-to-a-ships built in American shipyards arrived at a British port, the authorities were dismayed to find that they were fitted with the fine bronze "singing" propellers. One of these ships arrived at Glasgow where Professor William Kerr, of Glasgow Royal Technical College, had been working on this problem He had a good idea what to do As soon as the ship docked her propeller was unshipped and Professor Kerr was called in He checked the design of the blades and examined the finished product Then he withdrew to work while the ship was unloaded. He worked through the day and night and in the morning he gave instructions. Then came another day and night drive while the propeller was reshaped. When Professor Kerr passed it the propeller was refitted and ship proceeded to the crucial test at all speeds on a selected stretch of the Clyde.

"Not the purr of a cat" was the verdict Only then did the listening engineers grasp what had been done to eliminate it At long last the problem of the singing propeller was solved

Professor Kerr's instructions were cabled across the Atlantic Later, fuller details and drawings were flown over, and the remedy applied to all vessels then available and building

And once again Jerry was thwarted. St Thomas Times-Journal

RATIONING BOARD NOW LOCATED HERE

Manned by Vermilion Workers

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board has established Vermilion as the location for a local rationing board with Mayor J.W.G. Morrison, K.C. as chairman. Mr. Chas. W. Robinson has accepted the office of secretary to the committee which will be set up to carry out the regulations of the Board. The district under the jurisdiction of the Committee comprises that portion of the Battle River Federal riding extending from the Battle River on the south to the North Saskatchewan River on the north and from the west side of Range 9 east to the Saskatchewan border. The board will consist of the Chairman, Secretary, and from four to eight other members and will work in cooperation with W. S. Campbell, regional officer of prices and supplies at Edmonton and R. M. Montague, regional superintendent of rationing, Edmonton. The board will maintain an office which will be available to the public. As soon as the Board is established a Ration officer from Ottawa will come to Vermilion and dis cuss final arrangements and set-up of the local board.

The general policy will be to assign to the Local Ration Boards all problems which can best be dealt with by representative citizens of the community in which they arise. Under any rationing system, cases inevitably occur in which applications for goods must be made on the grounds of special necessity or essentiality. In such cases, it is obviously desirable to submit the applications to the judgment of responsible persons who have an intimate knowledge of the community. It is intended that functions will be assigned to the local Ration Boards as problems of this type arise.

WILL SEND XMAS PARCELS TO BOYS OVERSEAS

Plans Now Being Made—100 p.c. Co-operation Needed

The Red Cross, the Elks and the Canadian Legion are now making plans for sending Christmas parcels overseas to the boys from this area. This calls for the utmost in co-operation from the people of the whole district as the number we now have overseas must be well over 100. Last year a parcel and 200 cigarettes were sent to each man. In all there were 70 men who received these.

Names are needed of the men who have gone overseas or have not Norway, and also the change of address, if any, of the boys over there. The address must be correct as the postal authorities and the tobacco companies do not accept any incorrect ones as this results in delays and very often the loss of the parcel to the recipient.

Now is the time, please do not wait only so three weeks when it may be too late to get the parcels there in time for Xmas. Send that name or change of address in WRITING to Tom Watts at the Northern Hardware, Vermilion

ACTION NEEDED IN SALVATION ARMY HOME FRONT DRIVE

Receipts Are Disappointing

Receipts up to the present are very disappointing to the Salvation Army Home Front campaign. So far only approximately $150 has been reported from the Vermilion district and in the line of action is needed if the full quota of $400 is to be raised. The committee is appealing to everyone to get behind this worthwhile project and show the outlying towns and villages that we can hold up our own end.

The one bright spot so far in the campaign has been efficiently headed by Miss Lillian Armishaw who turned in this week the sum of $84.75 cash and pledges to make this up to over $6 dollars with more still coming. The young lady deserves a lot of praise for her efforts and the committee offer their sincere thanks for a job well done.

Remember Sally Ann deserves your support. They carry on a very worth while work and do not overlap other organizations. Please do not wait to be approached — give now and give generously.

AN APPEAL TO THE CITIZENS OF VERMILION

At the request of the Officer Commanding Military District 13, the Committee appointed to co-operate with the officers of the C. W. A. C. Training Centre at Vermilion, has agreed to sponsor the proposal to establish a rest and recreation Hut in Vermilion, to be located in the building formerly used as an Armory. The necessary changes to the interior of the building will be undertaken at once by the Army authorities, who will also be responsible for light, heating and janitor service.

The local committee will be responsible for the provision of the necessary furnishings and the oversight of the Hut

The committee confidently expects that material assistance will be forth coming from the Canadian War Services Fund, but in order that there may be no delay in getting the Hut into operation, appeal to the citizens of Vermilion, for personal contributions from those who are interested to loan, or give such furniture or furnishings as they may be able to spare for use in the Hut.

Offers of this sort may be telephoned to any member of the committee, W. Leversedge J.W.G. Morrison, A. G. Kaiser, Mrs. R. H. Norton, Mrs. Clifford or Mrs. H. Scott. Arrangements will be made, where necessary, to collect such gifts at a later date

The committee will also gladly receive any financial assistance for the same purpose, and will give a proper accounting of all such sums.

Come on Vermilion, let's put this scheme over the TOP!

The Victory Loan

CANADA'S forthcoming Victory Loan has an objective of $750,000,000. This is the largest sum yet sought in a drive of this kind, and it comes as a challenge which we must meet successfully. To give financial support to the war effort we are all doing without many of the luxuries to which we are accustomed in time of peace. We are asked now to deny ourselves still further and to lend our money to the government to the fullest possible extent. It is only in this way that the loan can be the success which every Canadian wants it to be. Because of the war, we find we must deny ourselves to many ways, but we have not yet had to give up our freedom. When we compare our lot with that of the people in the occupied countries, we know that our freedom is worth much more than we here in Canada have yet been asked to pay.

* * * * *

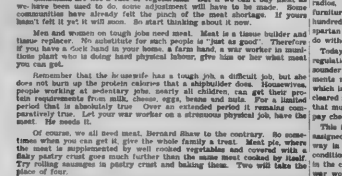
Pay With Their Lives

The men in our armed forces are willing to pay for freedom with their lives, and many of them have done so already. They have left their work and their homes to go out and fight for us. Our sailors and airmen, in their hazardous undertakings, and our soldiers who stormed Dieppe, are not complaining of the many hardships they must endure. They are anxious to bring the war to a successful end, and they are putting other things aside until that is accomplished. Because of them we in Canada are able to carry on our duties free from fear of attack and it is not unreasonable that we be asked to contribute generously to this victory loan. When it is fully subscribed, it will serve as an assurance to those in the services, that the people at home are fully supporting them in their magnificent work.

* * * * *

Need is Increased

Mr. G. W. Spinney, chairman of the National War Finance Committee, which organizes the loan campaigns, said: "The challenge and the opportunity presented to the Canadian people at this time in the form of the third victory loan may well prove to be a matter of consequence in the winning of the war. Canadian people have responded with alacrity in the past when the need was pointed out. That need now is increased to the degree that every thought, every effort and every penny must be devoted to ensuring the success of the forthcoming loan." All the loans launched by the government during the war have been oversubscribed and Canadians have shown themselves eager to help in this way. The present loan is the largest yet undertaken, the first and second victory loans having had as their objective $600,000,000. As these were oversubscribed, so will we pour our resources into this one as a proof of our faith in the principles for which we are fighting.



Canadians are not a race of vegetarians. But if we can't buy meat as we have been used to do, some adjustment will have to be made. Some communities have already felt the pinch of the meat shortage. If yours hasn't felt it yet it will soon. So start thinking about it now.

Men and women on tough jobs need meat. Meat is a tissue builder and tissue replacer. No substitute for such people is "just as good." Therefore if you have a fork hard in your home, a farm hand, a war worker in munition plant who is doing hard physical labour, give him or her what meat you can get.

Remember that the housewife has a tough job, a difficult job, but she does not burn up the protein calories that a shipbuilder does. Housewives, people working at sedentary jobs, nearly all children can get their protein requirements from milk, cheese, eggs, beans and nuts. For a limited period that is absolutely true. Over an extended period it remains comparatively true. Let your war worker on a strenuous physical job, have the meat. He needs it.

Of course, we all need meat. Bernard Shaw to the contrary. So sometimes when you can get it, give the whole family a treat. Meat pie, where the meat is supplemented by well cooked vegetables and covered with a flaky pastry crust goes much further than the same meat cooked by itself. Try rolling sausages in pastry crust and baking them. Two will take the place of four.

And here's a tip . . . we're shipping hams and bacon to Great Britain who needs them desperately. Did you know that that leaves us with a tremendous surplus of pork liver and kidney? So, instead of ordering a liver why not make a pork kidney pie. It is actually much more nutritious than the ham you can't have.

And here's a recipe for liver loaf that your family will like even if they think they can't eat liver.

LIVER LOAF

1 lb pork liver	¼ cup tomato juice or vegetable juice
2 cups bread crumbs	1 teaspoon salt
1 medium onion

Put liver through the meat grinder. Add bread crumbs, onion, tomato and salt. Put in greased baking dish and place in pan containing warm water. Bake slowly 50 to 60 minutes.

Popular Program

Bill Hay, Announcer Of Amos 'N' Andy, Now Reads The Bible

It all started as a summer "filler" for Amos 'n' Andy 'way back in 1928, but today the radio program "Bill Hay Reads The Bible" gives promise of carrying him to even greater popularity than he enjoyed in the past.

Bill Hay had been Amos 'n' Andy's announcer ever since they started on the air as Sam and Henry in 1925. During the blackfaced pair's only vacation in 1928, Bill Hay filled in by reading from the Bible. It was so popular that he continued to read from the good book" for seven years. Then in 1935 Amos 'n' Andy's sponsor forbade anyone on the program from being identified with any other show. So Bill discontinued his reading.

Up until early this year, Bill had been receiving fan mail with most pleas stating, "I hope you'll begin reading the Bible again, Mr. Hay." When Bill was relieved of his Amos 'n' Andy chore early this year he returned to reading the Bible for his radio friends over the Mutual Broadcasting System's coast-to-coast network and the mail is pouring in once again.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Not very much has appeared in these columns about the Army Pay Corps which organization, of course, performs one of the most important functions in the Individual Citizen's Army; and in this case when I say individual citizen's army I mean the army of fighting Canadians of all ages who probably bear the word "Canada" on their shoulders.

The charge is sometimes levelled that the headquarters organizations fight "a paper war". The little consideration is given to the inescapable documentation that must be done in order that men may be enlisted, equipped, outfitted, fed, housed, paid, transported and supplied once they reach the front.

Too often we take it entirely for granted that a man's pay will reach him no matter on what front he serves; that his assigned pay, separation allowance and dependents' allowance will be paid regularly regardless of how often the family moves or how often he moves.

It must be remembered too, that that other individual Citizen's Army, taxpayers like you and me, are entitled to get an accounting of all the moneys that are spent for us by our government.

Today there are hundreds of thousands of Johnny Canucks in khaki each getting his $1.30 a day—or more according to their rank—and the translation of these individual sums into Battalions, Brigades, Divisions, Army Corps and Armies, calls for the most exacting and meticulous system that might well be expected to stagger even a civilian merchant prince.

That, very briefly, is a sketch of some of the work of the Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps. It is not by any means the full picture—there are such things for instance as advances of pay to men going on leave, deductions to be made from pay for carelessly lost or mislaid equipment, stoppages of pay occasioned by necessary punishment and the provision of monetary allowances in lieu of rations and quarters, when a soldier is detailed to a job of work which doesn't permit him to live in barracks.

None of this can be done without "a paper war" and most of it is done by men who would be much more highly paid doing the same type of work in their peacetime occupations.

Amongst the list of items to be attended to by the Pay Corps, you will remember—I listed "assigned pay". Every married man must, and every single man is encouraged to, assign a proportion of his pay to his wife or his next-of-kin. Fathers and mothers of improvident youngsters will thoroughly appreciate the wisdom of such a regulation—in fact most of them have tried to do the same thing with varying degrees of success.

It would be well for all of us to practice a similar regulation upon ourselves, and right now, through the regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, we are actually beginning to practice as sensible a system of economics as that imposed upon the soldiers who defend us on the far-flung frontiers of the fight for civilization.

In the lush years we cheerfully mortgaged our pay, sometimes for months and years in advance, to pamper ourselves with such luxuries as automobiles, washing machines, radios, pianos, chesterfield suites, furniture for our bedrooms and a hundred other things that in a more spartan existence we can very well do without or simplify.

Today under the consumer credit regulations such mortgaging is on a sounder economic basis, down payments must be greater, the balance which is paid by instalments must be cleared more quickly—with the result that much more of the money in our pay cheques is our own.

This is just another form of the assigned pay of the soldier and is one way in which by appreciating his conditions we may feel closer to him in the carrying on of our own job of war work which is to support in every possible way the man in uniform.

A few days ago in Montreal there was an excellent example of the civilian equivalent of "paper work" when three firms engaged in the business of selling goods on the instalment plan were convicted of violations of the consumer credit regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Each was fined sums ranging from $300 down to $100 plus the payment of costs—sums not great enough to hurt the pocketbook of the accused firms, but none the less a deduction of their pay which formed part of the greater punishment afforded by the publicity that was given to their violation of rules that have been established for the benefit of the whole of Canada.

As time goes on there is little doubt that the fight against inflation both present and post-war will put those of us who serve in the Individual Citizen's Army on the home front much closer to parity with the soldiers in battle-dress. Let's hope we can serve as cheerfully as they do, regardless of what our "pay corps" is compelled to do to us.

Lady Baden-Powell Wants Girl Guides To Increase War Work

Lady Baden-Powell, co-founder and world chief of the Girl Guides, has returned to London from Kenya for the duration of the war.

"I came home because I felt I must be in England in the centre of activity," she said. "I do not mind danger—in fact I like it. My idea is to urge the Girl Guides in this country to do even more wonderful work than they are doing now."

Lady Baden-Powell wore her Girl Guide uniform and medal ribbons, including the C.B.E. and the White Rose of Finland.

Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movement, died in his eighty-third year in Kenya, East Africa, Jan. 8, 1941, and was buried there. Lady Baden-Powell has resided there since.

Taking Moose's Head

Canadian Air Squadron Solves Problem For Executors Of Estate

One of Whitehall's biggest ornaments is to be moved. It is a moose's head, weighing. The Rally says, half a ton, and carrying a six foot span of antlers. It belonged to the late Dr. K. Lightstone, a Canadian, who was formerly Director General of the British Ministry of Pensions Medical Services, and for years occupied a considerable part of his room. Recently a Canadian air squadron decided they must have a moose head for their headquarters. They advertised: got in touch with Dr. Lightstone's executors, and are now relieving the Ministry of what had become a very large white elephant.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

PRIDE

Pride, the most dangerous of all faults, proceeds from want of sense, or want of thought.—Dilton.

* * *

Pride is to the character, like the attic to the house—the highest part, and generally the most empty.—John Gay.

* * *

Pride is seldom delicate; it will please itself with very mean advantages.—Samuel Johnson.

* * *

Pride is ignorance; those assume most who have the least wisdom or experience; and they steal from their neighbor, because they have so little of their own.—Mary Baker Eddy.

* * *

Men are sometimes accused of pride merely because their accusers would be proud themselves if they were in their places.—Shenstone.

* * *

If a man has a right to be proud of anything, it is of a good action done as it ought to be, without any base interest lurking at the bottom of it.—Sterne.

Canada's Short Wave Station To Cover The World

Ottawa.—The plain, unvarnished truth in the form of news will be the strong right arm of Canada's propaganda service when her new short wave station to carry her voice to the far corners of the world is opened in about a year's time, it was learned here.

Two veterans of Canadian broadcasting, men who have watched the development of radio services in the Dominion and compared them with those of other nations, will be guiding forces in construction and the work of the station which will rise at Sackville, N.B.

Following announcement by War Services Minister Thorson that the station would be built at a cost of $800,000, it was learned that technical matters concerned with construction and operation would be the responsibility of Dr. Augustin Frigon, assistant general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

An announcement dealing with the duties of CBC officials said that Gladstone Murray, general manager and who will be director-general of broadcasting after Nov. 2, will be required, among other duties, to "pay special attention to the programs of the high-powered short wave stations and to the arrangements for their world-wide distribution."

Programs will be developed in consultation with the external affairs department, which means that Norman Robertson, under-secretary of state for this department, will have an important part in decisions to be made.

Services of writers and others within the wartime information board organization, headed by Charles Vining, are expected to be available for short-wave broadcasts. The information board recently took over the public information bureau.

Officials recalled that the short wave station has been approved by CBC officials for several years.

In a report to Mr. Thorson late last year, Dr. Frigon said the cost of supplying programs to short-wave stations with international coverage was difficult to estimate as they depended on the policy followed and what it was hoped to accomplish.

"It may be expected, however, that the service will be largely built around a framework of news both international and domestic," Dr. Frigon said.

"This means that news broadcasting rights will have to be secured."

It was understood that this view still is supported by government authorities who have learned of the effectiveness of the concise, truthful news broadcasts sent throughout the world by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The short-wave station will have two 50-kilowatt transmitters with three directional antennae, and it is believed this power would be sufficient to cover most of the world. One could be directed to the United Kingdom and Europe another to South America and the West Indies and the third to the northwest territories, Japan and China.

There will be careful timing so that broadcasts in the appropriate languages will be directed to various countries at the hours when the listening audience is likely to be at its best.

In directing broadcasts with a particular message to various countries, Canada will be able to draw on scholars, soldiers, scientists and statesmen from countries now overrun by the enemy and who have made their homes in Canada. It was understood that volunteers prepared to participate in such programs have already made their appearance. Even enemy countries may expect to hear from Canada the voice of men known as leaders in their home lands before the war.

Officials said that while an admitted purpose of the station was self defence and counter-attack against the flow of German and Italian short-wave propaganda directed at Canada, it might be that the use of Canadian resources to "jam" enemy broadcasts would never be required.

PASS EXAMINATIONS

Ottawa. The number of Canadians who passed St. John Ambulance Association examinations up to June 30 this year was nearly double the total for any full pre-war year, the ambulance committee of the association reported. The committee is under chairmanship of Dr. H. A. Bruce of Toronto.

VICTORY PRODUCE

Plan For Farmers To Share In The Victory Loan

Ottawa.—The national war finance committee, preparing for the third Victory Loan campaign opening Oct. 19,*described a "produce for victory" plan under which Canadian farmers will be able, through a pledge, to divert to the loan part of the proceeds from farm products when such products are sold.

"Under the new plan, farmers will be able to take up their share in the loan without jeopardizing their working capital or the reserves necessary to enable them to meet emergencies," the war finance committee said in a statement.

The regular Victory Bond sales organization will obtain signed victory tickets from the farmers, authorizing any buyer to whom he may sell his farm produce to deduct a percentage of the sales price of that produce and forward it to the national war finance committee's provincial headquarters.

The farmer will receive from the national war finance committee the equivalent value in Victory Loan bonds.

The plan is open to every member of the farmer's family. The boy can promise a share in his club calves or pigs; the daughter a portion of her poultry, duck or garden. Mother can sign a victory ticket for a proportion of her poultry, egg or cream cheque, all to be redeemed as these products are ready for market.

Aliens Serving In Canada's Armed Forces

Ottawa.—Aliens serving in Canada's armed forces in the future may become Canadian citizens at the discretion of the secretary of state without waiting the required five years, an external affairs spokesman announced at a press conference.

An order-in-council has been passed under the War Measures Act relaxing the naturalization laws for the benefit of all who enlisted in Canada's armed forces and have gone overseas. It will not apply to aliens who are serving in Canada.

Under the Naturalization Act, no person can obtain naturalization until they have lived in Canada five years. They have to apply to the courts and a judge passes on their eligibility, after which the secretary of state has discretion as to whether he will permit them to become citizens of this country.

The new order-in-council will provide a short cut. Aliens in the overseas forces will apply to the secretary of state for information papers and the ministry may grant their request if he sees fit—regardless of how long they have lived in this country.

The step is an appreciation to the aliens who have joined Canada's fighting forces, officials said, however, that the machinery for granting this privilege has yet to be set up. The aliens must wait a few weeks at least before their applications can be handled.

Cuttack, India. Twenty five persons were killed when police fired on a mob attempting to raid a police station at Erum.

HITLER'S SPEECH

Tries To Make Germans People Think That All Is Satisfactory

London.—British sources and others familiar with Germany interpreted Hitler's speech as an apparent effort to assure both his troops and people that every phase of the war is satisfactory.

Briton's noted with interest that the loudest cheering greeted Hitler's promise of an hour to come when the German air force would retaliate for the R.A.F. bombings of Germany.

They declared this was an unmistakable tribute to the efficacy of large-scale attacks on German cities.

Significance also was seen in the assertion of Grobbels that "American hates Nazi Germany from the bottom of her heart" and that whatever reserve strength the United States possessed "must soon run out."

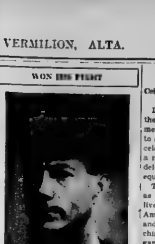
Such a statement hardly would have been necessary, these sources declared, unless the forthcoming role of the United States in shifting the balance of power to the Allies had made a considerable impression or German morale.

Qualified quarters were impressed by the fact Hitler avoided the once-familiar forecasts of the early and complete destruction of the Russian armies and instead was content to tell the people this year's military objectives had been achieved and occupied territories in eastern Europe soon would be in positions to pour food and other materials into their laps.

GESTAPO OFFICIAL KILLED

London.—A Reuters despatch datelined "From the German frontier," said that Alois Gruber, high ranking Gestapo official, was reported from Prague to have been killed leave while "fighting the enemies of the reich in the protectorate."

London.—Six overall coal operations are working in the Canadian National Railway car shops. Plant officials said they had been unable to get men to fill the jobs. The women have taken over light work in the shops.



Commander of H.M.C.S. Assiniboine in her close range battle with a German submarine, ended when the warship rammed and sank the U-boat, was Lieut.-Com. J. H. Stubbs of Kaslo, B.C., shown here.

WAR CONTRACTS

Placing Of Contracts On Prairies Has Improved

Edmonton.—Placing of federal contracts in the prairie provinces has improved in the past two months, G. E. Carpenter of Winnipeg, secretary of the prairie division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said in an interview here.

Mr Carpenter said he had been keeping in close touch with Ottawa and could say that the department of munitions and supply was doing its best to send war orders to the west.

WHEAT IN STORAGE

Ottawa Canadian wheat in store for the week ended Sept. 24 totalled 456,917,140 bushels compared with 406,219,198 bushels Sept. 17 and 474,228,511 bushels Sept. 24, 1941, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

Labrador is the point on the mainland of North America which is nearest to Europe.

FERRY POOL

Celebrates Third Anniversary With Amazing Record

London.—Air Transport Auxiliary, the vast pool of civilian air and women who ferry aircraft from factory to airfield half-way around the world, celebrated its third anniversary with a record of more than 100,000 planes delivered and 225,000 hours flown, equivalent to 20,000,000 miles.

The A.T.A. unofficially designated "the Attagirls" has delivered aircraft to and from North America, Africa, the Middle East and Malta. About 117 types of machines have been handled by the organization, from the smallest trainer to the greatest bomber. A quarter of the pilots are qualified to fly them all.

Women pilots from a tenth of the total and many are capable of flying fighters and twin-motor bombers.

Almost 100 of the company including some women, have lost their lives.

The total of 100,000 in the course of three years represents an average of more than 100 aircraft for every working day. On that reckoning the daily traffic of A.T.A. has been the equivalent of many a channel sweep.

During the critical times in France the day's work of certain ferry pilots involved much danger, for they were delivering machines in the front line and some of them got out of the air-dromes only just in time to avoid capture.

One-Third Of Convoy Work By Canadian Navy

Ottawa.—Ships of the Royal Canadian Navy "this summer" have sunk four enemy U-boats, probably sunk two others, and taken part in "many other promising attacks," Navy Minister Macdonald told a press conference.

The four submarines known to have been sunk include the one destroyed by the Canadian destroyer Assiniboine in a night-and-day attack described a little over a week ago in a lengthy press release from naval headquarters.

The minister also said

The Royal Canadian Navy now has a strength of nearly 500 ships and about 48,000 men, including 1,100 officers and men serving with the Royal Navy.

The recent sinkings by enemy action of the patrol vessel Raccoon and the corvette Charlottetown occurred in the Gulf of St Lawrence.

There has been no confirmation of rumors that submarine parties have made a landing anywhere on the Canadian coast.

One-third of the convoy work between Canada and Europe is being done by the Royal Canadian Navy.

"The summer in the Royal Canadian Navy has sunk four U-boats, two are probably sunk and there have been many other promising attacks," said Mr Macdonald.

He gave no details of the sinkings except to say that they took place "somewhere in the western Atlantic."

Mr Macdonald said the Canadian Navy is doing a splendid job in escorting and capturing enemy U-boats.

Ordinarily, German ships are not armed with guns in order to keep them from the enemy's hand.

Every Canadian Must Be Used For War Effort

Beginning Club, Que. Warning of increasing "inconvenience, discomfort and hardship," Elliott M. Little, director of national selective service, said in an address prepared for delivery to the annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

"There has been an excessive amount of absenteeism on the part of many workers, he added, calling upon them to help solve these problems themselves through failure to realize what effect their absence from a war job may have on the outcome of this war.

National selective service was the machinery through which Canada proposed to organize all the people in the country for one purpose that of total war, Mr Little said. And total war means that all the people not just a few must be pitted against the emergency."

Stressing the growing acuteness of Canada's manpower situation, he estimated Canadian industry could usefully absorb at this moment an additional 100,000 workers. National selective service offices throughout the country had received applications for that many workers which they were unable to provide.

The national selective service director listed Canada's manpower needs in particular industries

At Sudbury, Ont., he said, a blast furnace, producing copper and nickel, had been forced to close down because of lack of men.

The coal mining industry was producing less coal than Canada is using and considerably less than the expected demand. We are actually living on our coal storage reserves," Mr Little warned.

Production of plane spruce in B.C. was "considerably below requirements" due to lack of men.

The base metal mines, producing copper vital to the war effort, are undermanned, with tonnage in some instances down to half of what it was two years ago.

Steel plants in the Niagara peninsula of Ontario are below potential production due to shortage of men.

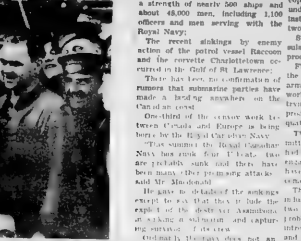
Finally—four farmers, producing food without which neither our armed forces nor our munitions workers could continue are doggedly trying to maintain and even expand production with far less than adequate help.

These conditions could not be permitted to continue long, he declared, and hundreds of thousands of people engaged in jobs or industries which have little or no relation to the pursuit of the war.

Thus curtailment of less essential production would necessarily run counter to the other methods of solving the problem were being employed the introduction of women into war work and increased efficiency on the part of present essential industries.

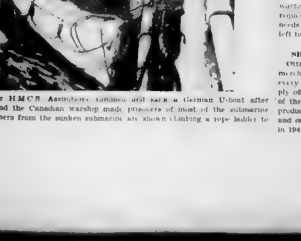
More and more people will be interconscripted through the dislocation occasioned by this war. There will be no exemption. Some will be hurt more than others. There cannot be equal sacrifice or hardship in wartime, Mr Little said.

Canterbury Meets The Royal Navy



The Archbishop of Canterbury, highest ranking prelate of the Church of England, is shown among some of the sailors he met during his visit to the battle wagons recently. During his visit the archbishop held a service aboard H.M.S. King George V.

H.M.C.S. Assiniboine Rams And Sinks Submarine



In a stirring sea action fought in an unspecified area the Canadian destroyer H.M.C.S. Assiniboine rammed and sank a German U-boat after a gun battle at close range. Only one man of the Assiniboine's crew was lost and the Canadian warship made prisoners of most of the submarine crew. The sturdy Canuck warship is shown at left, and at right, German prisoners from the sunken submarine are shown climbing a rope ladder to safety and imprisonment on the destroyer.

REPORT OF MASSACRE

Claims 25,000 Russians Were Slain In Odessa

Moscow. The Soviet radio said a letter received in Moscow reported that Rumanian troops had massacred 25,000 Russians in Odessa. Axis-occupied Black Sea port.

The victims were ordered locked in barracks and blown up. The radio said the iron gates were poured oil on the wreckage and burned the bodies.

REQUESTS FOR EXTRA SUGAR

Ottawa. Canadians who need extra sugar on their ration for reasons of health will no longer have to present a doctor's certificate to get it. The wartime prices and trade board has ruled requests for extra sugar for health needs including babies diets will be left to the discretion of ration officers.

SHIP EVERY THREE DAYS

Ottawa. Canada now is launching merchant ships at the rate of one every three days, munitions and supply officials said. This week the 31st of the 10,000-ton cargo vessels being produced in Canada was completed and only one of them was completed in 1941.

STOCKING BEES CONTINUE

Fifteen men and two boys of the town stooked up 45 acres of wheat at Bill Tetlaff's on Friday and there by helped to take a big worry off the mind of another of our former friends. In spite of undergoing a serious operation on part of that hand, Bill has been riding the binder himself but he'd help just doesn't exist anymore so the stookers had fallen behind.

The previous Sunday the same number of stookers had invaded a big field of Bert Hamers and put up 42 acres in two hours.

Fire Prevention in the Home

The best place for fire prevention to start is in the home. Charity should start there according to the ancient saying, and certainly safety should come first, in order to safeguard the home, inspection should be made, not only during Fire Prevention Week but periodically throughout the year. All heating and lighting equipment should be examined, chimneys and pipes kept clean of soot. No smoke pipes should be permitted through combustible walls, disposition of ashes should be safe-guarded. The rise cabinet should be of metal or asbestos lined. Lighting circuits should not have fuses of over 15 amperes and blown-out fuses should not be bridged or tampered with. All drop cords should be insulated, and not supported on any conductor material. Electric irons should always be detached when not in use and kept on metal stands.

Matches should be kept out of the reach of children and the children should be regularly taught the danger of fire and not to play with matches. The safest tips of match to use is the "Safety Match" which may be lighted only on the box.

Closets should be kept clean and all rubbish removed from the entire premises. Cleanliness is next to Godliness. Perhaps that is the reason it always plays such an important part in fire prevention.

Smokers should be careful of the disposition of cigarette butts and of ashes from their pipes. Above all, smoking in bed should not be indulged in.

Every householder should regard it as a patriotic duty to prevent fire in his home during these critical times. By cleaning out his attic and basement of all old papers, broken furniture and other combustible material he will not only assist the salvage campaign but will be reducing the fire hazards in his home. Let every citizen realize that a fire today is a national calamity and that every fire prevented is a conservation of our resources which can be turned to our war effort.

Heavy Trucks Feature in Collision

Two heavy trucks, belonging to Hardie Ford of Islay and to Harry Howard of Wildmere collided a few miles east of town last Thursday and both machines were considerably damaged. The Hardie Ford truck was engaged in gravelling operations on the new highway now under construction by Mr. Robinette while Mr. Howard was on his way home and was driving his own truck. The details of the accident are unknown to the Standard. Neither driver was injured.

THE PRICE OF HOGS

We are told by the Government that Britain requires even more bacon for this coming year. We are also told that Britain is there is insufficient bacon. There is none to spare in the near future so Canadian people, Farmers, therefore are to be asked to produce more hogs. Hogs are definitely scarce. There is only one certain thing about the future and that is the supply of any scarce article, that is to raise the price. Live hogs today on Winnipeg market are 17 cents per lb. BELOW the 1942-44 "parity" price, even though they are scarce. We continuously recommended to the Government, therefore, that we have the price of hogs to the full "parity" level, which would mean a price of $16.25 per 100 pounds, Winnipeg weight. The price of hogs to the United States farmers today is relatively but 50 percent HIGHER than "parity".

To raise the price of hogs, therefore to the 1942-44 parity level or even higher would be of little benefit to farmers, but in addition would and and quickly possible all the hogs, although some would be slaughtered in Canada for Canadian consumption.

Incidentally the hourly wages paid to Canadian industrial labor average 11 percent HIGHER than the 1942-44 "parity" wage level.

Following factors have tended to decrease supply or increase demand for Italian wheat production although above last year is still below domestic requirements rising to increased home consumption there is an expect of cereal exports from Turkey during 1942-43. The U.S. government aims to run wheat acreage down 20% with hopes of a reasonable small crop for feed and immediate milling needs next year.

Following factors have tended to increase supply or decrease demand: The British wheat crop is expected to amount to 100 million bushels this year. Wheat yields in Northern and Eastern Russia are approximately 10 bushels to the acre. World supply of wheat and coarse grains in North America Argentina and Australia are higher than many years past.

FORMER VERMILION MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

Death of Clifford Gardner Near Innisfail

INNISFAIL, Alta., Oct. 6—Clifford L. Gardner, 39, of Eckville, was instantly killed Sunday when crushed under the wheels of a C.P.R. freight train.

The engineer of the freight said the heavily-loaded train was just getting up speed outside the town when he noticed Gardner walking along the right-of-way ahead.

Gardner's body was taken back to Innisfail and Dr. G. C. Wagner, coroner, ordered an inquest to be held Monday.

Mr. Gardner's wife lives at Eckville and his mother lives at Camrose.

—Edmonton Journal.

The deceased worked here a few years ago in the stores of M. Wener & Son and Joe Ritch. He wife is a Vermilion girl, the former Ruby Cummings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Wm. Cummings.

WOODVALE

A week of Indian summer and glorious colors, so welcome after the dismal September weather. Everybody busy at top speed finishing cutting and stooking and to start threshing. Three machines were already busy at the end of the week and on Monday all bigger outfits had commenced. There seems to be quite a shortage of men on the smaller outfits, but if the weather holds this month there should not be much threshing left for November. If the weather does return to its drizzles and heavy morning dews, well, then the men might have to thresh with fur coats on in the short fall days. We have not heard any threshing results yet, but it looks as if all granaries will be filled and many an extra one besides. We know that this year you have also a bumper crop of wild oats; but we never see any more sprouts of them with what looks complete fur jackets on, or hula skirts or Scottish kilts—take your choice which ever way your fancy goes.

Martha Sweeney has gone to Vermilion to continue her high school studies in grade XI.

Mrs. Charlie Young of Hinchville received a Red Cross letter from her brother in France telling her that he and her other relatives in the Belgium were all well. This is the first

THE PRICE OF HOGS

We are told by the Government that Britain requires even more bacon for this coming year. We are also told that Britain is there is insufficient bacon. There is none to spare in the near future so Canadian people, Farmers, therefore are to be asked to produce more hogs. Hogs are definitely scarce. There is only one certain thing about the future and that is the supply of any scarce article, that is to raise the price. Live hogs today on Winnipeg market are 17 cents per lb. BELOW the 1942-44 "parity" price, even though they are scarce. We continuously recommended to the Government, therefore, that we have the price of hogs to the full "parity" level, which would mean a price of $16.25 per 100 pounds, Winnipeg weight. The price of hogs to the United States farmers today is relatively but 50 percent HIGHER than "parity".

To raise the price of hogs, therefore to the 1942-44 parity level or even higher would be of little benefit to farmers, but in addition would and and quickly possible all the hogs, although some would be slaughtered in Canada for Canadian consumption.

Incidentally the hourly wages paid to Canadian industrial labor average 11 percent HIGHER than the 1942-44 "parity" wage level.

Following factors have tended to decrease supply or increase demand for Italian wheat production although above last year is still below domestic requirements rising to increased home consumption there is an expect of cereal exports from Turkey during 1942-43. The U.S. government aims to run wheat acreage down 20% with hopes of a reasonable small crop for feed and immediate milling needs next year.

Following factors have tended to increase supply or decrease demand: The British wheat crop is expected to amount to 100 million bushels this year. Wheat yields in Northern and Eastern Russia are approximately 10 bushels to the acre. World supply of wheat and coarse grains in North America Argentina and Australia are higher than many years past.

North West Airlines, sub-contractors to the United States Army, will use Alberta's Government House for the duration. It was announced recently by Hon. W.A. Fallow, Minister of Public Works. N.A.R. EXTENSION

Extension of the Northern Alberta Railway as a rail route to Alaska was urged in a statement issued last week by Premier Aberhart on behalf of the Alberta government. "This route would be much easier and more direct than any other between Manitoba, the N.C. or New York and Alaska," the statement pointed out. It adds that such an extension would be less expensive to build and easier to operate. No other large part of it would run through a comparatively flat country. Advantages of protection from attack were also cited by the Premier's statement.

LOWER GASOLINE UNIT FOR ALBERTA MOTORISTS

Effective from Thursday Oct 1 the gasoline ration unit for Alberta was reduced from five to four gallons. The effect is that a car owner, for example, who would have been entitled to 20 gallons for the six months period from Oct. 1 to March 31, will be cut to 64 gallons.

Officials of the Alberta Motor Association some time ago urged that in view of the province being located in an oil producing area which is in fact the largest oil producing region in the dominion, every effort should be made to provide a maximum supply of gasoline, providing this was not harmful to the country's war effort.

Regional supplying of gasoline, in view of the production of this province, also was urged upon the dominion authorities while it was pointed out as essential that the business economy of the country should be fully recognized

Under the new federal order, Alberta motorists receive four gallons of gasoline per unit, and car owners in Saskatchewan and Manitoba are on the same basis. British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec have been on the four-gallon basis for some months while the allowance for the maritime provinces is three gallons per unit.

Heavier demands for fuel for war projects and services in the north west were responsible for the reduced Alberta ration.

"Lum 'n' Abner", the garrulous sages of Pine Ridge, Arkansas who turn out four scripts in record time, can remember when they worked 14 hours on one show and never finished it. When they began their first sponsored program in Chicago more than 10 years ago Lum and Abner (Chet Lauck and Norris Goff) were told to appear at the studio with their scripts ready to go on the air As they had never seen a script, the boys were in a tizzy when they sat down to begin work the night before the show. Working all night with several coffee intermissions and a box of Arpirin, the two philosophers greeted the Chicago dawn with three pages of corney script Disturbing the three pages in shaking hands, the boys successfully launched their first commercial broadcast by ad-libbing for 15 minutes. "Lum 'n' Abner" are now heard every Monday, Tues., Wed., and Thursday evening at 8.15 over CJCA

BLAND BILL

A pleasing interlude during a very enjoyable dance at the hall Friday was the singing of the Misses Jenkins, Cpl. O'Flynn and Ned Tuner.

The Victory Serenaders supplied the music for the dance and Messrs. McCambridge and McDaniel toasted after the cash. Mrs. McCambridge served a dainty lunch.

The next dance here will be held on Friday, Nov. 20th. Will organizers of dances in town please bear their country cousins an open date. Full particulars of the dance will be advertised in the Standard.

We had a scoop the other day. We announced in this column the safe arrival of John McCambridge overseas five days before his parents received a wire from him announcing the fact. Our charming fellow-scribe Campbell Lake wonders how we managed it. Well, we are the Island Hill scribe! Nuff said!

Some oats still stand in the fields. Extraordinary year — Hope the snow does not arrive until Xmas as well known farmers are short of labor to get their crops saved. Pat McCambridge got over the trouble by his daughter Mrs. Dynes, who resides in Edmonton, coming along and doing the stooking with the result he has all his crop cut and ready for threshing.

It was decided to give a certain percentage or proceeds of all profitable functions to the National Stagette project of The Maidstone Street School for Children in London

During the social part of the evening all discussions centred on our Harvest Ball. Its preparation and results.

On Thursday evening preceding the dance, with the support of Wendy's delivery wagon the girls gathered all the necessary produce in transforms a hall into a farm yard. The two most noticeable things about gathering in the absence was the efficient way Les handled the horse and the inefficient manner in which the other four Stagettes with her, kept apples, pumpkins, loaves and vines on the wagon. By the unanimous laughter over the above and other preparations, the girls seemed to have had more fun on Thursday evening than on the occasion itself.

MICKIE SAYS—

In Traditional Fashion

Chinese Defendants Wanted To Take Oath Their Own Way

Thirty-four Chinese defendants caused consternation in magistrate's court at Liverpool when they proposed taking an oath in traditional Chinese fashion by breaking a saucer each and saying, "as this saucer is broken so may my soul be shattered."

Several hundred Chinese witnesses might be called in the case, and only two saucers could be found in the courtroom.

The magistrate observed, "there is a war on and the breaking of saucers seems to be a needless extravagance."

The manufacture of china is limited for the duration.

One Chinese then suggested that the oath be taken to the accompaniment of the cutting of throats of cockerels.

With food rationing in effect that idea was worse than saucer smashing.

The Chinese counsel finally suggested that most witnesses could be persuaded to raise their hands and speak an oath.

The Chinese defendants, all seamen, were charged with assaulting five policemen and damaging property on a ship in a northern port.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LOYALTY TO CHRIST

Golden text: What things were gain to me, these have I counted loss for Christ. Philippians 3:7.

Lesson: Mark 2, 14-17; John 6.66-69; Philippians 3, 7-11.

Devotional reading: Ephesians 4, 11-16.

Explanations and Comments

Two Words that Changed a Life. Mark 2.14. The second chapter of Mark records a series of events that happened at Capernaum. In the city, eating at the place of toll, was a Jew Letter known afterwards as Matthew, a publican, a tax-gatherer for the hated Roman rulers, despised by his own people because of his occupation. One day Jesus passed by and called Matthew to follow him. Probably the toll Matthew was collecting was that levied on the caravans which passed through Capernaum on their way to and fro from Egypt and Damascus. The Pharisees would glance at Matthew as no doubt saying to themselves, "publican and a sinner", but Jesus, knowing Matthew's thoughts and possibilities, said to him, "Follow me," chose him to be one of his close followers.

Perhaps Matthew had seen and talked with Jesus before this, that we do not know, but now had come the time for decision. He had to decide between his old, well-tried life of fair prosperity and a new, unknown life of service. He arose and followed Jesus. He recognized the power of Jesus and at once yielded his life to that direction.

Christ Came to Call Sinners, Mark 2.15-16. The scene took later with Jesus over several matters which Mark gives consecutively in this second chapter; they accused him in the house of blasphemy when he declared the sins of the paralytic forgiven; they criticized him for eating with publicans and sinners; they found fault with him because his disciples did not fast, and because they plucked ears of grain on the Sabbath; and then they entered into a conspiracy with the Herodians to condemn his death when he cured a man on the Sabbath Day.

Our first records their criticism of his eating with publicans and sinners. Matthew had given a great feast in his new Master and fellow disciples (Lk. 5.29), and so many were the guests, both publicans and sinners, that the gathering must have been held in the courtyard of the house, as was often the custom. When they were reclining at table, some scribes of the Pharisees walked in, as any wayfarer might in the East. They stood to look on, but they stayed to criticize. "How is it that he eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners?" they said to the disciples. Publicans (tax-gathers) were social outcasts, they were hated for their usual extortion, and especially because they were held to be unpatriotic in collecting taxes for a foreign power.

Jesus heard the question and answered for the disciples: "They that be whole (that is, the self-righteous Pharisees) have no need of a physician (a Saviour), but they that are sick (those you call publicans and sinners, need him)." I come not to call the righteous, but sinners."

Indians Lose Market

Stump Is Sole Of Seneca Root On Account Of The War

The seneca crop harvested by Alberta Indians is suffering a slump because of the war. Used in nearly every cough medicine, seneca root has its best field in central Alberta, where three tribes of Indians, the Stonies, Crees and Chippewas, dig for it each year. Decades ago a strong medicine was brewed from the root by the Indians themselves, but nowadays it is sold for the most part to buyers in town. In pre-war times Germany was a big customer for Canada's crop of seneca and China's order was a fairly large one. Today, some small orders are received from New York where Canadian druggists, escaped from Germany, have set up their businesses, but not nearly enough is being bought to absorb the large quantities of the root now in stock.

BOMBER TO HER CREDIT

A Russian woman fighter plane pilot, Lieut. Valeria Khomyakova, was credited by Tass with shooting down a German Junkers bomber at night over the front line. She evidently attacked the enemy plane and disabled it with several gun and machine-gun bursts," the news agency said. "Trying to escape her fire, the enemy bomber steeply dived but Lieut. Khomyakova kept shooting until the fascist plane crashed into the ground."

Winter in Russia

In Half Of Country It Usually Lasts Six Months

Russia is acquainted with many varieties of winter temperature in her vast extent of territory passing through many latitudes. Yet half of the country has a six months' winter. From the Arctic to 60 degrees North latitude where the ground is almost permanently frozen winter continues for six to nine months, and even in summer the ground does not thaw to any depth. In the Crimea where fighting was going on a year ago a writer of the 1850's told of finding men in sheepskin coats, marching over courses where the snow drifts had obliterated what were roads. He found one Zouave frozen in the drifts, and the British soldiers wearing beards to protect their faces from the severe cold.

The coldest winter in the world is experienced at Verkhoyansk in latitude 67 degrees 30 minutes North. With no mountain chains to break the winds, they sweep across the Russian plains, to increase the bitterness.

George Kennan, the famous correspondent who travelled through Russia in the 1880's, tells of wandering with the Koraks on the Siberian plains and sleeping under the Arctic stars at night with the thermometer 60 degrees below zero. He calls the winters in Siberia severe.

The mercury begin freezing in December near the coast of the Black Sea, while around the Caspian and the Aral on the Northern coast they begin in November. . In Asiatic Russia the waterways begin to freeze by November 1st, and in the south, and in September in the Talmyr peninsula and the region east of Yana Bay. Nor does that year have the hand till April in the South, and until May or late June in the Northeast.

If winter comes early it will be hailed by the Russians, who have learned how to use it to the discomfiture of their enemies.

HISTORY OF THE CARROT

Long before the Christian era, the merits of the carrot as a medicinal plant were recognized, and it is thought that the carrot was one of the first crops to be cultivated when the ancients gave up a nomadic life for agriculture. What is said to be the original plant is still to be found growing wild in most districts of Europe and western parts of Asia.

It took Leonardo Da Vinci about two years to paint the Last Supper.

MRS. MINIVER

Adapted From The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture

By HALSEY RAINES

Not even the constant procession of German bombers could stop Lady Beldon's annual flower show. It was mounted, with the usual peaceable grandeur, at Beldon Hall, with everyone in the village, great and small, playing a part. On a long, low platform the most eminent Glee Club talent of the county provided the supplementary entertainment.

The great event of the afternoon, of course, was the judging for the prize rose, which would earn the reward of Lady Beldon's Challenge Cup. This was the business closest to the elderly donor's heart. Each year she had put up the cup, staked her silver trophy against the field, and automatically captured the prize. Competition was sporadic and excessively mediocre. There were those, too, who said the judges would sooner have tried to swim the length of the Thames than vote against Lady Beldon's entry, and risk her volcanic wrath. Today, however, the handsome, luxuriant flower entered by Stationmaster Ballard and christened "the Mrs. Miniver," had excited involuntary tribute from almost all those who inspected it.

When the slip of paper announcing the judges' will had been brought to Lady Beldon, she covertly looked at it and read: First Prize, Silver Cup, Lady Beldon. Second Prize, Certificate of Merit, James Ballard.

Her eyes flashing triumph, Lady Beldon handed the paper to Vin, who was standing by.

"Congratulations! I'm not a bit surprised," he said dryly.

Mrs. Miniver looked at the paper, which Vin had passed on. "This is really important to you, isn't it?" she said

"Yes, I is," admitted Lady Beldon. "It's stupid of me but there it is. I've won that cup for as long as I can remember."

"Mr. Ballard was awfully keen about his entry," said Vin Miniver with deliberation.

Well, he had his chance!" answered Lady Beldon rather sharply. She marched over to the awards table, and regarded with leonine gaze the two vacuous-faced men who were seated at the end of the judges' chairs. They turned nervously as she looked at them. Mrs. Miniver, glancing over, felt that for once she and Lady Beldon had exactly the same thoughts

The prizes for chrysanthemums, peonies and asters had been distributed, when the Beldon Hall butler came hurrying over with a long face

"Mr. Foley just called, m'lady," he whispered. "He says there's an air raid attack in force."

"Tell Foley to stick to the phone, and give me good warning," answered Lady Beldon, much as if she had been saying "two with cream."

She drew herself erect, and announced: "And now, ladies and gentlemen, we come to the final award, the Challenge Cup for the best rose grown in the village during the past year. There was quiet and an expectant. Lady Beldon found herself unable to avoid focusing her gaze on Mr. Ballard. He looked pallid, as Sunday best, with faces flushed, as if tense and excited as a schoolboy awaiting the result of his finals.

An air raid might be in the offing but there was a miniature battle going on inside Lady Beldon's mind She had reached her own decision about the merits of the respective roses some time before, but hadn't had the courage to do anything about it, until that last look at Ballard. Now she crushed the paper in her hand and said:

"First prize, the silver cup, goes to Mr. James Ballard, our popular stationmaster."

After a moment of incredulous silence a great burst of cheering went from the crowd. Lady Beldon looked hurt. Then continued: "Second prize, certificate of merit goes to me."

After another moment of silence, the audience caught the dramatic meaning of the event, and broke out in a veritable furv of cheers and handclapping. In her palmiest days of easily scored victories, Lady Beldon had never received one-fourth such a tribute. Her eyes became misty, as she lifted a hand.

"I don't say I'm not disappointed," she said. "But if I had to lose there's no one I'd sooner lose to than James Ballard. He's a man of spirit. Now I'm sorry to disturb the harmony of the proceedings, but I understand some raiders are on the way. It would be best to return home."

With Lady Beldon left safely in her own shelter, Mrs. Miniver hurried with Carol and Vin to the air field

LOST IN ACTION

The youngest rating aboard H.M.C.S. Assiniboine, Ordinary Seaman Kenneth Watson, was the only Canadian lost when the Canadian destroyer rammed and sunk a German U-boat after a spirited close range battle. He is pictured on the destroyer. Watson hailed from Revelstoke, B.C.

Bravely Carol parted from her boyish husband, while he tore across the field to join his squadron. Guns from afar were barking ominously, and dusk was being swallowed up by an early darkness, as Mrs. Miniver started with Carol on the last lap toward home.

"I wish I could go faster," she said, "but it's so dark."

With roaring, terrifying abruptness, a host of planes seemed to emerge in the sky. A bomb crashed to earth, then another . . . then a whole alarming procession.

"Perhaps we should stop and put out the lights," said Mrs. Miniver. She drew up at the side of the road, as the bombs fury in the heavens seemed to centre about that spot of ground. The din was increased, the danger terrible and mounting, but neither woman gave any sign of flinching. As a diving plane let loose a hail of machine-gun bullets, which sprayed around the car, Mrs. Miniver screamed. Then she saw fire rising from the village in the background. In another few minutes, as the victory of the fighting shifted away from them, she turned to take Carol's hand. The girl was limp and inert; a trickle of blood was running across her face. . . .

The organ of the village church was playing softly as the parishioners filed inside. Vin looked years older. A spasm of pain shot across his face as he looked at Lady Beldon, across the aisle, and thought of the days when she had not been there alone. Mrs. Miniver glanced down and placed a hand over her son's

"Often after some great disaster," said the vicar slowly, "the survivors meet together with hearts bowed down, wondering how they can face the future. I look into your faces and I know this is not true of anyone here. War has broken the peace of centuries in this quiet corner of England, where death cannot strike without robbing us all of a friend. We have lost one close to this church close to our affections James Ballard, stationmaster and bell-ringer, and the proud winner only an hour before his death of the Beldon Cup for his beautiful Minver rose."

He paused, and seemed striving to control any quiver in his own voice. His eyes were fixed on the Minniver pew as he went on:

"All our hearts go out in sympathy to the two families who share the cruel loss of a young girl married at this altar only two weeks ago." Again he paused and looked up and down the pews, as if he could see through genuine gaze the two vacuous-faced men who were seated at the end of the judges' chairs. They turned nervously as she looked at them. Mrs. Miniver, glancing over, felt that for once she and Lady Beldon had exactly the same thoughts

STAGETTES' HARVEST BALL AN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS

Georgeous Decorations

The first big dance of the season, "The Harvest Ball" sponsored by the local Stagette club proved to be as great a success as Millarmyn Kapers. The Stagette Banner in club colors of black and white proved very effective above gold motifs of the 17 local stagettes against a background of green. The harvest theme was carried out in decorations which transformed the hall into a real farm atmosphere. This together with the good sportsmanship of the local citizens in donning rustic attire led to an informal and carefree spirit among the guests.

The chosen patrons and patronesses of the club, Mr. and Mrs. J. Reid and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Kaiser once again presided at a Stagette social function.

The girls wish to thank all local citizens who so willingly donated lights, lanterns, paper, hammers, vines and vegetables to aid them in their decorating. Special thanks goes to Mr. Jake Wener who made possible the collection of the above articles by loaning his horse and delivery wagon, and to Mr. Hassel Williams who not only helped with the decorating but acted as a genial master of ceremonies.

Band

Band of instructor and non-commissioned officers put on a display at the Prince of Wales armouries. Other members of the class left the same evening for their stations in eastern and western points.

INTERESTING SESSIONS HELD BY ANGLICAN DEANERY W. A.

Mrs. Rutherford of Manville Is New President

The annual meeting of the Vermilion Deanery W.A. of the Anglican church was held on Friday, Oct. 9th. The session opened with the Celebration of the Holy Communion service in St. Saviour's church at 10.30 a.m. The meeting was held in the Memorial hall kindly lent for the occasion. Though the attendance was not as good as usual owing to the late harvest, those present much appreciated the program provided. Three members of the Diocesan board were present, the Honorary President, Mrs. Chamberlain, the President Mrs. Tarkaberry, and the Little Helpers secretary, Mrs. Hall. Nineteen new branches in the Deanery, four sent written reports, four were represented and gave their reports, one has disbanded and two were not heard from. The Diocesan officers each gave a short address, stressing the need of increasing the membership, and work with the youth of today.

Captain Hawels of the C.W.A.C. gave an interesting account of the activities of the C.W.A.C. and some of the problems encountered. Lance Corporal Vimber of the C.W.A.C. who has lived most of her life in China, told us some of her experiences in a town occupied by the Japanese and of the fine courage of the Chinese and the wonderful example of the Missionaries. The Rev. W. Slater of the Prince Rupert Canal Mission told us of his work, illustrated with lantern slides.

The President Mrs. Leversedge, said a few words in memory of a faithful member who has been called to Higher service, Mrs. Alex Taylor, who had been a member of the W.A. since 1910. She will be much missed by all who knew her.

Our grateful thanks to all the speakers for their inspiring talks. The afternoon closed with a sociable cup of tea at the Rectory.

The new officers for 1942-43 are:
President—Mrs. Rutherford, Manville

THIRD VICTORY LOAN PRESENTS CHALLENGE

QUOTA FOR DISTRICT $100,000.00

Canada's Third Victory Loan goes on sale on Monday next and it is hoped that every person in this district will rally to the most important loan of the War.

The time has come when "NOTHING MATTERS BUT VICTORY" and those who have savings bank accounts are urged to lend their money to Canada to help in achieving the Victory without which all else is useless. According to records there are numerous substantial savings accounts in banks throughout Canada which have not been opened up to war savings; those who have such accounts would be benefitting themselves as well as Canada, as their interest return would be double that which is now being received.

Bank or Instalment

For the war that has been done not possess a bank account, plans have been worked out which will make it quite easy to buy the loan and, at the same time, to provide for future security. On the basis of a $100 bond all that is required is an initial payment of $10 and monthly instalments of $10 for five months, when the valuable bond will be the property of the purchaser.

VICTORY TICKETS FOR FARMERS

Farmers who have not surplus funds for immediate investment are now enabled to purchase their Victory Bonds through the medium of Victory Tickets; by means of such tickets the farmer will be able to buy any produce buyer such quantity of grain or livestock as he may feel disposed to sell to the buyer, — at time of delivery being any date up to Feb. 28th, 1943; when the produce has been delivered the proceeds will be devoted to Victory Bonds and War Savings certificates which will be forwarded to the purchaser.

MORE EQUIPMENT SOLDIERS' PRAYER

In a letter to the Time magazine recently a young American soldier, writing to his parents said, "The trickle of planes comes over and we look up and say to each other, 'I think what a thousand of them would do, five thousand . . . you don't feel that . . . We do. The senseless chaos ships have been shot out from under them talk of useless waste because ships cannot be fully conveyed, and planes and naval ships require money for their purchase; there is no place for the money because money to come from but from the citizens of Canada who are desirous of seeing their fighting forces victorious.

MILITARY CONCERT PARTY HERE OCT. 20th

On Monday, Oct. 20th, a military concert party will visit Vermilion and will intensify the necessity for Victory Loan purchases, all adults of the town and district are invited to attend the show in the Columbia theatre at 8 p.m. Meanwhile see that your bond application is in the hands of one of the many canvassers.

Victory bonds may be purchased at your local bank or from C. W. Robinson, A. W. Dymond, Wm. Pilkie Jr., John Reid, Mrs. M. Hill, C.M. Laverty, S. C. Heckbert, Geo. Pheasey and W. R. Stalker. Let us all put our shoulder to the wheel and put Vermilion well over the top. The objective for the town is the unit, which includes Islay, Manville and Derwent is $100,000 and if this sum is to be placed at the disposal of our Government for the extraordinary war expenditures we must all together

Don't wait to be canvassed — Buy your bonds Monday.

FOUR CONLIN BOYS OF RUSYLVIA NOW OVERSEAS IN THE ARMED FORCES

Father Wounded Twice in First Great War

Four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Conlin of the Rusylvia district are in the armed forces of the Dominion, fighting for freedom and all but four are overseas. Their father was in veteran in the First World War. He spent four years in France and was twice wounded. The only factor that has kept him from donning a uniform this time is that he is over age.

The Conlin family came from the Old country 12 years ago and settled at Rusylvia. There have been 15 children born to the family, 12 of whom are living.

The boys in the forces are:

Daniel who has been overseas for a year. His wife resides at Rusylvia.

Farrel, who is a Lance-Corporal in the Canadian Provost Corps and has been in London England since shortly after the war broke out. He played in the Edmonton Pipe Band. His wife is also staying at Rusylvia.

James overseas nearly 3 years with the Edmonton Regiment.

Leonard also arrived safely in the old country four months ago. He is also with an Edmonton regiment.

The record is sure to be proud of and the mother of this patriotic family will also would never stand in the way of even more sons going to fight in the present day cause.

CURRINGS FLASHES

Al'2 R. Bigwood and Miss Isabene Hamm of the R.C.A.F. stationed at Swan Hills spent a day at the home of Mr and Mrs R Rogers last week and also paid a call at the Wilson home. Isabene is looking fit and likes the services.

We're all sorry to hear that Cpl. Charles Hogan is still quite sick. He took pneumonia when going overseas in August and is still in hospital somewhere in Scotland. It is hoped that he will soon be around again.

Clive Regan has returned home from the hospital minus his appendix and feels fairly well.

Threshers are very busy in these parts and enjoy nice, working Sundays too. Help has been scarce and the older men have turned out to drive steam teams. It seems that we all have to do our bit and hurry on until the war is over.

Mac Fish spent a few or his holidays at the Wilson home and Freddy Brush spent a day visiting his grandma.

Mr. and Mrs Walter Fish and family and Mr and Mrs A Lavin and two children paid a call at the Wilson home last week-end.

Mrs. Ross Tiffin visited at the home of her brother Mr. and Mrs. V. Vass for the holiday week end.

Miss Margaret Shand of Edmonton was home for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. E. Taylor of Vermilion spent Sunday and Monday at the home of Mr and Mrs Wm Steele

If the fine weather holds for another week threshing will be well cleaned up in this district. Wheat is turning out well so are the oats but the grades are not so good. Flax and mixed. However most of it will be used for feed to make more bacon for Britain.

Conservative leader Right Hon. Arthur Meighen has announced that arrangements are being made for a national convention of the Conservative party.

Vermilion, Alta., Oct. 15, 1942.

The ideal threshing weather which has prevailed since the first of October ended on this day's setting Wednesday when light drizzly rains set in early in the morning. Skies had cleared by nightfall and Thursday is again clear and bright. Excellent headway is reported in threshing with crews working seven days a week.

Flow of Scrap Iron and Steel Must Be Maintained

"No amount of ore production can take the place of scrap," said the Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply. "It must be remembered that in modern large scale steel production practice both pig iron and scrap steel are used. About two tons of ore are required to produce one ton of iron, and about half a ton of iron one ton of steel scrap is necessary. At present the flow of ore is sufficient for our requirements. But the flow of scrap iron and steel is barring far behind."

Will Your Child be Barred to Death Through Your Negligence?

Last year the Fire Demon numbered among his victims in Canada 323 men, women and children. In 1940, 350 children lost their lives by fire, while in 1941, the lives of 317 of our little ones were claimed. This is a staggering indictment and the responsibility for such tragedies can in many cases be laid directly to the negligence of parents who, for too often leave their helpless infants alone in the house while they visit neighbors or go to a show. These holocausts are usually the focus in rural districts where neighbors are long distances away and the parents are unable to reach their burning home in time to save their children from a horrible death.

Every parent should realize that it is his duty to teach his children the principles of fire prevention. They should not be allowed to play with fire, matches should be kept out of their reach and the playing with celluloid toys should be discouraged. By a strict adherence to the use of common sense, parents can thus save themselves the bitter anguish and life long regret which must be ever present when a child perishes by their neglect.

Youths of 19 years of age and aliens within this same age group have been made liable for compulsory military service in proclamation announced by Hon. Ian Mackenzie Minister Nat. Defence.

Canada Faces A Steel Crisis

"If our steel mills are to keep up maximum production all winter, every last item of scrap iron and steel must be sold in a collection agency given to a National Salvage committee within the next few weeks," said F.B. Kilburn, Steel Controller in a recent statement.

At Raymond, the largest cheese factory in Alberta is nearing completion. The building is constructed from cinder blocks. In addition to making cheese they will have local storage lockers and will handle fresh and cured meats. This factory will be a great boon to Raymond district.

CLAIRMORE CLIPPINGS

Miss Flora MacDonald, teacher of the Chapmanee school, attended the teachers' convention held in Vegreville last week end.

Mrs. Virtue Vass of Lashburn, Sask., visited at the home of her brother Mr. and Mrs. V. Vass for the holiday week end.

Miss Margaret Shand of Edmonton was home for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. E. Taylor of Vermilion spent Sunday and Monday at the home of Mr and Mrs Wm Steele

This may be a bit late but some the lines sincere, when we extend sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson, Cummings, on the recent sad news of their son's death in India; and to Mrs. Reikie of Kitscoty on the death of her father in Edmonton a few weeks ago. Mrs. Reikie taught school here for a year not so long ago.

Sgt. Norman Smith spent five days home on sick leave the first week of October. He had spent twelve days in hospital before coming home.

Rev. L. Sieber of Vermilion came out on Oct. 4th and gave a lovely sermon and conducted Communion service as well. We only wish he could come out more often. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jobben had their baby daughter baptized the same day, Evelyn Joan. Owing to a busy season the attendance was small.

Threshing is going ahead as fast as possible these fine days. Hussards, Seafferts, Wallingtons, J. Kennedy, Smiths and a few others are all through with their threshing. Lots of stooks are still to be found around. Here's hoping all can get through before the snow flurries fly. Grain is turning out with a good yield averaging between 25 and 30 bushels to the acre for wheat, but the best number it is grading as yet, as not much has been hauled.

We are pleased to hear that Mr. H. Howard is able to be around once more as he is after his accident. He suffered a couple or broken ribs and numerous bruises as well in the shock. Things can surely happen easily and in a hurry when we least expect them.

Mrs. Chas. Morand, Triangle, visited over the week end at her mother's Mrs Adam Smith of Wildmere, she also spent Saturday afternoon in Vermilion.

Our teacher, Mrs. John Wilson, attended the Convention at Vegreville last week.

Percy and Bobby Graham spent Thursday with Berna and Alice Seaffert.

Billie Smith received his call for his medical last week. She by one all the boys are leaving. Help to preserve this year but will be more so another year.

On the news over Watrous about the towns, villages and farms one sum day not so long ago. The broadcaster spoke of articles that had been kept for years. The writer has a towel with the picture of the Mayflower ship on it. It must be close to a century old. we have also a table cloth all hand woven and several sheets that came from our enemy country Germany many years ago. it has been in the writer's family for many many years and was old when given to them.

HALFWAY HOUSE
BY MICHAEL TRENT

CHAPTER 1.

Anne Lowry listened to the tap-tap-tap of her father's cane along the verandah of Halfway House, and there was a hollow echoing of the sound in the night. Some trick of acoustics caused the echo—and the echo played a sudden trick with Anne's nerves. She sat there barely breathing and the empty tapping seemed to reverberate around her like a static charge. A queer unease, a mean crept over her, and for the first time she was afraid of the rambling mountain lodge.

The tapping continued back and forth along the long timbered verandah. Back and forth, her father trying to work strength back into his frail body — trying to walk the short the open lobby doors and Anne saw her father hesitate. She rose from her pinch-penny bookkeeping, came around the table and at the doorway slipped her arm about the gaunt man's shoulders. Since Halfway House was to be as much a cure as a business venture she tried to think his haggard face had a trace of color and his wasted body a new straightness. He ignored the hard fact that he leaned heavily upon the ever-present cane.

Drew Lowry lifted his face to the mountains. "It's too wonderful to be true," he said. "I can hardly believe it's real for you and me, Anne"

It was panoramic, the mountains, the pine-blanketed valleys the rocky tal-clear Indian Lake. It was new, some beauty it was vast, and lonely. But it was cool and serene and the past was a long way off.

"It's a far cry from what we've known, Drew Lowry said.

His voice had a choked-up sound, and Anne knew what he was thinking. He was remembering the bitter, relentless, the depressing filth, the strength-sapping heat of the tropics. Drew Lowry had spent all his adult life, until now, in the tropics as a consular officer stationed at pestilence ports and jungle-border towns. Some lack in his physical make-up had permitted heat to be his enemy. And malaria. And finally a mysterious tropic fever. The doctors had finally warned: "You're only hope is another climate. . . . A northern climate—mountains."

"Halfway House," Anne said. "Halfway to nowhere, out of this world."

Perhaps there was something off key in her voice. Her father gave her an anxious look.

"I know it can't be paradise for you, Anne," he said. "You're young and a woman. You should be where there's beauty and life. I'm a selfish brute."

They laughed at that, there being nothing of the brute about the frail Drew Lowry. He was a mild-mannered man almost timid, and even his current had been merely one of service and not at all spectacular.

"It was my idea, picking Halfway House," Anne said. And once we get well and we make money, we'll have plenty and life. I'll not be a burden here, you know. . . . There'll be guests. At least, I hope there'll be guests. Now, I've got to get back to work."

She patted his pale cheek, turned back into the cool timbered lobby. She sat at the table and tried to work on her accounts. Her father crept walking the verandah, and the tap-tap-tap of his cane made the hollow echo against the still lobby. The sound was eerie. Anne rose, walked to the corner and turned on the radio. She didn't care what came in, just so it made sound. It was the 12 o'clock news broadcast.

The newscaster's voice boomed in the room. "Canadian authorities announced today that a German aviator had escaped from a prison camp in Alberta Province. Royal Northwest Mounted Police are trailing the man, and it is thought that he will attempted to reach the International Border. . . ."

Anne turned back to tune out the news broadcast. It seemed almost a sacrilege, the intrusion of trouble into the serenity of Halfway House. Anne's fingers touched the dial

Her hand seemed known to be armed It is thought he had outside help in his attempted escape. He speaks perfect English.

Anne turned the dial. She filled the room with music that was gay, and that was better.

Drew was busily working when her father again called her to the doorway. He had come to a point down into the valley.

"Company's coming," he said. "There's a rider moving along the trail from National Park."

Anne saw the rider among the pines far across the valley. He wore the green uniform of the Forest Service, a wide-brimmed campaign hat and he rode a handsome black horse. He came out of the pines shortly, climbing toward Halfway House and finally he waved. A moment later he rode onto the hotel grounds. He was a big man, sun-browned and even looking. He sat his horse with a definite jauntiness reining it before the verandah and his glance struck at Anne. It did a brief moment, then passed on to Drew Lowry. Anne thought she detected a question in that his eye but now, as he dismounted, it went away.

"I heard Halfway House had been opened up," he said, as I thought some one should become acquainted. He had a nice smile. He stood a full six feet, and his uniformed shoulders were broad. Anne found herself noticing those little things about him. He offered his hand to Drew Lowry.

"I'm Steve Hayes, from over at the Squaw Creek Ranger Station."

"Glad to know you," Drew Lowry said. "My name is Lowry, and this is my daughter Anne." He smiled in his wan fashion. "I guess we can call ourselves neighbors."

"That's the way I'd like to have it," the Ranger stepped smartly forward and offered his hand to Anne. It was a big firm hand and his handshake like his eyes was direct. Anne thought "I'd hate to hide anything from that man." And she said "Yes it will be nice, having neighbors."

Some there are no strangers in the mountain country. That may explain city people." Steve Hayes looked from father to daughter "You are city people. Or am I reading the signs wrong"

"You're right, after a fashion," Anne replied. "I supposed we'd be called tenderfeet."

She meant it as humor but the visitor seemed not to notice He was looking about Halfway House, seeming to register it in detail for a retentive mind. He asked, abruptly

"How many people do you have here?"

"HALFWAY HOUSE"

When Drew Lowry and his daughter, Anne, left South America and the U.K. consular service to live in the Rockies, where Drew's tropical disease might at last be beaten, they could not possibly have known how perfect that peace would crop up again in the north country.
It was when Anne saw the sheriff and a posse of men start out on a manhunt that she had her first apprehension. And then when her old friend, Erich Kruger, appeared, the whole uneasiness began to take form. She and Drew were to be obliged to shelter a German aviator, an escaped Canadian prisoner of war.

"There are eight of us altogether," Anne told him. "My father and I, six employees."

"All strangers to the country?"

"Yes, all strangers."

"Guests coming soon?"

"Dozens coming tomorrow. Two couples are coming. More later, we hope."

Steve Hayes nodded said politely he hoped Halfway House would be a success He again gave the hotel a quick survey, that suggestion of inquiry back in his eyes But he asked no more questions. He shook Drew Lowry's hand once more then Anne's, and still holding hers he said, "Visitors are welcome anytime at the Station. The boys will be glad to be asked."

Mail Xmas Parcels Now to Forces Overseas

Santa Claus must get off to an early start if our Armed Forces overseas are to get their Christmas boxes on time. Though that holiday seems far in the distance, TODAY is not too soon to start Xmas overseas mailings. The Postmaster General Hon. Will Ilsley P. Mulock, advises that gifts should be sent now and during the fall—the earlier the better—so on save timely delivery. November 15th is the last date by which parcels may be mailed if they are expected to arrive in time for Christmas. Then only letters are urged and to be mailed until the very latest possible date but to mail early and prevent congestion and give the Postal authorities opportunity to arrange for extra space should ocean vessels. A great influx of mail reaching the base post-offices around or after the dead line set would result in delivery being delayed for not only would it be overtaxing the problem of handling but or finding sufficient storage space a board ship because only a limited space is allotted the Post Office in view of the urgent requirements for forwarding munitions and other war supplies.

To further facilitate the problem of providing adequate shipping space for the Xmas mails to the Forces, it is suggested that although the maximum weight of a parcel at reduced rate is set at eleven pounds senders should voluntarily cut down as far as possible on the weight and size of their Christmas packages. If they do so they will help make more accommodation available for other parcels on the same ship, and give the Post Office the chance to make deliveries in time for all. There is the most vital need of full co-operation by the public for this year the Post Office expects an all time record in the overseas volume of military mails will be established and is already preparing to every way possible to handle and expedite the influx.

Greater care than ever before is necessary on the part of the mailers in the preparation of their overseas parcels, in order to avoid delay.

Address all mails IN INK, fully clearly and without misleading abbreviations. Be sure to place return address on cover—also include a slip in the parcel bearing sender's address as well as address or parcel. Prepay all mail correctly.

Parcels should be packed compactly, enough to resist the pressure of other mails in the sack and the handling in transit. Use strong corrugated cardboard, new light cardboard boxes, wrap in several layers of thick wrapping paper, and tie securely with strong cord. Do not use Christmas tissue paper for wrapper, or colored ribbons to tie. Parcels may be sewn in strong cotton or similar fabric.

Jams, syrups and any other substances likely to spread and break, if sent at all, must be enclosed in sealed containers (not glass bottles), surrounded with absorbent material in corrugated cardboard, and securely wrapped and tied. A completed Customs Declaration form should accompany every parcel. Apples, grapes oak, or any article likely to spoil or become damaged or to injure Postal personnel, or the mails are not acceptable. "The mailing of Matches Safety Matches and Lighter Fluid or any other inflammable substance is strictly prohibited by law."

Citizens, by refraining from writing to our Forces overseas that gifts are being sent, until actually mailed, can save much disappointment. No one disappointed over men by mailing their gifts too late for Xmas delivery.

VICTORY LOAN DRIVE FOR $750,000,000 OPENS MONDAY

We will push on to Victory!

WHEN FRANCE FELL, and Britain stood with her back to the wall, one strong jaw jutted out, and the grip of one relentless fist took the Empire.

It was Churchill hurling Britain's decision across the channel. Quit? . . . Never! . . . Fight! . . . Yes, through the hell of adversity till victory is won.

Today Canadians face challenge after challenge with the same unconquerable spirit. Today we are asked to do without so that our fighting men will have everything they need—when they smash straight into the heart of enemy defences.

Canada's ringing answer to this latest challenge will be:

"Yes, we'll fight with the last ounce of our strength, and the last dollar we can earn and save."

Canada's Victory Loan drive opens Monday. Canada's Victory Loan representative will ask for your answer soon.

Will it be "No, I do not choose to do my part"?

Or will it be "Yes! Yes!! Yes!!! I will buy Victory Bonds! I will lend all my support to help make victory sure."

Your youth is laying up for yourself the best of all investments—VICTORY BONDS are backed by all the resources of the Dominion of Canada; they yield a fair rate of interest; you can borrow against them; and they are readily saleable when you need the cash.

WAR TOWN CHAMPION BADGE

It is a symbol indicating that you have bought its own Victory Bonds.

HOW TO BUY

Give your order to the Victory Loan canvasser who calls on you. Or apply to a bank, trust company, investment dealer, or any other company. The amount of your bond will depend on your own circumstances. Do you owe any debts? Can you make a down payment and pay the balance by instalments? Can you pay for your bonds in cash? Your canvasser will be glad to give you every assistance in dealing out your order form.

Farmers and the Victory Loan

War loan canvassers will be hard at work again on October 19. The minimum objective for Canada's third victory loan is 750 million dollars. The finance minister, whose difficult task is to find the money to pay the country's war bills, states that the loan must be well oversubscribed.

Many plans are being laid to insure success of the loan. One of these is of particular interest to farmers. It is the "victory ticket method." The victory ticket is simply an order authorizing the buyers of any farm product, which has a ready cash market, to withhold a part of the proceeds from producers delivered immediately or in the future to pay for a war loan bond or war savings certificate purchaser. When remitted to provincial headquarters of the National War Finance Committee, securities equal in value to the proceeds received will be sent to the farmer.

Elevator companies, packing companies, produce dealers, livestock commission firms, creamery operators, meat merchants, etc., will all be made thoroughly familiar with the plan and will be supplied with the necessary forms.

Thousands of farmers have been doing a splendid job by raising those food commodities urgently needed for war. Those same farmers want to do more. They are anxious to support the victory loan. It has been suggested that they may do so by means of savings certificates for the reason that, at the time of the campaign, they just have not had the cash on hand. This new plan will be welcomed by farmers. They will see in it an opportunity to do their part that much more in winning the war.—Contributed by T. B. Pickersgill, K.C.

CLAIMS CARBURETTOR GIVES LONG GAS MILEAGE

Keen interest has been created in the claim of a Chester man, Miles Stebbins, that he has invented a carburetor that will give 125 miles per gallon, of gasoline.

In these times, when there is a shortage of gasoline and rationing has become necessary, such an invention is of vital interests to motorists. It has been suggested that the inventor lay his discovery before the National Research Council of Canada and that his interests would be fully protected if it were found that the invention stood up to necessary tests.

The Alberta Motor Association is interested in measures that will give greater mileage to cars and officials will watch any action concerning the fabulously invention that will be of concern to and benefit motorists.

The inventor says the most saving is on cars that travel more than 60 miles per hour. (Federal Wartime regulations bar car owners from exceeding 40 miles per hour.) Using his invention, the car engine will take less gasoline when operated between 40 and 70 miles per hour, says Schofield.

The inventor says that simple mechanism is used for his carburetor. No moulding or casting is necessary and it is a simple matter to start the motor. He says the invention gives the engine a better performance and more "pep".

Most of our young men are away on various threshing outfits, Jimmy and Ray Gordon with Jack Schaumleffle's outfit, Clive Jones with Carl Nelsen's outfit, Donald Davis with Jim Rankin, also Mr. Millis. George Stewart is with his brother's outfit. To date no threshing has been done in this district except Jack Schaumleffle.

Louise Davis is home for a week nursing a crushed hand. While loading coal from Cash's coal shed the plank on the platform broke, throwing her forward and catching her hand between a large lump of coal and a board. However we are glad to say her hand is healing very rapidly.

We received a letter recently from Charlie Young, now in England. He says they had a fine crossing, making good time and encountering no bad weather. He wishes to be remembered to all his old friends and asks to hear the district news. Anyone wishing to drop Charlie a friendly line can get his address from Mrs. Davis.

Anne Gobeen has bought a house in Pikkleville and hopes to move his family in soon. We will all miss the Gobeen family out our way.

Kay Noonan has left her post at the creamery and is at home helping with the harvest. All hands are urgently needed on the farms these days, boys, girls and children. All are doing their share.

Who did we see digging spuds on the Davis farm a couple of weeks ago? We wonder!

Good Weather Is Needed For Harvest Work

Winnipeg.—Adverse weather conditions in the three prairie provinces have proven the major handicap in grain harvesting operations this year, it was disclosed by officials of the departments of agriculture.

Alberta and Saskatchewan both report 75 per cent. of the grain crop still to be threshed, while in Manitoba officials of the provincial department of agriculture reported more than 50 per cent., "and probably 55 per cent." of the threshing had been completed.

Rain during the latter part of September and small falls of snow caused the delay—estimated on the prairies at from one week to a month or more in some places.

Coupled with this has been the general scarcity of farm labor, with Saskatchewan farmers reported to be most seriously affected.

An estimated 8,000 workers now are needed in Saskatchewan, while official estimates place the number required in Alberta at around 3,000. Harvest workers are not needed in Manitoba for grain fields, but there is a pressing need for workers in the sugar beet fields.

Saskatchewan farmers, however, looked for some relief with arrangements made at Ottawa for the sending of 5,000 harvesters from eastern Canada.

The situation in Alberta, however, remained acute and agriculture department officials and the Edmonton branch of the unemployment insurance commission paid the only solution for the harvest problem is good weather in which to complete operations. Further assistance will be given Saskatchewan farmers by 600 students from the University of Saskatchewan.

Weather during the past fortnight has been favorable and aided farmers in cutting remaining portions of their crops, officials said.

Much of the grain, however, has been bleached and the grade of grain lowered.

The Canadian Pacific Railway crop report said threshing and combining have made considerable progress and estimated operations completed to the following extent, with last year's figures in parenthesis:

Manitoba: Wheat, 87 per cent. (72); oats and barley, 69 per cent. (71).

Saskatchewan: Wheat, 38 per cent. (66); oats and barley, 46 per cent. (84).

Alberta: Wheat, 30 per cent. (56); oats and barley, 34 per cent. (80).

FOREIGN TRADE

It Cut Off World Affect Canadian Way Of Life

Edmonton.—Hon. J. A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce, said in an interview here that "we cannot be too much on our guard against the spread in this country of economic nationalism and isolationism, no matter under what guise it may appear."

The minister said the absence of foreign trade would constitute a most serious attack "upon our Canadian standard and way of life."

Certain elements in Canada today are endeavoring to convince the people they can live quite well even if nothing whatever is imported into this country," Mr. MacKinnon asserted. "The doctrine of self-sufficiency is extremely dangerous to Canada's economy, even in time of war. It will be even more menacing to Canada's position when peace comes."

Probably no other country is so essentially an exporting nation as Canada. he continued but Canadians cannot export their surplus products under normal conditions unless the goods of other nations are received in return.

DEPLORES PUBLICITY

London — The London Times thinks we ought to do away with public debate on the question of a second front. The newspaper urges a comprehensive and co-ordinated Allied plan of strategy. Says the Times "The fact that debate is being waged within the enemy's hearing is one Axis asset in life and death struggle implies that something is wrong with the United Nations war organization."

GERMAN PILOT SURRENDERS

Moscow.—A German pilot landed his plane in Soviet lines, the Russian high command reported. He climbed out and surrendered, explaining to his captors that he had no faith in a Nazi victory and did not want to shed his blood for Adolf Hitler.

AIR RAIDS

Hon. R. J. Manion Tells Possibility Of Attacks On Canada

Ottawa.—Hon. R. J. Manion, director of civil air raid precautions, said he will be very much surprised if some Canadian cities—inland as well as on the coast—are not attacked from the air before the war ends and that less than half the cities of Canada have proper fire-fighting equipment to meet even normal peacetime needs.

The lack of fire-fighting equipment is almost a crime against our national life, he said in an address prepared for delivery over a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation network in connection with observance of Fire Prevention Week.

Using Four-Ton Bombs To Blast Enemy Targets

London.—Big bombs, little bombs, fatal bombs and skinny bombs, each for a special job, have become big news these days as the United Nations blast Axis targets on land and sea from the Middle East to the Channel.

Headlines were made when the air ministry announced the Royal Air Force had begun using four-ton missiles to scourge the Reich. They're a far cry from the 16-pounders used early in the last war to break up a defence works or damage a factory.

Those "toy" bombs were tossed over by the aircraft. Now delicate fingers of steel grip delayed-action bombs, armor-piercing bombs, anti-personnel bombs and anti-submarine bombs until a bomb aimer releases them.

Dropping an 8,000-pound bundle of destruction is "rather like tossing a brick into a puddle of water—that is if you can imagine a block of brick the size of St. James' Park in a puddle of water," said an airman who has seen the bomb fall into the heart of a flame-lit Nazi city.

"The brick tobs into the middle. The water flushes away. Then it comes back—'wee' again. Then it flies in all directions and the middle of the once placid little puddle is left just a dirty wet patch."

These big bombs, of course, do their damage with blast — terrific irresistible blast that rolls out in a sheet of white flame. Most of it moves laterally so it spends almost all its power on the target. But planes a mile in the sky have been known to have been tossed on their backs by the explosion.

Blast bombs, however, represent just one branch of the destructive genius which is the foundation of offensive air operations. The range and nature of Britain's air-borne missiles are constantly being revised. Even the choice of paint for the finished article is important

NEW SCHOLARSHIP

Fredericton. — Dr. Lorne Pierce of the Ryerson Press, Toronto, will turn over to University of New Brunswick all royalties received in trust from sale of the works of the late Bliss Carman, the royalties to be used for establishing a scholarship in English to be known as the Bliss Carman 3485 : Look at the long lines of the new tanks stretching off into the distance maybe towards a second front.

GERMAN PRISONERS

Part Of Rommel's Afrika Corps Arrive In Canada

An blue Coast Canadian Port.—Sullen German tank men from Rommel's Afrika Corps, nearly 1,000 strong, now are safely tucked away in Canadian internment camps for the duration after landing at this port.

Arrival in Canada instead of the promised Cairo, where Rommel had said they were headed, had done nothing to improve their tempers, and they did not seem pleased to exchange the heat and dust of the desert for this climate.

But they gave no trouble, officers in charge of the prisoners said, either at the landing here or on the long boat trip from the Mediterranean to this Dominion. Tough Polish soldiers, fanatic enemies of the Nazis, made sure of that as they guarded the eGrmans on the long ocean jaunt.

"The Polish soldiers behaved admirably," the English colonel in charge said, "only they were a little too strict. But no one could blame them for that."

One German took this opportunity to display his long-hidden hate for Nazism. On the boat trip he was guarded separately, not to keep him from escaping but to keep fellow prisoners from attacking him.

He was glad to be a prisoner as that meant he was free from the rule of Hitler. He insisted there were many others who thought as he did and were only waiting a similar opportunity to break free.

MILITARY EQUIPMENT

United States, Great Britain and Russia Sign Protocol

Washington.—The United States, Great Britain and Russia signed a protocol covering delivery of military equipment, munitions and raw materials to the Soviet Union by Britain and the United States.

The protocol gives formal acceptance to agreements already in effect providing for the continuance without interruption of the supply program inaugurated at Moscow conference a year ago.

The protocol was signed for the United States by the acting secretary of state, Sumner Welles; for Britain by Sir Ronald Campbell, British minister and for the Soviet Union by Ambassador Maxim Litvinof.

Ottawa.—Further development of voluntary organizations which now are playing valuable roles in various nation-wide wartime economy campaigns is being considered by the government, it was learned here.

The aim is to increase the effectiveness of these voluntary services in national drives like the salvage campaign, and to bring more workers into such organizations

FRENCH RESISTANCE

Mobilization Against The Nazis Becoming More Violent

London —A fiery spirit of resistance to the Germans is taking the place of apathy in France

Qualified observers in London who never have been inclined to place much faith in reports of French opposition to the German occupiers, say now reaction against both the Nazis and Vichy is becoming more violent as the Germans put on the screw.

"France definitely would react more powerfully now than a month ago," said one source, attributing the change to Laval's German-inspired decree conscripting labor and to the anti-Semitic drive.

These moves, the former a potential threat to every Frenchman and the latter antagonizing Roman Catholic elements, were described as "sheer folly".

Militarily, it was admitted, France will have to be moved, for she is a defeated nation without arms, but recently she is being goaded out of the apathetic state which followed her collapse in 1940.

SET ON REVENGE

Chinese Soldiers Are Eager To Learn Latest War Tactics

Somewhere in Eastern India.—The second battle of Burma is brewing in a peaceful village deep in the heart of the Himalayan mountains.

There, Chinese soldiers who retreated, sick and discouraged, before the triumphant Jap advance, from Rangoon to Mandalay, are being trained in modern warfare by white officers and a dozen Chinese who are determined to go home, by way of the invasion route through Burma.

Classes are held in the low, red-brick buildings of a former prison camp, and the Chinese soldiers are almost pitifully eager to learn how to use the latest weapons and learn the latest war tactics. They've got their hearts set on revenge.

United Nations To Investigate Nazi War Crimes

London. The British government has proposed creation of a United Nations commission for the investigation of war crimes, Viscount Simon, the lord chancellor disclosed in the house of lords.

Lord Simon said the proposal had been communicated to several other nations, including Russia, China, the Dominions, India and the Fighting French, with a view to obtaining their concurrence and it was pointed out that President Roosevelt had announced it, Washington that the U.S. is ready to co-operate

Lord Simon said that organized atrocities perpetrated by or on orders of Germany in Occupied France should be included in the scope of the commission's investigation, and that it should cover the activities of offenders regardless of their rank.

The latter provision was interpreted at first glance as meaning the commission would study war crimes guilt from the lowest private to Hitler himself.

Lord Simon said governments here of Allied nations already had given their approval

"Our object," he asserted, "is not to undertake or encourage mass executions, but to fix these horrible crimes upon those enemy individuals who are really responsible and ought to be dealt with as criminals."

STILL A DANGER

Winter Would Not Keep Japan From Attacking Siberia

Bombay Don't count too much on General Winter to prevent the Japs from invading Siberia. Experienced observers in India think a Japanese assault on Russia is likely this winter—and that the weather will help, not hinder, the enemy.

For one thing, the ground is hard instead of soggy, and rivers, which ordinarily create a bridge building problem, will be frozen solid. Additionally, the ice at Vladivostok will immobilize the Russian submarine double. And winter weather would hamper Allied efforts to reinforce Russia s eastern air force

The observers point out that the Japs made their conquest of North China in the dead of winter The Japs have half a million of the best chosen troops in Asia, garrisoned in Manchukuo—not counting the recent reinforcements

The Far Eastern strategists feel that the conquest of Siberia is Japan s most military objective

HEALTH OF WORKERS

Edmonton. General health conditions in Canadian industrial plants has shown substantial improvement in the past year, Dr. C. F. Blackler, of Ottawa, in charge of the industrial hygiene branch of the department of pensions and national health, said in an interview here.

Canadian Naval Forces Aided In Aleutian Islands

Ottawa.—Navy Minister Macdonald announced that a Canadian naval force of five warships co-operated with the United States force which effected the recent landings of the Japanese in the Aleutian islands.

The United States navy announced on Wednesday, Oct. 7 that positions in the Andreanof group of islands in the Aleutians had been occupied, without opposition by American armed troops with naval support The date and the extent of the operation were not announced although it was said at Ottawa previously that Canadian forces have been taking part in operations near the Japanese in the Aleutian area It was also made known previously that Canadian warships have been working with American naval units in the Aleutian area

In reporting that a Canadian naval force had its share in the operation, Mr Macdonald added that it was but natural that details of how Canadian forces are co-operating with other forces of the United Nations

"We have reason to be proud," he said, "of the work which our navy has been doing in the Atlantic ever since the first day of war. It has been both defensive and offensive defending our coasts and our convoys and carrying offensive action against the enemy whenever our ships could contact him

"Now we have taken our part in an offensive action in the Pacific, have had our share in seizing the initiative from the Japanese and co-operating in a move which will put the United Nations in better positions to attack them."

WEST IS THANKED FOR SCRAP METAL

Hull Steel Foundries Head Says Output of War "Tools" Assured

HULL, Que., Oct. 7.—Western scrap metals, recently collected, will prevent many an Eastern war plant from being throttled in production, says Harold P. Coplan, president of Hull Steel Foundries, Ltd., who has written Wartime Salvage Ltd., of Ottawa, that the West merits the thanks of all Canada for its invaluable contribution to beating the Axis. Mr. Coplan's letter says:

"Thousands of tons of steel scrap which you have shipped to Hull Steel Foundries, Ltd., now have reached our plant and insure full-time operation of our foundry during the entire winter ahead.

"I understand this scrap was collected in a drive which your corporation staged recently throughout the Prairie Provinces. I feel I cannot allow the occasion to pass without extending to our fellow-Canadians of the West the sincere congratulations of Hull Steel Foundries, Ltd., upon the magnificent response they have made to your appeal for material so essential to maintaining the flow of 'tools' to our boys and our allies.

"Beyond question, a number of war plants might well have been throttled in their production for want or raw material, if not for the timely help that came out of the West. In the case of Hull Steel Foundries, we can now guarantee for months ahead a steady supply of steel castings vital to Canada's war production.

"As one executive engaged on priority contracts, I think it only just that the people of the prairies should be informed of the true value of the scrap they have turned over; equally, I hope all Canadians will be made appropriately aware of the invaluable contribution the West thus has made to our country's war effort."

RATION BOOKS ARE INDEX TO POPULATION

Considerable Increase Noted

Since every man, woman and child in Canada has been issued a ration book to share in scarce commodities, sugar, tea and coffee, the statistics gleaned from the number of ration books distributed is a poll of the population in Canada. Anyone missing his ration book definitely turns up to get it, whereas, the official census frequently is apt to miss many persons in its check.

Statistics indicate that the ration book system credits Canada with a population of 11,507,912, while the Dominion census of June, 1941, reported a grand total of 11,495,847. This reflects a net increase of 101,065 in population in less than a year, despite the thousands of men who have gone overseas in the armed forces since the official census was taken.

The ration census also indicates the ebb and flow of people across the Dominion, resulting from concentration of war industries, and military activity.

Greatest increase is noted in Montreal and Toronto and their suburban districts. In British Columbia war industrial activity has raised the population of Vancouver by 14,804, to a total of 409,969. In contrast some of the prairie cities have shown a decrease in population as their citizens are drawn to the centres of greater industrial activity. Calgary, Saskatoon, Regina, and Winnipeg all indicate a decrease. Edmonton, centre of Alaska highway and air route activities has an increase of 8,866

AIR RECRUITS

About 200 students have signed up to take air force training at the University this year, Dr. Robert Newton, president, announced here. This is nearly four times the figure expected. Candidates will be given the same rigorous R.C.A.F. examinations as those joining on active service. Those who pass will belong to the air force reserve.

CANCER REDUCTION

Reduction in the percentage of cases (fingernail as Cancer is expected this year, Dr. G. H. Malcolmson, director for the Provincial Department of Health, told the annual convention of the Alberta Hospital Association. A free clinical service introduced last year examined 1,142 cases, of which 50 per cent had cancer. Dr. Malcolmson said the improvement would be due to educational programs to make the people more cancer conscious. Alberta is the only part of this continent where free diagnosis, free X-ray and surgical treatment is provided.

BEEF PRICES NOW ON UP

Upward revision of the wholesale ceiling prices of beef and stricter control of retail prices is announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The wholesale price level will advance seasonally until June at which point it will be 25 cents per cwt. above the ceiling price announced last June. It is stated that next June the Board intends to declare the June price as the only ceiling, and the prices will be left free to fluctuate, seasonally, under that ceiling in accordance with actual market conditions.

If beef shortages appear to be more than temporary, rationing will be introduced, the Board announces in a statement that plans for meat rationing are being studied and prepared.

The Board states that cattle prices, as distinct from beef prices will not be subject to actual ceiling at present. If recurrent beef shortages should cause a black market forcing cattle prices to unduly high levels, it will be necessary to impose livestock price ceilings.

But the Wartime Food Corporation is prepared to buy cattle if at any time a surplus threatens to depress cattle prices unduly, and after supplying a reserve supply for domestic consumption will export any remaining surplus cattle.

Retail prices will be more strictly controlled. The Board states that it is considering an order defining the standard cuts of beef. Retailers may not sell for more than their margin obtained in the basic period, and the Board now orders that no retailer may sell for more than seven cents per pound above his cost, (whether he obtains a whole carcass or a wholesale cut.

EDMEN LICENSE FEES FOR PLEASURE CARS

Lower license fees for passenger cars and motor trucks now are in effect in Alberta, according to information which the Alberta Motor Association has received from the provincial authorities. These are the customary reductions at this time.

Since Oct. 1, there has been a 40 per cent discount on motor car licenses. This means that a license which on April 1 last, when the year opened, cost $20 now may be purchased for $12 and will be good until March 31, next.

On Jan. 1, next, there will be a 75 per cent reduction in the annual license fee, so that car owners may operate cars for the last three months of the license period for 25 per cent of the annual license cost.

Provincial authorities state that this year, due to rationing restrictions, particularly gasoline, and the restrictions on purchase of car tires, the number of licenses is expected to show a decrease. Compared with the record total of 94,000 passenger car licenses in the 1941-42 license year ended March 31, last, this year's total is expected to be in the neighborhood of 90,000. This may show a pick up in the next few months, but it is not expected to be substantial

License fees for motor trucks were reduced by 40 per cent on Sept. 1, and the discount will be increased to 75 per cent on Jan. 1 on new applications.

ISLAY

THRESHING IN FULL SWING

Threshing has been going forward now since the beginning of the month and quite a number of farmers have already marketed their quotas. Rail-road cars seem hard to get and if they do not come more freely our elevators will be plugged. Grades run from 3 to 6.

FIRE DESTROYS FARM HOME

A fire destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Saul East, near the river on Tuesday. The men were away in the fields so very little was saved. Mrs. East received some burns trying to save her household graces and was brought into the Islay hospital.

WEDDING BELLS

Now for a bit of more cheering news. Mr. Bill Hanna, who lives by Kenilworth Lake, was married to Miss Marjorie Curtiss, Monday, in Kitscoty. Ask Elmer what difficulties are entailed during a busy time, getting a couple married. The minister was in the harvest field, etc, etc. The community wish the happy couple a long and joyous life.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher are about to leave our midst. Mr. Gallagher retires from the railroad. They will be missed in church and community life where they have been a great help.

Telephone line 2 is out or order again. Haven't been able to have our social chats.

Bill Rothwell, engineering student at the University, spent the Thanksgiving week end at the farm north of town. Bill arrived just at the right time to help out a lot with threshing operations. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Millward and Baby Donald from Vermilion also spent Sunday and Monday at the Rothwell home.

Sunday October 18th has been set as National Patriotic Day. A very fine program has been arranged to be carried out in the churches and elsewhere. It will be observed in Knox church Sunday evening at 7.30. It is a privilege none should pass up. Are we a Free People? Then let us enter our freedom in attending service at patriotic celebration Sunday somewhere.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

We are very sorry to have missed sending in bulletins for the past week or two but Ye Ed was very busy helping with the harvest.

The deepest sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs Gardner on the recent sudden tragic death of her husband.

Due to the fine weather of the past two weeks quite an acreage in the district has been threshed out. The shortage of men is certainly felt on the outfits and makes it a hard task as well as a lengthy one.

Mr. and Mrs. Courtenay were recent dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dodsell. The former lived at the Dodsell farm until some six months ago when his parents returned to England. Mrs. Courtenay is stationed with the C.W.A.C. in Vermilion Sincere sympathy is extended to Mrs. Morgan who was recently bereaved by the death of her mother at Marshall, Sask.

Arrives Safely Overseas

Word was received last week that Sidney Biddle has arrived safely in England with another large force of Canadians.

George Lind has also arrived overseas.

Miss M Morrison spent a few days with her parents returning to Edmonton on Monday

Miss M Sample was noticed helping at the Harrison home while the threshers were there

George and Margaret Gow are school absentees these days suffering from the mumps.

These dark mornings caused by daylight saving time certainly make it difficult to work in the country. One man was returning to the Bowtell outfit he was working on at about 5.30a.m and thinking he knew the way to instruct just kept right on walking through bushes, fields, over fences etc, until he finally came to an outfit. No one was there so he sat down to wait until daylight and the crew arrived, only to find out that it was a different outfit altogether. Just wandered a mile out his way was all buff said, ask Joe for more particulars.

Noticed hither and yon Mr. Alva driving a nice looking car; Mr. McPartlan threshing on the Forbes farm; Miss D Dupuis spending Sunday at the Biddle home; Mrs. Dwford busy quilting for the Red Shield; The Gannon family visiting on Sunday in Islay at the home of Mrs. Gannon Sr.; Over neighborly news on Sunday the writer was pleased to hear that the town men had been helping out by stooking at the McFarlane farm and other places in the district.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OCTOBER 18

GROWTH IN CHRIST

Golden text: Grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and [redacted] Jesus Christ. II Peter 3:18.

Lesson: Luke 2:40-52; Hebrews 5. 11-14; II Peter 1.1-8.

Devotional reading: Ephesians 4. 13-16.

Explanations and Comments

How Jesus Grew, Luke 2:40, 52. The Boy Jesus' development was threefold, physical, mental and spiritual.

Like every one who lives, Jesus began his earthly life as a helpless infant, and like all normal children his powers developed gradually. As a child he grew physically and grew strong; as he increased in wisdom and stature he grew spiritually, in favor with God and man. He had a gradual development until he attained a perfect manhood.

"You know the Child Jesus in a picture at once, by a halo round his brow. There was no glory in his real life to mark him: we know this, for in after years his brethren thought his fame strange, and his townsmen rejected him. Gradually and gently he woke to consciousness of life and its manifold meanings; gradually and not at once he embraced the sphere of human duties, and he woke to his earthly relationships one by one—the Son, the Brother, the Citizen, the Master. It is a very deep and beautiful and precious truth that the Eternal Son had a human and progressive childhood."

The Christian Life One of Continual Growth and Progress, II Peter 1.1-8. The letter begins with an impressive statement of the writer as Simon Peter (giving both his Jewish name and his Christ-given name) and his identification as a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ. The letter is written to all "that have obtained a like precious faith with us in the righteousness of our God and the Saviour Jesus Christ." Note that the article "the" before "Saviour Jesus Christ" is italicized showing that it is not in the original Greek, and over all under the difference which its omission would make. The greeting is "Grace to you and peace be multiplied in the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord." Growth in grace and so in peace come through the knowledge and service of Christ.

"True growth is growth in the knowledge of Christ. That does not merely mean the knowledge about Christ. As far as that is concerned, we know only what his disciples have told us. Knowledge of Christ means something deeper. It means the knowledge of him as personal Friend, entering into our lives with guiding and challenge. We can know him as a power that inspires and comforts. We can know his ways with us, how he would have us bear ourselves in trouble or difficulty. To know him means to enter into all that he means for our life" (James Reid).

Steadily Draws Nearer

Hitler's Armies Cannot Escape The Final Day Of Reckoning

I wonder, says Beverley Bradfern, in People, if Hitler realizes how Great Britain is becoming every week, more like an enormous camp, or how aerodromes are being laid out, and men being trained, and munitions being stored, in readiness for the invasion of which Dieppe was only a try-out.

A month before the war, it took me nearly all day, with short stops at Amsterdam and Copenhagen, to fly to Gdynia. A short time ago, R.A.F. bombers flew all the way there, raided the port, and flew back.

Soon, no point which the Germans hold will be safe.

The "long-term" policy has been decided on, despite the demands for a second front immediately. Well, the day of its fulfilment draws near.

By then, the Americans will be ready.

DISCONTINUE TROOP MESSAGES ON CBC

During Mr. Gladstone Murray's talk entitled "Radio—The Fourth Arm" on September 21st over the CBC National Network he spoke of the CBC Overseas Unit and its important war task of providing a link between the forces overseas and their homeland. One method employed to this end is personal messages from Canadians abroad to their families and friends at home, and while these broadcasts serve a useful purpose for a time, changing circumstances and necessary limitations which have made it impossible to eliminate disappointment and irritation are reasons for the discontinuance of this service after October 18.

The two methods of bringing these messages to Canada are by short wave and by recordings conveyed by sea and neither method is completely reliable or satisfactory. Ships are lost, and messages sent by air sometimes fail because of bad transmission conditions.

Another point to be considered is that while Canada had a relatively small force overseas, the great number of men Canada now has in Britain makes its quite impossible to bring even a small percentage of these men to the microphone.

Perhaps most important and urgent of all the reasons set forth by Mr. Murray is the question of casualties and the attendant heartache suffered by the family of a man reported as "Killed in Action" or "Missing" after he has made his broadcast from, say, the Beaver Club in London and before his message is rebroadcast to his family.

It is over military communication channels that some of the lists of the men who participate in CBC broadcasts from Britain have traveled to Canada and usually this has meant that the important channels have been overloaded and that vital information was delayed while the lists were being sent.

The CBC Unit overseas will continue to develop the work of reporting the activities of the Canadian forces in Britain and will send word pictures by means of features and documentary broadcasts to listeners in Canada.

THOSE WHO LIKE LIFE!

There are some people who are mild never to know what fears mean. The greater hero, however is the man who is afraid but who is too proud to show it. That is real heroism, and a man who has that sort of courage will go through life and become a great leader.—Earl Jellicoe.

If half the energy was devoted to predicting success as to prophecying disaster and calamity, the world would be a much brighter place to live in.

CONVERSION SURPLUS WHEAT INTO ALCOHOL, RUBBER IS ADVOCATED

ERECTION OF DISTILLERIES IN WEST PROPOSED BY LINE ELEVATORS

"Necessity of finding new sources from which to derive essential products for successful prosecution of the war has created opportunities for expansion of the industrial utilization of Canada's surplus wheat. The Allied nations are faced with the necessity of immediately securing synthetic rubber and various forms of alcohol from products which readily lend themselves to this conversion," according to a statement issued today by the North-West Line Elevators Association.

"Wheat can be used in large quantities for manufacture of higher forms of alcohol for conversion into synthetic rubber. Wheat also is particularly suited for conversion into explosives, chemicals and high test motor fuels required by fast-moving fighting planes and bombers," the statement continues.

"More than two and one half years prior to the outbreak of war Line Elevator Companies advocated, before the Turgeon Royal Grain Inquiry Commission that the Government give practical consideration to studying the possibilities of finding additional uses for farm products. Following this the Line Elevator Companies' representative visited the principal research laboratories in the United States to make a report on the possibilities of wheat and other farm products being utilized in industrial products. This report, which was laid before the Dominion Government, indicated a field for extensive use of wheat in manufacture of motor fuel. The Government was then urged to erect experimental motor fuel plants and to establish laboratories designed especially to conduct research into finding new and expanded uses for wheat and other farm products.

"Canada's carryover of old crop wheat at July 31st, 1942, was 404,425 bushels. The 1942 crop is estimated at 280,000,000 bushels, or all told, 685,000,000 bushels. It is believed that it will take delivery of only 240,000,000 bushels of the 1942 crop.

"With the Japanese at her front gate, Australia, in July of this year, put into operation the first of four distilleries for conversion of wheat into power alcohol. When Australia's present new alcohol plants are completed it is said she will have four distilleries producing annually 4,000,000 gallons of alcohol each year. If Australia can develop industrial wheat alcohol on such a scale and at such speed and danger as she is now passing through it would be possible for this continent in likewise deal now that the huge surpluses stocks of wheat.

American Agreements

"Nothing constructive is being accomplished to meet the present problem of the wheat farmer. It is true that an International Wheat Conference is several months, held a series of meetings. This conference was attended by representatives from Canada, Argentina, Britain, Australia and the United States. Certain conclusions were reached, but none have taken effect after the war.

"It is most difficult to share any optimism that an International Conference such as that held at Washington can or will have any appreciable effect on the post-war wheat situation. For any conference to be effective it must be attended by all interested Nations, and particularly by those Canada and other exporting countries export an wheat post-war customers. Such a conference is, of course, now impossible and may be for some period of time after the close of hostilities. Previous World Wheat Conferences did nothing to solve past and present wheat problems and there is little reason to expect any worthwhile results from future conferences. Importing countries have shown in the past that they will buy wheat from whence it can be most cheaply purchased," says the statement.

"Importing countries frowned on the attempts made by wheat exporting countries to dictate wheat prices in the decade following the Great War. These attempts added to their desire for self-sufficiency in production of foodstuffs. Both men and nations will resist price dictation and monopoly in the necessities of life. No wheat exporting nation or combination of wheat exporting nations, could long maintain a price level on wheat which would prove satisfactory to both producer and consumer. The interests of these two opposing factions are too remote to hope that an International Council, regardless of how powerful, could fix a price which would result in Canada maintaining her rank as the breadbasket of the world. Argentina, commercialized during the term of the last World Wheat Agreement that export quotas mean little or nothing when a country has a surplus and no lie shelves that its farm population has produced and must sell.

Expanded Markets is Solution

"The position taken by the Line Elevator Companies, prior to the War, was that solution of the wheat problem lay in expanding existing markets, locating new and profitable markets and uses for wheat and return to free International exchange of goods, rather than restricting production and placing quotas on sales of wheat abroad. That still is the policy of the Line Elevator Companies. In the return to free International exchange of goods, as soon as possible after the War, lies the real hope of the wheat farmer. Meanwhile every possible avenue of expanding uses for wheat must be explored.

"Wheat farmers have met the demands of the Federal government in reducing wheat acreage. The Canada Wheat Board, by law, is permitted to accept delivery of only 240,000,000 bushels of the 1942 crop. What will the farmers do with the balance of the 1942 crop? That balance will amount to approximately 440,000,000 bushels.

"Canada and her Allies need high test motor fuels for their fighting airplanes. The higher forms of alcohols are also needed for synthetic rubber and should be given priorities than are now being professed. The necessary supplies can be obtained through conversion of wheat into various forms of alcohol such as ethyl alcohol, butyl alcohol and butylene glycol and which in turn can be converted into rubber.

Distilleries Needed in West

"Unfortunately the Line Elevator Companies were not successful, prior to the War, and in the early War years, in having the Dominion Government take the erection of distilleries for the conversion of wheat into alcohol. Had such been the case steps to secure the material and labor required for the erection of the necessary plants for converting wheat into alcohol, for instance, a few days ago announced that from November 1st the output of all distilleries will be directed to the manufacture of commodities required in the production of synthetic rubber and explosives and explosive need of the Allies, to adequately meet the situation action should be taken to determine the advisability of erecting distillery plants at strategic points throughout the West for War purposes and in which wheat would be converted into alcohols required in the manufacture of synthetic rubber and into high test motor fuels for airplanes. The conference was attended by representatives from Canada, Argentina, Britain, Australia and the United States. Certain conclusions were reached, none have taken effect after the war.

"It is most difficult to share any optimism that an International Conference such as that held at Washington can or will have any appreciable effect on the post-war wheat situation. For any conference to be effective it must be attended by all interested Nations, and particularly by those Canada and other exporting countries export an wheat post-war customers. EVERY POUND OF SCRAP METAL MUST BE SALVAGED

Scrap metal is now needed by our war industries in unprecedented quantities. There are tons and tons of it rusting on our farms, in stone, disused dwellings, in sheds, and factories. This scrap metal must be quickly turned in or we shall endanger the flow of weapons and supplies to our armed forces. The movement of scrap to central collecting points must be accelerated during the next few short time we still have before winter sets in.

The Canadian farmer will have two crops of harvest this year. The first of these is a regular one, while the other is for agriculturists an unusual one, scrap metal—old bits of iron and steel, broken tools and obsolete machinery.

The best of steel is made from mixture of pig iron made from raw ore and scrap metal. We have adequate supplies of ore but there is a potential shortage of scrap. Unless half a million tons of this scrap is added to Canada's stock piles before winter sets in, some units in Canada's steel mills may have to be closed.

Everyone must contribute his share, farmer, industrialist, and housekeeper, else the harvest we shall reap may be a bitter one for us to reap. The time of the first harvest on our farms will soon be over; farmers will then have some time for this second harvest.

The tremendous tonnage of scrap [redacted] which have accumulated through the years, discarded and unwanted, is now a precious store which must be made available for our war industries. Don't depend on the other fellow to get it in. You know where some of it lies dormant right now. He does not. It is up to you, and don't wait until it is too late.

IRON FOR WINTER PIGS

Litters of pigs born between Oct. and May require iron to prevent anemia

One of the easiest and cheapest methods of providing the iron is to throw a chunk of sod about one foot square to each litter daily. By rooting around in the soil and playing with the sod the little pigs secure enough iron to keep them in good health

Sods can be easily obtained this fall as the soil is wet and there is a good growth of grass. They can be plowed up, cut into foot lengths and piled close to the breeding house

Another method of preventing anemia is to administer reduced iron. It can be purchased at any drug store and is given to each pig [redacted] Place as much reduced iron as will lie on a dime well back on the piglet's tongue on the seventh and fourteenth day after birth

The feeding of iron is a "must" in winter litters. Not only does it prevent anemia, but it keeps the little pigs in better health.

Radio In Canada

OF GENERAL INTEREST throughout Canada is the recent announcement of a new program policy for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. The importance of radio in wartime is great both as a source of information and news and as a medium of entertainment. Discouragement and depression are serious detriments in time of war and the radio can do much to inspire confidence and bolster morale across the land. The Axis nations have long recognized the power of radio in this respect, and much of the burning faith felt by the Axis soldiers in their cause is attributed to the highly developed propaganda machines of the countries. In addition to inspiring their own people they have used the radio widely in an attempt to break down the spirit of the people of the United Nations

Many Stations Used By Axis

It is said that there are more than one hundred Axis medium and long wave-lengths speaking for the Axis while only about six speak in the English language. However the British Broadcasting Corporation has been aiming steadily to work up a great instrument of propaganda, and there is now a staff of eleven thousands workers engaged in this undertaking. Canada is following this lead with the early establishment of a powerful short wave station which will have a worldwide audience. Major Gladstone Murray director-general for broadcasting of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in announcing the plans for the creation of this station said "The voice of Canada on the world's radio short waves will be symbolic of our proportioned maturity. It will be for us broadcasters to make sure that our message to the rest of the world is vigorously typical of Canada worthy of our status as a member of the British Commonwealth, as a North American nation and as a partner in the great alliance of freedom."

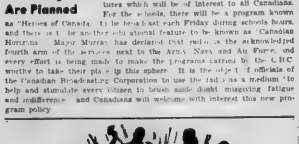
New Programs Are Planned

Important changes are being made in programs for listeners at home and there will be new features which will be of interest to all Canadians. For the schools, there will be a program known as "Heroes of Canada" to be heard last each Friday during schools hours, and there will be another educational feature to be known as "Canadian Horizons." Major Murray has declared that radio is the acknowledged fourth arm of the services next to the Army, Navy and Air Force, and every effort is being made to make the programs serve it in the capacity worthy to take their place in this sphere. It is the object of officials of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to use the radio as a medium to help and stimulate every citizen to brush aside doubt, misgiving, fatigue and indifference and Canadians will welcome with interest this new program policy



At the present no meat the Canadian public can obtain is cheap and palatable source of minerals and vitamins those food elements so vital to maintaining health. This source of potential health is the years crop of vegetables. Despite certain periods of scarcity, the crop has been an excellent one well beyond expectations. It is up to the Canadian housewife to see that the supply of vitamins and minerals really arrives at the table where it will do the most good. This she can only do if she uses the modern up-to-date cooking methods

Here are some interesting facts: three things happen to vegetable vitamins before you eat them and also a true chiefly of the B vitamins and vitamin C. First some vitamin is destroyed, lost for good. Second, part of both vitamins and mineral dissolves in the cooking water. Third, a lot of what is left if the vitamin "juice" also when if you leave your vegetables sitting around in the warming oven before serving

Now the longer the cooking period the greater the total destruction of vitamins, the more water you use the greater the loss by dissolving in the cooking water. So here are your rules for conservation of vitamins and minerals

1 Cook all vegetables as lightly as possible
2 Cook them as quickly as possible
3 Serve them as soon as they are cooked

In other words time your cooking so that the last job before serving the meal is putting the final touches to the vegetables and do it fast

And here is something you may not know. There is one vegetable that benefits by the soda treatment, the humble navy bean. A dash of soda for keeping that freshly cooked color of course the most efficient way of destroying most of the vitamins of any green vegetable But try a little soda with your boiled beans and remember not green and you get the opposite effect That is because the alkali in of the soda softens up the tough bean coat and reduces your cooking time so that you gain more than you lose Navy beans in the raw are an excellent source of vitamin B1 and a rod to be despised meat substitute

By writing to the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road Toronto, you can obtain a free up to date Vitamin Chart and a booklet Canadian Vegetables For Every Day

SELECTED RECIPES

SPICED FRUIT LOAF

3 cups all-purpose flour
4½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon cloves
½ cup sugar
½ cup chopped walnuts
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup milk
¾ cup Crown Brand Syrup
½ cup Margola
Temperature 350 degrees F.
Time 1 hour
Method Sift dry ingredients; stir in nuts and currants. Combine well beaten eggs, milk and corn syrup. Add all at once to dry mixture; stir lightly. Add margola, blend. Turn into pan 14" x 5" x 3" lined with heavy paper and oiled with margola. Bake in moderate oven. Let stand 24 hours before slicing

POPCORN BALLS

5 to 6 quarts popped corn (1-½ cups unpopped)
1 pound (2 cups firmly packed) light brown sugar
½ cup Crown syrup
½ cup water
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter

Method: Cook together, in a large saucepan, without stirring, the light brown sugar, Crown syrup, water and salt. When the mixture will form a little ball in cold water (235 degrees on candy thermometer), (Stir occasionally toward the end of the cooking period, so that the mixture will not burn). About three minutes before the completion of the cooking, stir in gently the four tablespoons of butter. When it has reached 285 degrees F. remove from the fire and quickly add the popcorn to the hot syrup. Stir and turn with a large spoon so that each kernel may be evenly coated with syrup. If the mass becomes too hard to mix, heat the mixture again gently over a low heat. With hands lightly greased (using margola or butter), shape popcorn mixture into balls, using little pressure. Let cool, and wrap in waxed paper. Yield about three dozen large popcorn balls.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army

By Allan Maurice Irwin

It is quite a few weeks now since I was urgently chided by an editor for getting too personal about the Reserve Army, but it can't have been too bad because he published the article anyway.

If you give a columnist an inch he always takes the proverbial ell so here goes a little more about the men who are training themselves for home defence.

What brought the whole thing up was a suggestion made before the parade was dismissed the other night by the colonel that the best way to bring the regiment up to strength would be for every member to bring in one recruit. This suggestion appealed so strongly to a private soldier in one of the companies that he turned over to the Battalion for recruiting purposes, 500 agate lines of space which would otherwise have been devoted to advertising his own business during the month of September.

Another incident worth mentioning is the case of a private soldier who spent 14 days with us at camp. For this he drew pay at the rate of $1.30 per day and when his cheque was handed to him he borrowed a pen from the company commander and endorsed it over to the colonel with the message that there were no strings attached. In due course the Ladies' Auxiliary of our active service unit acknowledged to the soldier a contribution of $16.80 to its wool fund.

It is interesting to note that both the private soldiers referred to are farmers.

You can't help being personal about a Reserve Army which is looked upon as a personal institution. This is illustrated by the two cases I have mentioned Both of these men are of categories that do not call them for active service, both own their own businesses—they train in their own time and no generous employer makes them a present of two weeks holiday in which to go to camp

These men are not unique, in fact it is pretty safe to say that they are representative of the calibre of the soldiers of the Reserve Army as it is now constituted.

In other words, to the reserve soldier of today his unit is a personal thing. It is something to which he devotes not just the after-work-hours two nights a week, ten full Sundays in the year and 14 days at camp, but a good many minutes of fun time during the day.

He may not consciously think it, but in the back of the mind of every man who, though he may be working hard at a war job, finds time to practice many hours in training for the eventuality of attack upon his homeland, there is the realization that had it not been for trained citizen-soldiers, the story in Yugoslavia and Russia would have been very different.

History bears out that a country possessed of a trained citizen-soldiery in peace time is in less danger of attack than the country which has not taken this precaution. There must have been something wrong with Hitler's intelligence service. It obviously fell down badly so far as Russia was concerned—and his own intelligence should have told him what to expect from the Yugoslavs!

A few years before the outbreak of war in 1914 a telephone was introduced in England under the title "An Englishmen's Home". This play demonstrated with terrific stage effects and blood and death what happens when untrained citizens attempt to defend their homes against highly organized troops. If the lesson of this play had been learned and peaceful peoples had been prepared undoubtedly the 1914-1918 war would have been shorter and this one might not have occurred.

It is not only for the warlike arts that we should prepare ourselves in peace time, there are many peaceful arts that become not only virtues but stern necessities in time of war. The first of these, beyond doubt, is defence against inflation. It can the more rapidly become successful if, like military training, it has been carried on during the softer years of peace.

We were unprepared on both counts and on both counts The Individual Citizen's Army was responsible. We found that we had mere pennies in our pockets for luxuries, if we elected, or allowed to remain in office, politicians who pared down the budget by failing to provide funds for military training. Having saved those necessary tax pennies we wasted them on unnecessary frills—and now we find it hard to forego those frills.

By hard, in fact, have we found it that we have welcomed the setting up of governmental Boards and Commissions to compel us to discontinue our wasteful practices.

The Wartime Prices and Trade Board, one of the many wartime bodies we have created, is very much in the position of the instructors of the Reserve Army. We have placed ourselves under it just as volunteers place themselves under their sergeants and officers, and we are learning from it just as privates in the Reserve Army learn from their instructors, how to discipline ourselves so that we may become fit to meet the rigours of campaigning.

HIGH HEELS FORBIDDEN

Wartime "austerity" was extended to women's shoes throughout the British Isles when an order providing that after Nov. 1 all women's footwear must have wooden heels no more than two-and-one eighth inches high. Forbidden altogether, along with high heels, were "Louis" heels curving into the instep

STUNT FROM MOSCOW

Moscow radio recently declared that the following story was being told among German prisoners of war.

Hitler was inspecting the eastern front.

"What," he asked a German soldier, "would be your last wish if a Russian bomb fell near you?"

"I would wish," the soldier replied, "that my beloved Fuehrer could be at my side."

CHICKEN SUPPER CANCELLED

The bountiful and time-honored Chicken supper put on by the W. A. of First United church and enjoyed by many town and country folk, which was to be held on October 24th, we regret to say has been cancelled.

Much as those who eat and those who work enjoy this grand function it is felt that for this year the supper should be withdrawn. The rationing of sugar, tea and coffee, the lateness of harvesting operations and the dearth of conserve have helped to bring this about. We are sorry and hope for happier days.

Stagette Notes

Miss Alice Miller was hostess at the home of her parents to the Stagettes on Tuesday, Oct. 6th.

Two new Stagettes were welcomed into the club, Misses Erma Clark and Stella Wing. This brings the membership up to 19 with all town business and professions well represented.

The club charter, which the local girls received at convention last May, has been framed and the girls are surely proud of this. We hope to have a clubroom in the near future to hang it in.

Miss Mil Noonan was appointed to attend the meeting in the town hall on Oct. 14 when plans are to be made for packing community Xmas boxes for overseas.

FREEDOM must be Fought for and Paid For

Supreme Courage and Fortitude were characteristics of those sturdy pioneers who braved the perils of the deep, the dangers and hardships of the wilderness to lay the foundations of a nation dedicated to freedom. Their sons and daughters have proved worthy custodians of the precious heritage and have built a Canada of which we may well be proud. And now this freedom must be fought for—and paid for. Our freedom . . . our very lives . . . are in the keeping of our armed forces who have gone forth to battle a foe who would destroy all that we hold dear. Nothing that we can do can equal their sacrifice. But we must back them to the limit . . . WORK harder than ever before . . . SAVE every cent possible, by going without everything not absolutely necessary . . . LEND every dollar to buy the planes, the guns, the tanks, the ships they need to give them every advantage in their fight to keep Canada a free nation. NOTHING MATTERS NOW BUT VICTORY . . .

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor the Standard,
Dear Sir:

On behalf of the local Victory Loan committee I desire to thank the people of Vermilion for their co-operation in making the blackout Sunday evening a 100% success. I also wish to thank the Air Cadets for their assistance in patrolling the town to see that the Order was fully carried out. The blackout was quite realistic and must have brought home to the ingrezzy of the call made for Victory Loan subscriptions

Yours truly,
J.W.G. Morrison, Chairman.

76 HARVESTERS PLACED IN VERMILION DISTRICT

59 Boys from East and 17 from Peace River

Considerable interest was attached to the harvesters who arrived in Vermilion during the past week and on Wednesday W.A. Molsey, newly-appointed farm labor supervisor, stated that of the 76 men arriving here, all had been placed. Of the 76, seventeen are seasoned harvesters from the Peace River country where threshing is already completed. The remaining 59 are all school boys from Quebec province. 29 of them are English boys from the Montreal high school and 30 are French lads from Ecole-college in Montreal. Mr. Molsey has sent some of the smaller boys out in pairs to do one experienced man's work until they got a little experience and hardened into the work.

Others arrived too late for the stooking and were thrown right into the harder and more exacting work of threshing. They came out because the call issued through Eastern Canada for all possible aid to harvest the biggest cr p in the history of the West. The only help available in any numbers were the boys in the schools and colleges, and these lads left their homes and their boarding schools and came west to a new country and hard work in what was really a magnificent patriotic gesture and in a sincere effort to help the western farmer.

MEMBERS OF C.W.A.C. ARE PRESENTED WITH NEW TESTAMENTS

First Service of Kind Carried Out at Vermilion Training Centre

The first ceremony of its kind to be held at the Vermilion Training centre was solemnized on Sunday morning when the British and Foreign Bible Society, through the officers of the Vermilion branch, presented each of 225 members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps with a khaki bound new testament.

The presentation was carried out during the regular morning service at the centre and was in charge of the Padre, Captain Loversedge, assisted by the Rev. L. G. Sieber, president of the Vermilion branch of the Bible Society and the secretary, Rev. David Anderson.

The sermon for the service was given by Mr. Sieber who characterized the New Testament as one of the Tools of Freedom.

The preface of the little volume contains a message from His Majesty the King, which reads as follows: "To all serving in my forces by sea, or land, or in the air, and indeed, to all my people engaged in the defence of the Realm, I commend the reading of this book. For centuries the Bible has been a wholesome and strengthening influence in our national life, and it behooves us in these momentous days to turn with renewed faith to this Divine source of comfort and inspiration."

Every member of Canada's forces is presented with one of these little volumes, and similar ceremonies will be carried out at the Training centre of the C.W.A.C. with the arrival of each new class.

A BOMB-PROOF FORMULA for VICTORY

Lend More to Canada!

Volunteer canvassers for the Third Victory Loan campaign made a start early on Monday and have in mind a call on every citizen residing in the unit which extends from Meanville to Islay and from Cummings to Derwent; the response during the early part of the campaign was quite equal to that of the last loan when some $20,000 worth of the loan was the result of the first four days.

The unit quota during the ...n loan was $50,000 and almost $90,000 was subscribed; this time the quota has been set at $80,000 and every effort is being made to secure sales of $100,000!

There is little reason why practically every resident should not subscribe for a bond as they are available in denominations as low as fifty dollars and may be purchased on the instalment plan with a down payment of $5, and subsequent payments of $9 per month, until payment has been complete.

Associations, societies, estates and individuals which have funds in trust are urged to consider Canada's Victory loan as a safe repository for such funds; the interest yield is double that which is available through savings accounts generally and the security is unequalled as every resource of Ontario is firmly behind the war loans.

Service men have lost their lives in many distant parts of the world and still greater sacrifices remain to be made before the aggressor nations have been shown that they cannot continue their parade of horror, even in waters which skirt the shores of Canada has tragedy taken place . . . the unrelled for sinking of the ferry Caribou between Nova Scotia and Newfoundland is an undeniable proof that ruthlessness reigns in the minds of our enemies and those of us who are privileged to continue our peaceful existence should surely be prepared to go "all out" in providing the money so necessary for the purchase of much needed armaments of various kinds.

PIPE BAND AT TRAINING CENTRE

The Training Centre has gone Scotch this month. Every morning and afternoon and even in the evening you can hear the skirl of the bag pipes played by three Lassies from Victoria, B.C.

RECEIVE NEW TESTAMENTS

On Sunday morning the girls had the pleasure of partaking in an unusual ceremony. For it was the first class here to receive their New Testaments. Every girl at the Centre received her Testament from the Padre Capt. Loversedge the Rev. Anderson and Rev. Sieber. Rev. Sieber gave a fitting talk in connection with the presentation.

COMPLETE BLACKOUT

At night there was a blackout through northern Alberta and at the Training Centre nearly every girl in barracks was shining buttons and shoes before lights out. At 10 p.m. the lights at the Centre were going out one by one, by 9.45 the whole Training Centre was in complete darkness. The Provost were on duty to see that no lights were put on or a match lit unnecessarily. The Centre's first blackout was a complete success.

On Monday Capt. F. Hansell from the District Pay Office in Calgary was a visitor.

Lt. Col. H.C. MacKendrick D.S.O.I. from Ottawa accompanied by Lt. Col. [illegible] visited the Centre on Wednesday.

Sgts. Beadson and Sue Wong of Old Shaughnessy have returned on furlough. Sgts. Grace Ellis, Edwina Duk, Cpl. Rowan Pte. Belle have recently left on their furlough.

BLACK OUT REPORTED 100 P.C. SUCCESS HERE

Town Bombed by Victory Loan Pamphlets

Activity in connection with the Victory Loan supplied most of the news over the week end. On Saturday afternoon a plane literally covered the town with Victory loan pamphlets and these made a pretty sight while fluttering about in the air, shining in the sun. The pamphlets contained the words—"Our fighting sons depend on you to do your part in the death struggle for survival b buying Victory Bonds".

On Sunday evening Vermilion experienced its first black out when promptly at 9.45 the whole town was cast into darkness and a plane, observing our efforts, zoomed overhead. The pilot reported 100 per cent blackout for Vermilion but air cadets who were appointed wardens for the test, had some difficulty achieving the 100 per cent objective. Night lights in two hardwares were burning, a lunatory light at the town hall, while Vermilion Motors was lighted like a Xmas tree, someone having put their car away there and then gone blissfully on their way, leaving the beacon blazing, all unbeknown to the garage management. A few householders were furnished to enter into the proper spirit of the blackout test but by 10 o'clock nary a light could be seen with the exception of the yard lights at the C.N.R.

MAY APPEAL OVER REDUCED CATEGORY

Any car owners who are using their cars in business and receive notification to surrender their "A" coupon books or gasoline rationing and accept "AA" books may appeal to the Regional office of the oil controller, according to information received by the Alberta Motor Association.

It is not the present intention of the oil controller to require "A" book holders who are using their cars in business to surrender their oil books for the new category. Any who receive such a notice may file an appeal. The "AA" category is for business and professional men, farmers, commercial cars.

W. J. Rich, regional oil controller at Edmonton, has stated that motorists were mailed in 35,000 Alberta car owners who have been placed in the "AA" category, asking them to turn in their old books so that new ones could be issued the same day the old ones were received.

If a ration book contained less than 16 coupons necessary for the six months period from Oct. 1 to March 31 then the new books contained that number of coupons that were in the old books

The oil controller has asked for the co-operation of motorists so that they may be supplied with their new rations books as speedily as possible.

LETTERS HOME

Probably no army in the history of the world ever wrote so many letters as the force which Canada has raised for the present conflict.

Free writing materials for the sailors, soldiers and airmen at home and abroad are supplied by such organizations as the Canadian Legion, Salvation Army, Knights of Columbus and Y.M.C.A.

Some conception of the amount of letter writing done by Canada's fighting forces may be obtained from the following figures released by only one of these organizations — the Canadian Y.M.C.A. War Services.

Since the beginning of the war in 1939 a total of sixty-six million sheets of writing paper has been given free of cost to the troops by the "Y", to visualize this quantity of paper it is estimated that it piled sheet upon sheet it would form a column of paper sixteen thousand, five hundred feet in height, or more than half as high as Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain.

Fire Loss on Railway Small

In comparison with the value of the plant, equipment and other property in operation, fire loss on the Canadian National System has been minute, according to H. A. Dixon, Chief Engineer. At all shops and roundhouses, workers have been organized to deal with fires and are well-equipped for fighting the flames. But, says Mr. Dixon, "from coast to coast and across the border, our men are keenly conscious that the thing is to prevent the fire".

PLANT RHUBARB AND PEONIES IN THE FALL

Rhubarb and peonies are two perennials that should be planted in the fall, is the advice given by P.D. Harland, Assistant Superintendent, Provincial Horticultural Station, Brooks. The time for planting these perennials is at hand and the following points should be observed.

Peonies are different to most perennials in that they should not be divided and replanted every year or three seasons. After planting and becoming established they improve in vigor and flowering characteris for many years. Plants for division are usually two or three years of age. The roots are cut and allowed to wilt for a short time before dividing carefully with a knife so that five or more buds are taken for a division. The roots of the even thicker the old wood should be discarded. Plant the new divisions in well prepared ground so that the buds are not more than two inches below the surface of the soil. Take care that no manure comes in contact with the newly set plant.

Rhubarb roots are similar to peony roots in that they establish them selves better when planted early in the fall, at which time the new roots spread themselves rapidly in the cool soil. Rhubarb roots are dug and divided in the same way as peonies. They should be planted in the best part of the garden and receive an abundance of organic fertilizer.

A few years ago McDonald and Ruby were the leading varieties of rhubarb. The newer variety Victoria now heads the list of many intensive farms because of its fine texture at all seasons, its clear red color and its good flavor. It also requires less sugar than any of the old varieties. Other good varieties are Canada Red and Early Sunrise.

Each day, more than 100,000 cars are handled through Canadian National terminals. Frequently a single terminal receives and despatches as many as 1,500 cars in 24 hours.

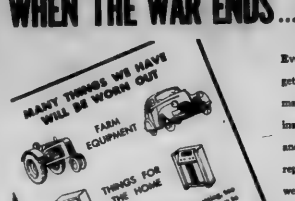
WE'RE GOING TO NEED SO MANY THINGS WHEN THE WAR ENDS... things that are hard to get now



Every day, almost, we find that something else is getting scarce. So often, we are told "they're not making it any more". Factories are making guns instead of ploughs, tanks instead of tractors, planes and shells instead of stoves and beds. We'll have to replace so many things when the war ends . . . things we can't buy now.

MONEY INVESTED IN VICTORY BONDS will provide the cash to buy them

TWO WAYS TO BUY VICTORY BONDS NOW

with cash with produce

— with Cash ... in one lump sum, with money we have saved. There is no safer investment . . . no better way to protect our savings.

Or—we can buy bonds and pay for them through our bonds in monthly instalments. As the instalments come due the bank will charge them to our accounts.

— with Produce Farm folk can pay for Victory Bonds in a convenient way — by using the "PRODUCE FOR VICTORY" TICKET. By simply signing a "Victory Ticket" you can authorize those who buy produce from you to send all or part of the proceeds to the War Finance Committee to buy Victory Bonds for you. (Ask your local War Finance worker for details.)

WHAT A VICTORY BOND IS

Look at a dollar bill. A dollar bill is like a bond. It's a promise to pay to the man who has it. You get bills when you sell things and pay them out when you buy things. A Victory Bond is "a bill" intended to be saved. When you keep a $100.00 Victory Bond for a year you receive an additional $3.00. (3% interest). Buy all the Victory Bonds you can—lend money to Canada to help to win the war. Save your bonds to have money for things you'll need when the war ends.

by M. KENZIE

The supper-hour seems to be a favorite listening time for radio fans, and not without reason, for through-out the week you will find some of your favorite programs scheduled at this time. Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5 p.m. brings you "Hand on Luck" a program packed with new songs, new gags and nonsense. It's back on the air this week, so don't miss it! Wednesday at 5.30 p.m. you can hear kindly, lovable old "Pa Mac" as he goes his quiet way mending other people's troubles and smoothing out domestic tragedies and [illegible]

Lovers of fine music will be glad to know that the Lipton Tea Musicale has returned to the air-waves for the ninth consecutive season on a coast to-coast network on Sundays at 1 p.m. The program again presents dramatizations of well-known hymns and ballads, with the singing voices of Irene Mahon, soprano, and Charles Jordan baritone music by Sherman with a 15 piece orchestra and the Lipton Male Quartette.

Listeners may have been wondering about the new Henry Aldrich heard Thursdays at 6.30 p.m. Red-headed, freckle-faced Norman Tokar (formerly heard as Willie) has succeeded Ezra Stone who has withdrawn to play the more realistic role of Sergeant in the U.S. Army. Months before "Hen-ry Aldrich" became known to radio, Norman was understudy for Ezra who played the role in the Broadway play "What A Life". His proficiency in the stage role almost kept him out of radio's Aldrich Family—he sounded too much like Ezra. Not to be outdone, Norman invented the character of Willie, and the befuddled youth with the marble-in-mouth delivery was an immediate hit.

The CJCA gang got quite a kick out of the way Production Manager Wal-ter Imlee crushed Wendell Willkie's Macdonald hotel bedroom, during his overnight stay in the city. Hard after a personal interview with the U. S. Presidents rival, Mr. Imlee slam-med open a corps of secretaries, who gaped open-mouthed at the brash young Canadian. Restless and rest-less, appearing like a hotel executive inspiring after the travellers' comfort, Mr. Imlee gained an involuntary audience with the noted columnist — then—everyone with his own quite pity—Walter Imlee surprised himself by blurting out "Well, Mr Willkie

NEW RAIL EQUIPMENT — DESIGNED FOR WAR

Equipment specially designed by the Canadian National for wartime requirements includes hospital cars to serve as medical centres at trains carrying casualties, commissary kit-chen cars for troop trains, where meals are served by waitresses, and cafe cars — "coffee shops on wheels", new types of coaches for industrial trains, with seating capacity for 122 instead of the usual 72 passengers, and special type trains for prisoners of war.

Did you have a nice trip?

In a situation that would have made lesser men furious, Mr Willkie turned on all his personal charm and radi-ated "Why yes, thank you, won't you sit down?"

Speaking of diaries, here's a new one to mark in your radio diary — it's "Doctor Mac". A kindly shrewd, lov-able old Scot, he's the minister of other people's secrets, the mender of their troubles and woes. TEMPORARY SUGAR COUPONS SOON VOID

Coupons for the original ration books issued by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board for the purchase of sugar will become void, November 1, the Board announces. These coupons remained valid for purchase after the permanent books were issued, but after Nov. 1, they cannot be accepted by any retailer. They must be turned in by consumers by the end of October. After Dec. 1, wholesale houses and other suppliers may not use these coupons received from retailers, to replenish their stocks.

The present coupon books became effective on Sept. 7, thus consumers have been given nearly two months in turn in temporary card coupons still in their possession.

GRADUATION MEMORIES OF VERMILION CENTRE C.W.A.C.

This is Vermilion of the C.W.A.C. rooms with a number of other girls they never saw before, and chanting of the uncomfortable sailing lists for their own—and finding it not too bad. They remember their first meals and being assigned to the different platoons, where they—and their in-structors, incidentally—thought they would never learn anything. Then suddenly drill started to make sense, and map-reading became a fascinating subject, and gas drill was fun, and a first aid inspired them with a desire to practise on somebody.

They remember how they thought they would dislike their M.C.O.'s . . . and traintime found them almost in tears at thoughts of the impending separation. They remember how they equalled at the sight of an officer — until it became obvious that officers were human, friendly people. They remember, with a lift of the heart, the visit and the speech of Major General Jean Knox, head of the Auxiliary Territorial Service, in Canada from England, and what a grand person everyone thought her. And the gruelling inspection and speech by Brigadier R. D. Sutherland, M.C., of Ottawa, deputy adjutant general, and the presence of Brigadier Harvey.

They remember the fun they had, as a battalion, as companies, as platoons, as barrack-room groups — and they find it hard to say goodbye to it spot they disliked before they ever saw it. They thought Vermilion itself a dreadful place to be stationed, until they met the people of the town and began to make friends among them.

And they remember, with laughter, the N.C.O. instructors singing to a familiar old tune, "This is the day we send 'puppies' away and at last our nerves are free . . .

Threshing was halted for two days last week after Wednesday's rain. Most outfits got going again Saturday morning. Jim Thompson's outfit on Monday was at Jim Prater's; Mr. Davies has finished; Hutchinson's are at Ferguson's; Klaschinsky's are at home; Jos. Pavlasek is at Steve Grundee's; Bill Matsack of Indian Lake threshed for Geo. Neetman on the Tetzel farm. There is no scarcity of machines but crews are work-ing short-handed. It's to be hoped that the winter will hold off long enough for everyone to finish. The past few days have been ideal, warm and hazy, like summer.

Mrs. W.J. Funks helped Mrs. Maggs for a couple of days, cooking for the threshers, as Daisy had to go back to her work at Islay before the thresh-ing was finished. Mrs. J. K. Thomp-son is at Mrs. Panter's helping with cooking. Mrs. Funks also lent a hand at E. Thompson's for two days last week. Girls are completely lacking in this district.

This district was shocked to learn of the tragic death of Clifford Gard-ner, and our hearts go out to Ruby, the young wife, in her sad bereave-ment.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Good were re-cent visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Archie Good's. They motored from Leth-bridge where Mr. Good is stationed with the R.C.A.F.

Roy Ochsiebstein is home on harvest leave. Cliff McKee's leave is over and he has returned to his duties with the R.C.A.F. in Toronto.

Miss Trudeau enjoyed a visit with her parents last week end. Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau motored from Ft. Kent, Alberta, on Friday, continuing on to Edmonton Saturday morning. They were accompanied by Miss Trudeau to Edmonton.

Jane Thompson spent the week end with Lena Harrowell.

The blackout Sunday brought near-er the realization of what enemy air raids would and could mean to us all. We may be thankful that we haven't had to undergo such, and hope and pray that we never shall.

Coal Position In Britain Said To Be Critical

London.—British householders will be a little colder and draughtier this winter due to fuel conditions, but nobody is likely to freeze in Britain's damp and chilly climate.

"Even if fuel is rationed or if fuel targets are observed, there will be only a 20-per cent reduction in heat comfort compared with pre-war days," said an official of the department of economic warfare.

"For the rest of Europe, however, the prospect is bleak. The lack of many can hope for will not be more than two-thirds peacetime comfort. In other continental countries the consumption of fuel permitted will be from half last year's consumption to none at all."

Although officials admit that Britain's coal position is critical, there's no immediate indication that a much mooted rationing scheme, which Labor members of parliament consider necessary, will be introduced.

Just when people were thinking about switching on electric heaters and heaping coal on the living grate are the fuel ministry banned central heating in flats until November. Instead, they advised people to don woollies and heavier clothing earlier than usual.

This suggestion was directed especially to tenants—accustomed to going about in scanty underclothes and frilly dresses—by Sir Leonard Hill, eminent physiologist. His "prescription" for the save-fuel winter was, in a nutshell, "open your windows and wear more clothes."

Scrap Metal Is Essential For Armor Plate

Ottawa.—Scrap metal is essential for the continued production of armor plate for Canadian fighting equipment and cannot be supplanted by the production of steel from pig iron, A. W. Brown, executive assistant to the steel controller, told a House of Commons committee studying wartime salvage.

The scrap is mixed with pig iron in making armor plate and there is a limit to the amount of pig iron which can be used in relation to the scrap in producing the best plate.

Installation of converter equipment in a Canadian steel plant would increase the production of material from pig iron which would take the place of scrap to a limited degree, but the demand for scrap in large quantities would continue.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, asked as to the possibility of developing Vancouver Island iron ore deposits in association with coal fields close at hand.

Mr Brown said a sheetage of labor had been reported for British Columbia areas, and the opening of a steel plant there would probably aise involve the opening of a new coal mine to supply it with fuel.

The blast furnaces would have to be obtained from the United States which already was having difficulty securing sufficient equipment of this [illegible]

R. W. Mayhew, member of parliament for Victoria, B.C., said that if steel furnaces were placed where the ore was available, "the whole basis would be better than at present."

Ingots produced in British Columbia furnaces might be sent to the United States west coast in exchange for a similar number of ingots delivered from the United States to [illegible]

"We have been in the bonanza period of scrap collection, and it is to be expected that supplies will be more difficult to obtain," said Roy Graham, Liberal M.P. for Swift Current.

L. Levin, administrator of steel scrap, and Mr. Brown agreed that when converted equipment went into operation smaller units than there were would be production which would lessen the demand on scrap but only to a limited extent.

Mr. Levin said it was accepted that the heavy demand for scrap would continue and when the readily accessible supplies had been consumed it would be necessary to turn to wrecked ships, to the exploration of old city dumps and to other expensive sources.

In the meantime, steel salvage authorities were seeking heavier types of salvage to keep furnaces going. It might be necessary during the winter to take ornamental fences and similar sources of scrap.

British Airman Shot Nazi Bomber And Rides Escape Chute

Chile.—Two British airmen, shot down in the Egyptian desert and faced with a long trek back to the nearest Nazi base, solved the problem by stealing two enemy bombers from a German airfield and flying them home.

They had already set out from the wreck of their crashed plane and had been a full day's march toward the east when they saw a German bomber coming down to land not far away.

Climbing to the top of a rocky hillock, they saw the air field. There were no buildings; only a few tents and lorries and these seemed poorly guarded. There were only a handful of men around.

They waited until nightfall when, they felt sure, their British flying kit wouldn't be recognized in the darkness. One of the airmen spoke German almost as fluently as English.

They strolled onto the flying field, but the bombers were surrounded by a swarm of ground crew and aerties.

It was too late to turn back. In his best Prussian one Briton blustered: "Why weren't these ready long ago? This one should be ready by now."

He was hastily assured that the planes were ready. "Right, then, we're off with them to base," the airman said. A show of hesitation was quelled with a few of invective and threats. Engines were started up, wheel blocks removed and the two Britons were away.

AIR SCHOOL APPOINTMENT

Winnipeg.—W. J. Buchanan has been appointed assistant general manager of Winnipeg Air Observer School Limited, according to an announcement by C. R. GUEST CHILDREN

Only A Small Percentage Of Children From British Have Reached Military Age

Ottawa.—Only a small percentage of the British guest children brought to Canada under the joint government scheme have reached or are approaching the age when they will become liable for military service, Mrs. D. S. Archibald, representative of the children's overseas reception board in Canada, said here.

Of some 6,000 children brought to Canada from Britain, 1,333 came out under the government - sponsored scheme. Some of these children have already returned to their homes in the United Kingdom, including four boys who had reached military age.

(A report from Edmonton said that of the 111 British guest children living in Alberta, about seven are approaching the age when they will become liable for military service.)

Girls brought to Canada by the government will be allowed to return to the United Kingdom or if they desire, to take war work in Canada when they reach the age of 16, said F. C. Fair, director of immigration. Girls who have come out temporarily to private school in Canada are free to return home whenever they obtain their parents' consent, he added.

London.—Four Marist missionaries, two priests and two sisters, were slain by Japanese soldiers on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons, the British colonial office said.

The announcement, which said all four were bayoneted in the throat, identified the victims as Father Arthur Dubosson, 34, of Boston, Mass.; Father Henry Eugebrink, 33, of Utrecht, Netherla. ., and Sisters Sylvia and Odalyn, believed to be from France. Another missionary, Sister Edmee, escaped.

Urges Farmers Be Permitted To Raise 300-Pound Hogs

Edmonton.—Oscar A. Brown, livestock commission agent on Edmonton stockyards, in an interview here urged that Canadian farmers be permitted to feed hogs to around 300 pounds liveweight instead of about 200 and said this would increase supplies available for Britain.

"It takes six months to raise a 200-pound hog while an extra month will produce a 250-pound hog," he said. "With worlds of feed grain, why not step up weights and production, save labor and forget rail grading for the duration of the war.

"Surely Canadian wheat and barley-fed hogs will meet with as much favor overseas as U.S. corn-fed hogs weighing as much as 300 pounds and more," he added.

Reading of market news has been a heart-breaker to Canadian hog producers as American producers are getting up to $13.70 per hundred weight. Liveweight for big fat corn-fed pigs which is more than Canadian farmers get for their best bacon hogs, dressed weight, said Mr. Brown.

FIRE SQUAD

Britain Is Ready For Incendiary Bombs From German Planes

London.—Hitler's boast that the German air force will take reprisals for the empire's devastating raids on the reich won't find the nation napping if incendiary bombs are showered over Britain. Every house and building has been equipped with a fire-watching squad.

Fire-watching nowadays is compulsory for men and women with heavy fines for those failing to man their posts, raid or no raid. This resulted from lessons learned during the last heavy attacks when as much damage was caused by fire as high explosive.

Male civilians between 18 and 65 who aren't otherwise employed in civil defence or exempted for other reasons were first compelled to take their turn in a rotation system at home or at place of business. Then when call-ups depleted the ranks the order was extended to include women 22 to 44.

This measure started a controversy which raged for weeks before it died a natural death. Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, steadfastly refused to change his decision to conscript women.

Strangely enough, it wasn't women who caused the rumpus. Complaints came from men who thought women didn't possess the nerve or physical stamina to fight fire bombs.

NAZI GENERAL FIRED

Report That Chief Of German General Staff Has Resigned

London.—The Daily Express published a Stockholm despatch saying it was understood in the Swedish capital that Col-Gen Franz Halder, chief of the German general staff, was dismissed four weeks ago.

The story said his dismissal followed high command orders that all big-scale offensives should be stopped in October to enable the German army to consolidate positions and prepare its winter quarters. This, the message said, was opposed by the Nazi party.

Superiority Over Nazi Air Force Is Very Essential

Washington.—Capt. E. V. (Eddie) Rickenbacker brought back from an air ferry survey trip to Britain the conclusion that a second land front in Europe must await decisive success by the British-American air offensive.

Already aerial superiority is "definitely on the Allies' side" and "the trend is entirely in our favor," the First Great War air ace reported to War Secretary Henry Stimson. But he [illegible]

"The European theatre will remain an air theatre until we have secured superiority over the German air force and paralyze the production capacity of the German aircraft industry."

In general, Rickenbacker said that the picture from our standpoint, is as bright as the grim portrait of war can be," although he warned against complacency. American planes and tactics have proven sound and have won the approval of British authorities.

"We must keep our aircraft plants going at full capacity and send a steady stream of bombers, fighters, air crews and ground crews, and all that goes with it, flowing to England, so that in time there will be a constant cloud of Allied combat craft over the skies of Germany," Rickenbacker [illegible]

The total German air force, he said "does not exceed 4,700 operational combat planes' of every type, a very small percentage of these being heavy bombers.

"It would be a mistake, however, to draw the conclusion that German air power is on the decrease," he continued.

"While we may hope that British and American bombers have crippled German aircraft production and maintenance in Germany and France, the case may well be that the Germans are working feverishly on new design planes to offset the aerial superiority which, at the present writing is definitely on the Allies' side."

Great Need For Support Of The Victory Loan

Toronto.—The need for support of Canada's third Victory Loan from everyone in Canada was stressed by Hon. J. L. Ilsley, federal minister of finance, in an address prepared for delivery before combined service clubs here. "The magnitude of the undertaking is so great that it cannot succeed without support from all parts of the nation and all groups in the nation," he said

Substantial subscriptions must be expected from the well-to-do and from the middle class Mr Ilsley said, it is "getting progressively more difficult for them to subscri.." but it "is getting more difficult or less necessary" to spend money in other ways.

"Victory Loan subscriptions on top of taxes will not only help the nation to carry on the war—they will help us to force ourselves to live as we should in wartime."

"However much we obtain from business and the well-to-do" Mr. Ilsley said, "we must rely for a great deal of our requirements upon savings by wage earners, and now by farmers. This is not only highly desirable as a matter of social policy—it is essential as a matter of arithmetic We need as much of the national income now for war purposes —passing through the treasury— that all the incomes of the rich, all the profits and rents that business can make will by no means meet our requirements

"We must persuade the working men and women of this nation— who are naturally receiving a large and growing share of the income as employment expands—to save a large portion of their earnings now so that they may spend them after the war, or retain them as security."

Mr. Ilsley said that selling bonds in factories and in other workers in a few and difficult task, but added that with the experience in the first and second Victory Loans and in war savings campaigns, an efficient and widespread organization has been developed

"But organization and publicity cannot do the job alone," he declared. "We need enthusiastic practical support.

The Teachers' Situation in The Vegreville School Division

Salary negotiations between the Vegreville School Division and its staff have now reached a critical stage, as the following summary of the events to date may be of interest to your readers:

Negotiations have been under way since March last when the teachers asked for a minimum of $840 plus the cost of living bonus. Little progress was made then or at the April meeting when one of the Trustees suggested that "if the teachers didn't like the Board's offer they could take it to arbitration". The teachers were unwilling to take up the gauntlet and in May presented an alternative offer.

After a lengthy discussion, the Chairman speaking for the Board told the teachers that as there seemed to be nothing to be gained by continuing negotiations they should apply for a Board of Arbitration. He further asked that, in order to speed up matters, the appointment of a Conciliation Commissioner should be eliminated. Believing that the Board was acting in good faith the teachers asked for a Board of Arbitration, which was duly set up. This Board was composed of Mr. Austin, Chairman of the Divisional Board, Mr. Shaul Past President of the A.T.A., and a neutral Chairman agreed upon by these men, namely, Mr. Donald Cameron, of the Department of Education.

In the main, the situation then was that the teachers were demanding three minimum and the Board had offered $840.

After a lengthy hearing the Board awarded a minimum of $825. Mr. Austin made a minority report accepting the scale of increments laid down by the other Commissioners, but making $840 as a minimum.

The teachers met and although they were disappointed at the findings of the Board they accepted them by almost unanimously.

The Board, on the other hand, met two weeks after the meeting of the Board of Arbitration, but gave out no hint of their intention to reject the findings. It should be pointed out, of course, that the findings had not yet been "officially" announced by the Board, and also that the Divisional Board still lacked approximately two-fifty teachers.

The teachers went to work on Sept. 1 quite satisfied that the Board would keep faith with them, but on Sept. 19 they were informed that the Board had rejected the award and had instructed their Secretary to pay salaries according to a schedule they had agreed upon with some outside Divisional Boards, and which had not at any time been before the teachers.

The teachers resented bitterly this breach of faith and called for a strike vote at Convention on October 5.

Fifty-eight employees of the Board were present. They voted, by secret ballot, on the following: "Are you in favour of voting in your Executive authority to call a strike, Yes or No?" The vote stood 55—Yes; 3—No.

Earlier in the day the Chairman of the Board asked that further action be deferred until the Board had time to meet the taxpayers which, he said, would be in December at the earliest. This was reported to the teachers and, as it was agreed that the Board had ample time to meet the taxpayers, a resolution was passed unanimously, instructing the Executive to act promptly.

Representatives of the teachers met the Chairman that same afternoon and placed the situation before him. At this interview he stated that, before the Board of Arbitration had met, they, the Divisional Board, had decided not to accept its findings if a minimum of more than $840 was awarded.

The trustees met on Friday last and refused any hope of settlement, but asked the teachers to withhold any drastic action until after the Annual Convention of the Trustees Association.

The Teachers Executive met on the following day and decided that unless salaries are paid on the basis of the award, schools will be closed as from November 1.

The Trustee Board claims that their financial situation is such as to make it impossible to meet the award and state that they are willing to other Divisions to adhere to the $840 minimum.

Their financial situation is as follows:

Teacher payroll for 1941-42 $96407

In June 1942 three high school rooms and a rural school were closed down.

Teacher payroll for 1942-3 according to the schedule being forced upon the teachers $87200

Teacher payroll on basis of award $78218.

Present mill rate approximately 12 mills.

Salaries based on the award would take approximately 14 mills and 3 mills or approximately $3 per quarter section.

The teachers, on the other hand believe the Board has broken faith with them, and that they, therefore, are not under any obligation to give further service to the Board. They submit that the girls and boys within the Division, rather than the interests of any group, should be considered and should be their first consideration.

James McCrea, President.

BOARD BILL

Mr. A. W. Dymond, C.P.R. Inspector visited the C.P.R. farms here during the week. He was accompanied by a shooting crack who has ambitions beyond the ordinary. Asked what he intended to be he said he would like to be a lawyer. We asked him had he ever had experience in law works and he said No. We advised him to read some of the plays of that famous English bard. He seemed mended him to start with the story of the man who insisted on getting his pound of flesh and ended up not content until he got the blood also. By all appearances this world in many respects has not improved much since Shakespeare's day.

Here is a true harvest story: He was a stranger in the district and got work on the threshing. He was told to proceed to the next farm, fill up and lose his team out. He got in to a grain field and while busy in the farmer's wife (whose husband was on another outfit some miles distant) another stranger came who to her appeared to be stealing her grain. She ran t.. neighbors and phoned her husband. The workman did as he was told and proceeded to the farm house. No one was there and he wondered what had happened to the rest of the crew. He unhitched the team of horses and proceeded to partake of some food which was on the table. Tired out, he lay down on the couch in the kitchen and fell asleep. In the meantime the owner of the house was making a bee-line for home in response to his wife's phone message. He arrived at midnight and the fireburner had a rude awakening when he was roughly by the throat and landed on the floor. Explanations followed. The thresher had gone to the wrong farm.

The new school monthly named "The Victory" is just out and it is a very interesting production. We are only a few of the local items: Mr. and Mrs. Evans are leaving the farm and will reside in Vermilion. Their daughter Eleanor plans to join the C.W.A.C. Harold Hall sent a radio message to his sister Mrs. Alf Searle from the Beaver Club, London. Mr. Jim Buck Ford was home for a week end on leave from his regiment. Miss Roland attended the Teachers' convention. The Third Victory Loan started the 19th. Hugh McDaniel is Editor and Nellie Hinchey Asst. Editor.

A New Folder "Spotlights On the School Lunch"

"Pack a Lunch that One Can Work On" says Vera Richards of the Extension Service, Department of Agriculture.

Lunch represents approximately one-third of the food consumed for the day — it is important therefore that it be planned with care. Be sure to include a sustaining food such as meat, fish, eggs, or cheese; add milk, fresh fruits or vegetables and whole grain bread, to take care of the minerals and vitamins; then something sweet for quick energy and also to satisfy the appetite.

Sandwiches are the mainstay of most lunch boxes.

We think a good sandwich should have:

A generous filling right out to the edge of the bread. Remember the filling is the sustaining part of the sandwich. Fillings that are varied, not too dry and well seasoned.

Bread not less than 24 hours old, cut not too thick and made from whole wheat or vitamin rich flour.

For suggestions for substantial sandwich fillings and other hints for the lunch box, write for our new circular "Spotlights on the School Lunch" — Extension Service, Department of Agriculture, Edmonton.

FARMERS URGED TO KEEP ROYAL FLAX FOR SEED

Due to the prevalence of rust in the flax producing areas in Western Canada this year, and the urgent need of greater production of flax to meet the requirements of the Department of Provincial Departments of Agriculture urge that all Royal flax, a rust resistant variety, be kept out of commercial channels and sold as seed.

The Agricultural Supplies Board has agreed to assist in the distribution of Royal flax seed from this years' crop and has appointed a committee as the agency of the Board through which growers may be able to obtain assistance in marketing the seed and so that purchasers may be able to place their orders to get it. Farmers are advised to place their orders without delay with the Dominion Field Crops Division at Winnipeg, Saskatoon or Calgary or the Provincial Departments of Agriculture.

The Agricultural Supplies Board through the Committee will purchase any surplus seed which cannot be distributed locally and will pay up to, but not exceeding $2.75 per bushel, clean seed basis.

Farmers who have a surplus of seed which they are unable to dispose of locally should advise any of the above offices.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

Premier Aberhart will be back on the air commencing October 22 over CFCN, Calgary. This Thursday night broadcast at 8.15 will be repeated weekly. Over CFRN, Edmonton, the premier will speak weekly at 8.15 commencing Monday, October 26th. The topic is Post-War Reconstruction and Security.

Incorporation of another new cooperative, the Cardston Feeders' Association Ltd., is announced. This brings the total number of active associations in the province.

Hon W. A. Fallow, on his return from a 5,000 mile trip over the new Alberta-Alaska highway, declared that U. S. engineers have performed an incredible feat of construction. The job paralleled construction of the Panama Canal, he declared.

Of prime interest in Alberta is the news that gravelling will be carried out over Vermilion Hay River road to make this a possible all year thoroughfare Alberta's official "Inland Route" to Alaska. It covers this ground, touches Peace River, connects with the currently building oil line from Norman.

Provincial Department of Public Works plans an intensive fall and winter pre-construction and maintenance program and will make use of newly discovered and extensive gravel deposits close to highways.

British guest children, who number 111 in Alberta, may return to England to carry out military service or other vital duties when they reach the age of 17½, for boys and 18 for girls, it is stated by C. B. Hill, child welfare officer for the government. Informa tion to this effect has been received from the C.O.R.B. They may also return to attend University.

MILLIONS OF MEALS

In the year before the outbreak of war, some 900,000 meals were served on Canadian National dining cars. Last year, the total was more than 2,300,000, including those served on troop trains. Record for the first part of this year show that 1942 will exceed these figures.

ISLAY

The Annual Fowl supper of Islay church has come and gone once more and was a pleasing success in every way. We do thank all the people who helped us with food and work and those who patronized the tables. A goodly sum was realized.

The Islay Junior school has inaugurated a "War Savings Bank". The pupils are responding magnificently. They have a real banking system and are saving towards war savings stamps. The first three to have saved enough for a stamp are Richard Sweet, Carole and Cherrill Mitchell. Three cheers—youngsters!

Miss Redmond holds a First Aid class each week. The class includes from Grade 5 up of those who volunteer to take the course.

Mrs. Ada Fraser of Vermilion is visiting at Mrs. Bert Gould's

Sat. Lawrence Gould who was home from Ottawa for 12 days has gone to Red Deer.

Pte. Bruce Giles and his sisters Grace and Bessie visited the Goulds over the week end.

Thanksgiving service was held in the Pleasant Valley church. It was fittingly decorated for the occasion.

On Saturday next the wedding of Fred Payne and Norah Richardson takes place in Pleasant Valley church at 3 p.m. Pte. Ronnie Payne from Prince Rupert is expected home for the event.

Mrs. H. Gilchrist and Mrs. Creasey (nee Mrs. Bob Davies) are expected to a turkey dinner on Wednesday at the Brewers. Mrs. Brewer says they may as well eat the turkeys as they fight and kill each other. She lost four that way.so Gould's pet coyote had four dinners.

Threshing is going on apace. After two weeks of it, some say it will still be a month before it is cleaned up.

Mr. and Mrs. Palamar have moved into Billie Kelly's house (Hart Barnes'). Mr. Palamar is a railroad man.

The Victory Drive was begun here on Monday and quite good results for two days work has been accomplished.

Carl Alton has gone home from the hospital. Art was knocked down by a runaway team on a threshing outfit and suffered a bad scalp in the head.

FANTASIA

By George Orr in The Continent Staff Publication of the North American Life Association Company

I dipped in my pocket for the change, money was free (free days anyway). It startled me when the fellow tapped me on the shoulder, for I hadn't heard him approach me. He in uniform, lean, a bit grim), with the scent of gunpowder about him I followed his gesture, and for the moment my eyes seemed to trick me.

Moving along the highway was a supply column, headed for the battle area. What amazed me was the size of its burden. Two pleasure cars perched on a carrier, piled high on another truck were crates marked, "Three uniforms 1942 design". Refrigerators, cabinet radios and easy chairs filled still other trucks.

My visitor spoke. "The boys had a little money to spare, so they ordered them", he explained. "They want to look a bit smarter and have a bit of comfort."

It was too ridiculous

But how it all ma.. I said "We're at war." There's only so much room in those trucks and they've got to have room some ammunition, parts grenades and those things that they really need to do the job! How do they think they're going to win if they keep trucking that stuff around."

I discerned a twinkle in his eye as he replied "I understand you people are still doing that sort of thing back home" He paused while I tried frantically to follow his logic. Then he continued "You burn gasoline in pleasure driving, to be fashionable you buy clothes you don't need; you still buy new furniture, and I'm sure that you couldn't use your food stocks a bit more wisely. Like you did you've only got so much powder fire capacity and you need as much of that as you can possibly spare to make the 16-to guns ammunition and shells that you're so keen to have these days use"

Then he said think you're going to win the war if you keep industries working overtime to make the things that we squander money on"

I to the sales clerk "Sorry I don't need it after all." I out that quarter, and I could of quite a few others that I just as easily

I Back at the hotel was ... there again M.

STATE TOWARD SOLUTION OF THE ALCOHOL PROBLEM

Golden text: Let justice roll down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream. Amos 5.24.

Amos: Ecclesiastes 10. 17. Amos 5.21-24; Romans 14.19-21; II Corinthians 6.17; I Peter 4.1-5.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 1 16-20.

Explanations and Comments

"Not for Strength, not for Drunkenness." Ecclesiastes 10 17. "Woe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes eat in the morning;" is the verse preceding our printed text. The One Volume Commentary thinks the case can hardly be an imaginary one, and adds: "Ptolemy Epiphanes succeeded his father Philopater as king of Egypt at the age of six years (205 B.C.), and during his minority there was much strife between the Syrian and Jewish factions in Egypt, and, on the part of some in high places, licentious indulgence (every day and all day, 'eat in the morning')." In constradistinction to such a king and princes, the writer of Ecclesiastes cries, "Happy art thou, O land, when thy king is the son of nobles and thy princes eat in due season, for strength, and not for drunkenness."

Let Righteousness Roll Down as a Mighty Stream. Amos 5. 21-24. The prophet Amos represents God as saying, "I hate I despise your feasts" (given over to debauchery), and I will take no delight in your solemn assemblies."

"Our solemn assemblies may still be despised by God," W. J. Harley comments. "Wherever mere ritual and form are allowed to take the place of this communion with God and moral obedience, our worship will be as lightly esteemed by him as was the worship of Israel long ago."

Abstinence for the Sake of Others. Romans 14.19 21. So then let us pursue things that make for peace, and things wherewith we may edify, improve one another. Not only must we do nothing to overthrow another, but we must certainly do all we can to build another up. Overthrow not for meat s ake the work of God. Overthrow, pull down, is the opposite of edifying, build up. Possibly some of the "strong" Christians were on the point of disrupting the church of Rome over the unimportant question of "meat", and Paul counsels them not to overthrow for meat's sake the work of God. "The Christian brother, whose Christian perseve ity is God's work." All things are clean; however it is evil for that man who eateth with offence to his own conscience. In the church at Rome there were those who had formerly worshipped idols, the old association of ideas still clung to them, and if they partook of meat that had been offered to idols before being sold, their conscience troubled them, fearing that in so doing they were running their old practice of idol worship. They were narrow, unenlightened, but their conscience must be respected If they saw the Jewish Christians partaking of such food they would be led to do the same, and thus disobey their conscience. Therefore Paul declares that it is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

By Fred Neher

Did you ever check up on just how you spend the money your budget allows for food? If you do you'd probably be surprised at the number of people who don't. And perhaps you're not even doing it yourself, now that shortages of one sort or another are making buying so difficult. For that very reason, however, it is more than ever important for the homemaker to budget for victory.

There are a number of different ways of keeping your food budget balanced, but right now a good rule of thumb way of getting the right foods in the right proportion is this—

Divide foods into four classes:

1. Dairy Products—milk, cheese, and butter
2. Fruit and vegetables—including potatoes, vegetables (fresh and dried), tomatoes, fruits (fresh and dried).
3. Meat, fish and eggs.
4. Cereals and other foods. This class includes bread, oatmeal, flour and the incidentals, sugar, coffee, tea, etc.

Then spend one quarter or 25% of the money you have decided to spend on food on the articles in each class. If you are going to spend $12.00 a week on food, see that three of those dollars go for milk, cheese and butter and another three for fruit and vegetables. The minute you spend too much for one class and too little for another you are feeding your family an unbalanced diet.

And remember that in class 4—Cereals and other foods—most of the money (unless you have lots to spend) should buy wholewheat bread and whole grain cereals. Rationing will help you out there. Coffee and even sugar, to some extent, are not nutritional musts

Made Quest Of Milk Costly For Guest in Hotel

Senator Gerald Nye, North Dakota Republican, told the Senate that a friend, stopping at a hotel in Washington, had paid $1.60 for a quart of milk he drinks nightly before retiring.

The hotel guest was informed, Nye said, that the quart of milk would have to be delivered to his room in four glasses. The charge was 30 cents for each glass, plus 25 cents for service to the room.

"I understand," Nye told his colleagues, "that the farmer whose dairy cattle produced that quart of milk may have received five cents for it."

BRAINED THEMSELVES

An audience in occupied Denmark was viewing a Nazi newsreel. Upon the appearance of Hitler getting into a plane, a voice rang out from the darkened house, "Remember me to Hess!"

Instantly the lights went out, and the Gestapo searched for the guilty one. Failing, they ordered the show closed, told the people to get their money back at the door. Bilingly the audience filed out, not one stopping at the box-office for his refund.

"Why our money back?" they told the gaping Gestapos. "We enjoyed the show!"

Orson Welles, he of the many talents and activities, has dabbled in fields you'd never suspect. One little known episode he visited Welles career took place when he was a 16-year-old veterns of scholastic theatricals. He was a carpenter.

There was a Chicago neighborhood daily called the "Highland Park News" which had a meager circulation. He had a byline over a column of theatre news and critiques. His journalistic career was short-lived, however, as he was fired for his caustic comment on the shows.

Next Sunday, for "Nazis Eyes On Canada", he becomes a newspaperman again. He will assume the part of Sam J. Dornan, Editor of the Almeda "Dispatch", Alameda, Saskatchewan. The broadcast will show by the description of everyday Almeda community folk how their lives would change under the tyrannical heel of Nazi conquerors.

Sam J. Dornan has served 23 years as a director of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association. He is known by every weekly editor in Canada. Today, his five sons are in uniform—his eldest, a captain in Ordnance, was wounded in the Dieppe raid.

Listen to Orson Welles as the Saskatchewan weekly newspaper editor in the final broadcast of the "Nazi Eyes On Canada" series, Sunday, October 25th at 7.30 p.m. E.D.T., over a coast-to-coast network.
